BRITISH TRAP PORTION OF ROMMEL'S ARMY

Flank Endangered By British Thrust Over Wide Sector

British Hold Positions and Smash All Enemy Efforts To Break out of Pocket

TRAP CLOSED SATURDAY

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)
Cairo, Nov. 2 (AP)—A concentration of Axis forces on Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel's left wing was pocketed in a bold weekend night thrust by a British corps which smashed across coastal sand dunes with bayonets flashing and by sunset last night the enemy had made general move to break out, although one appeared hemmed in.

(Cairo reports to London newspapers said the trapped Axis force numbered several thousand, most of them Germans.)

The Axis force was caught Friday night by the desert-wise Australians who crossed the railroad running near the coast in the face of considerable enemy opposition.

The Aussies wiped out Axis nests and took prisoners as they surged forward, often relying on the bayonet to overcome opposition.

The counter-offensive was not wholly encircled, but an iron ring was forged around the anti-tank complexesions to make its position untenable.

Clearly illustrating the air superiority held by the Allies, the American commentator said that except for the long bursts with the formation of Messerschmitt fighter-bomber missions and fighter sweeps failed to encounter enemy planes.

"In the first striking force the R.A.F. sent against the convoy in the Mediterranean was a segregation of the South African Air Force who comes from Alsbon, N.Y. [Probably Hoboken—Editor]

This pilot, whose name was not disclosed, spotted the enemy ships through a hole in a thick layer of smoke laid down by the escorting vessels, just as a flare from another attacking plane threw light on the subject.

The pilot was too close to attack but by a breath-taking maneuver got himself into position to attack in the next run and blasted the target of his quarry.

"I let go with my torpedoes very close, closer than I should have," he said. "But I knew that if I missed I would get another crack. And at that time I was too busy dodging tracers and anti-aircraft shells, but I heard my rear gunner shout 'We've jumped the second one.' So I knew our torpedoes struck home."

The rear gunner said a column of brilliant flame shot 800 feet a thousand feet into the air. A view of another pilot said they simply were thrown from their seats by the force of the blast, indicating it must have been carrying ammunition.

While the main push on the 5th Army's operations were proceeding successfully, another group along the El Alamein line.

Communiques Blasted

British and United States airmen meanwhile got in heavy new blows against Axis communications.

American headquarters announced a destructive raid upon the Axis air base at Maleme, in Crete, by heavy bombers and the R.A.F. said that two enemy merchant ships, the first to enter the North African passage since three vessels were sunk last Monday, were blown to pieces yesterday by British torpedo planes.

A communique said fires and explosions were observed in the target area in Crete from which air support has been going to Rommel.

American fighter pilots, escorting Allied fighter-bombers, broke up a formation of 30 Messerschmitts in a dogfight over the Egyptian battle area, this communique said.

The British torpedo planes sank the two merchantmen Sunday out of a convoy trying to cross the Mediterranean with an escort of destroyers and patrol boats.

They sent the first ship to dusk Saturday and the initial strikes were made a day later although it took to sink one ship. The other was sent to the bottom at dawn.

On the desert battle front, Rommel's main armor was west of the position encircled by the Australians.

In other parts of the desert also were great British armored formations ready to deal their own thrusts.

TURKEY STANDS IN DANGER OF BEING ATTACKED

Premier Inonu Says Country Will Remain Loyal to Alliances

WARNING ISSUED

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 2—(AP)—With Axis forces striking to the north and south of her, neutral Turkey had before her today a sober warning that she stood in danger of being attacked.

Premier Ismet Inonu uttered the warning yesterday in the annual presidential address at the opening of parliament's winter session.

No names were mentioned but the President declared that "Turkey is closer to war today than at any time since the present world conflict started."

The legislators, he said, must give serious consideration to the fact Turkey's existence is now the subject of aggression.

In what was interpreted as apparently a reference to the Axis, he said:

"With the war spread over every quarter of the globe, one begins to understand that political institutions founded on domination by a single power cannot be maintained."

He said Turkey would remain loyal to her Alliances.

Turkey and Great Britain have an Alliance which commits nearly to full pledged military and material aid to her if Germany attacked Turkey. Moreover, Russia and Germany have a 10-year amity pact signed in June, 1941.

Brockville Citizens Witness Realistic Army Manoeuvres

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP)—Naval, military and air forces from nearby training establishments joined Saturday to stage the first combined operations manoeuvres ever attempted in the Thousand Islands area and thousands of citizens of Brockville and surrounding towns looked on.

In co-operation with the local Victory Loan committee the force gave the citizenry a realistic reproduction of what the invasion of Dieppe, France, would have seen last Aug. 19 during the Canadian attack there if both the Germans and the Allies when live ammunition was flying around.

The manoeuvre was a quickly improvised affair, but it served to show its organizers that they had been seized by Germans who were rolling along in a Nazi-built armored car which, driven by sending one arm of a pincers by the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers and another up the Hudson.

British Subjects on Channel Is. Fearful of Possible Food Shortage

(By SCOTT YOUNG)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 2 (CP) — Britons with relatives and friends living under German occupation on the Channel Isles have been given news of conditions there that is both comforting and disquieting.

Latest semi-official reports said the Germans have 10,000 men stationed there. Technically, these men form an army of occupation. Actually, they are concerned mainly with keeping the whip poised over 32,000 civilians. Reports received from 12 European nations to the International Red Cross show the Germans are throwing up with desperate speed.

Comforting is the inference that the Germans expect a British attack.

Disquieting is the news that despite the vastly-increased population of the little group of islands, the food stocks have not been increased and that clothing stocks—exhausted long ago—have not been replenished.

Causing even more concern are reports that some male British subjects have disappeared from their homes recently. There is fear that they have been taken to continental Europe for forced labor.

The Germans on the Islands — some of them civilians sent for administrative jobs — generally are said to be acting correctly toward British subjects, however. They have built, but compelled for the Russians, Poles, Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians and others among the conscripted laborers.

The food ration is small. Heavy workers are allowed 2½ pounds of bread weekly (about 6½ pounds). Other workers get 1½ pounds. Other known rations are (weekly): Sugar, 8 ounces; potatoes, 7 lbs.; meat, one to 3 ozs.; cocoa, 2 ozs.; fat 2 ozs. Officially the islanders can buy 2 pounces of meat each week, but usually there is none for sale.

Radios are not allowed in homes in which there are no Germans billeted. There are plentiful stocks of coal, but islanders expect to see little of it. Life under the occupation will be comfortable, what is left going to the civilians.

REDS FIGHTING HARD TO PROTECT MILITARY HIGHWAY

Forced to Retreat In Nalchik Area But Still Holding Approach to Caucasus

GAIN AT STALINGRAD

Moscow, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Red Army fought fiercely throughout the night to defend the approaches to its vital military highway across the Caucasus mountains after a retreat in the Nalchik area spread, but the close-by communique said the Germans had been thrown back in heavy parts of Stalingrad.

Of the critical situation in the Nalchik area, the communique said only that "our troops fought heavy defensive engagements." Enemy tanks, guns, planes and five guns were reported smashed by Soviet counter-attacks.

It was in the Nalchik area that the main German airmight secured to be gathering in the shadow of the towering Caucasus mountains and the action in Stalingrad apparently had dwindled to small engagements in scattered areas.

Capture Several Buildings

During the night, the Russians moved aggressively against German positions in the charred and blackened city and reported they had captured several buildings from the enemy. One big gunners was credited with killing 250 Germans and the Red defenders were de-

Aussie Airmen Based in Russia, Help Allied Convoys

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 2 (CP)—A Royal Australian Air Force formation is based in Soviet Russia, where it is helping to protect Allied convoys to Murmansk and co-operating with the Red Air Force in hunting enemy surface raiders, Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford announced today.

The unit is constituded by Wing Cmdr. Grant Mouchlemann of Sydney who has just been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

It is the first Australian unit in Russia since last summer to help United Nations convoys run the gauntlet of German air and sea attacks.

GRATEFUL CHAFFINCH

London (CP)— A chaffinch couldn't do enough to show its appreciation to Keshleen Grunnah who treated a chest wound it had received. Ribbon, lace, a three-penny bit were quickly followed by the Dr. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers and another up the Hudson.

Belleville Pilot Best Night Fighter In Britain

U.S. Air Force Gears Production to 150,000 Planes in Two Years

The United States army air forces have geared operations to an expanded two-year program, involving a two-year production of possibly 150,000 planes and air personnel of two million to two million five hundred thousand men. To demonstrate how the A.A.F. is keeping pace with this program, a group of observers was taken behind the scenes at the Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, experimental and test station.

(By ALAN J. GOULD)

Wright Field, Dayton, O., Nov. 1 (AP)—Three hours by air from Broadway's clamor, I stood alone in the midst of projects and gargantuas to turn all Hell loose in the current and coming war of the air.

Take, for example, a night demonstration of fire power staged for our benefit. Three B-17 Flying Fortress turning the firing pits are half-dozen of the fiercest fighter and bombing planes now in mass "production.

Col. James Gillespie signals and the six (or more) wing-mounted .50 calibre guns of the Republic P-47 (Thunderbolt) pour tracer slugs into the target. The seventy-shell battery of the P-39 (Bell Aircobra), including a gun which shoots cannon, blasts away. A cannon burst from the North American P-51 (Mustang) is the finishing touch of tarrel firing by a B-17 (Boeing Flying Fortress) top, and it's a murderous show.

Program for Air Supremacy

The .50-calibre weapons are as characteristic of the American program for air supremacy as the long-range, high-altitude, heavy bombers which in their newest conception—now on the production line—will carry bigger bombs to greater distance than anything else that flies.

These are among factors that army leaders consider likely to have decisive influence on the ultimate course and outcome of the war: the .50-calibre machine-gun bullet, for instance, will probably pierce the heaviest armor now known to be part of any enemy plane's equipment. Latest United States planes carry much more armor-piercing ammunition than the fighters and bombers of Japanese fighter planes.

Daylight raids by squadrons of heavy bombers, the Boeing Flying Fortress and Consolidated Liberators, operating from bases on the British Isles, Australia, and in the Middle East, have convinced the high command that these ships are the immediate answer to the second front of the air. The ability to withstand enemy slugging to deliver devastating blows, protect themselves in the clinches with enemy fighters, and return with relatively few losses, ranks among the top "musts" in aeronautical developments of 1943 from the Allied viewpoint.

No longer in any section of the war theatre is command's chief tendency to minimize the deadly power and precision of these high-level bombers. On the contrary, the best and most creative engineering minds are concentrating on making these stratospheric slugsters bigger and tougher for 1943.

PRICES BOARD FREEZES BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

No New Business Can be Started Without Special Permission

EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP) — The Prices Board, in a move designed to peg at its present level the number of business establishments now operating in Canada, and to prevent multiplying of existing outlets in view of increasingly restricted supplies, ordered today that, with certain exceptions, no new business may be established hereafter without Board permission.

Donald Gordon, chairman of the Board, said the order is designed, except in a comparatively few special cases—existing businesses are adequately supplied with available supply of goods and services.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and ten types of service businesses are affected by the "freezing" order, which prohibits them—except under permit—from moving to larger premises, increasing the variety of goods in which they are engaged, or from forming new partnerships. The order became effective today.

The service businesses covered by the freezing order are:

Warehousing and storage; undertaking and embalming; laundering and dry cleaning; hairdressing and beauty parlor services; plumbing and heating; painting and decorating; supplying meals, refreshments and services; renting and exhibiting moving pictures; slaughtering, and any manufacturing process performed on a custom or commission basis.

33 Tons of Bombs Dropped on Jap Concentrations In Buin-Faisi Area

LOW-LEVEL RAID

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Striking twice to unload 35 tons of bombs in their most destructive pre-dawn attack on Japanese naval concentrations in the Buin-Faisi area of the Solomon Islands, Allied airmen believed they sank or seriously damaged seven enemy vessels, it was announced.

"In continued support of the Solomons operation, headquarters communique said today, "two heavy low-level night attacks were executed by strong formations of our heavy and medium units against enemy shipping in the Buin-Faisi area."

The attacks were delivered from low altitude in the face of intense anti-aircraft opposition.

Convention Executive Meeting at Ottawa

Winnipeg, Nov. 2 (CP) — Executive officers of the Canadian Conservative Convention will meet in Ottawa this Wednesday, A. E. Hall, secretary of the convention, said in an interview here Saturday following a conference with H. R. Milner of Edmonton.

Mr. Milner, who is chairman of the National Committee, left Winnipeg Saturday night for Ottawa to confer with Bell left for the national capital last night.

Plans and arrangements for the convention opening here December 9 will be completed by executive members of the Winnipeg general committee.

Mr. Milner announced that members of the resolutions committee would hold a two-day session at Winnipeg immediately preceding the convention to formulate a final draft on recommendations of party policy.

The resolutions committee, numbering more than 100 members, is headed by Dr. J. A. Bowman, president of the Ontario Conservative Association.

JAPANESE LOSSES IN NAVAL-AIR BATTLE MOUNT

JAPS LOSE 150 PLANES

Washington, Nov. 2 — (AP) — The sinking of seven enemy warships and damage to eight others, including a converted aircraft carrier set after, by American submarines during recent operations in the Pacific was announced today by the United States Navy.

A communique reported that American submarine operations in the Western and South Pacific had sunk four large passenger-cargo ships, two large tankers, two medium-sized and two small cargo ships, damaged another after one converted carrier, and damaged one destroyer and a medium-sized tanker.

These operations brought the total of enemy ships reported sunk or damaged by submarines in the Pacific since the outbreak of war to 133, of which 85 were sunk, 20 probably sunk and 27 damaged.

The latest Navy report on submarine action against the Japanese in the Pacific, in a communique of Oct. 14, reported the sinking of five Japanese ships, including a heavy cruiser, plus one probably sunk and two damaged.

United States naval forces appeared to have the run of the waters around Guadalcanal as a result of the Solomons battle Oct. 26 in which the Japanese now are reported to have suffered losses of 150 plane.

In what the Navy described as the first detailed rep rt of the naval-air battle east of the Solomons a week ago, the enemy also was reported to have suffered heavy losses in ships.

Japanese warships listed as damaged included two aircraft carriers, two battleships and three cruisers. This added one battleship and two cruisers to the score previously reported.

Rear Admiral Daniel Callaghan, in the engagement are one carrier, as yet unidentified, and the destroyer Porter, with other ships reporting lesser damage:

Also the battered Japanese Armada retired from the scene, American warships swept from the area to the south and the defenseless hulk of the damaged cruiser was left to the mercy of the enemy. Several buildings and boats and some artillery were destroyed by Japanese troops in the Buin-Faisi area Friday, (Solomon Islands time).

G. Pepper, D.F.C., Shoots Down Three Dorniers in Night

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pepper, Known In District for Ability With Motorcycle

TELLS STORY OF FIGHTS

Displaying the same perfect teamwork and initiative that won for him the Distinguished Flying Cross last August, Flying Officer George T. Pepper, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pepper, Dundas St., has hurled his Brai fighter plane against formations of Nazi raiders and sent three of them crashing and burning to destruction air battle over Britain on Saturday night, according to information received by his parents here today.

The news of the young fighter pilot's sensational air victory was flashed over the air yesterday from Britain.

Pepper's Own Story

Pepper and his observer, who share a score of 18 enemy bombers destroyed with their flight commander, got one Dornier 217 on the first sortie last night and two more a short time later after refuelling and reloading.

Pepper told the story of the big night. "On our first sortie we spotted the twin tail of a DO-217," he said, "I closed in and gave him two bursts of three or four seconds each. His starboard engine caught fire and he dived to about 1,000 feet.

"I gave him another long burst at very close range and then the whole fuselage of the Dornier was blazing.

"After landing to refuel and rearm we took off again and soon sighted another DO-217. This time the Hun fired at us first but his shots went wide. We closed and gave him a burst. I saw strikes on his starboard side and he stopped firing. Then there was a flash and the Dornier dived steeply. It hit the ground with a terrific explosion and its bombs went off.

"We still hoped for more and we were lucky. Another DO-217 came in front of us. We closed up on it and our first two-second burst set it on fire. It flew again and the enemy aircraft went down steeply. Our Brai fighter is fully armed.

Has Good Observer

Pepper is a member of a Royal Air Force night fighter squadron and has as his "team-mate" and observer, Flying Officer Joseph Toone, of Bath, Ontario. Toone is also the Distinguished Flying Medal when a flight sergeant in the army. Another pair that Pepper received the D.F.C.

For six months the two have flown together and their exploits are the toast of the Britic village of Ashford, somewhere in England.

Say Italian Guards Fired on Group Of Demonstrating Girls, Killing 16

Jerusalem, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Italian prison guards at Tirana, Albania, fired on a group of girls demonstrating for the release of political prisoners recently, killing 16 and wounding 30, reliable Balkan sources reported today.

Women and students were reported taking a leading part in the insurrection movement against their Italian rulers because so many men opposing Italian rule are fighting as guerillas in the mountains. The director of Tirana police and two officers were wounded recently by patriots, after which more than 100 persons were arrested, these informants said.

"I've dropped hundreds of bombs but never before heard the explosion inside my aircraft," he added. "This one was colossal."

The crew was Canadian, Australian and British.

In the last eight days and nights bombers have dropped 1,730,000 pounds of bombs in the desert Grand War.

BRITONS' SPIRIT ASSURES VICTORY, BENNETT SAYS

ASSAILS WILLKIE

Toronto, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Viscount Bennett said in an address here Saturday that the spirit of the British people gave assurance that "the end of victory is not far off" and victory was absolutely assured if the people of the Anglo-Saxon world and their allies fight with all their might.

Addressing a joint meeting of two Toronto clubs (Empire and Canadian) the former Canadian Prime Minister assailed Wendell Willkie for recent references to India, and declared that the Government of England "has consisted of giving to the people of this and other lands the right to govern themselves."

He outlined his impressions after a tour of eight of Canada's nine provinces and said he believed that "the only fair way to solve the state in time of war is through systematic registration and call-up."

Of his tour he said he found that many Canadian people believed the Dominion was suffering from too much bureaucracy. Between the Pacific and the Great Lakes he found that "there is a growing number of men and women . . . who say they would prefer to be governed by the United States than governed by a minority."

Willkie's Recent Speech

He said he had found among Canadians "a deep rooted resentment

Nazi Supply Ship Set Afire, Another Is Left Sinking

London, Nov. 2 — (CP) — The Admiralty announced today that one enemy supply ship was set on fire and a small enemy left sinking during a fight with an enemy convoy off the Libyan coast Sunday. Five islands are off the north coast of Sicily.

British ships encountered a convoy of three small supply ships escorted by torpedo boats and by an armed trawler, and scored hits on both the convoy and the escort vessels, a communique said. Because of fog and a heavy smoke screen put up by the enemy, it was impossible to determine the full damage to the enemy ships, it was reported.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

LAST MAILING DATE FOR PARCELS NOV. 10

Individuals and organizations sending parcels to soldiers overseas for Christmas are reminded by the post office department, that the last date for mailings to points of destination for delivery before Christmas is on November 10th.

Large numbers of parcels are handled every day at the Belleville post office, it was stated this morning by Postmaster V. C. Treadgold, the great majority of these being mailed by church and other organizations. A responsible individual's parcels are also being mailed by individuals but this does not compare with the numbers being sent to soldiers by organizations.

Residents on six mail routes in the residential sections of the city today received only one mail delivery, this program, which has been in effect for some time in the larger centres, having been delayed in Belleville, business sections of the city will still continue to be served with two mail deliveries each day, it was stated by the postmaster.

The one delivery of mail to the residential sections of the city will not necessarily be in the morning, but should not be looked for or waited out to serve all districts once each day, either in the morning or in the afternoon, depending on particularly requested not to call the post office to learn by mail delivery schedules, as they may be guided by the times which their mailmen calls on Monday, November 2nd.

HARRY M. SHARPE GIVEN COMMISSION

Harry Morden Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe of Belleville and Wood, was among the 31 R.C.A.F. graduates to receive their commissions at the close of exercises on Saturday as the result of good showing while training with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, it was announced from Ottawa.

Pilot Officer Sharpe was born in Deseronto 24 years ago and attended school in that village He enlisted as a mechanic with the R.C.A.F. prior to the outbreak of the war and was stationed at Trenton. He later requested pilot's training as a result of a flyer, graduating from Uplands Air Station. He is married to a Deseronto girl.

CONSECON SOLDIER PRISONER OF WAR

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vanclief of Consecon have received word from Ottawa that their son, Private Donald Vanclief of the Quebec Rifles is a prisoner of war at Hong Kong. Grave doubts had been felt for Donald's safety as word had been received since he had sailed from Canada last fall.

One of the youngest soldiers to be detached to the far eastern Hong Kong fortress as a member of the Canadian reinforcement garrison, Private Vanclief is now only 20 years of age. He enlisted with the 3rd Island Regiment two years ago and trained at Camp Sussex, Fredericton, N.B., and at Niagara Falls. Late last summer he transferred to the Quebec Rifles and was home last in October on leave. Prior to joining Mr. Melson Vanclief, senior bridge tender at the bay bridge at Rossmore.

2 BELLEVILLE WOMEN SUFFER INJURIES

Slipping on the wet pavement during Saturday afternoon's streaks of rain, two Belleville women suffered injuries and were admitted to the Belleville General Hospital.

SAILING PUNT MISSING

Whether it was stolen or drifted from its moorings in the harbor, a fifteen-foot sailing punt was reported missing from the Belleville yacht club. The craft is the property of Wallace Bell, 15 Strachan Street, and was last seen when Mr. Bell went to beach his boat on Sunday. The punt is green in color and had been securely fastened by Mr. Bell, he told police today.

CAR HITS BACK OF BREAD WAGON

In an automobile-bread wagon collision on East Dundas Street shortly before 8 o'clock, considerable property damage resulted to the "Jealous Sugar" Canadian Lady Catherine Street, was driving his motor car west on East Dundas when the vehicle collided with the rear of a Weston bread company wagon, that was parked without properly displayed lights, Mr. Lang alleged. The driver of the wagon had turned onto the boulevard, but fortunately the car backed out so the wagon did not run away to add complications to the accident. Damage estimated at $200 resulted, police reported.

FOUR BIKES STOLEN ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Not exactly considered under the guise of Hallowe'en pranks, an epidemic of bicycle stealing was reported to Belleville police on Saturday night when four bikes were reported missing. Herb Moon, 73 Station St., reported his bike stolen off Front St., while William Burshaw, 110 Station St., lost his bike from a similar position. Willie Counts, No. 1 Bridge Street, had his bicycle taken from behind Boyce's garage while attending the Belle Theatre and Bruce Burns told police his bike was stolen also. Subsequently two of the missing bikes were found abandoned by police.

OFFICE OF GLEN ROY CREAMERY RANSACKED

While patrolling beats early Sunday morning city police discovered that entrance had been gained into the Glen Roy Creamery, Pinnacle St. The window glass in the office door had been broken and a large stone was found outside the door. The marauders ransacked the office furniture seeking cash, so Belleville was disturbed. Company officials were notified and upon investigation nothing was reported missing. Heavy padlocks on doors leading to premises and after ransacking the office broke the knob off the cream pony safe door, but failed to gain entrance. The fact the stone used to break the door or window and all of the shattered glass was found outside the building pushes police somewhat.

Several Accidents Involving Cars Reported to Police

A steady weekend downfall of rain resulted in a considerable number of accidents being reported by city and Provincial Police over the weekend. Considerable property damage was reported as the result of the collisions, but no serious injuries were sustained.

Bringing the motor car to a sudden stop to avoid striking a dog on Station Street, Saturday afternoon, Jean Lyons, Canadian, was surprised when her vehicle was struck suddenly from behind. Police learned that Donald Mason, 100 Cannifton Rd., had been following Miss Lyons't car but when the lady stopped abruptly to avoid hitting the dog, Mason's car skidded into the rear of the lead vehicle on the pavement was quite wet as the result of rain. The majority of the damage resulted to Mason's car police said.

Cyclist Knocked Down

Murney Rodgers, 304 North Charles Street, was knocked down to pavement on Station Street, Saturday afternoon by Ross Bateman, the side of a motor car driven by O. E. Eggleton, 10 Highland Ave when Bateman, 10 Highland Ave and the motor car, while Mr. Rodgers complained of bruises, was not injured. Police are still investigating.

Damage Assessments

Damage amounting to approximately $200 resulted to two motor cars when Mrs. Stinson Gardiner, driving in a rear-end collision, Traffic Officer J. C. Hinds reported. A car driven by Chas. Perrin of Valcartier, Que., had skidding on wet pavement in the western people motorists as the student farmers were concerned was good and every community had a full employment agency.

The eastern students were given a rousing reception by University of Manitoba students when their train pulled into the Winnipeg station.

"We slept in garages some of the time but for the most part in tents," said the weather got cold toward the end of the season, but the work was not too hard, at least I didn't mind it, and outside of a few blisters on our hands, no ill effects from the work."

The western people went all out to make the eastern students' summers say as pleasant as possible, Hart said. The food was good, surroundings congenial, and many a college man rode his first horse bareback into town.

There may have been dissatisfaction in some parts of the west on the part of some students, he said, but in the main, the Queen's men were generally satisfied, and many will return next year if the situation demands it, and they are available.

Student Harvester Reports Getting Fine Treatment While in the West

"The western hospitality was a grand; we received the best of treatment and I hope we can go back again next year."

That is the opinion of six representative of six weeks on the Canadian prairies assisting with the western farmers with the harvest, of Ross Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hart of George Street, and a member of a party of 350 Queens University students who returned to the city on Sunday.

There was no scarcity of work, at least in the Indian Head section of Saskatchewan where Hart was located for the greater part of his stay. "Anyone who wanted a job could get one," he said. "The organization of the western people insofar as the student farmers were concerned was good and every community had a full employment agency."

Police Apprehend Two Youths on Charges Of Purse Snatching

Alertness of Belleville police resulted in the apprehension of two Trenton youths on charges of purse snatching over the weekend. Under the guise of apparent Hallowe'en pranks two local women reported their purses had been snatched by two men and a total of $65 stolen. The crimes were committed in different parts of the city, the first attempt on Ann St., the second on Queen and the final one on Catherine Street. The men were charged with the theft of purses today. It was following the investigations of the men that Belleville police scoured the city and three hours later were rewarded for their efforts when they apprehended two men answering the descriptions on West Bridge Street. Both men and two of the purses were recovered, but none of the money has been forthcoming although Probert revealed today. The pair will appear in police court on Tuesday. The pair are alleged to have threatened a Chin laundryman without results also.

Couple Killed On Level Crossing Near Napanee

Robert Merritt, 63, was instantly killed and his 58-year-old wife, Ada Merritt, died later in the Napanee hospital, as the result of a level railway crossing crash east of Napanee early Saturday evening. The couple residents of Deseronto, were proceeding to Napanee when their motor car was in collision with a westbound Canadian National Railways passenger train, what is commonly referred to as Mooney's Crossing, Provincial Constable Fred Wright, Napanee detachment who reported it was raining at the time and visibility was poor.

The car, driven by Mr. Merritt struck the third section of the C.N.R. passenger train No. 15 which was driven by George T. Gregory, 63 Cemetery Street, driving and the train in charge of Conductor Douglas Hamilton, Belleville. Thuds Coroner Dr. D. R. Hall of Napanee conducted an inquest would be necessary, but it is suggested the fatal crash is due to darkness mixed with weather elements dominating.

The couple had one son, Leslie, serving overseas with the Canadian Sd Forces and now stationed at Toronto. Two other sons live in the Napanee district.

Merritt was well known as a breeder of Holstein cattle and was one of the first promoters of T.B. tested herds in the County of Lennox and Addington. He was past president of the Lennox Improvement Association here.

More Emergency Exits to River Needed to Provide More Water In Case of Fires Says Chief Lynch

Additional emergency exits to the river from which water may be pumped by city fire-fighting equipment are urgently needed in Belleville, it was stated this morning by Fire Chief William Lynch, following a demonstration of city and auxiliary fire fighting equipment on Sunday.

The demonstration was held in connection with the training of volunteer fire fighting members of the local Civilian Defence Committee, who have volunteered their services to assist in fighting fires during an emergency.

With the city pumper and the portable auxiliary pumper supplied to the city through the Civilian Defence organization were used in the demonstration, it being found that only two places along the river are under the minimum of 15 feet from the water. At heights greater than fifteen feet the pumper equipment will not operate, it was stated by Chief Lynch.

Ask for Survey

Through the Ontario Advisory General, Fire Marshal W. J. Scott, it requested that the chiefs in all the municipalities have a survey of their districts with the view of ascertaining all available water reservoirs or exits from fire fighting equipment may be pumped in an emergency such as during an air raid in which city water pressure might fail.

Chief Lynch, though the city council might be asked to provide additional exits along the Moira River from which water may be pumped by city equipment, stated Chief Lynch, it is his opinion that it was claimed there are two places where city pumper equipment can pump water from the river, this being behind the Queen's Hotel and at a point near Boyce's garage.

Three volunteers, together with members of the Ontario Provincial Constabulary, were present at Sunday's demonstration of regular and auxiliary fire fighting equipment. Following tests made at the river bank, the equipment was moved to Victoria Park where an exhibition was staged by the 30 familiarize volunteers with the pumping equipment.

Hunting Parties Leave for North

Armed with rifles and a limited supply of cartridges, the usual grubstake and a few spare blankets, the annual deer hunting brigade left the city and district for the hills of the northern sections of the district. The official season opens today and closes on Nov. 30th.

One of the largest parties to leave the city and their destination is that with the view of ascertaining all available water reservoirs or exits from fire fighting equipment may be pumped in an emergency such as during an air raid in which city water pressure might fail.

According to reports from the northern areas there is some snow in the woods, and likewise plenty of deer.

F. Singleton, Dairy Board, Ottawa Addresses Cheese Board Banquet

Madoc —(Special)— On Thursday evening the annual banquet of the Madoc Cheese Board was held in Madoc Armories. Over three hundred and fifty guests were present. The Madoc branch of the Women's Institute catered for this affair. The tables were in keeping with the season. Candles, pumpkins and pine branches added much to the attractiveness of the tables. After all doing justice to the fine dinner, the chairman for the evening, Mr. John McCaffrey, took charge of the program. In a short address Mr. McCaffrey complimented the ladies of the W. I. on the very fine dinner served. He spoke on the cheese industry and mentioned Mr. Singleton of the Dairy Board, Ottawa, as being instrumental in the vast improvement in the cheese factories in Hastings County. Hastings County's average being the highest in Ontario. Much credit was due the instructors also.

Mr. Irwin, cheesegrader at Belleville, was present and in introducing the guest speaker, Mr. Singleton of Ottawa, stressed the place that the cheese industry holds in agriculture and briefly mentioned the making of cheese during the winter months and of the quality of cheese produced.

Mr. Singleton, in opening his address, said he had been in the work for 46 years. The first cheese factory was built in 1865. In 1864 Lord Elgin made a treaty with United States for export of agricultural products, at the cancellation of this treaty in 1865 cheese factories came into prominence and in order to take care of the surplus products cut off from export it has steadily advanced. In 1942 exports of cheese amount to one hundred and twenty-five million pounds and the contract was filled on May Oct. 9. Increase in production over 1941 was 21½%. Last March the cheese ration in England was 1 ounce per person per week and in July it was increased to 8 ounces per person per week. United States is using more cheese owing to scarcity of meat and is buying Canadian cheese.

Dairy Products Board will buy cheese for the United Kingdom up to Oct. 31. Canadian Red Cross sending parcels to prisoners of war, accounts for large amounts of cheese, each box contains 1 pound of cheese and 1 pound of evaporated milk. A decided improvement has been made, Fifty factories in Quebec that formerly made butter have been converted to the manufacture of cheese. In 1941 Mr. cheese graded 92% in 1942, Mr. McEvoy's grading record has a record of 93% of the make in this district. Mr. Crown, entertainer, gave three numbers at this time.

Mr. Clarence Wood, Reeve of Madoc Village, on behalf of the citizens of Madoc, extended words of welcome to the guests. Mr. C. C. Rush, Warden of Hastings County, was introduced and assured the Dairy Products Board that they can depend on the farmers of Hastings County to keep up and increase the production of cheese. A toast to the armed forces was proposed by Mr. Murray of Campbellford and responded to by Rev. Mr. Paterson of Queensboro.

The drawing for the lucky ticket on a Jersey heifer, donated to the Madoc Red Cross Branch by Mr. Walter Whytock, was drawn by Mr. Singleton, Mrs. Ralph Neal of Marmora holding the lucky number. The musical and entertainment part of the program was given entirely by Mr. Cowan of Toronto, Mr. Leo Riggs of Belleville was accompanist. A vote of thanks to the Cheese Board was proposed by James Nicol and seconded by Mr. John Bell.

Murray Township Schools Sponsor Victory Concert

Wooler — Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bell were guests of Mrs. Marion Mitchell and her son, Jim, at Trenton, Sunday, October 25th. To mark the occasion, the dinner was in honor of Mrs. Bell's birthday and she was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The dining table looked lovely, the centre of attraction being a birthday cake, handsomely decorated in pink and white, including candles, and sang in unison "Happy Birthday to You," after the dinner hour.

A very large crowd of citizens from all sections of Murray Township attended and thoroughly enjoyed a fine concert at Wooler Town Hall on Monday evening, October 26th. The event was sponsored by the students of several schools, and the program was headed by the various teachers, Mr. Sam Crozier, a teacher of the Continuation School, acted as chairman for the evening.

First number on the program was, "A Hymn of Praise" by Stockdale Miss June Whaley favored with a vocal solo with her brother, Arnold, at the piano; Alec Bell charmed his listeners with a violin solo; Tabernacle School, a quartette of boys and girls, favored next; a young lady from Preston Hill rendered a vocal solo. This was followed by a dialogue, "Cat High," by Gunter School; the Ninth Line School sang in chorus; Tabernacle School, a dialogue, "Doris Matilda"; Laurine Genereux of Mount Zion gave a reading. This was followed by a chorus by Wooler School. Two moving pictures were shown next, "The Proud Navy War," and "Remarks Together," and were very interesting. Mr. Martin gave an interesting address, discussing "The New War Loan." A silver collection was taken.

Prove it to him Canada! Answer that sneering challenge with the spit of machine guns . . . the rumble of tanks . . . blacken his skies with bombers, fighters—keep Canadian warships on the hunt for his skulking submarines. Give Hitler hell—he's asked for it.

Show him the very folks he thinks softest, are as tough as they come! You white-collar office men and women—show him that you can take it . . . and give it, too. Show him that you can do without those 'extras' that contribute to the comfort and enjoyment of our normal way of life. And be proud to do it!

What is your share of the savings job? Well, the average Canadian would have to lend to Canada to meet Canada's need $1 in every $5 of income left after taxes and compulsory savings have been collected. The average may not fit your case. Your own circumstances are distinctly your own. You may be able to do better both out of your current income and out of your accumulated savings in the bank—or you may not be able to reach the average. Your share of voluntary savings is every dollar you can possibly spare.

Dastardly Hun Deed

Again the Hun has raided Canterbury, the great religious shrine of the English-speaking race. With the malice of a desperate foe the enemy has made national shrines of faith and liberty and memorials of history and political development the objects of attack during the war. On Saturday the enemy bombed the city hap-hazardly and machine-gunned a street crowded with shoppers.

The barbarous Hun thinks he can terrorize the British people for he has a native tendency to destroy for Nazism is the very expression of destruction and selfishness. The enemy feels the British blows at German industrial centres which are key-points in the military machine of Hitler, but in striking at Canterbury the enemy is not replying to British raids on Hitler's war cities, for Canterbury is not a war industrial city. The object of the Hun is to strike at those centres which the British people hold in veneration.

But the enemy has not learned a lesson which he should have learned from the history of the democratic races. People whose life is characterized by the love of freedom hold historic places dear but attacks on them will not deflect Britain from her plan of smiting Hitler's war machine. Many a temple of faith lies in rubble in Britain after raids in the early part of the war but the British faith endures. In the stones and rubble there is something sacred, something that inspires the British people to hold to their ideals of freedom and faith and honor.

Throughout the course of the war the Hun has never tried to avoid the way of dishonor. Children have been machine-gunned in the fields of Britain, crowded city streets have been attacked, not because the people could by any fetch of imagination be said to be at war with the enemy aim being solely to terrorize and destroy. But he has always failed in his object and will always fail for though the Hun would trample over the shrines of other races and blasts them into dust, the ideals remain and the Hun suffers for the cause of dishonor will never terrorize or break the morale of people fighting for freedom. The seething condition of overrun Europe shows this.

With the peculiar mental abberation of a destroyer, the Hun misunderstands and misinterprets, he does the things that stiffen resistance to him and all his violations only serve to strengthen the will and zeal of the free nations to beat down this Nazi monstrosity.

The blows of the enemy aimed at this city and the people in its streets and the houses fall back upon the Hun's head, spiritually and materially, for heavy mortality among the Hun raiders was the British response to these desecrators and vandals.

Parcels for Overseas

Little over a week remains for the early mailing of Christmas parcels for Canadian troops overseas. November 10th is the deadline in mailing which will give assurance that parcels will reach the members of the forces by Christmas.

A good many parcels have already been sent and this week will see many more. But it is likely that some persons will be apt to forget until it is too late to have any assurance of arrival of parcels overseas in time.

Those who have so far delayed in getting gifts together for sending should lose no more time, otherwise there may be disappointment among those who would so much treasure gifts from home and from friends.

The more care taken in parceling, the greater help is given in expediting the parcel. If parcels are poorly or carelessly addressed, there will be inevitable delay and the same is true where parcels are not securely packed, sealed and tied.

Immediate attention to the preparation of parcels designed to reach the soldiers, seamen, airmen and members of the women's forces and nurses is necessary. These members of the forces think fondly of home at this season and a little token and memory from home will not be unwelcome.

The essence of true nobility is neglect of self. Let the thought of self pass in, and the beauty of a great action is gone like the bloom from a soiled flower.—J. A. Froude.

DIEPPE

As long as Britain's banners wave
And annals of her victories read
In record of her glorious dead,
And of the life they freely gave,
This name through all the coming years
Will stir all loyal hearts again
To emulate the noble slain,
And stir a nation's heart to cheers.
And those who weep for lads who died
Upon that dread and distant coast,
Will turn their grief to heartfelt pride
And in their hearts rejoice and boast,
That never shall the world forget
The brave who fought at Dieppe.

GEORGE PEPPER, NIGHT FIGHTER PILOT

Sirens shrilled an alarm in a night fighter squadron headquarters on Saturday night. The raiders were over England in force. Young pilots dashed to their waiting beaufighter machines. Within a few seconds they were speeding aloft, keen minds alert for the enemy.

Among them was a modest young man. He probably smiled at his team-mate as they took off into the blackness of night, confident, courageous and ready to do or die.

He was Pilot Officer George T. Pepper, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pepper, Belleville. Before the bullet-scarred fighter plane touched its undercarriage to the runway a little while later, three Nazi planes had crashed before the blazing guns of Pepper.

In his own way George is doing a splendid job for his country and Empire. Quiet and unassuming and never one to talk of himself or his exploits, the full story of his sensational air victory will likely not be known for some time. Pepper epitomizes the youth, courage and daring gallantry of Canadian pilots. It is men of his type, and quiet courage that are writing Canada's name in blazing letters across the pages of golden deeds. It is pilots like Pepper who will eventually blast from the skies the black menace that now attempts to ride them.

George is holding high the banner of Belleville and Canada. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross last August, but this has not affected him or changed his mode of action. This city is proud and rightly so of the exploits of one of her hero sons.

A SONNET TO YORK

I know a city where the streets are blown
With fragrance of the long and pattered past
Where jumbled houses, churches, inns are thrown Together by Time's hand—unpausing, vast.
And silent music moves among her stone
Buildings and walls—old, lovely and rockfast—
And rises paenlike and pure of tone
To mingle with the choir of stars at last.
Although that place is far from me tonight
I feel the breath of her serenity
Half-sleeping rose-flushed in the sunset light
Her grey-green river deep with dignity
And the grave Minster rears its glorious height
The crowning chord in York's sweet symphony.

A PITY

An American go-getter, visiting Scotland for the first time, found himself puzzling over the dialect of the hotel porter. Taking the man for a foreigner, he inquired his nationality.

"I belong to Scotland, bonnie Scotland," replied the porter proudly. "And far d' ye cam frae?"

"From the greatest country the world has ever known," boasted the American.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

November 2nd, 1922

The best league football game of the season was played Saturday on the grounds at Albert College between the O.T.R. and the O.W.A.A. teams. It was a keenly contested game and resulted in a draw, the score being 1 to 1. The following composed the teams:—O.T.R.—Goal, Sam Taylor, J. Gorman, Elect. Grant, R. Robinson, G. Gill, H. Baker, W. Morris, W. Hanley, Andy Knott and G. Lancaster. O.W.Y.A.—H. Peters, R. Davies, P. Green, D. Yorke, J. Burns, K. Hayes, W. Greene, T. Radix, J. Griffins, T. Cops and Jack Gill. The referee was Jack Woods and he handled the game in his usual satisfactory manner.

Dr. Benson of this city is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Herring who spent the summer at their home here, have left for Ottawa where they have purchased a house.

"Gunner Arnott" who played hockey with Belleville last winter is now residing in Prescott and will likely play with that town this season. Arnott was Eddie Thomas' scoring ace last winter and bagged most of the goals for the Belleville team.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. Fred J. Smith of Campbellford was in town today.

Mr. Robert Cook of Rawdon, M.P.P., for North Hastings, was in town today.

Mr. Charlie Green has returned to Toronto after visiting friends here.

Mrs. Robert Penn and Mrs. Arthur Penn have returned home after spending some time in Saskatoon, Sask.

Mr. George W. Anderson of Stirling was in town today.

Mr. R. H. Cunning of Toronto is renewing acquaintances in town.

40 YEARS AGO

November 2nd, 1902

At a meeting of the city council the following were appointed to look into the matter of the city taking over the management of the waterworks system: Ald. Pope, Ald. Galbraith and Ald. Wills. Ald. Pope brought up the matter and said that there are now only some 800 paying customers, while there are some 1300 consumers in Brockville, 2000 consumers in Guelph and 2300 consumers in Brantford. The costs here are too high and more consumers are a necessity. The committee appointed will report after going into the matter thoroughly.

Mr. Joseph D. Clarke has returned home after spending some time in the Klondike.

50 YEARS AGO

November 2nd, 1892

A new Methodist Church situated in the 6th concession of Sidney Township was dedicated on Oct. 20th. In the morning the Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.D., Chairman of the Belleville district, preached to a large congregation. In the evening the Rev. O. R. Lambly, ex-president of the Bay of Quinte conference, preached. A good sum was collected toward paying off the debt of the church.

Seven years ago yesterday the city was visited by a heavy snow storm.

The Rev. J. M. Hodson is the guest of Dr. G. S. Eakins and Mrs. Eakins in this city.

WASH DAY

Monday is not observed as wash-day in American homes to the extent existant in Britain and Canada. This is partly due to the fact that Americans do not observe Sunday as a rest day to the extent that they once did.

Many people now do so many things on Sunday that they are too tired to do the washing on Monday and the ironing on Tuesday.

The result is that in many homes the family washing and ironing are postponed until later in the week.

Increased sending of clothes to commercial laundries and cleaning establishments has also had a profound effect on washing and ironing clothes in the home.

It used to be the custom for housewives not to cook a warm meal on wash day.

"Home, and being washing-day, dined 'cold meat,'" Samuel Pepys reported in his famous diary on Monday, April 4, 1664.

An old English rhyme says:

They that wash Monday got all the week to dry,
They that wash Tuesday are pretty near, by,
They that wash Wednesday, make a good housewife,
They that wash Thursday must wash for their life,
They that wash Friday must wash in need,
They that wash Saturday are shirts indeed.

The mustache cup is now little more than a curiosity.

There was a time when nearly every well-regulated household was provided with one or more mustache cups.

A mustache cup is a cup with a special guard to keep the mustache out of the contents while drinking.

These cups went the way of the Do-do, not only because mustaches became less numerous but also because people treated them as a joke and laughed them out of fashion.

The word "mustache" comes through Italian and Spanish from a Greek word meaning mouth or lip.

Mustache is defined by Webster's International Dictionary as, "The hair which grows upon the upper lip of men; either that on both sides, or that on one side of the lip, as a single mustache or a pair of mustaches."

The word spelled "mustache" or "moustache," is generally pronounced "muss-TASH" in America and "moos-TASH" in Britain.

Newest Notes of Science

Only about one per cent. of the residences and other buildings in Switzerland lack the use of electricity.

Metal clips have been invented to hold poultry together for roasting without the use of skewers or sewing.

There are 67 distinct kinds of oil producing seeds, nuts and fruits produced in the Brazilian state of Para.

A process has been developed for spraying airplane motors with pure molten aluminum to protect them from rust.

A carbide factory has been constructed in Eire that is expected to supply about one-third of the domestic demand.

For reading records on microfilm a device has been invented to reproduce them on a screen in the original size.

Brazil is leading the world in the production of castor beans and is expecting a crop of 200,000 long tons this year.

Faucet seals and washers have been combined by an inventor in devices for repairing worn and leaky household water faucets.

Production of wine in France this year has been officially estimated at 1,760,000,000 gallons, about half of the usual quantity.

Unaffected by photographic solutions, plastic holders to suspend cut films in developing tanks are a Los Angeles inventor's idea.

Industrial Alcohol Needed for Success of War Effort

In times of peace few of us realize that each of us daily uses, from the factory to old age, countless things the fabrication of which depends on Industrial Alcohol. But it is in times of strife that Industrial Alcohol really plays a vital role, as it is an indispensable ingredient in almost everything from munitions to medicines, plastics to rubber, in helping to make powder and shells, guns, tanks, planes, destroyers and battleships needed by our armed forces.

Tax Revenue from Distillers Large

Last year in the U the taxes paid by the distry to the Governme $1,300,296,721.00.

In these days of multi-fig sum may not impress you. But look at it in terms of your pay: So big is what it would pay for: 50 big craft carriers of 20,000 tons each 1,000,000 tanks; 10,000 bombers built complete from keel plates to trial run. Or, in more personal terms it would pay the income tax of 68,019,836 persons whose income is $50.00 per week and who are married and have two children.

In Canada, the taxes paid by the distilling industry are comparable to those of the United States, per capita of population.

Hiram Walker Producing Industrial Alcohol in Quantity

WALKERVILLE, July 25.—No time has been lost in converting the facilities of the distilling industry to a wartime basis. As the demand for Industrial Alcohol rises so, too, does supply increase.

Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts Ltd. has been supplying the United Nations with Industrial Alcohol since the outbreak of war. In fact, of the total supplied, Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts Ltd. has produced the major part. This is in addition to the many orders to other manufacturers who use Industrial Alcohol in the production of war material.

THE DAGGER'S POINTED TOWARDS BERLIN

LET'S DRIVE IT THROUGH TO TOKYO!

Yes, it is true that our Dollars turned into Daggers are going to win this war. But it must not be just the Dollars that are left over after luxuries have been purchased—it must be every single Dollar that is not absolutely necessary to our existence. Only by this "all out" investment can Victory be ours.

But our "all out" effort must not stop at lending money—we must travel less in our cars, be more careful at our work, produce more of the weapons of war and forget for the time being our peace time pursuits.

Our peace time equipment at Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts Limited has been completely converted to war time equipment. Some of our plants have been engaged in war work since the beginning of the conflict, and within a few days every hour of our distilling effort in all our plants in Canada and U.S.A. will be devoted to making Industrial Alcohol for the United Nations.

We are proud of our contribution because Industrial Alcohol plays such an important part in the war effort. It is an indispensable ingredient in making everything from munitions to medicines ... plastics to rubber ... in helping to make powder and shells ... guns ... tanks ... planes ... destroyers and battleships needed by our armed forces.

WAR BRIDE

How far into the war away, A mother, that I know
Got a letter from New Zealand just a week or two ago
Saying: "May I call you mother, though you live so far away?
Your son and I were married here at Auckland yesterday."

From Michigan the distance down to Auckland's rather great.
It's a lot of miles to travel to complete some trick of fate.
And that mother of that young-ster never dreamed the day would be
When he'd marry in New Zealand, and I'm certain nor did he.

There's a mother in New Zealand who believed some English man
Would have wooed and won her daughter, not a lad from Michigan.
But the war has shortened distance and has altered many lives
And has given to Yankee soldiers very nice New Zealand wives.

REDS FIGHTING

scribed as "displaying immense courage and inventiveness."

Today is the end of the 10th week of Stalingrad's siege.

Northwest of the city, Russian scouts broke into the German lines and killed about a company of German infantry, the mid-day communique said. Six pillboxes, three dugouts, one gun and five machine-guns were smashed, it was said.

More than 300 Germans were reported killed in the fighting northeast of Tuapse, Black Sea naval port but the trend of the fighting there was not indicated.

Many Strong Fortlines

Nalchik is only 90 miles northwest of Ordzhonikidze, the northern terminus of the mountain military highway which leads to Tiflis and the rich oil properties behind the mountains. However, there are many snowy crags and strong Soviet mountain positions between the Germans and this prize.

Near Novorossisk, naval station in the Caucasus bands, Soviet pursuit aces scouts carried out a raid behind the German lines, killing about 100 of the enemy and destroying six blockhouses and ammunition supply dumps, the midnight communique reported.

Russian planes were thrown into the fighting in the Caucasus and bombers attacked columns of reserves and supplies moving toward the front to assist the hard-pressed ground forces.

ALLIED AIRMEN

three tons of bombs were dropped.

Accurate Observation Difficult

"Accurate observation of the results was difficult, but seven vessels were believed to have been sunk or seriously damaged. One of our planes failed to return."

(A war correspondent of the Melbourne Herald said the seven vessels included warships and merchantmen. He said the 23 tons of explosives dropped in the raid represented the heaviest announced weight of bombs unloaded by Allied planes since their intensive attacks in the Solomons area began.)

Results of the previous raids on the area 300-350 miles north west of Guadalcanal, as announced in previous communiques were:

Thursday — direct hit on one vessel and four others were straddled by bombs. None of the vessels was identified.

Score Two Hits on Cruiser

Friday — A wave of heavy bombers scored two hits on a heavy cruiser, or battleship and placed other bombs close to a light cruiser and an airplane carrier, probably causing extensive damage. A second wave of attackers, medium bombers, hit a heavy cruiser or battleship with a 500-pound bomb. The third wave, also heavy bombers, hit and set on fire an unidentified vessel and scored two possible hits on a destroyer.

Saturday—Heavy bombers scored direct hits on a heavy cruiser, which blew up; a light cruiser was severely damaged; a direct hit was scored on a merchantman; and other vessels were believed damaged by near misses.

No total was given for the explosives dropped in the first of the four pre-dawn raids, but in the second night the weight was 27 tons and the third night 16 tons.

Meanwhile, intervention by the Allies' long period of virtually uncontested mastery of the air over New Guinea, 30 Zero fighters yesterday challenged a strong Allied formation en route to Lae.

In a running fight which started over the gap over the Owen Stanley mountain range, Allied airmen shot down three Zeros for the loss of one plane.

Mounting Activity Seen

The mounting intensity of aerial activity over New Guinea was heralded yesterday by a flight of bombers which dropped 16 tons of missiles on runways, dispersal bays and supply dumps.

The Japanese replied with a light and ineffectual raid on the Allied base at Port Moresby, the third Japanese attempt against the port in the past week.

Allied ground forces continued their slow, methodical advance down the northern slopes of the Owen Stanley range. Latest reports said they were within six miles airline of Kokoda, terminus or the Japanese wet-weather supply road from Buna, on the north coast of New Guinea.

Epilogue of Mr. Willkie's Speech

New York, Nov. 2.— If I may go back to Mr. Willkie's speech, it seems to me that he was aware of a basic issue. That is that this war cannot be fought in one of three ways, as a United Nations war, with a common war plan, strategy, and peace aims; or as an Anglo-American war, with aid to or from the other allies, according to Anglo-American plans; or as an America First war.

Actually it is being fought as an Anglo-American war. Mr. Willkie wants it fought as a United Nations war. But putting the onus upon the British does not contribute to making it a United Nations war, but to producing a rift even in the Anglo-American war, and pushing us toward the third alternative, an America First war. Thus instead of widening the Anglo-American alliance, we weaken even that instability which already exists.

And this can be disastrous. For there is only one war in which there is a certainty of victory, and that is a United Nations war.

In Mr. Willkie's speech, however, there are other statements which are true, and which were crying to be said.

Mr. Willkie's statement that we have, up to now, only a 40 per cent war effort is, as I feel after a trip to the Middle West, a correct statement. It reveals itself in the attitude toward the 18-and 19-year-old draft, in which question Congress is recording correctly the pulse of the country.

A week ago I enumerated the technical reasons for following the army recommendations in this respect But the spiritual resistance against the mobilization of this youth is a proof that the nation as a whole still does not understand the character of this war. If every American realized that we are in a life-and-death struggle for existence and that there is no exemption from the most bitter sacrifice, the whole discussion would not take place.

Assisted by the leaders of both parties, we have had for years a doctrine of escapism. We thought we could buy our way out of the war, or lease-lend our way out, or, finally, produce our way out. We are going to have to fight our way out! And we are going to have to fight our way out with a young army.

Demographically, ours is an old nation. We have a serious shortage of young men. Yet everywhere, on every front, it has been the young men who have won the battles. In Russia, children of 14 are working in factories under bombardment. In Germany, boys of 14 have been awarded the Iron Cross—as revealed in Goebbel's U.P.A. Palace speech to youth a few days ago—for their "heroic service" on anti-aircraft guns in target areas.

If the draft of 18 and 19-year-olds is so restricted as to require a reorganization of the present system, we shall have to call up another half million older and skilled men from factories and farms, disorganizing a productive system already inadequate to the demands upon it.

We are fighting the worst war in the history of our civilization against terrible odds. This statement is not effective until the realization becomes part of one's nervous system, one's very bones—and it is not felt that way by most Americans.

Intellectually, the workers in our factories realize that we must make every effort. But in my trip to the Middle West, I spoke to a young worker who does realize the war in his bones, and he was in despair, telling me that work in his factory—a great aircraft producer—is still toned to a low individual average, which is kept low systematically in order that the workers should receive bonuses when they speed up to what they normally can do readily.

Mr. Willkie said he did not feel proud, coming from the most famous producing area of the earth, to hear on all fronts that we are not delivering enough. The pride of every American must be hurt, because for a generation we have overtopped every nation in the sphere of production.

But our war economy is not yet properly organized, either at the top or at the bottom. We admired the rapid change in Britain in the production spirit and effort after Dunkirk and the phenomenal mobilization of Russia under invasion. Our own cannot compare with either. And it will be too bad for the United States if we suffer such losses that we have to mobilize ourselves, eventually, under the same conditions. Then it will not be a question of 18-year-olds serving, but a question of 2-year-olds being massacred from the air.

Criticism Justified.

Mr. Willkie criticized the information we are getting from the armed forces, and his criticism was more than justified. For weeks the people of the United States have been trying to find out what really has been happening in the Solomon Islands. What we have heard, by way of communiques, has not been illuminating. On the contrary, if one can make guesses from numerous clues, it has been highly misleading.

There is no good telling the U.S. people to trust their military leaders without criticism.

At Pearl Harbor, it was impossible to disguise the serious rivalry between Army and Navy which contributed to that awful catastrophe. There are signs that that disunity has not been resolved in a common war plan. And the people of the United States are not going to risk the issue of the war without hearing their mouths.

There are always only two alternatives with a lively public opinion in time of war: Present the people with a brilliant military and civilian performance, or expect an impatient clamor demand to know what is wrong.

Weekly "Y" Dance For Services Takes Form Of Hallowe'en Party

The weekly dance sponsored by the Y War Services for men and women in uniform took the form of a Hallowe'en party on Saturday night when a gala affair being held in St. Michael's Auditorium. Approximately two hundred were present the guests including airmen and airwomen, soldiers, sailors and Miss Belleville young ladies who act as hostesses. The auditorium was very cleverly decorated in the Hallowe'en tradition and during the evening novelty dances were distributed for the dancers.

An intermission a floor show arranged by Miss Mary Forster was most appreciated. The numbers included dances by two of her pupils, Dorothy and Arlene Dickey who won great applause for their charming numbers. Mrs. Calvert acted as accompanist. Miss Hazel Smith contributed several vocal solos and had to respond to several enthusiastic encores so delighted was the audience with her beautiful voice. Mrs. Smith acted as accompanist for her daughter. As a finale Miss Smith sang the song which she wrote in honor of her brother "The Airmen with the Blue Eyes".

Mr. Jack Wilson acted as master of ceremonies and in thanking all those who had assisted in arranging the evening's entertainment, providing refreshments, etc., paid a silken tribute to the girls of the Y present to the tireless work of Mr. Tom Hill, Y.M.C.A. War Services secretary, and Mrs. Hill, who devote so much time and energy to looking after the entertainment of men and women in uniform. The friends of they have made in Belleville, among the services and the citizens welcomed the opportunity to express appreciation of their efforts. Mrs. Hill acted as pianist for several of the dances, violin accompaniment being provided by Charles Thorn.

Prizes were awarded to the dancers during the evening the winners being: Miss Helen Jeffrey and AC2 Joe Menard, Montreal; Miss Betty Watkes and AC2 Nick Sorge, Amherst, N.S..; AW2 E. A. Graham, New Glasgow, N.S., and AC2 Sandy Colville, Bowmanville, Ont.; Miss Lillian Cobbs and LAC. Bill Taylor, Melbourne, Australia; Miss Jean Sherry and AC2 Charles Dionne, Montreal.

Refreshments were served and the dance in charge of preparing the lunch were Ken Leeson, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. J. M. Wilson, Misses Helen Lee, Pat Lee, Jean Symons, Frances Walker, Evelyn Molyneaux, and Jean Sills.

Careful Meal Planning Saves Fuel And Power

Saving of fuel is of first importance this year, and careful planning of menus will make it possible to cook dishes for several meals at one time. In planning all-oven meals the choice of dishes will depend on the temperature required by the dish that needs the longest cooking time. In this meal, prepared in the experimental kitchens of the Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, the braised meat took two and a half hours at a temperature of 325-350 degrees; so custards, apples, a the oven, so avoid having baking tins touching one another. Careful planning of meals to make maximum use of cooking facilities will result in substantial savings of power or fuel and a consequent reduction in household bills.

Miss S.M. Jenkins, R.N., Is Honored as Utica's Outstanding Woman

Miss Stella M. Jenkins, Reg.N., formerly of Belleville, now of Utica, N.Y., has been honored as the outstanding woman in Utica for the year 1942 and has received the annual award of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mayor Cornutt officially opened the National Professional and Business Women's week program endorsing the award as made by the club and congratulating the club on its record and on its choice of the recipient for the 1942 honor. Women of Utica as women throughout the country have been an important factor in business and professional work in these days and have made a very important contribution to the national effort.

Miss Jenkins was born in Belleville, daughter of the late John Jenkins, and entered the nursing profession, leaving the Post World War she went overseas as a nurse and served with great distinction.

She is a frequent visitor to Belleville.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Where Co-Ed Ratio is 373 to 1

Many girls who register at school or college may not give a thought to the sex of their fellow students. They have no wish other than to follow the institution's rules, achieve satisfactory grades in all their studies, and graduate with a scholastic standing that will make their parents proud of them.

On the other hand, there may be girls, however, who ensure their pretty faces, however innocent the impression is at large and lovely eyes, who are aware that the presence of boys in a school or college somehow makes a difference. They even consider that it makes an agreeable difference.

Such girls as these may believe that the ages at which one enters college is also a very good age to settle one's life problem by becoming engaged. Why delay it until there's danger of being called an "old maid"? Good idea. Why throw a careworn father with one's support? Why not take advantage of the youthful bloom that older people say so many envious things about?

These delightful young creatures naturally look about for situations in which they are surrounded by boys of their own age. It is now revealed that just such conditions exist at the City College School of Technology, in New York City. Three years ago it was discovered that the school's charter had a loophole through which girls could gain admittance, all students up to that time having been masculine.

So, one by one, serious, studious young women presented themselves there and now scores of them, including the five freshmen who registered this autumn. The present ratio is one girl to every 373 men, which is a decidedly noteworthy state of things. Within these three years, several student marriages have already taken place.

Physical Examination of War Workers

One of the benefits resulting from the large number of unemployed men seeking work in war industries is that they must undergo a physical examination and that as "fit" recruits are placed in different categories, so are industrial workers. Thus in Class A or Category 1, the worker is physically fit for any work, with no defects found during examination.

Category 2.—Physically fit for any work but with slight defects such as eyesight below normal, decayed teeth, overweight or underweight, various ailments, nervousness.

Category 3.—Fit only for certain employment because of physical defects such as poor eyesight, defective hearing, asthma, or hay fever, heart disease but well compensated, diabetes under control, severe varicose veing blood pressure higher than normal.

Category 4.—Unfit' for any work.

While some of the benefits to the employer and the worker are at once apparent it is of interest and help to obtain an outline of this in The Medical Clinics of North America as recorded by Dr. Grant L. Bird, Medical Director, General Motors of Canada, Oshawa, Ontario.

Benefits to employer are:

1.—Employment placements of the employees tends to greater efficiency and greater safety.

2.—Unjustifiable claims for compensation, or insurance for conditions which existed before being employed are to a great extent avoided.

4.—Loss of time from prolonged disability or illness due to preventable diseases or diseases which may be treated is definitely reduced by rejection or industrials employees and by placing under care those who may be improved by treatment.

5.—Selection of applications physically suited for their duties reduces employment, training and production costs.

What about the benefits to the worker himself?

1.—A carefully performed physical examination gives the worker a sense of security and satisfaction in his job.

2.—Examination provides him with a knowledge of his disabilities. He may have an early diabetic, chest, or other condition which can be early treated.

3.—The examination places him in a position which he should be able to fill with good satisfactorily.

4.—The carefully recorded findings of a physical examination may be of great value in any future reference in case of accident or of any insurance disputes concerning previous existing conditions.

Nose and Throat Treated First To Clear up Ear Infection

Ear infections usually develop from an infection of the nose or throat. That is one of the important reasons why it seems reasonable to begin treatment for the ear by clearing up the condition in the nose and throat. This is brought out by Dr. Lyman Heine of Freeport, Nebraska, who also believes that the proper treatment for the nose and throat be carried out to help prevent infection from spreading.

In treating colds, one of the things commonly done is to carefully pull drops in the nose. This is often a good practice if the proper type of drops is used in the proper way. This helps keep the nose draining freely and thus may help keep the middle-ear infection from developing.

In putting in the nose drops Dr. Heine suggests that the patient, if a child, be held lying across the bed or mother's lap with the head well back just as though the patient were standing on his head. Then several drops of the medicine are put in the nose and the child is kept in this position for from four to five minutes to allow the drops to reach all parts of the nose. Among the solutions used for the drops are those containing ephedrine or some other substance which shrinks the blood vessels. Ephedrine in salt solution or cocaine in the proper percentage prescribed by the physician will often be used. Certain preparations containing silver also are used, but if used too frequently or for too long a period of time they may lead to a condition known as argyria, which is due to the absorption of too much of the silver into the body. This may lead to a permanent discoloration of the skin. Nose drops should be used only as the physician directs.

Not only should mothers know how to put drops into the child's nose but they should also know that the child should be taught to blow his nose. When the nose is blown both nostrils should be open. If one is held closed during coughing or sneezing infected material from the throat may be forced into the tube leading from the throat to the middle ear.

In the early stages of the ear infection, ear drops may help to stops the progress of the infection. These ear drops should be used only when the physician directs. Proper care of colds and sore throats may do much to prevent these middle-ear infections.

A "Bag of Questions" to Start a Conversation

Here's a stimulating letter from a smart girl who is going places, going away from home, and being less self-consciousness onto the bright path of conversation. I'm glad she has developed her own technic for starting a conversation, and—well, let her tell you what it is, and how it works:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I used to suffer agonies trying to think of something to say after an introduction. I was shy and terribly self-conscious, and I hated dreadfully after I had said, "How do you do", I read everything I could find on the subject of what-to-talk-about-after-an-introduction, but nothing seemed to be of much help to me. Then I hit on a wonderful plan, at least it is life-saver to me and it seems to get things started on the right foot.

Although my plan is my own, it really grew out of a plan you suggested in your column some time back. You suggested that, if you find conversation difficult, do some "home work" and make a list of subjects and incidents you can talk about and make interesting.

I thought that over and made a list of questions that could be adapted to starting a conversation after an introduction. I have them quickly pulling out a question from my "bag of questions", and if the one I choose first doesn't work I try another.

In making out my list of questions, I've tried to include one that will suit almost any person and ones that I hope will hit on some interest or enthusiasm that the person to whom I have just been introduced, will like questions are simple affairs.

I keep a note-book for "fodder" —I got that word from your article on "home work for conversation"! I'm an avid newspaper reader, and current news supplies many of my talk-starter questions. Movies are usually another sure-fire beginning.

Clothes too—"That girl over there certainly knows what color is becoming to her, doesn't she?" And sports—"Did you see the game last Saturday, or aren't you interested in foot-ball?" Or at a dinner, "Isn't that a particularly beautiful centre-piece? Betty is an artist, at arranging flowers, don't you think so?" And at a wedding reception, "Have you ever seen a more radiant bride than Sally? Or to a soldier or sailor I've just met "I know I must not ask any 'leading' questions, but I may ask, mayn't I, where you home is?"

Now you see, Mrs. Beeckman, why I admitted that my questions are certainly "simple affairs". But at least I've found that my "bag of questions" has accomplished two things. First, I'm so busy trying out my tactics that I don't have time to "remember" that I'm shy and self-conscious; in other words, I just have to forget myself and think about the other person. And second, instead of appearing self-conscious to other people, I'm getting a certain pride in showing them that I am interested in them and in what they might like to talk about. To me it's a game. And in getting select it because I thought it might help other self-conscious girls.

Sincerely,

Betty

Annual Meeting of Centre Hastings O.R.E.C. Held at West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon. The annual meeting of the O.R.E.C. of Centre Hastings held their annual convention in the United Church here on Thursday, Oct. 29 with a good attendance of delegates from the various Sunday schools in the county. A number of delegates were also present from South Hastings. Mr. William Blair of Queensboro, presided over both afternoon and evening sessions. Rev. Mr. Patterson of Queensboro conducted the worship service for the afternoon session. Mr. Kenneth Stewart, pastor of the convention church and Arthur Wilson, Supt. of the Sunday school, gave the welcome address to the visiting delegates.

Thoughtful Progress

Theme of convention was the Christian education advance. Officials of the O.R.E.C. have become alarmed recently when through careful study and investigation it has been revealed that while the attendance of our public schools has decreased five per cent. attendance at Sunday schools throughout the province have increased fifteen per cent. This has given rise to a new program outlined by Sunday school leaders not only in this land but also in the United States. Present speakers from Toronto and Belleville spoke at the convention on this theme. Rev. H. O. Eastman, minister of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, brought a most inspiring and helpful message on the subject, "A Counter Offensive."

Dr. R. C. McLean of Toronto, conducted a round table discussion on the new Christian advance education movement. Questions from the delegates discussed - with Dr. McLean the advisability and the value of teaching religion in the public schools.

Election of Officers

Rev. Mr. Morrison of Tweed conducted the election of officers for 1943. Those who will guide the association for the next year are: President, Mr. Harper Rollins; the Vice-Presidents are the four township presidents; Secy.-Treasurer, Mr. Harry Lowe; Department Supts. Children's Work, Mrs. L. Elliott; Girls' Work, Mrs. (Rev.) Patterson; Boys' Work, Rev. Mr. Holden; Young People's Work, Mr. Geo.. Wood; Missionary, Mrs. Arthur McCreary; Adult, Mr. Kenneth Stewart; Teacher Training, Dr. Fletcher; Temperance, Mrs. Frank Herity.

Rev. H. O. Eastman conducted the installation of the newly elected officers.

Highlight of the evening session was a panel discussion on Sunday school work conducted by Revs. H. O. Eastman, Dr. McLean, Morrison Lackey and Kenneth Stewart.

"Conservation of Youth"

Dr. R. C. McLean gave the closing address on "The Conservation of Youth." Huge sums of money, stated the speaker, were spent each year on the conservation of forests and many other material possessions. But of much greater value is the youth of today, which were of great value to God and to their country.

This outstanding address was a fitting climax to the convention which closed with the benediction by Mr. Kenneth Stewart.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church served a fowl supper to the delegates in the orange hall near the church.

Newlyweds Welcomed

A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson on Friday evening to congratulate their son Harold and to welcome his bride Helen to the community. Mr. Kenneth Stewart was chairman for the varied program which consisted of community singing led by Mr. Elmer Post and Mrs. W. J. Pitchett at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. Clarke, Jean Haggerty and Mrs. John McInroy. Mrs. Vandome, Miss Margie Haggerty each contributed solos. A number gave short addresses and Miss Georgie Pitman read an appropriate address and Misses Charles Wright and Dan Cooke presented the young couple with two occasional chairs and a handsome mirror, to which both Helen and Harold made suitable replies.

Anniversary Service

The last of the church anniversaries for this district was held by the congregation of the White Lake Church of the Ivanhoe Church. Mr. Kenneth Stewart was the special minister for the day and Mr. Reg. Haggerty presided over the music with the choir of twenty voices rendering four anthems and Mr. Glen Haggerty contributing two solos.

Rev. Oscar Wagar conducted the anniversary service in the Roslin United Church.

Rev. S. A. Doggett conducted the service on the West Huntingdon circuit and at the morning service at West Huntingdon baptized Connie Doreen, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. G. Campion of Marmora were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley McInroy.

Mrs. Geo. Berrager spent a few days last week with Mrs. Annie Bates and Sarah Wilson.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart spent the dinner hour on Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ketcheson of Marmora.

The farmers are endeavoring, now that the harvest is past, to turn that last furrow before Jack Frost applies the brakes. The rain which came on Monday will be of great benefit to the wells.

A very enjoyable time was spent at Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashley's home on Tuesday evening when Mr. Ashley's family and others gathered to celebrate with him on his birthday, Miss Helen Ashley, granddaughter of Mr. Ashley observed her birthday also. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ashley of Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bird and family of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer and Beverley of Ivanhoe, Mrs. Adam Corrigal of Madoc, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kilpatrick of Foxboro and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashley and family of town.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. Ashley appeared very much the kindness of his friends. Mr. Ashley is one of the popular citizens of Huntingdon and is the post master and merchant and the community join in wishing him many more happy birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan and Mr. and Mrs. John Holden attended the Standard Church convention at Picton on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John McInroy were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McInroy of Peterboro.

Mrs. J. C. Sills attended the Women's Institute convention held at Belleville last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Burrell of Stirling were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan.

Dear Ladies,—

Well, here's that man again or should I say boy. Anywhere here I am.

I want to take this opportunity to thank you one and all for the parcel I received and it was greatly appreciated.

I also want to thank all those who so kindly contributed to this fund so the boys from home get them regularly and I'm sure they are every single one greatly appreciated.

Everything is about the same over here and it's still England and always will be as long as the Canadians are here anyway. (Nothing like tooting your own horn).

Well, I'll say cheerio, best of luck and keep smiling.

Shortage of Fuel Gravely Worrying Axis Commander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Whatever other blows may be contemplated under the Allied "major decisions of strategy" which President Roosevelt mentioned in his Oct. 12 broadcast, they are an accomplished fact in the Pacific and Mediterranean theatres as October ends.

One such strategic decision "on which we were all agreed," Mr. Roosevelt said, related to the necessity of opening "new offensives against Germany and Japan" to divert their forces from Russia and China "to other theatres."

At the time he spoke the diversion effect on Japan of the American thrust in the Solomons was obvious, but its scope undisclosed. It is clear that the Pacific action has forced the enemy to a major naval and air concentration southeastward in the Pacific, tending to relieve Russia of the threat of a Japanese attack and to divert Japanese air power from China and Burma.

Heavy Toll of Axis

The British offensive in Egypt seems to be another fulfillment of the President's forecast of diversion efforts. It has been on progress substantially only a week ashore.

In the Mediterranean, by naval and air action, it has taken heavy toll of Axis supply shipping over a longer period, particularly of tankers. That gives reasonable ground for assuming that shortage of fuel to power his tank legions is gravely worrying the Axis commander, Marshal Rommel.

Within the last few days Allied bombers have knocked off a number of enemy tankers in the Mediterranean. The type of fires and explosions resulting from bomb hits indicated they were gasoline-laden.

Even more significant of possible tank and plane fuel shortage on the Axis front which could prove a decisive factor when the British offensives reaches its crisis is the size of these recent tanker sinkings. They were caught lugging the Libyan coast and headed for Tobruk, despite the clear and sanitized Allied control of the air in that as well as the forward area in Egypt.

The obvious explanation of risking sea passage along the coast to get fuel stores to Rommel's front is that he dared not wait to restock by the much slower land routes across the Libyan desert. Fuel-laden tank trains also would be exposed to Allied bombers, although some would get through.

Time Element Vital

The time element must be vital for Rommel at this stage. Successful Allied air disruption of his sea supply line could leave much of his armor stranded and many of his planes grounded for lack of fuel when the make line is joined.

To what extent the Egyptian second front is already compelling Hitler to scale down his air strength in Russia is as yet only conjecturable. There have been frequent Russian reports lately, however, that lack of adequate fuel reserves is beginning to show itself in Nazi operations in Russia, possibly due to redoubled efforts to fit Russian-type requirements in Africa before it is too late.

The Allied diversion program also is operating elsewhere. Anglo-American air attacks on Axis war targets from Northern Italy to Southern France form one phase. Another is to be found in American-British bomb attacks on the Japanese invaders in Burma and American long-distance air raiding of Japan's critical supply sources and communication lines in China.

Five Outstanding Rookies Blossomed Into Prominence In Opening Games of N.H.L.

Gaye Stewart of Leafs Most Prominent With Two Goals, Assist

LEAFS BEAT RANGERS

National Hockey League coaches and managers showed no mercy among fellows today. Their supremacy in the production department has been solidly established, for the time being at least.

Before the N. H. L. opened its fourth wartime season, the members were practically unanimous that Detroit Red Wings, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens would finish one-two-three. Well, they're a long way from that through yet, but the forecasts stood up during the first weekend of competition with all three teams winning a joint share of first place.

Leafs smothered New York Rangers 7-2 and Canadiens toppled Boston Bruins 3-2 in Saturday games on the Canadian teams' home ice. Detroit Red Wings blanked the same Bruins 1-0 at Detroit Sunday. Chicago Black Hawks, sixth team in the league, will be idle until Thursday.

Five Rookies Blossom

At least five outstanding rookies blossomed into prominence during the weekend. Probably the most sparkling performance was that of Gaye Stewart, 19-year-old Toronto William left wing who scored two goals for Leafs and assisted in another. Other Leaf goals were scored by Lorne Carr, Syl Apps, Hank Goldup, Billy Taylor and Sherry Mayer.

Carr's slightly less brilliant than Stewart was the Ranger line of Joe Bell, Lin Rend and Bill Goodfellow, the latter from Portage la Prairie Terriers, 1941-42 junior champions. Scored once each Ranger goal while the other went to Angus (Scotty) Cameron.

Don't Like Substitutes

After the game, one of the trio said playing in the heated rink at Maple Leaf Gardens was "like somebody climbed up your throat." "It was the first time any of us ever played in a heated rink. It was terrible, and we all felt it. It's not like the breezy rinks we've been accustomed to."

Four rookies took part in the Boston-Canadiens contest, but only one, Maurice Richard of Canadiens, managed to break into the scoring column, with an assist. Tiny Dewsters scored twice for Canadiens and Ray Getliffe tallied the third. Boston goals were scored by such seasoned campaigners as Bypher Jackson and Johnny Crawford.

Results of only 12 established players in uniform for their Sunday games with Red Wings and also result was a busy night for goalie Frank Brimsek in the Boston nets. He was beaten by Mud Brumelson, Sid Abel and Harry Watson, but he stopped countless others. Johnny Mowers turned in the season's first shutout for Detroit.

MackaySuspended By the C.A.H.A.

Port Arthur, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced last night that Dave MacKay has been suspended for the season for his failure to report to Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Sargent said the suspension barn MacKay, once playing with Nanaimo Clippers in the Vancouver Island senior hockey league from the A.H.A. competition.

Last season MacKay, the property of Black Hawks, was unable to obtain a passport to play in the United States and so lined up with Nanaimo Clippers, winners of the Western Canada intermediate championship, since then he has been classed as a professional and was ordered to report to Chicago camp.

Sargent, at the same time announced three players suspended had been reinstated to amateur ranks. They are Gerald Heffernan of Toronto, Montreal R. O. Herron of Toronto and Francis Blake of Kingston, Ont.

Hershey Bears of the eastern division and Cleveland Barons of the western sector still are unbeaten in the American Hockey League today after the first week's play in the 1942-43 season, during which every club appeared at least three times.

Hershey made it two in a row over Providence last night by beating the Reds 5-1. The Bears also played Saturday night, with the Bears winning 3-2.

Cleveland, which blanked Washington Lions 4-0 Saturday, needed an overtime session to turn back New Haven, Conn., 3-1 last night. Buffalo Bisons, even with the unbeaten duo in the standings with their victories in the first period when they scored three times to Providence's one.

Pete Horeck's stick into the cage.

Bud Cook and Harry Trigo scored in the overtime period for Cleveland, handing the Eagles their third straight defeat. Two first-period goals by Dede Klein started Washington off to a lead it never relinquished against Pittsburgh. This unrestricted draft business, as we get it, grew out of the old Judge Landis' anti-farm rulings . . . the old system was for a team with a lot of farms to switch all the good prospects to one club, then at once as one was drafted . . . the rest were safe . . . but the rule now reads that one club can't keep control of a player more than three years unless he is subject to the draft. so an the three-year men have to go in the draft, a wonderful group or go out of the chain anyway . . . what a business — and we once thought baseball was a game!

Toronto Nov. 2—(CP)—Need for post-war planning was urged upon the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at a meeting of the Manitoba branch by the veteran sport official, Abbie Coo of Winnipeg, who said some thought should be given "to what will happen when the British Ice Hockey Association starts a hunt for talent."

In winning six and tying one of seven league games following down their record as coach for Leafs during an illness and later captaining the Canadian motorcycle champions. Last August George was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry while in the performance of his duties with the R.A.F. over England. Now we hear PO. Pepper has added even greater honors and distinction to his credit league games following down their total of an average of 19.8 points while restricting their opponents to 8.3. If they win the Eastern title, they would be entitled to look west for further competition. Canadian Rugby Union directors might bear that degree of insurance in mind when we offer as far as the sports field.

IF THE ST. MIKES "GREEN side" can roll over Albert College this afternoon at Varsity Stadium, it will come repeats as champions of the Bay of Quinte Senior Intermediate football league. Coach Dorsey's league leaders haven't been beaten in three starts and downed Queen's and Albert kids 31 to 6 in their initial meeting. However, the Alma Mater's are an improved squad and facing Belleville Bulls for the second time things more than interesting for the champions. A win for the Albert would force a third game, which will be a St. Mikes victory would give the "Irish" a league championship and a loss. The league standing today was:

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| St. Michael's | 3 | 0 | 72 | 2 | 6 |
| Albert College | 2 | 1 | 37 | 42 | 4 |
| B.C.I.V.S. | 0 | 4 | 13 | 72 | 0 |

OWING TO PUBLIC PROTESTS the Ontario Athletic Commission was forced to dismiss Al Dunlop and suspend his referee's certificate for referee's licence. Dunlop's suspension followed the bout which saw John Katan put down Al Martinez, the fourth time Watson is continuing his efforts for a return bout and is in perfect physical condition. His next bout is with Al Martinez, the mad Mexican, at the Hums arena Wednesday night. These two met at Broadway Arena sometime ago with Martinez being counted out after a bad fall. The return scrap should have its moments.

REMEMBER WHEN THE Toronto Argonauts established themselves as the question mark club of the Interprovincial Rugby Union two years ago today when they dropped a 5-0 decision to the Hamilton Tigers in the Ambitious City? Argos had come back from an early-season 41 to 6 drubbing at the hands of the Ottawa Roughriders to later down the Rough Riders 11 to 9 the previous week. Ottawa retained their Big Four championship that season.

WITH ROOKIES PROMINENT all along the line another N.H.L. season swung into action over the week end with the world-champion Toronto Maple Leafs soundly trouncing their ancient rivals, the New York Rangers. Four rookies were Detroit and Les Canadiens while the chief setback was handed to the Boston Bruins, who lost two decisions. Despite adverse weather conditions nearly 12,000 saw the games in Toronto when Lester Patrick's untried Ranger rookies were left saw-architects and were helpless, as the 7 to 2 score would indicate. Patrick's inexperienced team many of whom never saw an artificial ice rink before, claimed the heated rink was too much for them". At any rate the entire N.H.L. set-up will see many rookie hurtle to the limelight prominence in the 1942-43 season than ever before. Simply because there are more of them.

THIS AND THAT—ON SATURday a rugby football team from the Trenton Air Base journeyed to London where they dropped a 23 to 6 decision to the University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Two of the Flyers line-up there wasn't a single name of a player who lined up with the Flyers at football but two short seasons ago. . . . The message appeared the Flyers play before they could commence to function; but then the Airmen don't get too much time off to practice a game—and football . . . However, the R.C.A.F. "Hurricanes" remained undefeated in the Senior O.R.F.U. having beat Lansdech 26 to 10 to chalk up their sixth straight win. . . . The Navy beat Kitchener and vaulted into second place in the loop. Both the United States Army and Navy have turned down Outfielder Eric Tipton of the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland star pervformations . . . Let 'er rain.

ONCE MORE THEY FIGHT IN STANFIELD'S

At the present time many of our best Canadians are in his Majesty's Forces fighting so that their loved ones will not become slaves to Hitler and his satellites.

Being in a basic industry, it is natural that STANFIELD'S are called upon to devote their facilities to wartime production problems.

For this reason we ask consideration from our many consumers in Canada as well as our retailers, who distribute the products made in STANFIELD'S Mills. Loyal Canadians who really want to assist in winning this war will take our suggestion and: (1) Not buy more underwear than they need for winter 1942-43. (2) Go over what underwear they have on hand and see if they can make it do for another year. (3) Make minor repairs themselves, "A stitch in time saves a good suit of underwear." (4) Wash their underwear often and, if it contains wool, wash it as wool should be washed. (5) If they actually cannot make their present underwear carry them through the winter and really need to buy new; be sure that the underwear they buy is good underwear or a known reliable brand that they can depend upon and then buy as few suits as they need.

Many Canadians are not realize that war purposes are rapidly exhausting raw materials, wool, cotton, etc. For this very reason wearing apparel that cannot would replace before it is actually worn out must be made to do double duty. Canadian facilities must be made to do more than double duty in wartime and those who are not on the fighting front must sacrifice for those who are away from home defending the home front.

The encircling manoeuvre was checked in a British communique, which said that up to last night British forces were holding their positions and had smashed all enemy efforts to break out.

The area in which the Axis forces were pocketed was said to be between the coastal railway and the shore, a sector a few miles wide.

The communique indicated the trap had been closed sometime Saturday, for it said Rommel's men had attacked Saturday night in an unsuccessful effort to relieve the situation.

"Our infantry held their ground but some enemy tanks succeeded in helping his infantry in their isolated position," the bulletin added. "No attempt to break out was made in the hours of daylight yesterday."

Battered Along Entire Front

Allied airmen continued to batter the enemy along the entire front, hammering at airdromes, troop concentrations and communications.

In addition torpedo - carrying planes were credited with sinking two Axis supply ships in the battle area, bringing the total of ships sunk or damaged since the battle began to 14.

From descriptions of the action relayed back from the front it is evident that the British command-er-in-Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery is taking no chances with men and equipment. He is making sure of his ground before taking a step forward.

Observers said that each advance was preceded by a thunderous artillery barrage, which levelled enemy positions and enabled Germish troops to occupy their objectives with minimum losses.

In one comparatively small sector Allied batteries were said to have buried more than 1,500 shells a minute at the Axis lines in a devastating barrage.

No Big Tank Operations

Thus far there are no indications of any large-scale operations by the opposing armored forces, although there are reports of isolated clashes involving tank units.

In one such clash a British infantry company, reinforced with six-pounders, knocked out 38 of 50 German tanks which attempted to over-run its position.

Allied airmen meanwhile, continued to batter the enemy all along the front, and two merchant ships at Benghazi and swept across the Mediterranean to bomb Crete, where fires were started at air bases.

Allied airmen shot down 13 enemy planes during the week-end. Many other Axis planes were reported damaged in the air and on the ground.

PRICES BOARD

Statement Prepared

In a statement accompanying the order, the Prices Board said:

"To permit the uncontrolled establishment of new businesses might in large measure nullify the efforts now being made to curtail non-essential civilian activity, and thereby release manpower for the armed forces and essential industry.

"Controlled allocation of lines or goods by businesses which did not previously handle such lines would have substantially the same effect as the establishment of new businesses, and tend to jeopardize the positions of those concerns which have normally handled such lines. Again, new retail outlets, new warehouses or factories, would cause a further disposal of inventories of goods, and under present conditions would make for less efficient and less equitable distribution."

Board officials said the order should help existing businesses by preventing a disorderly situation which would develop if no control existed.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are already required by the Board to allocate supplies equitably among their established customers.

Exemptions Listed

Under the current order, no manufacturer or wholesaler "shall sell any class and kind of goods to a retailer, wholesaler or operator of a service business, to whom he has not previously sold that class and kind of goods, unless the seller is satisfied that the buyer holds a valid licence issued by the board and is entitled, under the order or by permit, to deal in such class and kind of goods."

Exempted under the order are:

1. Sales of newspapers, magazines or periodicals.

2. Any undertaking operated by the Dominion Government or any province, or any agency thereof;

3. Religious, charitable, philanthropic and educational organizations;

4. Farmers, hunters, trappers, gardeners, livestock producers, poultry producers or fishermen in relation to the sale of their products in the natural state or after processing by them, except when they operate an urban retail place of business other than a stall in a market;

5. Operators of private boarding houses, in respect to the supplying of meals and refreshments;

6. Supplying of goods by services to the munitions department or agency thereof, and the operation of a new business formed and carrying on for such purpose;

7. The sale of goods or supplying of meals, refreshments or beverages in canteens or messes within the limits of military establishments.

Hair Can Take Permanent

The order provides that manufacturers and wholesalers not already doing so must not engage in retail business. Similarly, a retailer may not become a wholesaler or manufacturer. The same condition applies in taking on the operation of a service business.

Though a permit will be required to transfer a business by sale or gift, no permit is necessary for an heir to take possession of his legacy, or for a receiver to take possession or dispose of a business pursuant to a court order.

No business need obtain a permit to change its location, providing the move is not to larger premises. The intention of this section is to prevent any major expansion of existing facilities.

Any establishment proposing to produce or distribute goods of a different category from those formerly handled will be required to obtain a permit. It is not anticipated the Prices Board said, that permits will be granted to take on new lines unless exceptional circumstances warrant the granting of permission for such action.

Preferences to be Given

New business will not be authorized except in the case of humanitarian but it is recognized that some areas whose population has increased rapidly because of war activities may require more enterprises of some particular type. In such cases, preference will be given applicants experienced in the type of business concerned.

Arrangements will generally be approved by the board where binding commitments covering them are in effect at the date of the current order.

The Board's director of licensing in Ottawa will issue the special permits mentioned in the order.

The Board said permits would be readily granted "in all genuine cases of sale or gift," but not where a business which "had to all intents and purposes ceased operations" passed to a person really intending to establish a new business.

Chain and department stores are expected not to seek to extend their business under present conditions, and only in the most exceptional cases will permits be granted to such applicants.

BRITONS' SPIRIT

against an article in the United States magazine, and resentment against a recent speech by Wendell Willkie, because he proposed to sabotage the British Empire.

"I think it is a great mistake for any man to say he proposes to destroy the British Empire. The greatest tribute to British greatness is the government of India. The aim and object of the Pax Britannica has always been self-governed. India had been told she must make her own constitution, as Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand made theirs. British is still waiting for India to make her constitution. Does the voice of a dozen people represent 400,000,000?"

(In his address last Monday night Willkie referred to the Indian problem and said "People of the East who would like to count on us (the United States) are doubtful. They cannot understand from our government's wishy-washy attitude toward the problem of India what we are likely to feel at the end of the war about all the other hundreds of millions of Eastern peoples." He said also that "In Africa, in the Middle East, throughout the Arab world, as well as in China and the whole Far East, freedom means the orderly but accelerated abolition of the colonial system.")

"The Talk of the Town"

With Cary Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman starred in roles of rich, memorable magnitude, the new film is a triumphant example of superb picture-making at its best.

"The Talk of the Town" introduces a different Cary Grant than the one known to us a greater Cary Grant. His is a role filled with humor and with resolution, one calling for the utmost in dramatic purpose. As the most lovable guy ever wanted for murder, Grant moves through whirlwind excitement with deft assurance.' Whether he is fleeing the police, arguing fine points of law from a standpoint of personal knowledge and keen sympathy or making love to Miss Arthur, Grant's virile performance is enhanced by adds to his already great stature as an actor. Ronald Colman; similarly, brings to the screen a character apt soon to be forgotten, for the bearded, dignified student of jurisprudence, a man devoted to the letter of the law, who discovers suddenly that there is a human level, the lives of crisis, to which one rises, not one to which one descends. Colman, once awakened to reality, fights for justice on human terms, so that he can cope to the grandeur and dignity of the United States Supreme Court secure in his own mind as to the meaning of that grandeur and dignity.

Miss Arthur's performance, like those of her co-stars, is equally outstanding, a performance both ingratiating and feminine, heroic in its dramatic scenes and soft and winsome in the gentler moments. The nicest girl gossips ever went to town on, Miss Arthur possesses a talent that fails trace of indiscretion which highlights the climactic sequences of the film. Colman, wrapped in the austerity of the judicial robe, looking down from his high place on the Supreme Court Bench, where he sits with eight other equally dignified and equally wise men, sees Miss Arthur impudently, proudly winking at him. What is there for a Justice of the United States Supreme Court to do? He winks back!

Valuable to the complete effect of "The Talk of the Town" are such fine players as Edgar Buchanan, Glenda Farrell and Tom Tyler. But the new film is essentially, the story of a peculiarly human strange, adroitly involved in a rich and racy romantic comedy.

It's a swell picture!

AT THE BELLE

"The Gay Sisters"

Barbara Stanwyck, George Brent, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Nancy Coleman are featured in "The Gay Sisters" Warner Bros. newest craptastic hit, now on the Bella Theatre screen. "The Gay Sisters" is adapted from the best-selling novel by Stephen Longstreet, whose powerful writing was transplanted in all its strength from print to film.

Dashiell Hammett's "The Glass Key"

To readers of mystery stories, and to devotees of mystery movies the name of Dashiell Hammett is no mystery. From his prolific pen have come some of filmdom's most exciting whodunits. Hammett's "Thin Man" series and "The Maltese Falcon" at the time of their release having been responsible for an increase in pulse and blood pressure of movie-goers.

Rich in among Hammett's best-sellers is "The Glass Key," a mystery charged with suspense and action, and enhanced by an exciting love-interest romance. Paramount brings it to the screen of the Belle Theatre with a strong, star-studded cast headed by Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd and supported by Bonita Granville, Richard Denning and Joseph Calleia.

From all reports "The Glass Key" rates with the best of the Hammett thrillers. Bringing together again, as it does, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd co-stars of "This One Hire" plus the extremely popular Brian Donlevy, it is easy to believe that Hammett followers have another treat in store for them.

What has it that the unravelling of the plot at the end of the film "Scattergood Rides High" is a hitherto unknown, and the "Glass Key" holds the kind of thriller movie-goers should welcome.

"Scattergood Rides High"

The new Scattergood Baines feature, announced as the companion picture to "Scattergood Rides High," offers plenty of thrills, because its story tells about the exciting and dangerous sport of racing trotting horses and sulkies.

Guy Kibbee, for the fourth time in the person of Sage or Oldriver, a role he has made his own by his authentic delineation of this typical American business man, shrewd and sharp, yet kindly and humane, and beloved in his community.

The trotting races as shown in "Scattergood Rides High" are the result of months of hundreds of American County Fairs. The champion trotters are in a class entirely different from their race track brother equines, because their speed is restricted pace must never be upset by the full-lunging gallop of a Sea Biscuit.

As a matter of fact, with all respect to Guy Kibbee, the real hero of "Scattergood Rides High" is a trotter named Starlight, who brings home the bacon to young hero Charles Lind.

"Two attractive newcomers, Dorothy Moore and Charles Lind, have the young romantic leads. Kenneth Howell portrays a juvenile "heavy," Jed Prouty, Regina Wallace and Frances Carson appear in the comedy characterizations.

"I'll Belle Movietone News described by Lowell Thomas will also be exhibited.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Flying Tigers"

A spectacle with epic sweep, Republic's "Flying Tigers," which opened Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre, won unqualified praise from all who witnessed its dramatic unfolding. Much may appear on the printed page about the bravery of the various fighting services abroad, but a motion picture is worth reams and reams of printed matter when it comes to bring home to patriotic Americans the bravery of the men who are protecting their homes, their families and their way of life.

John Wayne who may always be counted on to deliver a smooth, polished and sincere performance, doesn't fail in his top starring role. He portrays the young Squadron Leader of the Flying Tigers, whose exploits protecting the Burma Road will go down in history as an immortal saga of technical skill and personal heroism.

John Carroll adds to his laurels in the role of "Smoky Jason," the harum scarum pilot whose recklessness all but precipitates a crisis in the ranks of the American Volunteer Group.

Anna Lee, whose work in "How Green Was My Valley" won her the accolade of all critics, is excellently cast as "Brooks Elliot," the volunteer Red Cross worker who shares the hardships of the hero during the Burma Road.

On the same program is shown a three stooges "comedy" as well as the Universal News events of the day.

MURDER ON THE AVENUE

by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER I
Murder !

Again she sat at her dressing table, and touched up her face.

"It's too much of a pig," she said to herself. "I have to take a bus out of him now and then."

She started to go back downstairs, taking the short cut through the coal room. To her surprise, Mr. Herrick was in the room, looking for his coat.

"Not going?" she said, with a casual air.

"Yes, I must; it's nearly four."

Alma closed the door and went to him, and put her arms around his neck.

"Then give me my kiss before you go."

"Now, now, Alma. . . ."

"Now, now Brandi" she said.

Downstairs, the party was going on as gaily as when it first started. Doris Day had suddenly become frightened at the lateness of the hour. "I'm going home," she declared. "You going to take care of me, Ogden?"

"Of course. Run up and get your wraps and I'll be ready."

"I suppose I must go, too," Nadine said, regretfully. "That's the worst of parties; they're over so soon."

"There's always another ahead," Murray comforted her, and then left from somewhere upstairs came the sound of a loud spoutled scream, a woman's scream.

Nadine exclaimed: "That was Doris! What can be the matter with her?"

Doris came uncertainly down the marble stairs. Her fright and terror overcame her and she pitched headlong into Murray's arms.

"Putting on an act," said Nadine as they laid the girl on a couch and gave her a drink.

"It's Alma!" Doris moaned. "She is asleep and she won't wake up."

"She will, now you've left her, Murray declared. "She was bored with your conversation."

"Don't, Ogden." Nadine begged him. "Something has happened. I'm going up to see."

She started up the stairs. Murray followed her.

The door of the coat room was open as Doris had left it, and Nadine drew back as Murray stepped in. After a moment he beckoned her to him. Alma lay on a chaise lounge. Her eyes were closed, her head rested on a lingerie down pillow, a large pillow lay on the floor beside the couch and automatically Nadine picked this up and tossed it on the bed, which still held a row of men's overcoats; neatly placed there by Dickson, Slugh's man.

"She's dead," Murray whispered. Nadine was, too started to scream but she looked at Alma more closely.

"She has bitten her lip," she said. "See?"

"Or somebody kissed her too hard."

"Oh, don't be flippant, Ogden. What shall we do?"

"Get Doctor Lloyd up here, Where's Dickson?"

The valet was at the door and Murray told him to ask Doctor Lloyd to come, but to give no reason for the message.

Lloyd came, looked at Alma, felt her pulse and her heart and said quietly: "She is dead."

V V V

Dr. Lloyd met Nadine and Murray out of the room, and told Dickson to get Mr. McCleod who was in his father's apartment.

"Don't tell him anything," he directed Dickson. "And don't let Miss Emmy or her father know there is anything wrong."

Dickson went and Lloyd stood looking at the beautiful face of the woman who had been his patient. Her maladies had been largely imaginary. But Alma had thought it added to her importance to have a medical attendant and, too, she liked Arthur Lloyd.

What had caused her death? She had often feared or pretended that her heart was weak but the doctor knew better. This was no heart attack. And there was no wound, no convulsive effect, nothing polite liar about her appearance, unless Hugh came in. he saw Alma lying on the chaise lounge and went toward her. "What's the matter? Is Alma ill?"

The doctor grasped him by the arm and said, "Your wife is dead."

Experience had taught him the value of straightforward talk.

Hugh stared at him. "She doesn't look so," he said, rather sheer. "But—what is it, Lloyd? What does it mean?"

Hugh trembled, as understanding came to him. Then he fell on his knees beside the couch.

"My darling," he whispered, "my little Alma." He took her hand and kissed it gently; then he rose.

"My own feelings must wait," he said, quite evidently forcing himself to be calm. "What is her heart, Lloyd? She has told me she had heart trouble, but I thought she imagined it."

"She did," the doctor declared. "And in any case that did not cause her death, McCleod. It was not a natural death."

"What?" Hugh braced himself as for a blow. "What do you mean?"

"I know your wife's physical condition and I know there was no hint of trouble of any sort that could have brought this about. I know she was killed. Do you understand? Murdered!"

Lloyd spoke bluntly, for Hugh was staring at him as though devoid of comprehension.

Then he squared his broad shoulders.

"I must carry on!" he said. "Tell me what to do.

"Take a drink first; you need it," Lloyd pointed to a decanter on a side table. "Now, this must be reported at once. Or do you want to call Doctor Larkin?"

"No. What for? He's my father's physician, but you are Alma's. It is your case. But do you mean to—reported to—to—"

"Yes, to the police. Shall I call Headquarters?"

"—yes; I suppose so. Poor little Alma—"

"Now, you stay here," Dickson will keep people out and I will go and telephone."

Lloyd knew the room, it was Alma's writing room and all the appointments betokened her love of the beautiful and her good taste. The thought passed through his mind that the open desk might offer access to secrets, but he could do anything about that. He called headquarters; then he went back to Hugh.

"They'll respond quickly," he said. "I think best—don't you?—not to tell your father and sister of this tonight. Excitement would be bad for the old man. And Miss Emmy would have a bad night. Can't you keep it from them until tomorrow?"

"Yes, a good idea. You are a friend, Lloyd. I have self-control and will power, I'll go through with it. Will the police remove—my body?"

"More or less. But that needn't bother you. When they ask you anything, tell the truth and say as little as possible. You know nothing of Alma's death—do you?"

No, but if they discover who did that awful thing—will the police come in here? Shall I say now?

"Yes, they'll talk to you first. They're good fellows; meet them fairly, as man to man."

"Oh, I'm not afraid of them, but I can't—Why would anyone harm Alma? Will they take her away?"

"Yes. But you can see her again tomorrow."

Then Poo Chow appeared. "Mr. Raynor," he said and turned away.

"I'm Captain Raynor, from the Homicide Bureau," said a quiet, clive-looking man. "You are Mr. McCleod?"

"Yes," Hugh said. "Can I do anything for you?"

Raynor looked around a bit. Doctor Colville, the medical examiner will be here soon."

Raynor stood a moment, looking at Alma and then asked a few questions of Dr. Lloyd. But he soon found that his information or advice must come from McCleod.

"Nothing has been touched in this room, I take it?" he asked.

"That's hard to say," Hugh told him. "This is a guest bedroom but for convenience it was used tonight as a men's coat room. We had a party, but some have already gone home."

"Since Mrs. McCleod was discovered here?"

"That I don't know. My valet may tell you."

"I will find him."

"One of the guests, I think. Who was it, Lloyd?"

"Doris Day. Then Miss Glenn and Mr. Murray came up here. Do you want to see them now?"

"Not just now. Better wait for Doctor Colville."

Then Doctor Colville arrived. A smallish dapper man.

"Oh," he said in a voice of real pain as he looked at Alma's lovely face.

He examined the cut on her full lower lip, touched it lightly with his finger and looked at Raynor.

The detective picked up the large down pillow. It was square with a cover of silk lace and embroidery and a lace frill around it. Holding it out to the examiner, Raynor turned it over and showed the reverse side, covered with plain linen. In the middle of this they saw a red mark, sufficiently shaped to show the impress of two red lips which had stained the white linen.

Raynor's examination showed more red spots of a different shade, and Dr. Colville glittering read the story.

"Mrs. McCleod was smothered," he stated. "I gathered that from the signs on her face, and this is proof. Some strong hands held this pillow over her face so tightly and so long that she died. The saddle, probably without a struggle.

"The marks on the pillow is where Mrs. McCleod bit at it in her terror. You see the linen is torn a little, or where the murderer dealt a blow or pressure. Her struggle we had a long one, nor did she suffer after the first few seconds. But it was a brute's deed."

"And the Brute, must have due punishment," he said, in a cold tone that promised vengeance. "Will you help me find him?"

The last was addressed to Raynor, who nodded his head without speaking.

Colville looked around the room. "Better have these coats and hats put in some other room. This room must be locked and sealed up."

"Must have the place photographed first," Raynor said and opened the door as he heard men in the hall just outside.

The camera men and the finger-print men came in. Dr. Colville took Hugh by the arm and led him away.

"Where can we go for a few minutes' talk?" he asked.

VICTORY LOAN SALES NOW OVER $609,281,800

About 80 Per Cent of "Irreducible Minimum Objective" is Attained

753,652 SUBSCRIBERS

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—The $600,281,800 subscribed to the Canadian Victory Loan during the first two weeks of the three-week campaign came from 753,652 individual subscriptions, Ioan headquarters here announced today.

"Of these subscriptions," said a headquarters statement, "258,147 were from employees under the payroll savings plan for a total of $87,436,056. The total number of subscribers, many 753,652 subscribers compares with 741,414 at the same point in the last loan."

There was no four - columnist total in today's statement. The 258,000 figure made public yesterday included sales up to the close of business Saturday, Monday's figure will be reported Tuesday evening and a new total will be issued tomorrow.

Unless Monday sales drop much below the average daily total during the first two weeks of the campaign for $750,000,000, the figure announced tomorrow should be something over $650,000,000.

The present official total of $609,281,800—about 80 per cent of the "irreducible minimum" objective—compares with cash subscriptions of $538,780,800 at the end of the second week of the Victory Loan last February. At that time the minimum objective was $600,000,000.

A subscription of $12,000,000 from the Unemployment Insurance Commission was reported to headquarters during the week-end and is included in the two-weeks' cumulative total.

Other large subscriptions were: North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto, $10,000,000; Canada Steamships Ltd., Toronto, $2,500,000; The Bercen Co. Ltd., Toronto, $600,000; Dome Mines Ltd., Toronto, $750,000; Government of the Province of Quebec, $1,500,000; Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd. and subsidiary companies $1,000,000.

C.C.F. ASKS FOR SIX BY-ELECTIONS

Wants Premier Conant to Direct Forthwith Issue of Writs

Toronto, Nov. 2 — (CP) — The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation of Ontario asked Premier Gordon Conant today "to direct forthwith the issue of writs" for the 18 vacancies in the recent Ontario constituencies.

The request was made in a letter to the Premier from C. C. F. Provincial leader E. B. Jolliffe, Vice Presidents G. M. A. Grube and F. A. Brewin. It asked a prompt reply "so that if you refuse to do the duty imposed on you by law we can consider taking to the Supreme Court of Canada the proceedings that have been launched to compel you to do so."

(On Oct. 16 the Ontario Court of Appeals dismissed the action of William H. Temple, President of the C. C. F. in Toronto East, for non-constituency, against a previous judgment which dismissed his application for an order directing the clerk of the Crown to issue a writ for a by-election in the East Toronto C. C. F. Park. The decision in the case is cited as the five other vacant seats in the legislature — Toronto Bellwoods, Lincoln, Ottawa South, Huron-Bruce and Kingston.)

Book Commemorates Mayor

New York, Nov. 2 — (AP) — A "new code for mayors," a booklet prepared by the Belgian government in London, will be presented to 2,500 mayors of American cities, it was announced by Dr. Jan-Albert Goris, commissioner of information for Belgium. The booklet is in commemoration of Dr. F. Van Cauwelaert, mayor of Brussels, who, went to Germany in June, 1941, when he defied the invading Nazis.

Hallowe'en Celebration Cause Of Little Property Damage Here

Heavy Rain and Scarcity of Masquerade Material Hold Celebrants in Check

Customary Hallowe'en pranks and hobgoblins were kept at a minimum on Saturday night, police reported. Several calls were made, but for the greater part the night was spent minus the wilful destruction of property in a wholesale manner. The fact that rain spread over the entire district doubtless dampened the hopes of the youngers generally, and a steady drizzling rain fell all during the evening and kept Hallowe'en celebrants at home. Belleville Police reported only two calls into the district office here, while Corbyville reported not but three cases where property damage of any degree was in evidence.

The first call received at the police station was made at one minutes of eight o'clock Saturday night when Mrs. Lawrence of 25 Charles Street reported a stone had been thrown through a window. The other two calls were from the police at Corbyville. Yeomans and Herchimer Streets. First a street light was reported broken and in the vicinity of Yeomans and Catherine Streets. Later police apprehended three youths armed with an air rifle taking pot shots at lights in the vicinity of Herchimer-Yeoman Street intersection. The rifle was confiscated and the names of the boys recorded. Chief Probert had his men augmented by special officers and routine patrols of city streets were made throughout the midnight hour. Today Chief Probert expressed his satisfaction at the behaviour of the Hallowe'en hoodlums in Belleville, where the wilful damage of property was kept to the minimum.

Corbyville Police reported that a picket fence around a summer cottage at Bayshore was torn down on Saturday night and thrown into the bay, while, in the village of Springbrook, reported the theft of a gate from in front of his home.

Air Axe Beurling Fractures Leg In Plane Crash

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Pilot Officer George Beurling, D.S.O. of Verdun, Que., leading Canadian air ace of the present war, suffered a broken leg in the crash of a large airplane near Gibraltar, the R.C.A.F., announced today.

Beurling, who at one time was home in Canada from Malta where he piled up a record of 29 enemy aircraft destroyed and was later reputative of being one of the best fighter pilots in the R.A.F.

The veteran of many air fights, whose worst injury so far was a bullet wound in the head which cost him to hospital a few weeks ago, was a passenger in the ill - fated Lockeed plane which crashed into a cliff top in the Eastern part of Gibraltar, burning and then fell into the sea.

Reports from La Linea, Spain, through Madrid last night said 13 persons were killed in the crash and a number missing out of the 32 who were aboard the plane, which fell into the sea.

The 30-year-old ace, known among his mates as "Screwball," had a tough fight to get into the Air Force because he did not possess the full Grade 10 requisite to the R.C.A.F., and was turned down by the Navy for the same reason, matriculation standing for aircrew. He applied to the Finnish Air Force and failed to get in. He then went all way across Canada to British Columbia where his one ambition was realised. The R.A.F. took him on, but he had to work his a trip back to Canada to obtain some necessary papers.

Beurling returned to England in 1940 and into the air force.

Fitted by a Barber

As Beurling's toll of enemy planes in the sky mounted, so also his head grew trickling out of Malta. There was the story that the authorities wanted to keep him from becoming overconfident but he preferred to remain a barber.

"If I were an officer I should have to clean my own boots, and I think the latter didn't do it, and I don't like cleaning boots and buttons and I don't want a batman," he is reported to have said.

"I should also probably have to answer the telephone and I hate the telephone. Three slacks would prove too for an officer and they are the only pair I have."

Beurling's parents, however, and in due course Beurling became a Pilot Officer and the decorations kept coming along. Before he was shot down he won the Distinguished Flying Medal, and as Pilot Officer he won the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Bar to the Distinguished Service Order.

Beurling has a wife, a family of five children and his father Frederick G. Beurling, came to Canada from Sweden in 1905. As a lad he was a bit of a problem to his parents and often he didn't want to go to school.

All he wanted to do was "hang around the airport." Flying was his only interest and he now regretted his lack of schooling when he was trying to pass the matriculation test to getting in the air force.

Constable Moyes Of Peterborough Fatally Injured

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 2.—(CP) —Constable John Moyes, 46, member of the Peterborough police force who was struck by an automobile Saturday and later against the front of a building, died today.

Fred J. Allison, 20, Peterborough was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and was remanded until next Monday when he appeared in police court.

OCTOBER RAINFALL LESS THAN AVERAGE

Less than one half the rainfall received in October, 1941 was received during October this year, it was reported by Superintendent Details of the Belleville Water Purification Plant. During October last year only 2.01 inches of rain fell, while for the same month this year 2.13 inches with precipitation being noted on 10 days of the month. There were on 16 days during October this year, while there was only four days of sun.

Maximum temperature for the month just passed was 68 degrees as compared to 77.3 one year ago. Minimum temperature was 30.5 as against 24 degrees during October, 1941.

DRASTIC PENALTIES FOR UNDUE DELAY

Melbourne, Australia — (AP) — Francis M. Forde, Australian Army Minister, announced today that new and drastic penalties have been established to deal with undue delay in the army in carrying out orders.

Needless delay has been caused, he said, by the fact that there is no to insist on prompt action from subordinates and commanders who have been traced to failure of some officers to carry out orders promptly.

Rekata Bay Base Bombed

At the same time seven fighter planes raided the enemy base at Rekata Bay, northwest of Guadalcanal, and shot down three enemy float planes and two biplanes and sent a float plane up in flames.

Dive-bombers attacked enemy destroyers in the vicinity of Russell Islands, about 30 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, Thursday night and again Friday morning with inconclusive results. One bomber is missing.

As the picture of the Oct. 26 battle began to take shape, it appeared that United States Navy fliers had dealt the enemy a severe pounding.

A detailed report reached Admiral J. King, commander in chief of the fleet and Chief of Naval operations, only yesterday from Vice-Admiral William Halsey, who recently took over command of that area.

A Detailed Report

In this report, the navy announced last night, the following damage to the enemy was detailed:

Four to six heavy bomb hits on an aircraft carrier of the Zuikaku class;

Two medium bomb hits on another aircraft carrier of the same class;

Two bomb hits on a battleship of the Kongo class;

Five medium bomb hits on a cruiser of the Tenryu class (second class cruiser);

Torpedo and bomb hits on heavy cruiser, and two torpedo hits on another heavy cruiser.

In addition, reports indicated the definite destruction of more than 100 enemy aircraft and the probable destruction of 52 others.

Associated Press Correspondent in the South Pacific war zone, Gene Wilcomb, in a dispatch from Correspondent in the South Pacific war zone, quoted an American pilot returning from the attack as saying the flight deck of one of the big Jap enemy carriers was completely smashed and she appeared to be sinking.

The navy said there were only two carriers of the Shokaku class, the Shokaku (Crane) and the Zuikaku (Lucky Stork), both completed in 1941 by the Japanese. They are about 17,000 tons and carry 45 planes each, indicating the presence of additional carriers if more than 100 enemy planes were destroyed in the battle.

Minor Ground Operations

Ashore on Guadalcanal, the navy reported "minor ground operations" Thursday during which soldiers and marines captured two enemy 75-MM guns west of the Matanikau River, the defended western defence line.

Clements' dispatch from headquarters of the U.S. South Pacific forces related the enemy forces suffered such heavy losses during their recent large scale attacks that the marines described one action in this manner:

"The Japs attacked us and we slaughtered 85 casualties. Two dozen Jap bodies present a disposal problem."

Allied Australian headquarters reported seven ships were believed to have been sunk or damaged. Accurate observation of results was difficult.

GEORGE PEPPER

land and which now claims Pepper as its "adopted son."

Pepper and Tone received their decorations "for dissipating great teamwork and initiative on many night-flying operations" after they had sent a Junkers 88 crashing in flames over England. After each aerial victory, the villages of East Malling proudly displays large posters telling of the latest feat of its two intrepid airmen sons.

Pepper is from a fighting family. Three brothers are in the service, Frank with the Canadian Navy; Jim, R.A.F., and Bill in the R.C.A.F. Jim has recently returned to England from Russia where he fought in the Battle of Moscow.

Former 300-mile Canadian motorcycle champion, Flying Officer Pepper went to England where he acted as instructor at Newcastle. After the war broke out he was the superintendent of a Spitfire manufacturing plant and joined the R.A.F. in 1940. He was commissioned in 1941 and is married to a Newcastle girl.

Well-Known in City

Modest and unassuming to a degree, George was well-known in the city and thoroughly popular in the circles both here and in the United States. He enjoyed a well-deserved popularity with all with whom he came in contact, and this is borne out by comments on his new home in England.

With his well-behaved quiet manner one can scarcely associate the modest George Pepper with the dashing ace of the Royal Air Force who nightly rides his ship in quest of Hun marauders in the blue flamed skies over Britain and the continent.

He was born in this city in 1915 and received his education here. Developing a natural trend for things mechanical at an early age, George became interested in motorcycles, when he was a sleeper youngster days and nights found him studying the "innards" of a motorcycle engine, and in later years he could take apart and assemble a motor blindfold so to speak. Then he took up riding and developed into Canada's 300 mile champion. He won the title here in Belleville a few years ago when crack riders from all parts of the Dominion and the United States took part.

Has Many Cups, Trophies

He has many cups and trophies won here and in England. He rode several tracks in the "tight little island" and was for some time associated with outstanding motorbike clubs in the old country.

He has sent home to his mother the first German bullet that lodged in his plane during his first scrap with the Nazi airmen. Also a prized possession of the Pepper home here is the first pair of wings pinned on George at his graduation as a pilot in the R. A. F. Press clippings and pictures of George's exploits both in civilian life and in the R. A. F. would fill a large size book.

His parents and friends naturally are proud of his success and the whole city will follow George's career as one of Britain's outstanding night fighter pilots with more than passing interest.

Republicans Predict 'Substantial' Gains In Tuesday's Election

Washington, Nov. 2 — (AP) — With Republicans predicting "substantial" gains and Democrats conceding them some but not enough to control, adult millions of United States will vote tomorrow in the "off-year" elections, which will determine make-up of the 78th Congress and state administrations.

In the first wartime election since 1918, when the Republicans gained control from a comparatively unknown under Woodrow Wilson and held it for 12 years, upwards of 30,000,000 voters — light compared with former years — are expected to choose from more than 1,600 candidates, 33 Senators, 432 House of Representatives members, 33 Governors, and other state officers.

Maine held its election Sept. 14, going Republican as expected.

Sharp reductions in registrations indicated a light vote despite appeals from party leaders, including President Roosevelt.

Republicans claimed they would pick up at least seven new Senate seats, now held by Democrats and the seventh by the Veteran Independent, George Norris of Nebraska. They have only 29 now, so even if their predictions come true they still would have only 36, or less than a majority.

Democratic spokesmen said they expected to retain their present majorities of 66.

With 53 turnovers needed to give them House control, a majority of the House is 218 — Republicans believed they would pick up at least 33 seats. The Democrats, though, would not give them more than 15 new seats.

The present line-up in the House is 218 Democrats, 208 Republicans, five other parties, and eight vacancies, of which seven were Democratic and one Republican.

National issues have been virtually non-existent in the short campaigns, with pre-Pearl Harbor foreign policies figuring in only a few important contests.

Little Benny's Note Book

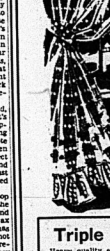
Pop was looking at his mail at the breakfast table to me, Well can you beat it, another begging letter, from those people I donated $5 to last one. What's the use of ignoring people if they refuse to ignore you back? he said.



I think it's gaudy, I'm always getting that same situation in my mail, ma said. We give far beyond the limit of our means to the very purpose of being left in peace by unsolicited mail, but apparently to no purpose and very little avail, she said, and pop said, Exactly, that's the whole problem in your own words. By gollies if some politician came out with a proposition to bar these begging letters from the mails, I'd vote for him no matter what office he was running for. I might even go 3 to 3 times if he was a dark day and I didn't think I'd be recognized, he said.

What's the letter from? ma said, and pop said, I'll tell you who it's from. It's from somebody who's apparently willing to take everything but a hint. Per Pete's sake if I wrote somebody and they didn't even answer, I think I'd know a direct refusal when I saw one, he said, and ma said, In a case like that you just take the gradual hint, he unfazed No by return mail.

By golies, I'm tempted to, pop said. Just listen to the tone of the letter, Dear Sir, this is the second appeal which we have had to last exemption to the amount of $36 has been received. Full payment is not made in full within ten days of receipt of this notice, a delinquency fine of 10 dollars will be added. Very truly yours, and so forth and so forth. Oh well, maybe I'd better just simply put an end to the whole matter by sending a check to the nuisance, pop said, and ma said, Well I should think you had, of all the crazy silly things.

Meaning him.

THE WAR TODAY

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE),
(Associated Press War Analyst)

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—The grave declaration by President Inonu of Turkey, that his country is not at war that at any time since the world conflict started—from a cause he does not specify—may be taken as a warning to his people of the danger that Axis leaders see and a notification to Hitler that the Turks are not neutral.

What the astute Inonu has in mind seems clear. Long ago it talked attention to the likelihood that if Hitler were frustrated in his intriguing Caucasus and Egyptian campaigns, he likely would try to reach the Middle East either by attacking Turkey or through bypassing Turkey and making an assault on Syria with air and waterborne forces.

Frustration appears to be riding the Fuehrer's shoulders like the old man of the sea. Undoubtedly he will make further desperate efforts to crack this Middle East nut, for it represents his only hope of winning the war.

That certainly puts Turkey on the hot spot. It would make small difference whether Hitler attacked the Turks direct or bypassed them at the outset, for they could not long avoid being involved in any event.

Of course, Turkey might have her choice of joining the Axis or the Allies, but since the war began all indications have been that if she had to abandon neutrality she would fight for the United Nations. That is the reason Hitler has been so careful not to antagonize the Turks but on the contrary to keep their good will.

Naturally it is problematical whether the Nazi leader could invade such an attack in view of the terrific drain he is in on the Russian front. However, presumably Inonu sees signs which point to trouble.

If the Germans attempted such an adventure it would mean they would perform a holding operation on the Caucasus battlefront while flinging the army either at Syria or direct at Turkey.

From the standpoint of weather and perhaps of strategy, the Syrian gamble might seem more desirable if it were to be undertaken in the near future. If Hitler intends to wait until spring, then he might decide to go for the Turks.

The Nazi chief's great difficulty in attacking Syria would be to muster sufficient air strength, since that would be his chief weapon at the outset. He is short of aircraft, pilots and both gasoline and oil, according to information from a reliable source.

Moreover, he presumably will strain every nerve to send air support to Rommel in Egypt.

Still, the German mind plans a long way ahead and it wouldn't be surprising to see the development which Inonu apparently has in mind as a possibility. In view of the circumstances there is much significance in his statement "that political institutions founded on domination by a single power cannot be established."

That would seem at once to be a declaration of Turkish policy and a prediction the Axis cannot win the war.

GREATEST TANK BATTLE RAGES IN AFRICA

Germans Report British Are Using Some 500 Tanks

Battle Swirls Around "Hill Of Wicked Men" Where British Infantry Have Advanced 16 Miles Into Axis Defence Zone

PRECEDED BY ARTILLERY BARRAGE

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 3 —(AP)— British tanks in force have clashed with Rommel's African Corps in the biggest tank battle of the 12-day-old Allied drive in Egypt with fighting swirling around Tel el-Akakir—the Hill of Wicked Men— where the British infantry assault has knifed 16 miles deep into the Axis defence zone.

(Reuters News Agency reported that a Berlin broadcast attributed to D.N.B., the German news agency, said the British command had thrown some 500 tanks into "the greatest tank battle of the whole African campaign.")

One of Highest Points

The scene is one of the highest points along the centre of the present tight-hemmed battle zone between the Mediterranean and the Qattara Salt Marshes.

It is 16 miles beyond the long-stabilized defence line through the ridges southwest of El Alamein, and represents a gain of several miles by British infantry which slashed forward under their own artillery barrage during the hours just before the tank clash developed yesterday at dawn.

This pocket, formed by Australian infantry of Major-General's 9th Army, was believed to be about eight miles long, between Tel El Eisa and that Abd El Rahman, about 18 miles west of El Alamein.

Today's communique said the new edge was driven in the Axis centre line, one of the centre of the line, by infantry early yesterday. It was termed "an important advance" in which many prisoners were taken.

(Berlin broadcasts said:

Possibly indicating that the British tank forces have not yet broken through the breach thus made in minefields and artillery positions, the communique added:

"An armored battle on a considerable scale developed and continued all day. Heavy fighting continues."

(London dispatches said "with the shift of the main weight of the Allied attack southward there is a feeling in Britain that anything might happen now that armored units apparently can be thrown through Rommel's static defences and perhaps are being in the other side."

(Axis' communique, particularly the Italian, stressed even more that did the British the violence of the combat between the sea and the Qattara Depression about 500 miles were of Alamein.

Italians Admit Heavy Losses

The Italian communique said an "imposing" Allied armored force struck "with even greater violence" Enemy tanks and navy, especially in armored cars of which more than 80 have been destroyed.

(Then it added significantly: "Our losses, too, are high."

(German broadcasts said the British entire thrust was "the biggest attack so far" but asserted that "breakthrough" attempts were frustrated. The Germans said, however, they had the impression that the British command was intending to force an immediate decision.)

The point from which Allied tanks and infantry thrust was believed to be west of El Ruweisat Ridge, about 20 miles south of the coast.

All Attacks Turned Back

The heavy fighting in the coastal sector on Sunday night apparently consisted of thrusts by enemy armored forces both within and without the pocket to rescue their units. But the communique said all these attacks were turned back and the British grip was maintained.

This pocket had been formed by infantry night attacks from Tel El-Eisa, 15 miles south of the Axis, main, northward to the sea, and by other thrusts westward to Sidi Abdel Rahman, eight miles beyond the pocket. Both points are on the railway which skirts the coast two or three miles distant.

Allied concentrations of artillery and machine-guns therefore were able to dominate the area.

Rommel Rises to Bait

The infantry attack on position which partly pocketed a considerable Axis force.

That was when Rommel sent his long-reserved armor into action against that the moment for which the British forces had prepared. Their own tanks stormed into the fight, and the first big-scale test of armored might was underway.

The Australians who spearheaded the initial British thrust along the coastal rail line were hemmed in against the sea bore the brunt of Rommel's tank assault for "the relief of his trapped troops.

The British tank onslaught, in turn, eased the pressure on the Australians and permitted land forces to continue their mop-up.

Saithfront dispatches said numerous German tanks were knocked out in the duels. The of steel, while elsewhere the battlescene was striven in places with the bodies of Germans who tried in vain to escape the trap.

Parachute Troops Receive Special Pay Besides Regular

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP)—Defence Minister Ralston announced today that members of the Canadian parachute battalion will receive, in addition to regular army pay, special pay which is the same as the extra flying pay allowed members of the R.C.A.F., who are qualified aircrew.

Commissioned officers still receive the extra pay in addition to special army pay for their rank, and other ranks will receive 75 cents a day.

The extra pay will be retroactive for men already in the parachute battalion.

Mexico City, Nov. 3—(AP)—Seven Germans and three Japanese have been arrested, reports from Northwest Mexico said today, in the apparent result of a roundup of Axis aliens along the United States border and the Gulf coast.

NAZIS CAPTURE NALCHIK NEAR CAUCASUS MTS.

Fresh Soviet Gains Made in 10-Week-Old Battle for City Of Stalingrad

DRIVE FOR TIFLIS

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3 —(AP)— A force of 50,000 German and Rumanian mountain infantry, armed with rifles and ammunition, has been landed in a narrow sector southeast of Nalchik, the enemy was reported on the offensive in other sectors of the flanking Caucasus battlefront.

The main Nazi thrust, which has carried a Red army withdrawal from Nalchik itself, apparently was aimed at Ordzhonikidze, some 60 miles away on the military road through the Caucasus Mountains.

The German front amounts to only one-fifth of the whole Russian front, Red Star pointed out, adding that "even there the Germans have failed to advance recently to retain the initiative in all sectors, with the exception of those operating on some positions the Germans have been forced to take the defensive on others."

Dispatches from the Caucasus said the Germans had transferred additional troops to the Caucasus for the Nalchik push. The attacking force there was said now to number two tank divisions, two Rumanian alpine divisions and 1,500 land-flighting Nazi sailors.

The gloomy picture of developments in the southernmost part of the battlefront was relieved, however, by announcement of fresh Soviet gains in the 10-week-old battle for Stalingrad.

Despite reinforcement of the invaders, the enemy was thrown out of several buildings in a factory district by counter-attacking Russians, the noon communique said.

Repulse Many Attacks

Over the Don the Soviets enemy attacks and consolidated positions which they occupied. It was said.

After killing 250 Germans in the announced.

78 Jap Ships Sunk, Possibly Sunk, Or Damaged in Solomons Battle

By The Associated Press

Seventy-eight Japanese ships have been sunk, possibly sunk or damaged in the Solomons, as compared with 18 United States craft sunk or damaged, a review of United States Navy communiques issued up to noon, Nov. 2, shows:—

The tabulation:

| Type | Japanese Sunk | Japanese Possibly Sunk | Japanese Damaged | U.S. Sunk | U.S. Damaged |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Carriers | 0 | 1 | 4 | 2 | 0 |
| Battleships | 0 | 0 | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Cruisers | 2 | 0 | 25 | 4 | 2 |
| Destroyers | 8 | 1 | 11 | 6 | 2 |
| Tenders | 1 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| Transports | 3 | 1 | 8 | 1 | 0 |
| Auxiliaries | 0 | 0 | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Cargo Ships | 2 | 0 | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Miscellaneous | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Total | 16 | 3 | 61—78 | 13 | 4 |

Additional damage to enemy ships, which may include some duplications of damage reported in navy communiques, has been announced from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia.

The tabulations of MacArthur's announcements:

Aircraft carriers—one probably damaged.

Battleships—One battleship or heavy cruiser damaged.

Destroyers—Two probably sunk; three possibly hit.

Transports—One damaged.

Gunboats—One sunk.

Unclassified warships—Eight hit.

Unidentified ships—Seven believed sunk or damaged.

Allied Ground Forces Capture Jap Base At Kokoda

America's Air Power Growth Is Destined To Outstrip Enemy

Wright Field, Dayton, O., Nov. 3 —(AP)—War in the air today is a race with time, ingenuity—and the enemy.

This laboratory of the United States army air forces is in the thick of the battle, for in it is here that planes and the armament that goes into them are first tested and perfected, the enemy air aces trumped, and technical decisions made which affect the whole course of combat.

By closely research of military secrecy only a few chapters of this dramatic story of American military and civilian engineering talent, imagination and foresight can be told. It is a fascinating story and convincing in its evidence that America's growth in air power is destined to outstrip the enemy.

Notwithstanding tremendous pressures for emergency action at all seasons, the army air forces have pegged their plans to maintaining the readiness of men and machine for actual combat. Demands on all fronts have far exceeded the supply of either to date, but the army's air command has stuck steadfastly to the conviction that the gaps can best and, most effectively be closed by putting a premium on prepared-ness.

Everything that inventive genius can devise, in combination with productive resourcefulness, has been applied to the task of making America's aircraft the fastest, best equipped, and most lethal weapons in the air. So simplified have the operations of these flighting machines become, through laboratory invention and ingenuity, that the pilot of the greatest fighter can flip a "finger tip" gear to make any manoeuvre, press a foot pedal to take photographs, and keep one hand on the fire-power controls of his guns—and still keep an eye on the complex instrument panel.

HUNDREDS OF U.S. OFFICE SEEKERS AWAIT VERDICT

Americans Mark Ballots In First Wartime Election Since 1916

LIGHT VOTE EXPECTED

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 3—(CP)—Millions of American citizens took time off today from their wartime-fold war duties to exercise the Democratic right of ballot-marking.

In the first wartime election since 1918, 33,000,000 to 40,000,000 men and women are expected to mark their ballots for hundreds of major and minor public officials in an election that has been fought between the two political parties on the management of the war but, the matter finally worked out, will not change by one iota the determination and will of the American people to fight it to a finish.

The offices at stake are as follows: 33 United States senators, 432 representatives, 32 state governors and hundreds of state and county officials.

A light vote is expected, perhaps not more than 35 per cent. of those eligible.

F. D. R. Watchful

President Roosevelt will be watching closely the results there tonight, since former President Woodrow Wilson lost control of the House of Representatives in 1918, an event that led to many discussions — the disavowal of the Versailles Treaty by the Senate and the United States to enter the League of Nations, the organization of the era of isolation that ended only when Japanese planes and bombs set off the early-morning swoop out of the early-morning haze over Pear. Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

In the voting today it is mathematically impossible for the Republican party to lose control of the Senate but the Republicans can take control of the House of Representatives if they gain 44 seats and gaining 53 others.

Of the 32 governors' seats at stake today, 18 are held by the Democrats and 14 by the Republicans. The latter could take a majority of the 48 state offices by winning only five seats and holding their own.

In the senate, the Democrats have 24 seats on the election block as against only eight by the Republicans and one Independent.

"The campaign," which ended last night, centred largely on local issues and on the general conduct of the war by the Democratic administration.

MANAGING EDITOR OF VANCOUVER PAPER ON STAND

CUSTODIAN AS WITNESS

Vancouver, Nov. 3—(CP)—Ross Philpott, managing editor of the Vancouver News-Herald, testified today that some of the information in which the paper based articles charging an affiliate of the Japanese Black Dragon Society was active in the Dominion came from a friend, "Mr. X" and said "it was made quite clear" to me the matter was secret. Head of Intelligence would be in favor of publication of the articles."

Mr. Philpott was called as a witness in a public inquiry conducted by Judge Charles A. Cameron at Belleville, Ont., into the News-Herald charges. He was followed on the stand by J. W. McPherson, custodian of Japanese property, who testified that Mr. Philpott once told him she had delivered to Mr. X through Stanley Morti, head of a Japanese liaison committee working with the Dominion government, a commission. after she had been told such payments would be made to wife and husband from detention cells of the immigration department.

Said 'Mr. X' referred to Stanley Morti

Mr. Philpott said "Mr. X" who refused to identify himself further, was responsible for counteracting on Morti. He said he understood Mr. X was in San Francisco had a complete file on Morti, whom the paper linked with the Black Dragon Society. Morti declared a British secret service agent, Philpott said, and that a "strongest disgust Morti was in a key position" with the security service.

Mr. Philpott said he had reason to believe Morti was active in secret operatives in British Columbia and Vancouver, particularly over what they believed was a state of over-complacency among officials here" with regard to the Japanese situation before evacuation was ordered. Although he had no "personal contact" with the F.B.I. it was "generally known" to the United States organisation favored publication of the articles.

Custodian's Evidence

Mr. McPherson said he had first heard the report of a Japanese woman giving "tribute" to Morti from a Mr. Thornton, but that when he repeated it to Maj. Austin Taylor, head of the British security commission which was responsible for the internment of Japanese on the Pacific coast, "he called us a couple of fools and told us to forget it if we could prove it we better go ahead."

McPherson said he felt his "integrity was questioned" and interviewed through interpreters a Japanese couple who "with a great deal of reluctance" said the woman had delivered a chocolate box containing $50 to Morti. Before she said the woman attributed the subsequent release of Japanese from the internment camps ahead to the payment of this "tribute."

SINK TWO MORE JAP CRUISERS AND DESTROYER

Secretary of Navy Frank Knox Warns Nation Not to Grow Too Optimistic'

BATTLE OF SAVO IS.

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—The sinking of two additional Japanese warships in the battle in the South Pacific was reported today by Navy Secretary Frank Knox who coupled with the news an admonition against "growing too optimistic" about the naval campaign.

"It is still a bitter, tough fight," he told his press conference. "They (the Japanese) have a fleet of formidable proportions left. We haven't any doubt they'll come back."

Knox's report of sinking two more enemy cruisers was based on late information, he said. Rear Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, now back from his former command as chief of naval operations in the South Pacific.

Ghormley's account of the battle off Savo Island the night of Oct. 11-12, Knox said, listed five Japanese destroyers and three cruisers sunk.

"Field of Burning Ships"

(This engagement was described last Friday today in the British Empire News Agency, as "a hell of a melee" which completely surprised the enemy. After the fight, Simal said, the battle area "became just a field of burning ships.")

Mediterranean Fleet Carries out Operations Against Axis Positions

Alexandria, Egypt, Nov 3 — (AP) —A naval communique announced today that coastal forces of the British Mediterranean fleet have carried out operations in the area of the Libyan coast-line during the past week.

The announcement said the craft exchanged fire with shore defences and returned to base without damage or casualties despite air attacks.

OIL-TRAIN BURNS

Sofia, Nov. 3 (AP)—A Sofia (AP)— One man was killed and 120,000 gallons of gasoline burned when it became a blazing inferno, visible for 20 miles, on a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train hit a rockslide just east of this town early today.

REPORTS 18 PERSONS CONDUCTING FLAGRANDE BY THE GERMANS

Berne, Nov. 3. (AP) —A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Prague said today that 18 persons were executed at Lidice, scene of "high treason" there last week, 13 were killed October 27 and five Oct. 29.

Intractable Wounds of Soldiers Yield to Treatment of Proflavine

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3 (CP)—The horrors of war, always serving to advance medicine and surgery, have contributed another step to medical problems and solutions.

The hospitals behind the English battlefront two British army doctors have enjoyed outstanding success in the treatment of intractable wounds with a substance known as proflavine. In the first case tried the results were immediate and striking.

Proflavine itself is not a new discovery. It is the chief medical application by the doctors, Lt.-Col. Leonard H. Banks and Capt. G. C. Mitchell, that is credited with the success here. It involves application direct in powder form rather than the solution. A reddish-brown crystalline powder, it is a strong bacteriocide when used on a raw surface or in infected wounds.

The officers sum up of treatment as it is being used in the British medical journal, "The Lancet."

In one case a corporal received a large and infected wound in his arm from a shell burst. His condition was desperate when he was taken to a hospital behind the battlefront. Proflavine was introduced into the wound and less than a month later he was able to walk.

The wounded elbow joint of another soldier similarly was obtained by the same method and refused to heal. It was decided to use proflavine powder. A week later the officer was using crutches and a few weeks later the wound had healed completely.

So far proflavine has been used successfully in the treatment of Middle East cases with beneficial results in almost every one.

Complete Steady Drive Over Owen Stanley Mountains

Shove Jap Troops TowardCoastalBase At Buna After Driving Off Convoy

TRANSPORT HIT

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 3—(CP)—Allied ground forces captured the Japanese base at Kokoda, inland New Guinea, yesterday after a gruelling drive over the Owen Stanley Mountains and were shoving the Japanese troops toward their coastal base at Buna today after medium and heavy Allied bombers drove off an enemy convoy and set fire to a transport attempting to approach Buna with reinforcements.

Japanese forces 60 days ago were within 32 miles of Port Moresby, the Allied position on the south coast.

The Japanese, aware of the precarious position of their troops, attempted to send two transports with an estimated 7,000 soldiers to Buna to bolster their retreating forces, an Allied communique said today.

Bombers Attack Convoy

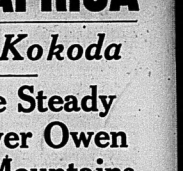
Allied heavy bombers sighted the transports escorted by a light cruiser and a destroyer. Fighter planes and attacked as they were approaching Buna. Many near misses were scored in the first raid and five Japanese fighters were shot down.



Medium bombers then attacked yesterday afternoon and dropped bombs which missed the transport only narrowly. The convoy withdrew.

At twilight the bombers struck again off the south coast of New Britain and scored a direct hit on one of the transports and near hits on both. One transport was left burning off Cape Gasmata at the south coast of New Britain, it was stated officially.

The Japanese landed first at Buna July 21 and within the next weeks had advanced 60 miles across New Guinea's rugged trails, their village accommodating an airfield, rubber plantation and a number of buildings of native build.

Offered Little Resistance

Allied forces offered little resistance to the Japanese push in the early stages but after the superior forces, the Japanese drove into the 8,000-foot Owen Stanley Mountains and by Sept. 16 they had pushed through the main gap in the mountain range and were facing dotted troops at Kokoda, only 32 miles from Port Moresby. There the Allied defences stiffened and after two days of parrying, tough Australian troops forced the enemy back and drove him in retreat back over the mountains to Kokoda.

Flying Officer George Pepper, D.F.C., of Belleville, who is credited with destroying three German bombers on Saturday night.

Labor Minister Visits Shipyards

Liverpool, Nov. 3 — (CP Cable) — Humphrey Mitchell,-winding up an inspection of British industries, today visited Mersey Side shipyards and docks, talking to men and women, building, loading and unloading ships.

"I have been all over the world but I have never seen anything like the tremendous expansion of industry in Britain," the Canadian Labor Minister said in an interview expressing amazement at the way the workers, especially women, "get on with the job."

The minister who is going to Sheffield from the Mersey Side paid tribute to the spirit of Britons who have experienced bombing.

"What can Germany hope to gain by bombing people's homes?" he asked. "In my experience it only makes us more determined."

A. W. CARMICHAEL AWARDED CONTRACT

Alex W. Carmichael, Belleville roofing contractor, has been awarded the roofing, sheet metal and drainage contract on the new $200,000 additional accommodation project now under way at the Macmillan View and Picton additions. General contractor for the project is Thomas Construction Company, Toronto, with this firm letting the sub-contracts to Mr. Carmichael of this city.

CUSTOMS RETURNS REACH ALL-TIME HIGH

What is claimed to be an all-time high in customs collections at the port of Belleville, is reported for the month of October by Col. A. R. Gear, collector of national revenue. Over one half million dollars, or $507,008.01 was taken in at the local customs office for the month as compared to $391,858.44 for the same period last year. This is an increase of $196,372.57 over October, 1941.

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE ROUGH CONDITION IN ROADS OF COUNTY

With the recent heavy rains causing a "washboard" condition, the roads county is only in fair shape for traffic, County Roads Engineer W. A. Ponton stated today.

Shortage of help during the summer months and the month of September resulted in a delay for the committee to carry out even the minimum maintenance, he added. For that reason two crushers are now working, one finishing operations in the Quesnabora district and the other starting near Springbrook.

Winter preparations for the system are under way now, car load of snow fence was recently purchased; plows have been repaired and are now being conditioned. The actual mileage to be opened during the coming winter, however, will not be decided until the next Roads and Bridges Committee meeting.

Several bridges have been repaired and refloored during the summer. Only one power grader is now in operation in order to keep the cost of maintenance down.

TAX SALE HELD

Representatives of practically all communities in Hastings County and several private land owners were present at the tax sale conducted when the annual County Sale of Land for Taxes got under way.

The hall was crowded when County Treasurer James Fogarty offered the first parcel of land for sale. The majority of the land was taken up by the municipalities involved. Lands remaining unsold will be offered at the adjourned sale held some time next month.

NO SESSION OF CITY POLICE COURT

Due to the absence from the city of Magistrate J. A. Lloyd there was no session of city police court held today, today. Worship presided over court officials he would be unable to preside today owing to his presence at a funeral in Northbrook.

FEMALE PURSE SNATCHER ACTIVE

A female purse snatcher was reported active in Belleville on Monday, when a lady's purse was removed from a local beauty parlor, Miss Mary Cassidy, 367 1-2 Front Street, reported to police. Cash amounting to $10.00, a diamond ring valued at $100, and other articles of personal value were taken.

Miss Cassidy informed police a woman entered the beauty salon at her address and asked to use the wash basin. After the woman left, Miss Caughey's purse was found to be missing. A description of the woman was today afforded police.

HARRY FITZGIBBON ELECTED REEVE OF LIMERICK

Harry Fitzgibbon, Stanbury, has been elected reeve of the township of Limerick for the remainder of the present term of office, following the resignation of Reeve M.A. Park who recently moved to Belleville to reside in that community.

Reeve Park leaves for Alaska today where he has secured employment on the Alcan Highway. He will take his own truck with him and act as its driver.

Like other townships of the county, Limerick will hold nominations for its township council for 1943.

ISRAEL MacKENZIE REEVE OF FARADAY

Israel MacKenzie, veteran councillor of Faraday Township, has been elected by his fellow councillors as reeve of that township for the remainder of the 1943 term of office. The appointment fills the vacancy caused by the death of Reeve Ernest Mitchell, who suddenly died several weeks ago after thirty years' unintermittent service as the head of the township.

For several weeks following the death of the former reeve, the position was held vacant due to the inability of the members of the council to agree on a successor. Recently, however, Councillor MacKenzie consigned his position and was elected head of the council.

The township will hold nominations at the end of the year when councillors and reeve will be nominated for election.

WINNER OF KENWOOD BLANKET WILL BE DRAWN FOR SATURDAY

Due to the fact that tickets for the troops in Britain must be in the mail by November 10th, attendants of the Trenton Memorial Air Service Force have decided to call in all outstanding tickets and offered for sale on the handsome Kenwood blanket. The name and name of the winner will be held and broadcast by the Kinsmen Club next Saturday night.

The C.W.S.F. members have realized a handsome sum of money from their first venture in this field, and between them there and fifty lads overseas who would get no Christmas reminder otherwise, will get a fine parcel of food and comforts through their efforts.

Both officers and ranks of the unit have worked long after their regular hours of training at the Armouries preparing and mailing the parcels. They feared no talented comforts and food costing $5.

Three Tires Stolen From Car at Tweed

Jacking up an automobile at the rear of a garage in Tweed, three Tweed, thieves stole three complete sets of tires and rims over the weekend, Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed was informed Monday.

The thieves entered Mr. Lelondo's garage by night, jacked up the vehicle and removed the four rear wheels, tires and tubes included. They also removed the spare tire and rim.

While investigating the tire thefts, Chief Hayes learned that a carburetor had been taken off a parked motor car in another section near Tweed. Father Pichet, who is visiting near Tweed, returned to his car to find that the carburetor had been stolen from his car. It is believed that to remove the generator had also been made, as the generator had been unscrewed from its position. It is believed that the robbers were interrupted in their efforts to steal the generator.

Obituary

MRS. MARION (FRANCIS) BRISTOL
(Formerly of Madoc)

Madoc, Nov. 2 (Special)—Mrs. Marion Bristol, widow of Malcolm Bristol, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Hamilton, Peterboro, after a brief illness due to heart trouble. Deceased was a Methodist.

The late Mrs. Bristol, who was in her 85th year, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Francis of Madoc and was married to Malcolm Bristol who predeceased her many years ago, when she went to reside in the Township of Tudor.

In many friends in Madoc the death of Mrs. Bristol has brought a feeling of sincere regret. She possessed many fine traits of character and in her active years did was a leader in church and charitable work. Her religion she was a prominent member of Trinity United Church and was for 25 years active in the Women's Missionary Society. In regard of the entire community she will be sadly missed.

Surviving to mourn her loss are three sons, Thomas, Tudor; Bristol, Madoc; Mr. Wesley Bristol, Tweedie, Alberta; Mr. Ernest Bristol, Fort Worth, Texas; five daughters, Mrs. Kent (Grace) of Toronto; Mrs. Harvey Hamilton, Peterboro; Mrs. Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. Rowe (Mary) of Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. Rowe (Mary) Hall, Madoc; Mrs. Ernest Hall, London, Ontario, and Mrs. Walter Hall, Bristol, Quebec; two brothers, John and Bruce, died some years ago.

The funeral service was conducted here this Tuesday afternoon in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hamilton, Rev. Wesley Bristol, Toronto, a son of deceased, officiating. Interment took place in Lakeview cemetery.

MISS MARGARET J. HOLDCROFT (Formerly of Tweed)

The funeral of Miss Margaret Jane Holdcroft took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church street, Tweed, on Monday afternoon, Nov. 2nd., and the service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lemery. Interment was conducted by the Rev. R. Larsen of Madoc, minister in charge of the Tweed United Church. The pallbearers were Messrs. Arthur Alexander, Samuel McGee, S. B. Mumby, Frank Hagerman, Ernest Mehlkjohn and Dr. P. T. Bowby.

The late Miss Holdcroft, who was in her 81st year, died in Tweed hospital on Monday, Oct. 26th. She was in Tweed for a short time after coming to Canangue she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holdcroft. For several years she was a school teacher at Tweed and held the position of Public Librarian for many years before moved to the Bay of Quinte district.

Complete Arrangements For Variety Show

Entertainment luminaries in the uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force from the stations in this district, have completed arrangements for their hit-studded show tonight in Belleville's Capitol Theatre, Associate Institute auditorium, and now only ticket sales remain to be made in this city one of the best variety shows ever staged here.

Under the direction of the station commanding officers, the all-service stage, radio and concert stars will appear supported by the Collegiate Band in aid of the current Victory Loan. Air Commodore Frank S. McColl officer commanding No. 1 Training Command will deliver a brief address to officially open the proceedings. He will be introduced by Squadron Leader Norman J. Nunn, senior equipment officer of the station.

Since the last announcement of the show, the Victory Loan Public Relations Committee have been swamped with advance ticket requests. Present indications point to an overflow crowd and the public is urged to be on hand early if they wish to be sure of getting entrance from a sitting position. The curtain goes up at 8 o'clock. Owing to the lack of demand for seats children will not be allowed.

The show will be under the expert master-of-ceremonies supervision of Flying Officer Ken Estes, formerly with Bennie Goodman, Ozzie Nelson and other crack American dance bands, and who will have his own "jam session" squad in musical accord. With him are such R.C.A.F. musical stars as Flying Officer Jimmy R.D.) AW. 2 Mary Carry, formerly with the Columbia broadcasting System, Dayton, Ohio; and a host of comedians, musicians and singers.

This is the first occasion that an all-Royal Canadian Air Force show has been staged in Belleville and is indicative of the willingness of the personnel of the R.C.A.F. to do their blue to aid and assist the Third Victory Loan to the limit.

Stores to Close All Wed. Afternoons Except Two Previous to Christmas

Belleville Retail Merchants will close their stores every Wednesday afternoon throughout the year with the exception of the two Saturday holidays immediately preceding Christmas, it was decided at a meeting at Tabernacle Church Sunday School rooms on Monday evening.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Section of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. Approximately sixty merchants were present when the new amendment regarding the Wednesday closing by-law was passed after a lengthy discussion during which the views of many local merchants were heard, the amendment to the by-law original motion calling for Wednesday closing on all but the last two days before the Christmas season was passed almost unanimously.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. Fred R. Smart, secretary-manager of Ontario Retail Hardware Association, secretary-manager of Plastics Limited, Leamington, who presented a concise and comprehensive review of all problems confronting retail merchants during wartime, when shortages of many articles were seeing many commodities curtailed or eliminated.

Mr. Smart stated that next six months as being an exceptionally critical period for the retail merchants and declared their self-preservation depended on the observance of conditions in order that they may be met as the occasion demands.

He asserted that efficient management and economy practices were necessary that merchants might survive the present crisis and stated that merchants must organize within themselves, form trade associations and join the necessary channels through which there collective opinions may be considered, if their standards of business are to be kept up, declared Mr. Smart in his address to the Belleville Merchandise Society.

The speaker visualized a trade mart merchandising concept "just around the corner" and expressed the opinion that it would be necessary to do so "there will not be enough to go around" after the war, and stated that to goods manufactured of metals. In the future the same conditions would be out of the question.

Despite an almost certain consumer goods drought, Mr. Smart declared that "there will be no shortage of dig up those disused lines that have for many years been shoved to the back burner."

Merchants will do a small volume of business, he said, but what they are showing be much or more profit will be left in order to carry on in the future.

Reeve Fred Masterson

In summing up the problems confronting the retail merchant Mr. Smart listed them as follows: (1) Conservation of which he claimed would greatly assist in solving these problems. (2) Check inventories for dormant stock, thus eliminating wastes, salvage everything possible. (3) Cut costs to the absolute minimum without losing efficiency. (4) Save power. (7) Simplify stock ranges and eliminate slow sellers. (8) Pay special attention to wrapping of parcels, paper being scarce for wrapping and ask customers to take goods unwrapped whenever possible. (10) Sub-let unused store space.

Three Scrap Collection

Commenting briefly on the question of how the war will be financed last, Mr. Smart declared that this question would be left to the men on the battlefield but would depend upon the rate which civilian wants were diverted to war purposes.

He discredited the common assertion that Canadians were apathetic toward the war effort, but urged its musical concert on the part of such R.C.A.F. musical stars as Flying Officer Jimmy R.D.) AW. 2 Mary Carry, formerly with the Columbia broadcasting System, Dayton, Ohio; and a host of comedians, musicians and singers.

This is the first occasion that an all-Royal Canadian Air Force show has been staged in Belleville and is indicative of the willingness of the personnel of the R.C.A.F. to do their blue to aid and assist the Third Victory Loan to the limit.

Three Children Burned to Death

Churchill, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP)—That three children of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larocque, the eldest aged nine months, manager of the Ford Motor Car Company, Toronto, predicted a new political and economic set-up, new products, and a country in which "it should be the duty of every government to make it possible for the masses to have a better standard of living and to equal chance to enjoy prosperity to the fullest."

Speaking to the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday, the speaker advocated changes in government production, marketing systems, and spoke of the many possibilities for a new order that have been born of the war.

Referring to the political aspect, Mr. Murdoch was of the opinion that the country at present is over-governed. "We can do with a lot less" he said, "and perhaps two provincial governments, one on the east and the other in the west would be sufficient."

He also spoke of better political gymnasts and more business and academic men in the seat of government, he said. The Government, has admitted its faults for the past, he said, crediting them into service regardless of political affiliations. Other governments should, in the speaker's opinion, let industry take the load in planning and "prime the pump for it," in the lean ones.

The high taxation is a monument to stability, Mr. Murdoch declared, and also to the ability of the people to intelligence. If this country can organize for war on the huge scale, why can it not organize for depression on a small one?

No Apologies for Capitalism

The capitalistic system has too many apologizers, Mr. Murdoch said. "It has its evils but it has done more for the standard of living than any other system. We do not expect to return to this system as it was after the war, but I think you give us going to get rid of the present office holders without a struggle. They won't submit tamely but will fight to the last gasp of red fire to preserve the great things for the small minds. Under the present system the improvements we shall get a much better standard of living."

Touching on price ceilings and restrictions, Mr. Murdoch stated that these have reacted favorably upon the man on the street who after all is the man behind the nation. As a result the real wages now in evidence are being saved and spent, in addition to which "it is better to have some form of control to keep wages in this real value than none at all."

Next Thursday's meeting

The man on the street is forced to save some of his money, and is spending it in war savings, Victory bonds, and such things. Others have bought homes, repaid mortgages invested in life insurance or businesses or put it in the bank. The net result is that the average man is spending more thought on what he buys and is demanding more value.

Speaking of war-born products, the speaker stated that his company will put out an automobile with an engine weighing 300 pounds developing 100 horse power and which will get 50 miles to the gallon. Other new types of motors will be kept down. Another academic gem in the seat of government, he said. The Government has admitted its faults for the past, crediting them into service regardless of political affiliations. Other governments should, in the speaker's opinion, let industry take the load in planning and "prime the pump for it," in the lean ones.

LAST DAY FOR PAYMENT OF TAXES

Today is the last day for city taxpayers to make their payments on their current contributions to the city tax fund. It marks the final day when the 2 per cent. discount ends and indications point to a record breaking collection. The discount is paid at the end of the third instalment in September showed a percentage well above the three-quarter mark.

ALL SURVIVORS ARE SAFE

London, Nov. 3 — (CP) — All survivors of a steamship torpedoed in the Atlantic arrived recently in Britain, their original destination, it was learned Monday.

The shipowners declined to give the name, nationality or date of sinkers but said they believed some North and Central American ports were of the vessel. One passenger and three crew members were lost. several nights.

Queen Victoria School Holds Splendid Victory Loan Concert

An excellent program of music, readings, drama, and dancing formed the annual Victory Loan Concert of Queen Victoria School yesterday afternoon. A large attendance of parents and friends showed the interest taken in the school. The children were given a gracious welcome by the principal, Mr. J. C. Hunter, who expressed the pleasure it gave the staff and students to have the parents present.

Queen Victoria School Band opened the concert with a brisk air with a march, and further selections by the band demonstrated the excellent progress they have made. These young musicians, who have been working hard to keep the high standard maintained by the band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Jones and "King John" were impressively done by the children following their pipes. Other pipe essays in the Victory Loan Essay Contest "How and girls may help in the war effort" were read by Lorraine Gladwell, Shirley Smith, Betty Williams and Stuart Theobald. A two-part song "Ring the bells of Freedom" by the rest number, and the singing in this selection as well as the following, which formed a musical background for the Victory Pageant was a tribute to the excellent choral work of Phyllis May.

Give Victory Pageant

The Victory Pageant, directed by Miss Burley, was the feature of the afternoon's program. As each group representative of the armed forces appeared on the platform appropriate songs were sung, the numbers including "British Grenadiers," "Soldiers of the King," "Anchors Aweigh," "Rule Britannia," "Wings over the Navy,"

"Lords of the air," and finally "You Can Fight for Canada." A patriotic girl-Britannia, by Miss Barbara Dinent and Madeline Walden and a recitation by Lorraine Bunn.

The Pageant formed the "victory" picture, as painted by artist Bill Thompson. The other leading parts, taken with distinction by the two actors and actresses were the boy—Donald Dolan, the air-girl—Beverley Walden, and the soldier- Billy Davis. The audience was most appreciative of the splendid work displayed in the efforts of the children in this interesting pageant.

Mrs. Clayton Burr was guest speaker and in a brief and inspiring address outlined the splendid work of the Victory Loan Campaign and the necessity for every citizen doing his part to support it loyally. The program was concluded with the national anthem played by the boys' band.

Ford Official Envisions Improved Standard of Living After the War

Envisioning the future of Canada after the war, Rotarian Wallace Murdoch, manager of the Ford Motor Car Company, Toronto, predicted a new political and economic set-up, new products, and a country in which "it should be the duty of every government to make it possible for the masses to have a better standard of living and to equal chance to enjoy prosperity to the fullest."

TWO C.P.R. MEN SLIGHTLY INJURED

Locomotive and 12 Cars Leave Track When Train Runs Into Landslide

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 3 —(CP)— Two members of the train crew suffered minor injuries early today when an eastbound Canadian Pacific Railway freight train was derailed 81 miles west of Wolfe River. The locomotive and 12 cars left the track when the train ran into a rock slide, C.P.R. officials here said.

Fireman Edward Singleton and Trainman A. Barr, both of Schreiber, were injured slightly. Engineer P. Sully of Schreiber was unhurt.

The locomotive and four of the cars went down an embankment but the remaining cars stayed on the roadbed.

It was stated here that the line would not be cleared for normal traffic until 7 p.m. Meanwhile several transcontinental passenger trains were delayed.

3 Admit Acting As Unregistered Agents of Japan

New York, Nov. 3 — (AP) —Two Americans and one British subject pleaded guilty Monday to charges of acting as unregistered agents of the Japanese government. Judge Marcus B. Campbell set Nov. 12 for sentencing.

The three are Joseph Hilton Smyth, 40, Old Lyme, Conn.; Walker Grey Mathieson, about 50, of Washington, D. C., and Irvine Harvey Williams, 38, a British subject living in Norwich, Conn. They face possible maximum sentences of 10 years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

They admitted having bought and published with Japanese funds a magazine, "The Living Age," which from June, 1938, to August, 1941, published material furnished by the Japanese. The agreement with a Japanese vice consul in New York included adoption of a favorable policy toward the Japanese on all questions, according to the government charge.

Matheson, native of Alberta, is a former news analyst in the office of the co-ordinator of Inter-American affairs. He lived in Tokyo when his father was news editor of the Japanese Advertiser and the Japan Times.

Smyth is a former newspaperman and free-lance writer. Williams was listed as an accountant by profession.

President Asks For Wide Powers

Washington, Nov. 3 — (AP) — President Roosevelt asked Congress Monday to give him sweeping power to suspend any law, particularly traffic, found interfering with the "free movement of persons, property and information" into and out of the United States.

Asserting that speed and volume of war output have become more than ever before the "primary conditions of victory," Mr. Roosevelt said in a special message:—

"To achieve an all out war production effort, we must implement and supplement the steps already taken by the Congress and the President to eliminate those peacetime restrictions which limit our ability to have the fullest and quickest use of the world's resources."

The President asked that he be empowered for the duration of the war to "suspend the operation of all or any such laws, in such a way as to meet new and perhaps unforeseen problems as they may arise, and on such terms as will enable the chief executive and government agencies to work out in detail parallel action in other countries."

Government agencies, Mr. Roosevelt said, has already removed many administrative restrictions in the movement of war goods, information and persons, but there remained "many legislative obstacles to that movement which impede and delay our war production effort."

Minor Fighting Seen On Chinese Fronts

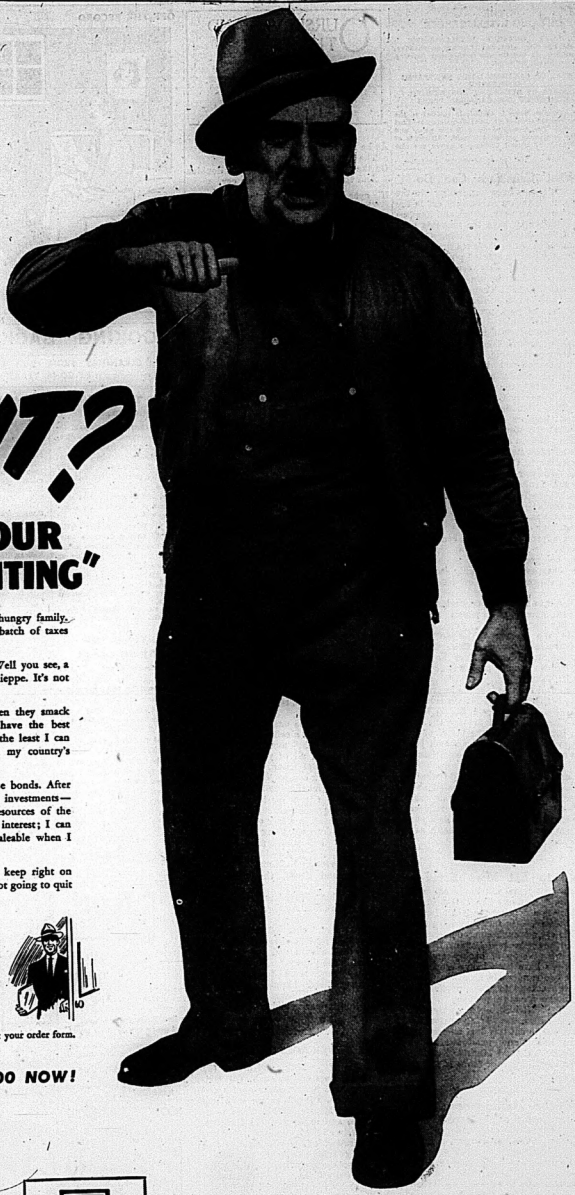
Chungking, Nov. 3 — (AP)— Minor fighting on three widely-separated fronts was reported by the Chinese High Command and the press Monday.



In the northwest, a Japanese detachment attacked near Paotow in Suiyuan Province, but was beaten in a severe battle of several hours on Oct. 27, a communique said.

West of Nanchang in Kiangsi Province in Central China a small Japanese detachment was repulsed in attacks on two points Oct. 28.

The Chinese Central News said that Japanese in Hupeh Province yesterday attacked two Yangtse River towns, Shasi and Chunhokow, and that fighting was continuing near Panchangchiao.

NAZIS STOCK-UP MAPS

London —(CP)— A large printing firm near Antwerp, les Papeteries Industrielles de Merxem, has produced quantities of maps of Ireland and a large number of maps of Britain have been printed "imprimerie de la Cambrie" in Brussels.

"ME QUIT?
NOT WHILE OUR BOYS ARE FIGHTING"

I'M making $35 dollars a week and I feed a hungry family. (Excuse me—I was making $35 before the last batch of taxes hit me. I still have all the family.)

"So why am I buying Victory Bonds today? Well you see, a couple of boys I knew stayed on the beach at Dieppe. It's not a nice thought to go to bed with.

"Our boys are going in there again. And when they smack straight into those Huns—they're going to have the best equipment my money can help to buy. That's the least I can do—and the best way to do it is through my country's Victory Bonds.

"I'm not asking for any medals for buying these bonds. After all, I'll be laying up for myself the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS are backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada; they yield a fair rate of interest; I can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when I need the cash.

"So that's the way I feel about it. I'm going to keep right on paying my way in this man's war—and I'm not going to quit while our lads are in there pitching."

HOW TO BUY—Give your order to the Victory Loan salesman who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters! Or you can authorize your employer to start a regular payroll-savings plan for you. ## What Canadians Can Do

Canada has been appealing to the people to make a voluntary cut in the amount of fresh pork, bacon and ham, so that Britain may have the amounts contracted for. In the year ending October 31 Canada failed to complete the contract for 600,000,000 pounds of pork products but the balance of this contract will be completely filled before the end of November, it is said. Then Canada will go to work on the new contract for 676,000,000 pounds of pork products which will probably be completed in eleven months. There is fortunately a much larger swine population today than a year ago and more feed is available for them, so that pork production will mount and make it possible for Canada to fill the contracts.

"Over there" the British people are rationed in a way Canada knows not of. What little Canada has had to have rationed appears small in comparison with what the stout-hearted British people have given up cheerfully as they carry on the greatest fight in history.

According to Consumers' News, issued by the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, here is what the British housewife has to get along with in certain foods — the ration per individual being as follows:

Bacon, four ounces a week.

Meat, approximately 20 cents worth per week.

Eggs, one per week.

Fish, unrationed, but supply scarce.

Fats, 8 ounces (2 only of butter) per week.

Cheese, 2 to 3 ounces per week.

Canned goods, one pound approximately per month.

Beside the hearty tables to which Canadians are accustomed these wartime days, even toasty Spartan, for the health of the British people is said to be at the best in its history.

Any appeal such as is made in order to help the heroic people of Britain must not go unanswered. No person can in honor do anything that would prevent the contracted supply reaching the tables of the Britons, who are now in the fourth year of war and as brave and dauntless as ever.

So Canadians will gladly do what is asked in order that the contracted shipments may go overseas. No one would want the rations of Britain to be reduced. Rather Canadians will cut their own purchases and will not suffer in health as a result either.

Asked to Eat More Bread

In Canada people will likely eat more of the grain products like wheat bread, since there is a demand for meats for the United Nations. In fact they have been advised to eat more wheat products.

This is timely because Canada has the greatest wheat crop in history and her other cereals have been heavy crops. In this way two results can be achieved—to use the wheat and to make possible release of meats for other peoples.

Even the British, in peacetime good meat eaters, are being advised by Lord Woolton to eat less beef and mutton and more bread and potatoes after the war. The British Food Minister says the suggested combination of foods is just as good nutrition.

In the Mediterranean

"Destroy Rommel and his army" is the object of the British commander of the Eighth Army, Gen. Montgomery, a great soldier. The struggle now being fought against Rommel is very encouraging. Over two years ago Mussolini thought the Mediterranean was to establish his Italian empire on a sure foundation but British effort has meant the destruction of Italian imperialism and the recovery of Ethiopia from the aggressor. Today Britain is in a strong position in Egypt, her air superiority has been of great advantage to the British in preventing ships reaching Rommel.

If the British carry out their plans, the strategic Mediterranean will have increasingly important value to Britain, especially in relation to Italy and the defence of the Middle East.

The Mediterranean theatre's importance cannot be overemphasized.

DRAKE'S SAILOR

As he strode down the streets of Devon
The sun struck warm and clear
On the wine-red ruby pinning his doublet
And the red-gold ring in his ear.

His eyes, so strangely and keenly bluer
Than a landsman's ever could be,
Were full of the wonder of outland places
And the mystery of the sea.

He heard the roar of the reefs to westward,
He heard the white foam hurled
Far up from the curve of the bone-white beaches
On the other side of the world.

And out of the cobbled streets of Devon
He saw tall forests rise
Rich with trumpets of purple blossom
And birds of many dyes.

As he went by with his long-sword swinging,
His eyes set wide and dim—
The children turned from their play, and flocking
Followed after him.

And the gossips nodded and nudged each other,
Whispering behind their hand—
Smiling, saying "There's Drake's sailor, Home from the Golden Land!"

GUY FAWKES DAY

London —(Delayed)— The boys had gathered in the poker room in the cellar of the Houses of Parliament.

"Listen, lads," quoth the Big Guy, "Thursday night has been set for the big blowout. Be here on time, and keep your pamphlets dry. Praise the Lord and bring your ammunition."

"How come we're going to give the blokes upstairs the fireworks!" asked the Weasel.

"I'm a pacifist," said Sir Lancelot De Vere. "Why not approach the lads up there in the seats of the mighty and they might listen to reason, resign, and go back to the farm."

"This place will be one thing that they won't be able to put a ceiling on, when we are finished with it," murmured the Big Guy. "Remember, all of you be on time or I'll stop your deferment when it comes up again, and you can go join the army."

Thursday night they rolled keg after keg into position from the brewing room. But there was a traitor among them. He managed to sneak in a keg of home-brew and the dad-burned thing popped off three minutes before the fireworks was scheduled.

Three platoons of Mounties rushed down cellar and found the boys low in spirits.

"Whatsa big idea?" grumbled a big sergeant fresh from Alaska, and the Call of the North.

"Listen, Sarge," chortled the Big Guy, "our meetings haven't been getting the publicity they should and we wanted a big report in the papers."

So they sent them to Bowmanville where they lived happily ever afterwards.

And that dear children, is how it started.

30 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 3rd., 1912

The alterations and improvements to Holloway Street Methodist Church are nearing completion. Work has been in progress since last June. Mr. William Alford is doing the carpenter work; Mr. W. J. Carter is doing the electrical installation; Mr. W. A. Cornelius is doing the decorating; the Steele Company is putting down a beautiful carpet this week and in a few days the new seats will be put in place. It is expected that the church will be reopened on Nov. 17th.

Mr. M. A. James of Bowmanville was in town to-day.

Mr. T. H. Thompson of Madoc was in town to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. May are visiting friends in Tweed.

40 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 3rd., 1902

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cochram of Madoc were receiving congratulances in town to-day.

The schooner D. Freeman arrived in port here this morning with a cargo of coal; this is the first coal to reach here since the miners' big strike commenced. It is reported that more coal will arrive here shortly.

Bridge Street Methodist Church Sunday School on Sunday celebrated the 50th. anniversary of organization. The following have been superintendents: Mr. Asa Yeomans, Dr. Kellogg, Hon. Billa Flint, Mr. M. Sawyer, Mr. R. Richardson, Mr. C. John Booth, Mr. John Elmer, Mr. William Herring, Mr. G. G. German, Mr. James Ross; and now Mr. William Johnson, who has held office since the year 1874.

50 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 3rd., 1892

Mr. James Haggerty, chairman of the Bridge Commitee of the County Council, is calling for tenders for the erection of a steel high truss bridge over the river at Tweed.

Mr. John Macoun, an old Belleville boy, recently with the Bank of Commerce at Stratford, has been transferred to an important position in the head office of the same bank in Toronto.

The attraction at the Queen's Opera House tomorrow evening will be Lincoln J. Carter's excellent company in the "Fast Mail".

The city's contract for electric lighting provides that the lamps are to be kept lighted until daylight. It is reported that the lights are shut off while it is yet dark. How about this?

Mr. George H. Embury is leaving Napanee to reside in Belleville.

THE KILLER FROST

The silver and the gold are gone;
The scarlet plumes the dahlias wore
Are horrid now to look upon
And gentle beauty is no more!

Where loveliness from day to day
Made welcome all who wandered near,
Grim death has left its pallor
And the Killer Frost last night was here!

Into these pretty grounds he
To strike with fury, left and right,
And every tender thing he brushed
Was stricken with a fatal blight.

As tyrants merciless must be
To war with all-consuming hate,
The Killer Frost as ruthlessly

BERLIN TO BAGHDAD

Over 80 years ago German imperialism began to dream of a direct rail connection between Berlin and Baghdad.

This ambitious project of extending the 1,300-mile Berlin-to-Istanbul railroad to Baghdad met with engineering, financial and political difficulties.

The 300-mile section from Haidar Pasha opposite Istanbul to Ankara was completed in 1892 by the Anatolian Railway Company, financed largely by German capital. Another section, from Ankara to Konya, was completed three years later.

At this point the Baghdad Railway Company, also financed by German capital, took over the project and began work on the section from Konya to a point beyond the Taurus mountains known as Bulgurlu and situated near the northeast corner of the Mediterranean. Big engineering difficulties in connection with tunnels through the mountains held up operations for several years.

Britain, France and Russia sent sharp protests to the Turkish government. Great Britain saw a menace in a direct railroad from Europe to India not under her control.

The Konya-Bulgurlu stretch was finally completed in 1904 and 1907 and of the line remained "with its gulf of hills gauntly protecting from the permanent way" until work was resumed in 1914.

During the first World War the railroad was extended from Bulgurlu across the northeastern tip of Syria to Mosul in Iraq.

In May, 1940, the Iraq government, largely with British capital, laid the last mile of track on the section between Mosul and Baghdad.

Were conditions normal, a person could now travel by railroad more than 2,900 miles between Berlin and Baghdad by changing trains only at the Bosphorus, where he would have to cross by ferry.

Basra on the Shat el Arab about 50 miles from the Persian Gulf and 360 miles below Baghdad is connected with the latter city by a railroad of narrow gauge.

By 1939 Turkey had acquired control of that part of the Istanbul-to-Baghdad railroad within her territory.

Since 1941, by an ironical turn of fate part of the German-sponsored Berlin-to-Baghdad Railroad has been used to send war supplies to Russia.

Eyewitness Describes Smashing Attack on Axis Positions by British

By FRANK L. MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

A Forward Artillery Battery Observation Post, with British Armies in Egypt, Sunday (Delayed)—(AP)—Bayonet-flashing British infantry smashed forward under an earth-jarring barrage last night and in savage hand-to-hand fighting flushed the Germans and Italians from another segment of the El Alamein front.

The Allied troops swarmed upon the shell-flattened enemy position and even as they continued their forward rush a stream of Nazi and Fascist prisoners began pouring to the British rear.

I arrived at this most forward observation post for an artillery battery late in the afternoon in time to see R.A.F. and American medium bombers and Kitty bombers set the stage for the approaching night assault. This post is some distance from the front line enemy position and the attack came in from the left and the right of me.

Bombs from our planes would fall, as four flights would be coming within the next hour and a half.

Exactly on time the first large formation of 25 medium bombers flown by Americans and Rootens piloted by R.A.F. men arrived and the sand under them seemed to boil as tons of explosives landed directly in front of the target area.

The other three flights followed in the same perfect formation and let go with their bombs. The din roof over our head rattled at the impact.

Order of Barrage

At the battery command post the commanding officer had received orders for the night's fighting.

First, all guns would join for the general barrage and then each battery would turn its guns to special tasks, first knocking out a path and then concentrating on individual sectors in enemy territory ahead of the advancing infantry where the enemy's strong points were located.

Just before the firing began an officer told of seeing a damaged enemy plane come out of a dive and a man bail out. The plane went half another dive, turned and climbed then threw the Nazis jumped, leaving the craft to fly itself.

Few 10 minutes he said the pilotless plane banked and zoomed, soaring the wits out of everybody in the vicinity because it appeared at times to be sailing toward them. Finally it crashed.

Back in the observation post we were told to check the firing of "ack," "George," and "nuts," all groups of guns firing together.

Then within 60 hellish seconds it seemed that the end of the world might be at hand. Out in front, in an area of 5,000 yards by 400 yards, more than 1,000 shells exploded in that brief minute.

The attack started at 10 p.m. The infantry began moving forward a few moments later. Our battery was assigned to fire on 28 positions before morning. The barrage reached a rate of more than 1,500 shells a minute.

Fire Big Flare

Back in the command post a phone message reported five big fires, one of them believed to be an enemy ammunition dump. The heaviest guns behind were sending shells over that sounded like the hammy whistle of bombs.

After an officer reported that the infantry was on schedule and a little later that they had gained their objective, I returned to the observation post.

Machine-guns cracked continuously, tracers helping the gunners find and stay on their target.

Victory lights burst from time to time, indicating an objective had been reached. The moonlight failed to untangle the confusion on the battlefield. I could only tell that our troops were moving by, which means the advance was going well.

A little retaliation came back for shelling. After the artillery halted just before dawn Stukas sneaked out to drop a few bombs in the vicinity of our guns but they failed to score.

Other artillery planes machine-gunned us until sunup.

TALK OF BABIES ON OPEN MARKET

Campaign in Britain to Stop Spread of Wartime "Baby Farming"

London, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Social workers are expressing concern at what is termed "baby farming" and the Sunday Pictorial, in giving attention to the practice, called on authorities for steps to ensure that one unborn baby in particular "is not put on the open market."

The paper reproduced an advertisement from an Aberdeen paper which said: "Wanted, party to adopt baby from birth; expected middle November; premium; no after claim."

"It is the most callous and despicable instance of child-selling that has ever come to our notice," said the paper. "This person is actually offering to sell a baby before it is born — and frankly admitting that the mother concerned has no other interest in its welfare."

Miss H. Blackburn, secretary of the National Adoption Society commenting on the advertisement, said, "there is no need for any woman to resort to this kind of thing. If a woman cannot keep her baby an adoption society will help her to find a good 'home for it."

Mrs. A. C. Plummer, secretary of the National Children's Adoption Society, said, "In my 17 years' experience I have never known a worse case."

British Merchant Seaman Executed

London, Nov. 3. (CP)—Duncan Alexander Croal Scott-Ford, a British subject, was executed today in Wandsworth prison for treachery, the Home Office announced.

Scott-Ford was a 31-year-old British merchant seaman who made regular trips between Britain and Lisbon, Portugal.

In Lisbon, the announcement said he was approached by a German agent and for payment of £5 supplied secret information concerning the merchant fleet, movements of convoys between Lisbon and Britain, weather conditions and aircraft protection. He also promised additional data the Home Office said.

"When Scott-Ford returned on a second visit to Lisbon with the information he had collected the German was threatened they would expose him to British authorities unless he continued to perform further services to collect more valuable information and to incur greater risks in their interest" the announcement said.

After his arrest Scott-Ford admitted associating with German spies and making notes at the request of the German agents at the Home Office said. He also admitted that he "toured public houses, mixing with fellow seamen and members of the 'services in order to pump them for information in the their possession", it was said.

He was convicted October 16, at a secret trial and did not appeal the death sentence.

Scott-Ford is the third British subject to be convicted and hanged for treachery during the war.

SUPREMELY FIT

Mr. Frank McAlpine and Mrs. E. Kennedy motored to Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. Terrance Mahoney of Bancroft, motored to Toronto on Thursday for the purpose of enlisting in the R.C.A.F.

R.Q.M.S. Ronald Maxwell is in Kingston attending a Q.M. course.

Hunters Arrive

The "Call to the Wild" has once more sounded into the veins of the hunters as they have been arriving in Bancroft in increased numbers over the weekend for their annual hunt and judging by reports heard throughout this northern part of Hastings County of the abundance of deer it looks as if those hunters are on the right path carrying out their duties.

Weatherman Not Kind

The Weatherman was not very kind to the young folk in this locality Saturday evening as the Hallowe'en pranksters had to conduct their door-to-door canvas amid a pouring rain which lasted throughout the night. Nothing startling occurred from the night's activities except road signs being misplaced, oil barrels strewn about, departmental graders draped along the river's bank, fire alarms sounded several times and some of the steet lights turned off.

Some of the teachers in the Junior room of the public school in the village held an afternoon Hallowe'en party for the youngsters following the afternoon session on Friday in which the children each took a little friend and all had a splendid time.

Hosted by Friends

The girls of our village surprised Miss Noreen McAllister, popular bride-to-be, with a miscellaneous shower Friday evening last. Miss McAllister showed the girls her trousseau and cedar chest with its many treasures. A delicious hour was spent compiling "The Bride's Book." This was followed by a jolly sing-song led by Misses Alma Gourley and Rhoda Wilson.

On behalf of the young people, Miss Adrian Bailey presented Miss green pearl on amber clock, after which Miss McAllister with a beautiful little which all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Miss McAllister then opened the many lovely gifts received from the girls and graciously thanked them. A dainty lunch was served by Miss Hilda McGhee and Mrs. Wesley Edwards. Miss McAllister was showered by good wishes for happiness in her new life.

THE WAR TODAY

(By JOHN H. MARTIN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The 11-day old British push in Egypt has not yet developed into a full offensive, and because of this we would expect to hear of some backslapping and elation in Berlin and its branch office at Vichy over this apparent hesitancy on the part of the army of the Nile. But certainly there is neither in those two capitals.

Instead, Berlin and Vichy still talk of a possible Allied stroke against French North Africa to belie the attack on Marshal Rommel's German and Nazi-stiffened Italian troops is a mere feint to screen such a blow.

Today's British, German and Italian accounts all indicate that a battle of tanks is developing on the desert front. The British command said its infantry "made an important advance" in an attack south of the coastal flank, and admit "an armored battle on a considerable scale developed and continued all day."

However, after more than a week of the new campaign, there is no sign that the main weight of the British and Axis armor is at grips.

The quite-plausible explanation is that a formidable belt of Axis mines yet must be removed to clear the way. Perhaps, though, the British are assembling enough armor that would force Rommel to dispense his manpower and equipment.

There are several areas where the Axis is vulnerable. Both sides know them and have advertised them in varying degrees. Far south of the Mediterranean coastal belt where the fighting has surged back and forth, the Fighting French command, Charles De Gaulle holds the Kufra Oasis and the Lake Chad region. An Allied drive from those areas north to the coast would split the Axis troops and perhaps clear them forever out of Africa—a known Allied objective since the battle is being centered necessity before an invasion of Europe is undertaken.

This threat, however, has been overshadowed by the persistent Axis theme that French West and North Africa offer the best possible avenues for Allied attack on the rear of Rommel's forces and his main base at Tripoli adjoining French Tunisia.

While the French speculate a lot about Dakar, they also talk of Casablanca, which is less than 100 miles south of Gibraltar. Women and children have been removed from Dakar "to permit us to rester with all our means of defence," says Pierre Boisson, governor of Dakar. Casablanca is ready for any attack, says the political opportunist, Admiral Jean Darlan, commander of French, naval and air forces, who just made a fast and well-publicized tour of inspection in Africa.

All this whistling in the dark by Vichy followed reports of United States troop landings in French Equatorial Africa and Liberia, south of Dakar, ship manoeuvrings off the African coast, and British landing exercises at Gibraltar. German submarine packs also are known to have shifted their major hunting grounds from the Caribbean to the West African coast.

Meanwhile the British army in Egypt continues to punch sporadically at Rommel's line, and otherwise mark time as if waiting for something.

This something apparently is one of several undivulged factors. The British commander may be feeling his way through the Axis minefields, or it may be that the course of the battle is being controlled by impending events outside the immediate Egyptian picture.

SOLDIERS GIVE UP TURKEY

London, Nov. 3 —(CP)— United States soldiers in Britain will give up Turkey on Thanksgiving day so that the wounded and ill in British hospitals may enjoy it. Thousands of pounds of American turkeys shipped here for the troops will be sent instead to hospitals and soldiers will eat ordinary fare, perhaps including chicken.

GIVEN ACCLAMATION

Edmonton, Nov. 3 (CP)—Mayor John Fry of Edmonton was acclaimed by acclamation for a sixth consecutive term yesterday when city clerk and returning officer Alfred Russell declared nominations closed with only their names contesting the mayoralty.

R.C.A.F. Warns Against Fake Telephone Calls

Ottawa, Nov. 3 —(CP)— R.C.A.F. headquarters today branded as "a particular contemptible form of fifth-column work" the action of anonymous persons in telephoning parents and wives of men on active service overseas to say that their relatives have become casualties.

"The calls are always anonymous, the informant invariably hanging up after delivering the message," the statement said.

"The R.C.A.F. never provides news of casualties to next of kin by telephone. The procedure is to furnish notification by telegraph. Any person receiving a telephone message giving notification of a casualty is requested to call the telephone operator at once in an effort to trace the number and origin of the call."

REMANDED ONE WEEK

Port Hope, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP) — George Clem and Steve Savage of Oshawa were remanded one week for trial when they appeared in police court today on a charge of stealing a safe containing $1,200 from a Port Hope store Sunday morning. The men were arrested in Oshawa last night.

The safe had been abandoned after the robbery and no attempt had been made to open it.

ORGAN PIPES

An organ "stop" is not a toy, but a rank of pipes, each pipe sounding one note.

Tailor Charged With Making Pre-Wartime Suit

Toronto, Nov. 3 —(CP)— For the first time since the regulations were announced a summons has been issued against a Bathurst tailor and his client for contravention of the regulations barring pleats, cuffs, flaps and double-breasted jackets in men's clothing. Edward Carroll is charged with edmunelling and procuring William Miller to make double-breasted suits with cuffs on the trousers and Miller is charged with making contrary to pre-wartime suits. The case will be heard Nov. 6.

LIGHTS OUT FOR DURATION

London, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—Lights in rural barnyards are set for the duration, R. E. Hughes, superintendent of the Rural Hydro Office here, warns farmers. He said some farmers have been in the habit of leaving outside lights burning all night.

QUENTIN REYNOLDS

"An artillerman was on the operating table waiting", recounts Quentin Reynolds—"and he was smiling gently . . ."

"They brought in a huge infantryman. I caught his eye and grinned, and he grinned back . . ."

"I left when they brought two women in who had been hurt in the bombing of the home for the aged. Both were very old, but neither said anything. The wounded don't cry, not even the civilian wounded."

No, the wounded—the dispossessed—the people of European lands who have been overwhelmed by the murderous terror of Nazi invasion—the men, women and children who have gone through the shrieking hell of bombing raids that have blown their homes to rubble . . . they don't cry. Should we even hesitate at the temporary giving up of our money? Even though it means doing without many things we think we need? Even though it means denying to ourselves many things we'd like to do—pleasures we'd like to enjoy—things we've wanted to get for years? Deep down you know the answer. ## Mrs. Roosevelt Visits U.S. Troops In South England

In Southern England, Nov. 3 — (CP) — After spending the night with Queen Mother Elizabeth, Mrs. Roosevelt inspected a unit of United States parachute troops at their base here Monday.

She rolled into the reservation in the Embassy car and greeted the soldiers who quickly shouted their recognition of her.

She dined at the Queen Mother's chateau in the South of England last night. Other overnight guests included the Princess Royal, Queen Mary's daughter, and the Duke and Duchess of Beaufort, the latter Queen Mary's niece.

Following breakfast—at which she refused an egg, an almost unheard of treat in Britain now — Mrs. Roosevelt went out early to review the Royal Air Force parachutists and to look over their complicated equipment.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she found Queen Mary "very much alive" to what is going here and in America.

Told that the President was interested in reforestation, the Queen Mother promptly became the bride of Ernest James Thain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Thain of Seward, Saskatchewan. Rev. J. R. Bick officiated.

Pleated Frock For Winter

Although the amount of material being used in the manufacture of Autumn fashions has been reduced by order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it is still possible to purchase pleated frocks. The grey wool model pictured above has been modified so that 132 dresses can now be manufactured out of fabric formerly required for 100, but enough fullness has been left to insure plenty of "sitting room" and to avoid any appearance of skimpiness.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sister's Fiance Quarrels With Her Family

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are a family of four—mother and three daughters. The oldest is to be married in November, and the next one, in the Spring.

About two years ago, mother rented a room to my oldest sister's fiance and since then there has been constant bickering. My intended brother-in-law finds fault with everything done around the house and is always trying to tell us what to do.

Mother has come to the conclusion that it would be best to give up the house to them when they marry and let them run it as they please. We are to take an apartment. I can't see the sense of that. Why should we give up what mother worked hard to get? The house has been painted and refurnished. We're at our wits' end and feel that you can give us good advice.

It doesn't seem fair to your mother to give up something she treasures. The right thing would be for your sister to suggest that she and her husband-to-be take an apartment and leave the house to you. Couldn't you put it to her in a diplomatic way?

However, if your mother decides to allow them to stay, they should be willing to pay rent and keep up repairs on the house. This would give you an income on which to rent an apartment. Perhaps your mother feels she would welcome a change from a large house to an apartment, for a while at least.

Safety in Numbers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old and have gone with a young man for two years. He's 21 years old and is now in the Army. I am as much in love with him as he is with me. He's with me. My parents approve of him also. I've had heard before he left he had been taking out two other girls, much older than he is.

Unhappy.

Since you aren't really engaged, there is no reason why he can't go with whomever you please. Now that he's in the Army, you have a good chance to get some of those "advantages" the other girls have. When he comes back you'll be ahead of the older ones because he loves you.

Perhaps your boy friend thought there was safety in numbers, so he took out other girls. My advice would be to be interested in something else. When school activities do not require your full time, go over to the Red Cross Rooms or U.S.O. They are always looking for helpers, especially junior helpers. Write letters to your boy friend to help him cheerful.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Even if Invitation is From Dear Friend, Answer Engagement is Necessary.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I have just received a formal (engraved) invitation to the wedding of the daughter of a dear friend of ours. The large sheet is an invitation to the church ceremony, and there was a small card of invitation to the reception.

Should this invitation be acknowledged, since it is from such a close friend of ours, and since she knows that we will attend the wedding? If we should reply, what is the proper form?

—Wondering.

Yes, the invitation should be acknowledged; that is the invitation to the reception. It is not necessary to reply to the invitation to the church ceremony.

Since the invitation is formal, your reply should be made in them friend, must also be formal, in the third person. Write your reply on the first page of double-sheeted letter-paper of good quality. Write in the centre of the sheet, with even margins on all sides.

This is the form for your acceptance:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson accept with pleasure

Mr. and Mrs. John Clark's kind invitation for Tuesday the first of December.

Receiving Birthday Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a birthday party next month for my little daughter. When the children hand me their birthday presents, should she open them at once and thank them, or wait until all the guests have arrived?

Your little daughter should say "Thank you" as each gift is handed to her, open it at once, and then say nothing further about it. (And being sure that a child will say enthusiastic things about a gift she doesn't feel especially enthusiastic about takes some wise preliminary training.)

Christening at Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our baby is to be christened in our home on a Sunday afternoon soon, and we would like to invite quite a few friends. How should I invite them?

—Mother.

You may telephone the invitations, or give them verbally, or write friendly little notes, worded somewhat like this:

Dear Katherine,

The baby is to be christened in our home on Sunday, December sixth at four o'clock, and Bob and I will be so happy if you and Tom will come. Do say "Yes."

Affectionately,

—Mary.

Guest of Honor Meets Everyone

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When there is a guest of honor at a very large affair, is it necessary to introduce everyone to the guest of honor?

—M. K.

Yes. Not to introduce a guest is impolite both to the guest of honor and to the guest.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

President, Chicago Board of Health.

War Workers Benefit From In-Between Meal Snack

Let us make no mistake about it. Our production and efficiency in the war effort may be lessened if workers do not eat an adequate diet. Workers who do not obtain the foods necessary to health are predisposed to fatigue and sickness, workers suffer, among other things, from unnatural tiredness and lack of pep. Thus, much time and needless loss of effort may be lost.

Dr. William A. Sawyer of Rochester, N.Y., says that, as a rule, workers have a fairly good breakfast and a good dinner, but often their noon meal is poor. Coffee and tins they do not get all of the vitamins and minerals they need.

In many industries, it is suggested that vitamins and mineral preparations be given to employes who have frequent colds and sore throat or who have indigestion or overweight, or who work overtime or are under great physical and nervous strain. According to Dr. Sawyer, when these supplements are given, the employees report that they are less fatigued, have more energy, better appetite, and fewer colds.

Most persons at one time or another have suffered the drowsy feeling in the middle of the morning or afternoon and they have found that the tasting of some nourishing drink relieves the sensation.

With work in industry now going at high speed, tired nerves, aching heads and weariness are common. Anything that will overcome these conditions and help to keep workers fresh, energetic and the in-between-meal feeding will aid in doing this. A glass of cool fruit juice, a sandwich; milk, or in cold weather, hot chocolate or soup—any of these is suitable for in-between feeding.

Studies have shown that the average person finds it beneficial to eat between meals when he is engaged in hard work. The in-between-meal brings a feeling of well-being and relieves tiredness. It has been shown that workers produce more work when they have this in-between-meal snack.

Some employers may object to this in-between-meal feeding because they think it takes up valuable time; they do not understand the importance. However, a cart of hot and cold beverages may be rolled around through the work shops. In this way a great deal of good may be accomplished with very little expenditure of time.

Thus, to help improve the well-being of industrial workers, and to aid in warding off fatigue, vitamin and mineral supplements may be used under the directions of a physician who has studied the worker's needs and the in-between-meal feedings certainly can also be helpful to health.

Bank of Montreal Marks 125 Years of Continuous And Successful Operation

Founded Nov. 3rd., 1817, Bank Has Impressive Record as Canada Has Grown

Office in Belleville Will Be Celebrating Its Centenary In Year 1943

Canada's oldest banking institution—the Bank of Montreal today November 3, observes the completion of a century and a quarter of continuous and successful operation.

Founded on November 3, 1817, half a century before Confederation, at a time when Canada was but a few scattered, sparsely-settled colonies, the bank gave the Canadian people their first organized system of finance. It was responsible for the issue of the country's first real money, and it established Canada's first modern banking system—a financial system which has for many years received international praise for its stability and elasticity, particularly during the trying times of the last decade.

In observing its 125th anniversary, the Bank of Montreal can look back upon an impressive record: on every banking day for a century and a quarter, through good times and bad, through peace and war, its doors have never failed to open for the transaction of business.

Primitive Conditions

When the Bank of Montreal came into being a century and a quarter ago, life in Canada was a rather primitive affair. In those days travel was by stage-coach and carcart, by canoe and sail-boat. Communication was created the ocean and the voyage by sailing-ship across the Atlantic, even under favourable conditions, often took three months to accomplish. There were no railways, and electricity and the telegraph were unknown.

In 1817, Canada as such did not exist. Indeed it was not until 50 years later that Confederation was achieved and nearly 26 before the union was effected of Upper and Lower Canada as Ontario and Quebec were then known. The country consisted of a few thinly-settled colonies whose population totalled considerably less than 400,000. Montreal the chief trading centre had a population of less than 20,000.

At that time, Canada had no currency of its own. The colonies were much too poor to afford such a luxury, and not only American, British and French, but Spanish and Portugese money was in circulation. Naturally, the ratios of exchange into colonial money of account were subject to frequent variations, and as a consequence, domestic trade was carried on principally by barter, and international business was on a very unsatisfactory basis.

Helped Organize Trading

It was in an endeavour to overcome these chaotic conditions that nine Montreal merchants banded themselves together to establish the Bank of Montreal. The bank was organized on June 22, 1817, and opened for business on the following November 3. The young bank immediately set about the task of giving some semblance of organization to the financial life of the country, and its first task was the issue of paper currency—that is the bank's own bills in small denominations—and later, copper coins. Specimens of this currency —which was in reality the first Canadian money—are preserved in the bank's museum in Montreal.

Besides providing a medium of exchange such as had hitherto need lacking, the bank nursed along the early enterprises of the country and did much to straighten out the difficulties of international as well as interior trading.

The First Branch Bank

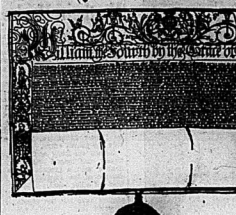
In the achievement of this, one of the most important factors was the creation of the bank's branch system, which was a part of the bank's policy from the inception. The bank found itself in modest rented premises only two weeks after it opened an agency at Quebec city which six months later became known as an "Office of Discount and Deposit". In June of 1818, agencies were appointed in Upper Canada at Kingston, which was then important as a garrison town, and at York, as Toronto was then known, which, with a population of 1,000, was an outpost for lumbering and the fur trade—industries which formed the only basis of the export business of the country.

Thus it was everywhere through out the country. As the years went on and settlement spread out, the bank opened branches to facilitate the agricultural development of the country, its manufacturing industries and its general commerce.



Since then, wherever there was the bank's officers travelled from branch to branch "at first safe opportunity", as they still do to-day in the modern times of 1942, when travel by train and airplane has made journeys a matter of hours when formerly they occupied several days the history of the Bank of Montreal demonstrates the pioneering spirit of Canada's bankers.

Today the bank has hundreds of branches throughout Canada and Newfoundland and its own offices in London, New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The size of its capital and reserves at $75,000,000 today stands in sharp contrast to the corresponding figure of a century and a quarter ago, when the bank began business with a capital of $350,000. Perhaps a more graphic indication of the bank's growth and the assistance it has rendered toward the development of the country is the fact that it now has more than a million deposit accounts—about one in every four in the Dominion.

Bank's Special War-Time Services

At the time of the bank's 100th anniversary in 1917, Canada was at war. Today, as the bank passes its 125th milestone, Canada is again at war. Under the stress of such conditions, the institution with its resources, its 125 years' experience and its nationwide system of branches, is playing its part in the nation's war effort, just as it did 25 years ago; in hundreds of communities great and small, the bank is working with Canadian industry and agriculture by furnishing credit and the many essential banking and financial services. Further, it is aiding the government by promoting victory loan campaigns, by the sale of war saving stamps and certificates and in other war activities.

ROYAL CHARTER OF CANADA'S OLDEST BANK

The Royal Charter of the Bank of Montreal was granted by His Majesty King William IV. Preserved in the Bank's museum, the original charter is a parchment document of five pages, measuring 26" x 28" each. As pictured here, the four top pages are folded down to disclose the Great Seal, which, each of was weighing nearly a pound, is attached to the document by a silk cord and enclosed in a metal box to prevent injury.

FIRST REAL CANADIAN MONEY

Canada's first dollar bills were issued by the Bank of Montreal which began business in 1817. Up to that time, only foreign currencies were in circulation in Canada, and as the country had no money of its own, most domestic business was done by barter.

The illustration on the $2 bill is believed to represent one of the steamboats, belonging to the Honourable John Molson, that plied on the St. Lawrence at the time. Mr. Molson, who was the most outstanding merchant and industrialist in the early part of the nineteenth century, was president of the Bank of Montreal from 1836 to 1834.

ALLIED TANKS

The size of the tank fighting was not announced, but in an earlier communique Cairo said an Axis desert south of the coastal railroad on which Rommel's army wedged some 18 miles west of El Alamein is virtually level and that the Axis left flank of the Axis line from the Qattara depression to the sea.

The Attackers Report

Ripping apart of Axis antitank defenses, artillery and artillery emplacements to make pathways for the tanks into which the British 8th Army poured scores were started the night of Oct. 23.

There was no immediate indication of the trend of this clash of armored vehicles, but a Berlin broadcast reaching upon the engagement asserted the impression prevailed the British commander was trying to force a decision.

The R.A.F. and its allies, flying fighters, light and medium bombers, maintained attacks upon enemy positions in the battle area, striking at Axis airdromes and communications of men and machines.

Fighter aircraft gave protection to our ground forces, driving off attempted interference by enemy aircraft," the communique said.

Against the Axis, Britain and the over North Afric- and Malta, the British communique said in 13 days of the battle destroyed, but in addition to these losses in aerial combat the Axis airforce was deprived of seven left in flames and others damaged in a raid on an airfield.

Two Axis Destroyers Hit

Bombers scored direct hits on two Axis destroyers in the Mediterranean west of Crete and fired a medium-sized merchant vessel and the R.A.F. sank one in an attack on a convoy northwest of Benghazi. It was announced.

The Littoral pocket was under heavy fire from field guns, antitank guns, mortars, machine-guns and rockets from the desert front said. Australians were astride the coast-road and railroad at the tip of the wedge.

London observers said the vanguard now was 18 miles west of El Alamein, indicating a steady lengthening of the penetration.

AMERICA'S AIR

At the outset of the war, controversy raged over the respective merits of liquid and air-cooled motors. The army didn't take long to decide that all the types it needed but that they were equally effective.

Among the principal power plants being installed today, the Allison liquid-cooled motor as well as the Pratt & Whitney and Wright air-cooled types developing more than 3,000 horsepower each. One of the most powerful engines now known in any enemy aircraft is the super-charged, two-stage motor in Germany's Focke-Wulf 190 fighting rates 1,580 horsepower. The Japanese Zero has a 900-horsepower rating.

It is generally may be said that American fighters, with the P-51 and P-38 leading the field—except—now are being equipped with liquid-cooled motors of both American and British (Merlin) manufacture. Plans for the bombers are air-cooled.

Catch Up With Axis

As regards the armor and fire power, the equipment of army planes has caught up with and passed the best that any Axis plane has. Besides, British manufacturers have turned out a number of fighter-bombers designed especially for short-range night bombardment. Some carry bigger loads than any United States plane now in action but engineers believe nothing that any country has yet developed compares with the four-hundred Fortresses and Liberators in the combination of range, bomb load, and defensive armament.

It is no exaggeration to say, at this writing, that the Army Air Force Command is vastly encouraged by the performances, performances of these heavy bombers at three major battle areas — Australia, the Middle East and Western Europe It considers that the weight of American air power has been built sufficiently to justify expectations that it may, come 1943, turn the tide definitely in favor of the Allies.

Stagger Imagination

Formidable as are these augurs of the air today their models for tomorrow stagger the imagination. Apart from the military secrets of still greater range and bomb-carrying capacity, it may be revealed that the Army Air Forces and Liberators—basically following the same design—will have increased fire power and heavier protective armament. It will be possible by flying at still higher altitudes to avoid anti-aircraft defences, and more powerful motors.

But what about the broad outlines of the war in the air and how do the Allies plan to win it?

Early this year, the United States Congress approved army appropriations covering the construction of approximately 150,000 planes within a two-year period extending to the spring of 1944, flying the ratio of combat planes to trainers at about 3 to 1, which means that the offensive program of the army air force is geared now to the output requested by President Roosevelt in fighters and bombers. It is believed the present rate of production, on the whole is up to these figures and, in some respects, beyed expectations.

Depends Upon Time

British and Allied chiefs know the war's triumphant end can be immeasurably hastened by operations based upon maintaining 1,000 planes in action by day and the same number by night. That means that the offensive program of the army air force is geared now to the output requested by President Roosevelt in fighters and bombers. It is believed the present rate of production, on the whole is up to these, figures and, in some respects, beyond expectations.

NAZIS CAPTURE

repulses of two attacks. Red Army troops were forced to fall back toward the snow-shrouded mountains from Nalchik, the Russians said.

Red Star said the two German-led tank divisions striking southeastward from Nalchik were the 13th and 23rd, which were previously reported checked in the fighting about Mozdok, 30 miles to the northeast.

Seamen Ordered In

(Russian dispatches did not explain why the Germans would order seamen into fighting south of Nalchik, more than 100 miles from the Black Sea, but the Nazi High Command obviously wishes to use all the manpower available in hopes of a break-through before the snows deepen.)

The battle now is reported raging across the rich fields, low mountains and swift rivers of the Little Kabadino-Balkaria Autonomous Republic. The Nazi drive was directed definitely to be conquest of Ordzhonikidze, terminal of the Georgian military highway which leads to Tiflis.

Hammer Soviet Forces

Nazi armored and aerial concentrations hammered Soviet forces farther back toward the snow-clogged passes of Rommel's highest mountains yesterday with their end play against Trevk Valley defences, that had held for two months.

The midnight communique announced the fall of Nalchik, located the fighting southeast of that upland resort which is itself 50 miles southwest of Mozdok, and then reported yet another withdrawal of the outnumbered Russians.

"On one sector the enemy attacked with more than 100 tanks, accompanied by automatic riflemen and supported by 70 planes," it said. "Our garrison disabled 11 German tanks."

Estimated 18,000 Nazis Killed

At the same time Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, estimated that 18,000 Germans had been killed, wounded or captured since mid-October during their vain attempt to break through the Mozdok region, an offensive preceded by the flanking drive toward the Grozny oil fields and the Caucasus military highways.

Sixteen German planes were declared shot down in the Stalingrad and northwest of that stirred city.

Red Army scouts were credited with blowing up three ammunition trucks, two fuel transports and a truck-mounted anti-aircraft gun in a raid on a column behind the Nazi lines.

Russian airmen were reported to have sunk an Axis patrol ship, damaged a transport, dogfight into tanks, destroyed 150 trucks and silenced six batteries in operations Sunday.

St. Mikes Held to 5-5 Draw By Albert College But Win COSSA Title For Second Time

Albert Scores Touch in First Half and Irish Duplicate in Second

MANY FUMBLES

CHAMPIONS—
And runners-up.

St. Michael's Academy gridders tacked their second consecutive flag on Quinte COSSA Interscholastic pennant to the mainstay of coming from behind with a third touchdown to tie Albert College at 5-5 in the final scheduled game in the district junior six-man football campaign. In tying Albert on the latter's campus yesterday, the "green tide" remained unbefeated throughout—the 1942 grid campaign, finishing the season with three wins and yesterday's draw decision, that could well have been described as Coach Doran's favory, however.

During the 1942 campaign concluded yesterday, the St. Mikes "Irish" side had their goal line crossed twice during the entire season and on both occasions it was Paul Goyette's Albert kids that turned the trick. In their quarter-ly of games the Albert College club "Irish" scored an aggregate count of 77 points, as against 13 scored against them and for the second year in succession are Bay of Quinte' COSSA champions. Albert College finished second and the luckless Belleville Collegiate in the cellar position without the remembrance of a 1941 victory in their credit.

The new champions trailed in the score for the first time this season when Albert opened the scoring with a second period touchdown, but the fleet-footed Bob Wilson evened matters early in the third stanza and as neither converted a last quarter scoreless period saw the teams deadlocked at full time, but St. Mikes champions.

No Scoring in First Period

There was no scoring in the initial period as the home scribble held the speedier Irish on a muddy field. Early in the second canto Albert College uncorked a prolific aerial attack that caught the "green and white" flat-footed, when Alcard pitched to Ron Brewer and Waite fired to MacRae in quick succession, almost plunged to St. Mikes' eleven and Waite skirted right end for an unconverted touchdown. Bob Temple put the Irish back in the picture as he leaped high to intercept a pass as Albert went to the air again. However, the Albert gang left Albert in the driver's seat 5 to 0.

Wilson was sent in to open the second half before St. Mikes broke through to block a punt. Gord Donovan gaining possession and racing to Albert's nine before downed by MacRae. Wilson intercepted an Irish pass on Albert's goal line and Carr booted out of trouble. Wilson then swung into action for the pay-off as he raced around last end for 17 yards and on a subsequent extended run around the opposite side, "Little Jackie" Wardaugh launched a snap lateral to Wilson, who was in the clear for the tying touchdown, at 5-5.

Repeated Fumbling

Over-confidence on the part of both squads in the last stanza to gain at least one point and victory resulted in repeated fumbling, before Don Barrett made a shoestring catch as he intercepted an Albert pass, but owing to players blocking his view, Referee "Red" Townsend was unable to observe the catch and called the play back. Wilson and Bunton worked the oval to Albert's ten just before the final gun.

The line-ups:

Albert College—Alcard and Orr, halves; Waite, quarter; MacRae, sngr. B. Benner and McCullough, wings; D. Benner, McLeod, Bolton and MacDonald.

St. Michael's Academy—Wilson and Bunton, halves; Wardaugh, quarter; Adams, sngr; Temple and Barrett, wings and Thomas, Donovan and Mosher.

Referee—"Red" Townsend.

MAJORS PICK UP TWENTY PLAYERS IN THE DRAFT

Many Old Players With Family Status Seem to be in Demand

RICKEY PRESENT

Chicago, Nov. 3—(AP)—The major leagues, having completed Tuesday's finish their claiming of baseball players, already have picked up 20 men in the major league and family status, in the biggest draft since 1920.

Eighteen officials representing 11 of the 16 major clubs answered the roll call yesterday by commissioner K. M. Landis' office, spending $120,000 for the material. Fifteen of the score of players called up from the Minor leagues formerly played in the majors.

The Boston Braves, Detroit, New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees refrained from making any acquisitions. The Chicago White Sox and Washington Senators each claimed three players, Philadelphia and the two and some at one. The White Sox picked off three club men, also hopping the meeting's expenditures with $25,500.

Branch Rickey, founder of the Cardinals' vast farm system and recently became president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, claimed only one player, catcher Dee C. Moore of Arkansas who batted .306 last season.

Rickey Keeps Mum

Rickey kept mum regarding information on the Dodger management for 1943, leaving several rumors in his wake when he departed. He intends to confer with Manager Leo Durocher soon, supposedly to determine whether Durocher is going to abandon baseball for the duration.

Rumors persisted after the meeting that Durocher will not be retained. Mentioned as a leading candidate was Pepper Martin, who coached at getting managerial schooling at the Cardinals' Sacramento farm. Others mentioned as possible managerial candidates were Billy Southon, Cleveland coach, and Ray Blades, who recently resigned as assistant to Bill Killefer at Cincinnati.

Among the older players snatched up in yesterday's draft was Dick Barrett, a pitcher in his late 30's, by the Chicago Cubs. He left the Philadelphia Athletics in 1933 for Seattle, where he spent seven years before dropping 20 victories each campaign.

Corporal Rolls Perfect Score

...nnipeg, Nov. 3. (CP)—Corporal B. F. Turner of Fort William, Ont., rolled the first perfect game in No. 3 Wireless School of the R.C.A.F. here, entered the Bowlers Hall of Fame when he trundled the perfect score of 400 during the school's five-pin league play here last night.

It was the first perfect game reported in Winnipeg this season. Tony Chilard rolled a perfect score during the Winnipeg five-pin bowling associations' annual tournament last Spring.

Turner's three-game score was 741, including games of 131, 160 and his perfect 400 score.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP)—Enlistment of so many of the younger hockey players in Canada's armed forces is giving the old-timers an extra year or two, maybe more, on the steel blades. Dozens of puck veterans, fellows who know all the hockey answers after years of baptismal fire company and who are anxious to remain in the sport at all costs, are creaking joints will let them, are winning team positions which ordinarily would go to vigorous youngsters.

Take, for example, the veteran Coley Hall has working on his Vancouver Lions. Coley's age is up in the air but he's been playing hockey since 1924 and he's still good enough to make the grade. Hall's player candidates include Porky Levine, Percy Jackson, Sam McAdam, Lode Palin, Ralph Blyth, Bill Hutton, Jack Riley and Lulu Lennon and the average professional experience of these eight men is 12 years.

It's 15 years since goalie Levine, former Flin Flon, Que., junior, turned pro with Detroit, thirteen years ago McAdam ended a sensational career as a Winnipeg Elmwood forward for a salary with Vancouver Lions. Each of these chaps is 34, old for an active athlete in this game, but young enough to make good use of their long experience.

It will be interesting to watch the successes and disappointments of the old-timers matching the wisdom gained in the toughest hockey company in the world against the speed and condition of their younger rivals.

Many veterans of the minor professional leagues are with semi-pro teams in Ontario, including Johnny Hourregs, Dave Gilhooly, Pave Ezinicki, Frank Daley, Hal Foster, Les Whittles, Millard Wakeford and Cam Proudfoot.

None of these lads attracted major league managers sufficiently to hold National League berths although several were given brief trials. But they've kept on hitching and could, or still can, play hockey. They'll help keep the great winter game alive and thrivin' until the Toronto Argonauts come home from the wars to pick up the ball.

October Sports Overseas

By "Pete" Beach

Wellington's name will forever be associated with Waterloo... and I think the Fifth Divisions name will also always be associated with Aldershot ... for it certainly pulled a big surprise at the Army Track and Field championships, when they won practically all the track events, and took off the team trophy from the reluctant hands of the Canadian Division boys who figured that they had had to go through the motions to retain it. The Fifth had worked hard for months to get the men, and Norman Long, formerly of West End had the boys in training at a special camp where the finest athletic and military training went hand in hand. Long is the C.A.C.A. coach visor with them.

The year's softball championship for the Army overseas, has gone for the first time to a Reinforcement Unit team ... the R.C.O.W.W.C., and they worked hard for it... playing their games, practicing, organization, and Army play-downs to grab the honors from the crack 4th Division in the finals and came out on top in two straight games. Sgt. F. Stewart of Kitchener, was the manager-coach of the team and is Padre of the unit. He brought them up his softball. Earl Diehl of Toronto was the Club Sports Officer who was with the gang.

Second Division took the Army volleyball championship which was played for the first time this year ... the Volleyball Played was so good as I've seen in the senior leagues around Canada, and the players certainly as enthusiastic.

It looks as though there will be a fair amount of hockey again this year, the C.A.C.A. has secured four rinks, two for the R.C.A.F. and two for the use of the Army. They open on November the first. Dan Strain who is the Army Sports Secretary is establishing his office in one and will direct operations there, while Don Burton, formerly of the Active Club of London, Ontario will have his office in the other, and carry on the activities of the rink along with his duties as Sports Officer of the Canadian Army Overseas. It looks as though there will be a month earlier for the start this year, more teams should get into play, and last year's figure of over two hundred teams should be passed.

Soccer, boxing and cross country running are also to be carried on as usual, and it looks as if the last named will be a regular part of army training as well as part of the recreational program.

Basketball is also in the cards, though one is amazed at the number of outstanding athletes one sometimes comes across in a small space of time. Just the other day, Boyce Stark, George Willis of Western football fame, were eating at the next table to me, unable to obtain a seat. Football fame, while Wyllock of Hamilton Tigers, Jimmy Gale, ex Capt. Jim Whyte of the C.A.H.A. were not far away. Where so many outstanding athletes certainly seem to be doing their share towards winning the war, Gunner Johnny Whitlaker, and Bill Zwener in the Dieppe Honour Raid, certainly did their sum towards certainly well represented.....Hamilton Tigers and Montagnes.....sure did themselves proud.)

Units are getting settled away in winter quarters, and this means a lot of moving around for our men, and lots of arranging and re-arranging, but the Y.M.C.A. service goes on, and is always in the needs of the moment. It actually is rather interesting life.....for you never know just what the day will bring forth.

We're trying to plan well ahead for our Christmas programs, we want to make things a little different for the boys, and co-operation from these at home can be extended. If all the mail is doubled up.....that will go a long way towards making all happy very happy.

4 Teams Compose Northern Hockey

"Timmins, Nov. 3. — Four teams are expected to participate in the Timmins District Senior Hockey League during the 1942-43 season as result of decision reached at a general meeting last night.

Constitution passed by the meeting called for the league to operate on a four-team basis as in the past.

Norman Gee, Rome Mine head already signified that it will not be represented. It is expected that the Timmins Canadiens, a club directed by Father Brouillard, will constitute the fourth entry.

Games will likely be played twice weekly and league officials are dealing with a proposal for a re-duction of the admission fee from that of other years.

Although a great many hockey players have left the district, it is expected that there are still enough here to form four comparatively strong teams. Each mine has about four or five players left from last season. Those along with the veterans in the district still available are expected to constitute clubs as strong as those seen in action here in other years.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

ST. MIKES "IRISH" in opening 1942 Bay of Quinte football season by repeating as winners of the Bay of Quinte COSSA championship yesterday. Yesterday Jack Doran's crew invaded the Albert College campus for their final game of the group campaign and for the first time this season the green and white-clad Irish were extended. So-much-so that the best they could eke out was a 5 to 5 draw and then the men-of-Doran had to come from behind for that the first time this year. However, it must be admitted that there was none of that "Luck of the Irish" connected with yesterday's verdict, that made St. Mikes repeaters in district Interscholastic grid circles. The breaks weren't just coming their way, or else skipper Jim's speedy squad might have won and finished the season undefeated and untied. Incidentally when Jeff Waite crossed the Irishmen goal line for a second period touchdown it was only the second time this season a St. Mikes' goal line has been entered against the 1941-42 champions.

THE ALBERT CAMPUS WAS dreary, making football impossible, certain, as cleated football shoes are not included in air-mail footwear. Every. Albert went to the air to place the ball in position for the kicks and Albert College touchdown, while in retaliation the Irish knotting of the count was to be expected. The stocky Irish speedster, whose two end runs around the coast in revealed all and streaked down the abbreviated field. Certainly play was treacherous, the ball was wet and fumbles were too prevalent. Recent-ly suggested two 7-minute halves used in these important Interscholastic games and yesterday's tilt was that upheld. Don Barrett made a shoe-string catch to intercept an Albert pass, but in the maze of players, Referee Townsend, who had to watch line play, interference, et al, had his vision blocked and was unable to see the catch. Fine, speedy abbreviated games need two officials, and more for tomorrow's Albert-Collegiate game without saying.

TWO WEEKS AGO WRESTLING patrons at the Hume Arena were treated to a full hour of scientific grappling when Jack Donovan and "Whipper Billie" Watson, as the principals, fought the minute route these two super-beings bent muscles for the full hour and a half last week without a decision. After a great advantage, although both managed to get a decision before the time limit expired. However, Wednesday night's all-star all-Canadian program as Pedro Martinez, one of the rougher style grapplers, clash with the popular Watson in the main event. Fans will doubtless grab the local sports page for the no other reason than hopes in their heart for a thumping for the Latin Township favourite over the disliked Martinez. Local fans use to dislike Jerry Monroe, the former masked wrestler, but now they claim "Irish Jerry" as a favourite, alongside the hatred Martinez. Fur-ther added flavor Pedro Martinez is bringing to town "Portland Pat" Fraley, a newcomer to Canadian wrestling circles. Fraley is a protege of Strois, the Flying Fireman, Fraley is another rough ring customer from Oregon.

Nothing to Show American Voters Will Shift

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Under shelter of the valor of a million or more fighting men it has already sent to far fronts afloat, ashore and in the air, the American electorate goes to the polls today to keep faith anew with the pledge that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

Millions of Americans will exercise the privilege of the vote. They will say their own say as to who shall constitute a new war Congress in Washington. They will pick and choose among candidates for Governor and legislatures in many States and name a host of lesser office holders in cities, counties, villages and townships.

The only modern parallel for an American by-election in wartime came during the first Great War in 1918. That first Tuesday after the first Monday in November saw control of the House of Representatives pass from the ruling Democratic Party to the Republicans. That could again happen, although there is little to suggest it.

Hopeful Indications.

On that 1918 election day, however, the war scene abroad was far different from that forming the background of this national polling. Allied-American victory was then assured. The armistice would end hostilities before the election results were fully canvassed. The Central Powers were crumbling internally. Voters' thoughts were more of peace than war as they went to the polls.

This election day comes with hopeful indication for the United Nations on many fronts; but nothing yet to warrant belief that victory is just around the corner.

Japan has been dealt a hard but not decisive blow in the Solomons. The attrition score at sea and in air against her is mounting; but she still holds firm sway over all the China Sea, over Burma and much of China and gravely threatens both Russia and Australia. Her defeat in the Solomons is obviously only to be regarded as a first-round victory, heartening but inconclusive.

No Clear-Cut Portents.

In Africa, British power with ever-widening American help is again on the march. There also only the first bloody round is yet being fought. Axis forces still are perilously close to the British stronghold, Alexandria and must yet be crushed.

Russia's gallant stand at Stalingrad and in the Caucasus is bleeding Nazi reserve power as is the Anglo-American air attack from the west. There is at least a hint that both in Africa and in Russia lack of oil is beginning to cramp the Axis war machine; but it is no more than a hint.

There are no clear-cut portents of early victory anywhere this wartime election day to react on the home political front; nor anything to suggest that American voters think so. But there is every intimation of public preparedness for a war of any duration and of grim insistence that no effort be spared to push on to victory.

The Canadian Press History Reviewed By General Manager

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 3—(CP) — The Canadian Press was established on a new peak of prestige and supremacy in its field as it celebrated its 25th anniversary in September, J. A. McNeil, CP General Manager, said in an address to the Rotary Club here today in which he reviewed the history of Canada's national newsgathering co-operative.

"The Dieppe raid on Aug. 19, in which Canada's soldiers again showed their heroism, also provided an opportunity to which Ross Munro of the Canadian Press rose magnificently in an epic series of dispatches which have placed him in the front rank of war correspondents," Mr. McNeil said.

Munro's address later in the home cities of seven Dieppe units had earned him the gratitude of tens of thousands of relatives and friends of the Dieppe heroes and had "an incalculable effect in fostering enthusiasm for the war effort."

Mr. McNeil said Munro is now back on duty with the Canadian army "eager to record the still greater achievements for which Canada looks to its forces overseas" and mentioned the "justifiable pride with which the Canadian Press has seen the capsheaf of Munro's feat placed upon its first quarter century."

SUNK TWO MORE

The navy communique on that engagement had reported only one enemy cruiser sunk, plus four destroyers and a transport. Ghormley's report thus added two cruisers and one destroyer to the toll taken of the enemy.

Knox said the additional damage reported by Ghormley was an example of "the ultra conservatism" of the navy in reporting damage to the enemy.

Warned Against Optimism

In warning against optimism springing from the severe damage inflicted on the Japanese fleet in the Solomons, Knox said:

"There is no warrant for the optimism. It is still a bitter, tough fight. They have a fleet of formidable proportions left. We haven't any doubt they'll come back. It is dangerous to assume they won't be back and any assumption that this is all there will be of the operation is unwarranted."

Knox declared he was particularly proud of the navy's submarines, saying that the submarine service generally had "done a particularly amazing and outstanding job."

War of Attrition

"This is primarily a war of attrition," he said, "and there is no arm of the service more important in a war of attrition than the submarines."

Asked about the new assignment to be given Admiral Ghormley, who has been succeeded by Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, Knox said he had told Ghormley that he should get a good rest because he had "been under terrific strain out there."

Meanwhile in the southwest Pacific a drive to squeeze the Japanese out of Guadalcanal appeared underway as marines with strong air support pressed the enemy farther away from the island's airfield.

A Japanese retreat, announced by the navy yesterday, carried the Nipponese back as much as two miles in one sector while Flying Fortresses, dive-bombers and fighter planes blasted and strafed enemy positions throughout the area.

Thus within a week, the fortunes of war had changed the threat of a gathering Japanese naval and land offensive in the Southwestern Pacific to strengthened American domination over the Solomon Islands prize.

The offensive in Guadalcanal, most effective thrust since the Marine invastion and capture of the airport early in August, followed withdrawal of the Japanese fleet from the Solomons battle area after suffering heavy damage in the sea-air melee off the Stewart Islands, Oct. 26.

Subs Sink Seven Ships

The enemy toll was greater yesterday with the navy's announcement that American submarines in the far Pacific had sunk seven Japanese ships and damaged three others in recent raids.

The Japanese retreat on Guadalcanal started Sunday (Solomons time) as a small force of Marines, supported by heavy bombers, crossed the Matanikau River and began taking over new territory to the westward of their original positions.

Bombs and bullets silenced enemy artillery fire and the American casutlities, the navy said, were comparatively few.

Mean, American fliers boosted their bag of enemy planes in the Solomons to 529. Navy fighters destroyed five Japanese planes on the beach at Rekata Bay, strafed buildings and started fires at the invader's base. All the planes returned safely.

Five more fighters brought down four of six enemy fighter planes over Guadalcanal Sunday, without damage to themselves.

Claims Action Entered Disqualifies Alderman

Waterloo, Ont., Nov. 3 —(CP)— Mayor W. D. Brill of Waterloo asserted at a meeting of the Waterloo council last night that Ald. G. S. Raymond was disqualified and could no longer hold his council seat because he had instituted an action against the municipality.

Ald. Raymond was plaintiff in an action seeking to restrain council from presenting to the electorate a bylaw providing for civic taxes to assist the Waterloo band. Council had approved presentation of the bylaw before the mayor's announcement. The vote was 5-4 with the mayor casting the deciding vote.

In announcing the disqualification, Mayor Brill said that the municipal act provides that any member of council is ineligible to retain his seat if he "has any claim, action or proceeding against the corporation."

Ald. Raymond criticized Mayor Brill and Ald. W. McKersie for voting for presentation of the bylaw on the grounds that both are members of the Waterloo Musical Society, Ald. McKersie being president.

British Airmen Were Skeptical Of First Batch of Flying Fortresses

(Written for The Associated Press)
By CLAYTON KNIGHT

London, Nov. 3 —(AP)— When the first batch of Flying Fortresses arrived in Britain from the United States, British airmen took one look at them and said:—

"They look very pretty, but they'll never get back from bombing runs."

United States airmen disagreed and it wasn't until some of the "Forts" participated in the raid on the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst at Brest — and were virtually shot to pieces — that they decided the Britons were right, at least in part, about these huge four-motored battleships of the air.

The Americans didn't give up. They added guns, plenty of guns, until the new "Forts" boasted death-dealing snouts sticking out in every direction.

And then the Flying Fortresses went out again to do battle. I was interested in how they were performing after the new guns had been added, and on my tour of British, Canadian and American air stations in the British Isles, found they now are doing right well.

Perhaps the best illustration of just how good the "Forts" are was brought home to me in the form of a letter from a friend of mine, Col. Frank Armstrong, commanding an American bomber group that has seen plenty of action over Nazi-held territory. It read in part:

"No doubt you have read of our attack last Sunday — It certainly was a 'doozie.' We fought approximately 40 enemy aircraft all the way in and to the target. Their attacks were head-on — nose-to-nose — when the bombing run was being made. Once I was forced to pull straight up to prevent a head-on collision with a Messerschmitt 109. I am delighted to say that not one of my boys was denied. My No. 3 man was hit in three motors, but he managed to stay in long enough to unload — and only then went down. It is estimated that we accounted for 15 Huns. One of my nose gunners set a Hun on fire and he fell just beyond the leading element as it moved over to give him room. He was a beautiful sight."

Significance of Letter

Now the significance of the colonel's letter as regards the performance of the new flying fortresses was this:-

The raid was one of the early ones which the American "forts" made alone—protected by fighters, of course, but aided by no other bombers. Where the colonel said one of the "forts" carried out its mission on only one motor before crashing, he gave a good indication of the way these big bombers can account for themselves.

And where the airman emphasized that the Germans were attacking the "forts" head-on—one Messerschmitt brazenly trying to crash into the colonel's plane—that meant the German fliers had been ordered to bring one of these winged battleships down at any cost so they could see what made it tick.

The Hun did bring two "forts" down in this particular raid, but, althought he probably got a good look at the gun set-up, the chances are he found out nothing about the secret bomb sight which has made the "forts" the champion precision bombers. There are gadgets to take care of their destruction.

Let's take another raid—an earlier one than Armstrong described in his letter, but made by the same "forts" under his command.

This was one that proved the "forts" were revolutionizing day bombardment.

Without the cover of darkness without even friendly pursuit protection, Armstrong's big bomber set out for a daylight raid on occupied France.

They hadn't much more than crossed the channel when they were attacked by 25 enemy fighters.

How did the "forts" perform?

"The Hun paid for that attack," Armstrong told me later, "with three enemy aircraft confirmed and a total of 12 probable aircraft shot down. That makes a total of one entire enemy fighter squadron. And they never had the satisfaction of seeing even one of our aircraft shot down."

RainReducesAttendance At Lions Club Carnival

Trenton, (Special)—November 5 —"Arabian Night," sponsored by the Lions Club of Trenton on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Trenton Arena proved to be an excellent entertainment in every way but unfortunately the weather prevented the large attendance which was expected. However, those who attended, certainly got their money's worth of fun and frivolity and the artists were all that could be desired. All the proceeds from the carnival have been donated to charitable work.

Anniversary Services

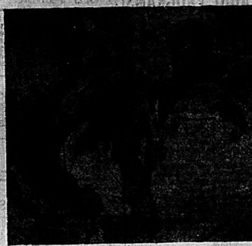
Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and oak leaves provided the decorating scheme for St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday for their anniversary services.



Special music was provided by the choir, the anthem, "Rejoice Today" in the morning and "The Lord is in His Holy Temple" in the evening were rendered under the capable leadership of Mrs. C. V. Wilkins as organist and choir leader. Very beautiful soprano solos by Mrs. Bruce Yarwood and Miss Nora MacLellan were especially well sung and greatly enjoyed by the congregation. Both services were in charge of the minister, Rev. Ross C. MacLean, B.A.

Major C. K. Nicoll, Mrs. Nicoll and daughter Mary Margaret of Oakville, are guests of Chief Constable and Mrs. W. Bain and are renewing many friendships in Trenton. Major Nicoll has just returned from three years' service overseas and has been posted in charge of the 8th Division in Canada.

PATRIOTISM LENGTHENS FURLOUGH

Fort Devens, Mass., Nov. 3 — (AP) —Patriotism gave nine Oklahoma soldiers an unscheduled nine extra hours of furlough. On their way back to camp, their train stopped at Cleveland and they got out to stretch their legs. A band giving a send-off to a group of selectees played the "Star Spangled Banner." While the soldiers stood at attention, their train pulled out. The next train for their destination came nine hours later.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Flying Tigers"

John Wayne, John Carroll, Anna Lee and an impressive line-up of supporting players chalk up an unqualified dramatic hit in "Flying Tigers," Republic picture which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

With its action set against the stark suspense of the Burmese war front, the film grippingly depicts the exploits of the famed American Voluntary Group, or "Flying Tigers," whose courage against incredible odds has written an immortal chapter in the history of American valor.

The story presents Wayne as a squadron leader who, distressed by the overwhelming odds pitted against his command, drafts into the group a young flyer of indisputable personal courage but of doubtful motives. Woody Jason—played by John Carroll—is interested chiefly in the five hundred dollars bonus he will receive for every plane he bags, rather than in the cause for which he fights. He soon incurs the enmity of all the other flyers, particularly when it appears that he failed to save a fellow flyer in his zeal to bring down more planes and earn more bonuses.

Wayne never loses faith in his friend, however, and this faith is ultimately rewarded by an act of spectacular bravery on Carroll's part which once and for all establishes him in the good graces and high esteem of the other Flying Tigers.

With excellent roles in "How Green Was My Valley" and "My Life with Caroline" to her credit, Anna Lee scores again in the feminine lead of "Flying Tigers."

On the same program the "Three Stooges" appear in their funniest comedy. The Universal News events of the day complete the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Talk of the Town"

Depicting lovable Jean Arthur, striking Gary Grant and austere Ronald Colman in one of their most striking roles, the current feature attraction "the Talk of the Town", now playing at the McCarthy Theatre combines baffling mystery and top-flight comedy at its best.

With a small manufacturing town as locale, the picture films Cary Grant in the unusual role of an escaped fugitive from justice accused by the police of being a murderer and also guilty of arson. He escapes from prison with the death sentence about to be passed and seeks refuge in a cottage owned by Jean Arthur who plays the role of a lovable schoolmam about to rent her home to Ronald Colman, dignified student of jurisprudence.

Jean's difficulties in keeping Grant secluded during the hue and cry of the police are creative of dozens of predicaments evoking dozens of laughs. It is only when Colman discovers that there is a human level in a time of crisis that the situation is saved for Grant. He is eventually freed during a climatic scene at the court house when a mob threatens Grant's life as he is being tried on a trumped-up murder and arson charge.

Valuable to the complete effect of the picture are lesser players such as Edgar Buchanan, Glenda Farrell and others, but the film is essentially the story of peculiarly human triangle, cunningly involved in a rich and racy romantic comedy.

AT THE BELLE

"The Glass Key"

Mystery, in the best Dashiell Hammett manner, spiced with suspense, action and romance, is said to be all present and accounted for in the film version of his best-seller, "The Glass Key," which is now playing at the Belle Theatre.

Produced by Paramount, the film stars Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake, and Alan Ladd, supported by Bonita Granville, Richard Denning, Joseph Calleia and William Bendix. Veronica Lake and Ladd made movie history together in "This Gun For Hire," and authoritative sources have it that they ring the bell again with their teamwork in the picturization of this widely-read murder mystery.

The story concerns the political machinations of Donlevy, a tough, shady character, who falls in love with Veronica, daughter of a highly respected mayoralty candidate. Donlevy's man Friday, Alan Ladd, knows that Veronica is only pretending an interest in Donlevy so that he will work for her father's election. The plot thickens when Veronica and Ladd realize they are in love. Events take a highly dramatic, exciting turn with the murder of Veronica's brother. Suspicion fastens on Donlevy. That doughty individual finds himself in a tough spot. No one believes in him but Ladd, who risks his life to save his friend.

"The Glass Key" is said to be crammed full of the kind of suspenseful action which characterizes Dashiell Hammett's highly successful "Thin Man" and "The Maltese Falcon". Casting it with such outstanding stars as Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake, and Alan Ladd is added assurance that movie fans are due for a thoroughly enjoyable time. Incidentally, "The Glass Key" not only reunites Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd but also brings together two stars of Paramount's now-famous "Wake Island" — Brian Donlevy and William Bendix.

Word has it that the unraveling of the plot at the end of the film represents a typical Dashiell Hammett surprise, so "The Glass Key" sounds like the kind of thriller movie-goers should welcome.

"Scattergood Rides High"

Though not a betting man, Scattergood Baines gambles a long shot on human nature in the new RKO Radio comedy, "Scattergood Rides High," fourth of the popular Clarence Budington Kelland series announced as the added feature attraction.

The object of Scattergood's venture is the orphaned son of an old friends who is killed in a racing accident. Deprived of his inheritance — the racing stable and the farm which his family has operated for years — the boy still is determined on a career with the trotting champions. Scattergood backs him, saying he had rather invest in a human being than in anything else in the world, at the same time remarking, "the way to double your money is to fold it in two and keep it inside your pocket."

Guy Kibbee again portrays the Sage and Coldriver, with newcomer Charles Lind as the young racing enthusiast. Opposite Lind in a romantic ingenue role is piquant Dorothy Moore, formerly stand-in for Simone Simon but now graduated to leading lady. Jed Prouty, Regina Wallace and Frances Carson play comedy characterizations, while Kenneth Howell is a juvenile "heavy."

Little Benny's Note Book

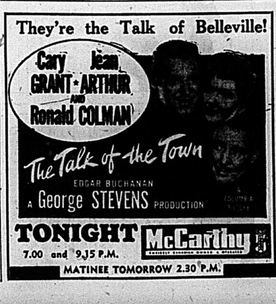
After supper we all went over to Aunt Izzabel's, and Artie and I were playing Artie's new game of Axe the Axis and everybody else was talking about different subjects especially the war, and ma said to pop, William I hope you remembered to turn out the hall light in case of a black-out in our absence.

By gollies I hope I did, pop said, and ma said, Well I distinctly remembered reminding you. I hope my words didn't fall on deaf ears for land sakes, she said, and pop said, They couldn't have, because I distinctly remember your reminding me.

But that's no proof that you acted on the suggestion, because if you did all the things that you agree to do when I ask you, the world would be a different and far better place, ma said. So please try to remember if you recall turning out the light personly in so many words, she said, and pop said, Well I must say my mind doesn't seem to contain any clearly etched picture of myself actually if you remember asking me you ought to remember whether I did it or not.

Now William please dont confuse what I ought to remember and what you actually did, ma said. Really, William, I mean really, this is serious. As the air raid warden for the block you're suppose to set a shining example, she said, and pop said, If I've left that light going it will be entirely too shining, blast it to blazes.

Dont worry, pop, I said. I turned it out myself, because I was the one ma asked to turn it out, not you, and the reason I know I did it is because I remember I did it with my eyes shut to see if I could walk four steps straight without looking and still hit the switch with my finger, I said.



Being almost the end of the subject, but not quite.

9 SENTENCED TO DIE IN HUNGARY

London, Nov. 3—(CP)—A military court in Hungary has sentenced nine persons to death and others to long prison terms for "sabotage, assassination and the use of arms against the public security," a Reuters dispatch from Vichy said Monday.

THOUGHT SHE HAD A FLAT

Sandpoint, Idaho, Nov. 3 — (AP) —A feminine motorist braked her car to a quick stop in front of the county jail. "What's the matter?" she asked in shaky voice. "We just had an earthquake," replied a deputy sheriff. "Oh, thank goodness! I thought I had a flat tire."

CHAPTER 6

"Come in here," Hugh led the way to the writing room.

"Tell me," Colville said, "have you any idea who would have killed your wife?"

"Not the slightest. Are you sure she was killed? She often spoke of heart trouble. Was she strangled?"

"She was smothered, by strangling, but, asphyxiated. Some one did it with brute force, by reason of a sudden spasm of rage or maybe by premeditation. She had no enemy?"

"No! Everybody loved Alma. She had hosts of friends, but she never made an enemy."

"Lovers, then? Were men devoted to her?"

"Yes, of course. But she only laughed at them. She told me all the things they would say to her; she liked to be admired, but it meant nothing to her — nothing serious."

"It was serious to someone. Your servants are of good character?"

"Oh, yes; the butler has been with us ever since we were married, and my man I have had for more than ten years. There are others, but Alma never came in contact with them, except the maids. I can't get a ray of light, can you? Unless it was a burglar, a mad thief."

"Not very plausible. There was always someone on guard?"

"Yes. Dickson was in or near that room all the time. And the Foo Chow is always everywhere. He would know if a fly came in unannounced."

"Then you have no theory, Mr. McCleod? No suspicion?"

"How can I have? All the guests are our friends or were brought by our friends. Strangers come that way, you for our friends know that their friends are welcome here."

"Were there many strangers here tonight?"

"I'm not sure. You see, owing to my father's illness I was with him a great deal of the time. I can't make it out."

"This apartment of yours is a bit complicated, isn't it? As to arrangement, I mean," Dr. Colville said.

"Indeed it is." Hugh replied "Visitors starting in the MAY, they need a guide to find their way around. There are rooms and rooms and halls and nooks."

An intruder, then, could have hidden himself at will."

"Oh, I don't know. Foo Chow was on the job and then, why would an intruder, I suppose you mean a robber, kill Alma in that strange fashion? She had on valuable jewelry, but I don't think any of it was disturbed. I didn't notice."

"I have to go now, Mr. McCleod. We will take the body away tonight and there will be an enquest the morning. Then you will have the report."

The servants knew that they already had taken Alma's body away, and another man was made the coat room.

Foo Chow told him that the house manager had been with the mortuary men and all had been done quietly and well. Dickson carried the same news to Hugh and told him gently that he had better go to bed and get a little rest. Hugh put Dickson in charge to help service, and he drank the coffee offered to him, with an equal lack of notice.

"Dickson," he said, at last, "will you help me to get the beast that killed my wife?"

Dickson said that he would.

"I don't know how we will do it." Hugh went on. "I shall have to think it over, but I will find a way. Have you any suggestions, Dickson? You know most of the people at the party. Can you imagine any of them as a murderer?"

"Don't think about that now, Mr. McCleod. Don't sir! If you want to you could get a detective, a private one, I mean."

"They don't know anything. They do in the books, but not in real life. The police detectives know more. They are trained workers. Tat Raynor is a smart chap. You didn't notice any talk about anybody tonight? None of the men jittery or anything like that?"

"No, Mr. McCleod. Now, sir, if you'll go to bed, you'll be much the better for a while. Come to your own room sir, and I'll see that freshen you a bit."

"Yes, I'll do that—come on."

The room occupied by Hugh and Alma were across the front of the house. Each had bedroom, dressing-room and bath and a small living room beside, which connected the two suites.

Hugh looked in at Alma's door and saw Linda, her maid, putting away some things. "What are you doing, Linda?"

The girl gave a start.

"Oh," she said, relieved to see her master instead of a policeman. "I'm putting Mrs. McCleod's things in the cases. They took her, just as she was, except for shoes, Hugh, I put them in this little safe, sir, or will you take care of them?"

"Put them there for now. Linda.

I'll see about it later."

Captain Raynor was methodical. He now had all the guests who were still there marshalled into a reception line.

With his stenographer at his side he addressed certain people who he knew or knew of, and who, his practised, unofficial mind, could not be implicated in this grim, New York society in Wall Street circles, and their wives, this was a little surprised at the number of these, then he remembered that Hugh McCleod was years older than his wife, and these were his friends, then.

Raynor reduced his audience to a few uncertain strangers and a group of younger guests who were Alma's particular friends.

These, he announced, he would interview separately, one at a time, leaving Sergeant Colby in charge.

"Who first discovered Mrs. McCleod's death?" he asked, and was immediately answered.

"I did," Doris Day said, with a distinct air of importance.

Then come with me, please," to her disappointment, Doris found herself conducted to another room. She had anticipated a dramatic scene when she would be in the limelight, and would impress all by her pathetic story. But Raynor's read her mind and requested her after his inquiries briefly and concisely.

"Why did you go upstairs to the men's dressing room?" he said.

"Oh, it wasn't only the men's room," Doris rattled at him. "Some of us girls had left our wraps there too."

"Why?"

"Just happened so. You see, it's a guest room and it has a lovely powder dade and all, and there was a maid there, a new one, Alma's own maid was in the ladies' dressing room."

"Why did you go up there?"

Doris opened her mascaried eyes.

"Why, I thought it was time to go home. I was tired and I thought I'd start and then our crowd would all go. That's the way we usually do."

"So you ran upstairs for your wraps?"

"Yes and I went in the room and I saw Alma lying on the chaise lounge. I thought that was odd and I said, 'Get up, Alma, we are going home now,' and she didn't move or anything, and I spoke to her two or three times, I was sitting at the powder table, you see and I had my back to her, but I could see her in the mirror and she looked so queer, I screamed, I couldn't help it! I didn't think she was dead, I thought she had a stroke or something queer!"

"And then someone came?"

"Why, nobody came. I ran downstairs, I almost tumbled down—I was so frightened and met Ogden Murray caught me as I was falling and they laid me on a couch and brought me a drink."

"What happened next?"

"Ogden began to tease, and Natalie said she thought something was the matter and she ran upstairs. She hsr a lot of curiously and then Ogden ran after her, I think, and the others took care of me, and Dr. Doctor Lloyd go upstairs, and that's all I remember. I was ill from shock."

"Have you any idea as to who could have killed Mrs. McCleod?"

"No. That is, she had lots of enemies, but they were not killers."

"Who are they? Name some of them."

"Oh, just because she was so beautiful, Alma had lots of enemies and—well, fascinating. She was a dancer girl, Mrs. married her."

"And Mr. McCleod?"

"Her husband? Oh, he couldn't help himself. He just adored her with the rest."

"Keep in mind. her—er, flirtations?"

"Oh, he didn't know of them, the serious ones. Of course, he saw her dancing with the boys, but you know he is awfully old."

"Forty-five," I am told."

"Well, that's terribly old for our crowd. But Alma was very discreet."

"You said she had enemies? Jealous women? Men who just envy and jealousy."

"Yes men, a woman might have killed her?"

"Not more likely than a man! How could a man kill Alma! She was too beautiful!"

"Then, I'm sure. I'm sure."

"What could be, but Alma could take care of herself in an emergency, I'm sure."

"Do you suspect any woman?"

"Why, I believe I have any of the guests—"

"What do you mean?"

"I think Alma had other friends that none of us knew about, and one of them came here secretly to-night, and—"

"Have you some lover, not or her own set?"

"I rather think that than to suspect one of our own crowd!"

"Have you, for the least knowledge of such a thing?"

"No, I haven't. But if you must look some one out, keep your eye on Nadine Glenn. I don't believe she did it, but she's the only one who could."

"What do you mean could?"

"Why, she has temperament and deep passions and all that. You know. Most of us are just ordinary every-day girls, but Nadine has a bit that seethes,—she told me so."

"And just exactly how does a seething bit act? Does she go around talking stark nonsense?"

"But it isn't nonsense! Nadine is mystic."

"That's in her favor. People who go in for cults are very seldom of criminal tendency."

"No, I don't suppose she'd do it."

"Miss Day, I want you to hold our talk confidential. If I find that anything we have said in here, I shall be greatly mistaken in my judgement of your character."

"I won't tell," said Doris. "I'm a very discreet person."

She was dismissed and Raynor asked to see Nadine next. Colby brought her. She entered the room like a tragic queen.

"It's nearly six o'clock," she exclaimed angrily. "It's outrageous keeping me here like this!"

"Murder is outrageous," Miss Glenn," Raynor said gravely. "Tell me of your going upstairs when you heard Day Day scream."

"Well, Doris was so excited she hardly knew what she was saying. But she said Alma was asleep and wouldn't wake so I feared something was wrong and I ran up to see."

It was very late and Mrs. McCleod might well have been sworn out. But when she found that she was asleep, why did you at once think there was something wrong?"

'Victory Week' Race Is Called Off

New York, Nov. 3—(AP) — The $10,000 2-year-old sweepstakes, scheduled for the "Victory Week" of racing starting at Belmont Park Thursday, was called off today when John Marsch of Chicago notified the sponsors that his population would not be able to start.

One of the two editions of the race that both Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Fleet and Occupation be entered. Marsch wired Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the Turf Committee, that Occupation came out of the Florida winter lastly last Saturday in bad shape, and that he intended to retire him for the season. Count Fleet beat Occupation by 4½ lengths in the Futurity.

In place of the 2-year-old race has been scheduled the "Florence Nightingale" for 2-year-old fillies. All proceeds of the week are going to go to the various armed services relief funds.

Picton and District

Picton, Nov. 3 — South Marysburgh is the first township in Prince Edward County to reach its quota in the Victory Loan campaign, having received $175,000 with an objective of $675,000, the county has subscribed a total of $2,200,000. Canvassers report increased sales this week and confidently expect the county to go over the top. South Marysburgh township with 70 percent, Hallowell and Bloomfield with 60 per cent, and Hillier and Wellington with 61 percent, are next in order. Mountain View, R. C. A. V. Regiment, has already subscribed $23,500, their objective having been $15,000.

Winners in a Prince Edward County Victory Loan essay contest were announced this morning. They were: Mary Hamilton and Jean Hagan, Consecon Public School.

Squadron Leader K. Bergin, R. C. A. F., was the speaker at a rally in the theatre Sunday night when 1,200 attended. Musical features were also on the program.

A dance in the armouries Friday night raised $175 which will be used to send turkeys to county men overseas at Christmas.

Frequent rains have resulted in farmers here being held up with plowing as the ground is very wet.

Mrs. J. L. Dickinson spent the weekend in Toronto.

The Hart Dragon Club heard an interesting address Monday night by Francis Grant of Wellington who told of his experiences in the merchant navy. He has visited many foreign countries during his travels and leave with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Grant, Wellington.

Air Minister Power Receives Treatment

Montreal, Nov. 3. (CP)—Condition of Air Minister Power is very comfortable, it was reported today by attendants at Royal Victoria Hospital where he is undergoing treatment for a throat ailment. He entered the hospital during the weekend.

PRISONER IN SHANGHAI

St. Hilaire, Que., Nov. 3 — (CP) — Mrs. O. K. Weeks of this Quebec village, 20 miles east of Montreal, has just received a letter from her husband who is a prisoner of the Japanese in Shanghai. The letter was mailed in Shanghai, last February, reached Switzerland in July and finally arrived in Canada over the week-end.

FRUIT HARVEST HAS INCREASED

Apple Crop Reported at 340,000 Barrels—Peach, Pear, Grape Yield Up

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP) — Ontario's fruit harvest, consisting of apples, peaches, pears and grapes has increased in spite of scab and insect injury, the Department of Agriculture announced today.

The apple crop now is estimated at approximately 340,000 barrels, an increase of 17,000 barrels over September estimates. This upward revision is due largely to completion at state cool storage districts of late Fall and Winter varieties.

The season's peach yield, despite adverse factors of winter rot infestation and labor and packing shortages, totalled 78,000 bushels, which is an increase of four per cent over September figures. Last year, nearly 100,000 bushels were exported from the Niagara district, principally to Britain, to points in the United States.

A 30 per cent increase over 1941 production is noted in the pear yield, with approximately 215,000 bushels harvested. There was extensive damage to pear trees, generally free from insect and fungus damage. The fresh fruit market absorbed a large quantity than in several seasons past.

Approximately 75 per cent harvested and September estimates have been confirmed. This year's grape production now figured at 56,000 tons as compared with 25,000 tons last year. Blue varieties showed the greatest rise. A considerable part of the crop went to United States chiefly for juice purposes. Wine production was negligible.

Tomato pack on the whole this year is disappointing, the yield further being too wet and cool. A heavy frost late in September destroyed from 50 to 75 per cent of the vegetable still on the vines.

Havages of leaf hopper or blight damaged almost all potato fields still in all districts including Northern Ontario and the head of the lakes.

Attempted Armed Hold-Up Fails

Woman and Two Accomplices Taken Into Custody by Toronto Police

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP) — An attempted armed hold-up by a woman and two male accomplices were captured by police after an unsuccessful attempt was made to rob a taxi-driver of his money and car in the north-east section of the city. A third man escaped.

Charged with attempted robbery were Grace Humphrey, 19, Leslie Ward, 19, Hamilton, and Wilson Wilkes, 21. Police said the cab driver, Alfred Nesbitt, had a narrow escape when the gun was fired at him.

Nesbitt picked up three men and a woman and drove them north when they halted the car and disarmed his money. Nesbitt yanked out the car's ignition wires and during the struggle the woman fled on foot.

Failing to start the car, the quartette fled and a police car scouring the neighborhood later picked up the accused.

RELIANCE HOLDS COSTUME BALL

BEURLING'S INJURY IS EXAGGERATED

X-Ray Pictures Show Aerial Ace Suffered No Bodily Injury but Cut on Hand

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Somewhere in England, Nov. 3—(CP CABLE)—The report that Canada's Aerial Ace, Pilot-Officer George Beurling of Verdun, Que., had suffered a broken leg in an accident at his base turned out today to be much exaggerated.

Development of X-ray pictures taken after the 24-year-old spitfire pilot was found at the defence of Malta arrived at the R. A. F. hospital here showed no bones injury. All that he got from a crash of a big aircraft in Gibraltar was a cut on the hand and a bad shaking up.

The young fellow who would sooner match wits and skill with a Nazi ace than eat, after turning up safely in his folks at home, fretted because the flight to Canada he had set in the Victory Loan Campaign had been interrupted. He was a cheery customer and the doctors and nurses at the hospital here say he was riding struck the top of a hill.

Beurling was brought to the hospital here by air ambulance, following the Gibraltar accident in which several persons were killed. He was taken immediately to hospital for X-ray examination. He was on his way from Malta to Egypt when shot down 26 of the 30 Axis aircraft he had destroyed in Britain and thence to Canada when the Victory Loan campaign was started in which he was riding struck the top of a hill.

Beurling was hopping around the ward on his good leg, favoring the injured one but two inches, and seen in a cast since he was shot down over Malta, Dec. 14. He was fairly agile nevertheless, and performed tricks getting beds and chairs all in locomotion. He scorned crutches or canes.

He has been eleven inch fighter with fair hair and blue eyes was born in Verdun 1920 and was one of others in the ward started calling him by his nickname of "Screwball."

Daily Average Of $51,000,000 For Victory Loan

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Subscriptions to the Victory Loan totalled up to close of business yesterday totalling $661,000,000, the average of subscriptions were $51,000,000. National Victory Loan headquarters announced today.

Monday was the 13th business day of the Loan campaign which opened Oct. 19 and ends next Saturday. The cumulative total for the same period of the Second Victory Loan in 1941 was $1,000,000,000, but then the minimum objective then was $800,000,000 and this time it is $1,000,000,000.

Average daily subscriptions show that Monday's total of $51,000,000 amounted to a little under $51,000,000 a day. If this rate is maintained, the objective of the drive should be exceeded by close of business Saturday.

Subscribing $30,000,000 to the Victory Loan, Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada Montreal, announced today that it has turned individual investments in the current campaign. Executive Investment Committee announced.

The other $30,000,000 bond order was from Canadian Life Insurance Co., Ottawa.

Signing for Sun Life's application, A. B. Wood, president and manager, declared that the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada has subscribed $20,000,000 to the new loan, making a total of $50,000,000 invested by Sun Life in bonds of the United States and Canada since Sept. 1, 1939.

In Canadian Government bonds and stock, Sun Life has invested $30,000,000 and in United States Government bonds. Our current assets in Canada exceed the liabilities of the life insurance premium savings of more than 1,000,000 policy-holders.

DEVELOPING NAVY TO STOP SUBS

Between 10 and 15 Ships Sank in St. Lawrence During Summer Says St. Laurent

Quebec, Nov. 2 — (CP) — The Justice Minister, Hon. Louis St. Laurent, said Saturday night that between 10 and 15 ships have been sunk in the St. Lawrence this summer.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Lapointe-Drouin Liberal Club, the Justice Minister said that "we are completing our effective forces and developing our navy to a point where next season we will be able to stop submarines from coming to board us as they did this year."

"Most certainly", he added, "it was very unpleasant for us that ships were sunk in the St. Lawrence, but from a war point of view, those sinkings were not more disastrous than if they happened in the ocean".

The Justice Minister said he had heard rumors that about 40 ships had been sunk in the St. Lawrence and had asked the Navy Minister, Hon. Angus Macdonald, about it.

"The Navy Minister told me the number was exaggerated three-fold . . . my colleague places the number of ships sunk at between 10 and 15. Most certainly, it is much but one must expect some blows in wartime".

(Six merchant ships have been officially announced sunk in the area, in addition to the Corvette Charlottetown and the Yacht Raccoon. One freighter was damaged and had to be beached. In addition loss of four freighters was announced at the time of the loss of the Raccoon, but locals of the sinkings was not announced.)

"I believe that at the beginning of the next navigation season there will be, once more, a preference for the St. Lawrence as far as the safety of vessels is concerned and as long as we continue to avert sinkings as has been the case this year".

'Civil Defence Local and Personal Responsibility'

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—(CP)—Hon. R. J. Manion, Chief A.R.P. officer for Canada, Sunday told nearly 2,000 wardens, auxiliary police and firemen that "civil defence is a local and personal responsibility."

In his first speech in Ottawa since his appointment as head of A.R.P. in Canada, he said, "it seems a difficult thing to make even the most intelligent people in this country take this responsibility seriously."

"The best air force in the world cannot protect cities like Ottawa and Toronto from air attack by carrier-based planes," he said.

He added "We are in the midst of a terrific world crisis, a turning point in human history and it is not necessarily written in the stars that we must win. Civilizations, nations and empires come and go —only the human race goes on."

Coupons 5 and 6 Now Valid For Sugar, Tea, Coffee

Ottawa, Nov. 3—(CP)—Coupons 5 and 6 in the first two sheets in the permanent ration books issued early in September became valid today for purchases of sugar, tea and coffee. The tea and coffee coupons are on the "spare A" sheet following the sugar coupons.

Each coupon is good for two weeks' supply—one pound of sugar on each coupon, and two ounces of tea or eight ounces of coffee, but not both on each "spare A" coupon.

By using both coupons a consumer can obtain four weeks' supply at one time.

Unexpended coupons which became valid Sept. 7 or Oct. 5—coupons 1 to 4 inclusive—may still be used, but coupons from the temporary ration cards in use last summer became void Nov. 1.

Sharked-Nosed P-40's Used As Dive-Bombers

(By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WITH U.S. Air Forces in China, Oct. 31 (Delayed) — (AP) — Already flying shark-nosed P-40's, known hereabouts as "Flashtookers," introduced a new trick in their air warfare with a dive-bombing assault on Hong Kong last Wednesday.

One big merchant ship was left in flames by a direct hit, and near-misses were scored against two others in this third raid within a week upon the Japanese-occupied Crown Colony.

(The Japanese radio reported 7 bombers raided Hong Kong Wednesday but claimed that no damage was inflicted and that one raider was shot down.)

This dive-bombing assault was the first in this theatre by the Curtiss P-40's, built originally as fighters but now become jacks of all trades in the hands of resourceful airmen.

In one eight-day period they unloaded 50 tons of bombs on Nanchang, Hankow and Linchwan in China and Haiphong, French Indo-China.

The dive-bombing mission against Hong Kong, carried out at dawn Wednesday, was escorted by other Peashooters in their regular role as escorts.

One American plane was shot down close to the water after finishing its bombing run. There were no other losses or casualties.

The attacking pilots expressed belief that challenging Japanese pilots were flying German Messerschmitt-109's as well as their own Zeros. This was the first indication here the Nazi-type fighters were in action in the China theatre.

The Wednesday attack followed smashing blows at Hong Kong last Sunday night and Monday by medium bombers.

The Sunday waterfront was set aflame from end to end and the main Hong Kong power station flattened in these raids.

From a study of photographs and reports of participating pilots it was determined that two 2,500-ton tankers were sunk and a 3,000-ton freighter severely damaged and possibly sunk.

The Kowloon railroad station, yards and storage areas, wharves and nearby warehouses, large military stores around Holt's Wharf, the old British navy mine and torpedo station, naval supplies close to the main ferry terminal and a big Japanese barracks all were heavily damaged and probably wiped out by fires and explosions caused by the American bombs.

Italy is Ripe For Revolution

London, Nov. 2 — (CP)—A declaration that Italy is ripe for a revolution against Fascism was made Saturday by a speaker at a free Italian meeting in connection with the 20th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

"The revolutionary possibilities are great in Italy today," said M. U. Chiesa, an Italian who was an active opponent of the Black Shirts before they took control of Italy. "If we could start a revolution there I am sure the war would finish more quickly."

Kadens on Trial, Says He Could Get Death Penalty for Kidnap

Chicago, Nov. 3 — (AP) — Irwin Kadens, 23-year-old army deserter and "kidnap crime wave" went on trial in criminal court Mon., on a charge of robbery, but the defendant believed the law was waiting its time because tonight give me the death penalty for kidnapping under the Lindbergh Law".

Kadens, who also faces a charge of rape and six other robbery charges, told reporters "it will cost the taxpayers $60,000 to conduct the case against me. I think they are just wasting their time. I shouldn't be tried for little things —like robberies and rapes—when they could give me the death penalty or kidnapping under the Lindbergh Law, or for deserting the army during wartime."

A FIGHTING BIRTHDAY

125TH ANNIVERSARY OF CANADA'S PIONEER BANK

Through all the ups and downs of a century and a quarter, Canadians have put their trust in the Bank of Montreal. The Bank has endeavoured always to justify this public confidence by its unwavering policy and practice of safe, constructive, convenient banking, even in the most trying times. Each obstacle surmounted has added to the strength and capacity for service that have characterized Canada's oldest bank from its start on 3rd November, 1817. Today, as the Bank reaches its 125th milestone in the midst of war, its directors, its management and the 6,000 men and women who comprise its staff are determined to continue to serve Canada and Canadians to the full measure of their ability and the institution's strength.

From humble beginnings in the modest little rented quarters in St. Paul Street in Montreal, with a staff of but seven persons, the Bank moved forward step by step, expanding to meet the growing needs of a pioneer country. The Bank gave Canada its first real money by the issue of its own bills and copper coins, and as its organization spread out—branch by branch—it brought to the early colonists some semblance of business organization where before only barter methods had existed.

From its inception the Bank had a wide vision of its usefulness and began at once to lay the foundations of a banking system for the whole country.

First came its agency in old Quebec City, two weeks after its establishment in Montreal. Six months later, its branch in the garrison town of Kingston . . . then on to York, a lumber settlement of a thousand people in the midst of virgin forest—now the Queer City, Toronto.

Then sprang up branches at Bytown—now Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion—at Hamilton, London, Brockville, Amherstburg, St. Thomas, Belleville, St. Catharines, Cobourg, Saint John and Halifax . . . and then out into the West—to Winnipeg in 1877, bringing the first permanent banking facilities west of the Great Lakes—then on to Regina, to Calgary, and finally to Vancouver—a nation-wide chain completed immediately following the arrival of the railway in 1886.

Pathfinders and pioneers, Bank of Montreal men struck out to the East and to the West over an uncharted course—at one time travelling by stagecoach over rough forest roads, at another by arduous trek through the wilderness on snowshoes.

Courage and resolution of purpose—in fur trader and lumberman, in farmer and railway builder, in merchant and businessman—these are the enduring characteristics which through the years have made Canada great . . . and among this great company of nation builders is numbered the banker, a partner with every one of them.

The 125 years since 1817 have been full ones . . . years of hardship and pioneering effort were followed by years of expansion and prosperity. There have been years of war, of panic and depression and of political upheaval, and there have been years of peace and plenty . . . dramatic years, dynamic and historic years. (Starting only two years after Waterloo, the Bank has passed through the troublous times of the Crimean War, the Indian Mutiny, the American Civil War, the Fenian Invasion of Canada, the Afghan War, the Sudan War, the South African War, the First World War—and now is engaged in World War II.)

Thus Canada's destiny has been the Bank's destiny—country and bank have suffered and prospered together.

Today, as Canada grimly navigates the most crucial period of her career, the Bank of Montreal, rendering a thoroughly modern and efficient banking service in all departments, is marching shoulder to shoulder with Canadians—glad to be able to aid the government in carrying out its financial policies—glad to be able to extend credit to businessmen who are turning out the materials of war—glad to be able to lend money to the farmer who toils to increase food production for the United Nations—glad to be able to work with Canadians in the war forces and in every walk of life.

Just as the colonists looked to the Bank for leadership as it pioneered the way in 1817, so in the modern, streamlined times of 1942, Canadians naturally expect the Bank of Montreal to play a leading part in pathfinding through the critical days ahead.

The Bank's directors, management, and the six thousand men and women who comprise its staff are pledged to this task, and daily work in the confidence that Canada will win through to a future that will far outshine its record of the past.

First Bottle Convinced Him Syntona Is Great Medicine

Highly Pleased with First Relief from Headaches, Dizziness and Increase in Appetite; Sleep Better and Feel Better, He Says.

Syntona Herbal Compound grows daily in favour because of the prompt relief it gives from many common disorders of stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, nervousness, rheumatic pain and neuritis. Its success in relieving gas, bloating and distress after meals, dizzy feelings, sick headache, constipation and tired, fatigued feeling is well known to thousands of grateful users.

A recent example of this is the experience of Mr. Isaac Johns, 10 Magill Street, Hamilton, Ontario, who says:

"I was very badly rundown and having so much trouble with dizzy spells and sick headaches that I had to give up my work. Dark, blinding spots would come before my eyes. I was constipated all the time and my appetite had run completely off. I never seem to get enough sleep and my nerves were in a terrible condition. During the day I felt tired out all the time and just didn't have enough energy to do anything.

"I tried different medicines, but nothing helped me until I got Syntona. After taking Syntona from the very first bottle of this medicine I got the best relief I've had from the dizziness and headaches. Those blinding spots don't come before my eyes any more, my appetite is fine, I sleep like a baby every night now, I feel better, too, and as a result I'm getting more work done. Syntona is the best medicine for me and am going to keep right on taking it for awhile." Mr. Johns has given me the best results of anything I ever took."

BRITISH OFFENSIVE IN HIGH GEAR ON WHOLE FRONT

Hurl Back Axis Forces Half Way to El Daba

One London Source Says "Enemy Seems To Be in Full Retreat"

INCESSANT ATTACK

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Cairo, Nov. 4 (AP)—Lt. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's army of the Nile has followed up its first victory over Field Marshal Rodmel's talks by pressing on toward El Daba and El Rahman, 18 miles west of El Alamein, on the coastal railroad, hurling the Axis back almost half way to El Daba from its deepest gain into Egypt.

A British communique indicated today that the 8th Army's offensive has gone into high gear along the whole front. It declared that the British forces also hurled back the Germans and Italians at the southern flank in the desert battleground, capturing the strong points of Deir El Munsef and Himeimat (Himeimat (In London one British source declared that the enemy seems to be in full retreat," and it appeared that Montgomery had brought into battle the greatest striking force of armor and air power yet engaged in the fight for Near East control.

Troops Still in Trap

(The wording of the communique, making clear that the Axis forces pinned against the coast were not included in the retreat beyond Sidi Abd el Rahman, gave evidence that the trapped troops had been unable to break out of the pocket in which they were held by Australian infantry, it was noted in London.)

Rommel's losses in the actual ground fighting were multiplied by the terrific aerial onslaught which British-based planes launched upon his forces as they withdrew in an attempt to reform.

"For the past 24 hours," the British communique related, "the full force of the British air striking power has been concentrated on enemy units withdrawing along the coastal road.

"Our light bombers and fighter bombers have maintained incessant pressure on excellent targets provided by slow moving transports.

"In addition, armored vehicles were attacked by low-flying Spitfires along the whole battle area."

Axis Air Force Ineffective

Axis air forces were jolted back almost entirely to the defensive. Only twice, the R.A.F. reported, did German planes attempt to bomb British attacking columns, and in those attempts flatted at a cost of 15 planes shot down to at least a dozen damaged. Four more were destroyed in other operations, and another at Malta. British plane losses totaled 18.

Dispatches from the battlefront said the new British thrust developed three days ago when crack British forces cleared out three miles west of a broad gap in one of the Axis defense system of mine-fields, booby traps and strong points.

While British artillery and infantry held open this lane or assault, strong tank forces and troop movements streamed through into a new fight over a battlefield littered with the wreckage of many of Rommel's tank, while clouds of enemy prisoners, including high officers plodded back to British prisoner pens.

One Third Germans

About one-third of the prisoners were Germans, front dispatches said. Many were suffering from the shock of the terrifying artillery barrage which preceded the final Allied penetration.

COST-OF-LIVING BONUSES REMAIN AT PRESENT LEVEL

IN FORCE 3 MONTHS

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP)—The cost-of-living index at Oct. 1 was 117.8, a decrease of only 1/10th of a point from the July 1 index, and as a result the cost-of-living bonuses paid to employees in Canada will remain at their present level for the next three months, it was announced today.

The Oct. 1 cost-of-living index was 4/10th of a point above the index for Sept. 1.

"The September increase was due mainly to higher food prices although moderate seasonal increases were recorded by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said in its monthly review of the cost of living.

"The food index advanced from 128.1 in September to 128.8 for Oct. 1. Eggs and oranges moved sharply higher and increases of lesser importance were recorded for butter, potatoes and rents.

"Meat meats averaged slightly lower on Oct. 1 as did cheese and potatoes. The fuel and light index remained from 112.5 to 112.3 because of the coal increase. The October rental survey showed small advances in a few localities but they were insufficient to change the Dominion rent index which remained at 113.3.

Clare Booth Luce Wins Republican Seat

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Blond, glamorous Clare Boothe Luce, playwright, author and wartime globe-trotter, can now write after her name: Republican Representative-Elect from Connecticut.

Mrs. Luce, wife of the editor of Time, Fortune and Life, won her political campaign, and at the opening session of the 78th Congress in January she will take her place in the House with Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey veteran retapped for her 10th term, and Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, who was re-elected. They were:

Mrs. Luce, Clare Boothe Rogers, unopposed in her Massachusetts District; Jessie Sumner of Illinois, Republican Robert C. Ohio, and Margaret Smith of Maine. The latter was elected in September.

35 Former Allied Merchantmen Being Handed by Vichy to Axis

London, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The Ministry of Economic Warfare said today that the Vichy Government is handing over 35 former Allied merchantmen to French Mediterranean ports to the Axis.

"There have been previous reports that such transfers were shaping up, but the Ministry's statement was the first such word from any of the United Nations' governments.

"The announcement said the ships being handed over totalled 120,000 gross tons and included vessels belonging to Germany and 22 to Italy.

PROBE EXPLOSION IN LOWER SECTION OF VANCOUVER

Two Distinct Blasts In Court House Area Shatter Many Windows

POLICE FIND FUSE

Vancouver, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Police today stood guard at the Vancouver court house, in the downtown district of the city, after two explosions rocked the area late last night.

Windows were shattered and one of the large ornamental lamps at the front of the building was damaged. Police found a length of fuse which they said indicated explosives had been used. No one was injured.

Radio police were called in from nearby lower mainland municipalities and a heavy guard was posted around the building.

Windows were blown out in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation offices in the new Hotel Vancouver, the Canada and the Province, Victoria and in the old Vancouver Hotel, all of which buildings flank the court-house square.

Miss Odette Ashworth, a telephone operator in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's office, narrowly missed serious injuries when the explosions blasted a large window above the room only a few feet from her.

Blasts 15 Seconds Apart

Bill Herbert announcer at radio station CISR, said he was watching a stop-watch at the time and that the two explosions were 15 seconds apart.

Eye-witnesses told police that a man wearing a dark suit and soft felt hat ran down the courthouse steps a moment before the first explosion.

Sgt. P. E. J. Toney, who was on the main floor of a building flanking the courthouse square, said there were two distinct blasts.

"The second was heavier," he said. "Right after it I saw a short man dashing down the street. I could see him in the light from the explosion just as he mounted the curb and started across the courthouse lawn toward Georgia and Hornby streets."

Constables Oliver Ledingham and Neil Campbell, who were on patrol in a prowler car two blocks from the courthouse, said the whole sky was lit up with a huge blue flame.

Hundreds of persons who heard the blast thought an air raid had begun.

Soviet Commission To Compile Record Of German Crimes

Moscow, Nov. 4—(CP)—Establishment of a Soviet commission to compile a record of "the crimes of the German Fascist invaders and their accomplices" was announced today.

By decree of President Michael Kalinin, the commission is to determine losses suffered by collective farms and social organizations and, wherever possible, establish the identity of the German Fascist criminals guilty of the organization and the execution of crimes in occupied Soviet territories in order to "take them over to court and punish them severely."

Declares Hess' Flight Made 'With Authority Of Hitler, Colleagues'

London, Nov. 4—(CP)—The London Daily Mail today quoted Sir Patrick Dollan, Labor member of Govt (Mayor) of Glasgow, as saying that Rudolf Hess came to Britain as an "official ambassador of the Nazis" with peace terms for Britain if efforts would have made British "a German colony with Hitler as Dictator and Hess as Protector."

Sir Patrick told a Daily Mail reporter that Hess flew into Britain "with the authority of Hitler and his colleagues" and hoped he would be given gaudies and allowed to return within 48 hours.

The socialist lord provost was further quoted:

"Hess had no documentary terms but indicated in conversation that all previous German colonies were to be returned to Germany and that Great Britain was to give up her military, naval and R.A.F. strength.

"She was also to pay indemnity and to be left with a R. A. F. to protect the British Isles.

"Europe was to be Germanized with the Fuehrer as overlord. Germany was to get the Atlantic coasts of West Africa, Syria, Palestine and other territories.

"Control of the Suez Canal was to be transferred to Italy and Germany. Mussolini was to get Corsica and Tunis, French Morocco and Gibraltar were to go to Spain.

"Hess said he did not want to see the Prime Minister or any of his colleagues but wished to clear them out of the government and blamed them for having caused the war.

"Hess was annoyed that he was kept a prisoner and complained of unfair treatment."

Hess parachuted from his plane in Scotland, and the mystery of his dramatic trip has never been officially explained. Soon after he left Germany the Nazis said he was mentally unbalanced and had come to Britain as a self-appointed peace apostle. He is held in the Tower of London, and Soviet Russia recently suggested that he be tried immediately as a "war criminal."

NEWLY-CONTRIVED JAPANESE VICE IS BEING BROKEN

BENT ON CAPTURE

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—American forces on Guadalcanal have called upon aerial and naval power to smash a newly-contrived Japanese vice threatening to close in on the island's strategic airfield.

The United States marines and soldiers, dive-bombers and destroyers smashed at the enemy's forward of the airbase.

Nipponese vessels made a new landing of troops to the east under cover of darkness.

This added peril to the field, base of many aerial attacks on Japanese ships, troops and installations, was announced by War Secretary Frank Knox yesterday shortly after he cautioned against any false optimism over the battle of the Solomons.

Despite the offensive which earlier drove the foe back in the west-ern Pacific, the island, the new Japanese landings Monday night obviously indicated the enemy still is desperately bent on capturing the airfield and with it, control of the Allies' South Pacific supply lines.

ADVANCE GROUPS PUSH SIX MILES BEYOND KOKODA

Aussies on Road to Important Jap Coastal Base at BUNA

TRANSPORT SET AFIRE

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 4 (CP)—Advance groups of the Allied army in New Guinea have pushed six miles beyond Kokoda, inland Japanese base captured Monday, and are approaching the village of Oivi on the road to Buna, Japanese base on the coast, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Retreat of the Japanese toward Buna is continuing, the communique said, and there apparently is little fighting in the difficult New Guinea mountains. Oivi is on a narrow road leading from Kokoda to Buna and the Allied supply problem is eased further because Kokoda has a small airfield permitting the flying in of supplies. Port Moresby, main Allied base in New Guinea.

The Japanese have held Buna since July 21 when it was occupied by a sea-borne force. Although under almost daily attack by Allied bombers, the Japanese have been supplied by barge and larger vessels from Rabaul, New Britain, Lae and Salamaua, farther north on the New Guinea coast, and from Japanese-held New Britain.

Transport Set Afire

The most recent attempt to reinforce the Japanese was attacked Monday when Allied bombers found a convoy of two transports, a light cruiser and a destroyer. They attacked in three waves between New Guinea and Buna. The Allied communique was set on fire and apparently left burning fiercely off the south coast of New Britain. Allied reconnaissance planes found the ship, station-

An increasing number of German and Italian prisoners have arrived at British pens by sundown Monday. They included some high officers.

RUSSIANS STEM GERMAN DRIVE INTO CAUCASUS

Several Heights In Nalchik Area Retaken by Strong Counter-Attacks

IMPROVE POSITIONS

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Soviet forces hold improved positions against German attacks in the Nalchik sector of Stalingrad, and have dislodged the invaders from several heights in the Western Caucasus counter-offensive, the Russians announced today.

Two successive communiques indicated, moreover, that the roundabout Nazi drive from Mozdok toward Ordzhonikidze in the Caucasus finally had been stemmed by Red Army men southeast of Nalchik.

More than 200 German died under Soviet shelling of a Nazi concentration and the armored and aerial strength of the Germans was whittled down, the Russians said.

The noon communique announced that Soviet troops dislodged the Germans from a fortified position northeast of Tuapse in the Western Caucasus campaign while others occupied several heights and beat off an enemy counter-attack.

Better at Stalingrad

About a company of Germans was reported killed or wounded in one action; 170 were declared killed in the other.

Stalingrad's garrison was credited with repulsing fierce attacks on their strongholds in fierce fighting yesterday and today, and destroying 1,000 Germans were declared thrown back.

Ontario and Quebec Urged to Give Lead For Canadian Unity

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Major-General H. LaFleche, War Services minister, in a speech here last night declared that Canada generally would follow if Ontario and Quebec would give the lead to the Dominion.

"Only the moral strength of Ontario and Quebec can give Canada strength to victory," said the republican-elected War Services Minister in an address before a joint meeting of local Kinsmen Clubs and Board of Trade.

He added he was speaking as a Liberal and "I'm with you when you love peace." It was essential that Canada be prepared at the end for winning the war and then to face the period of reconstruction which still follow.

Fall of Kokoda Has Tremendous Effect on the Peoples of Europe

By CHARLES S. POLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

Madrid, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Fall of the jungle village of Kokoda, which only a handful of Europeans had heard of until this summer, has had a tremendous effect on Europe—thanks to Axis propaganda before the tide turned against the Japanese on New Guinea.

In September, when the Germans became touchy about emphasizing the fact elements of Stalingrad in their news releases and broadcasts, the Japanese began to give a big play to the Japanese offensive in New Guinea.

Tokyo-London dateline they cited Japanese dispatches from Kokoda, describing it as "the last obstacle on the Australian front," told how the Japanese had driven down from it, and explained it was only a matter of days until Port Moresby fell and the Japanese pounced upon Northern Australia.

The name of Kokoda as a Japanese base appeared with monotonous frequency in the Axis press and the press of unoccupied France, Spain and Portugal for weeks.

The stories were complete with maps showing Kokoda at the base of arrows shooting across the Owen Stanley Mountains to Port Moresby across Torres Strait to Cape York in Australia and even across Australia to Brisbane, Sydney and Melbourne.

But German propaganda now has little to say.

But small items here in the neutral press reporting Kokoda's fall and London and New York press dispatches underscore the announcements of its capture.

This news made a tremendous impression — perhaps an even greater one than the fall of Stalingrad — more immediate and battles now raging — on continental peoples.

Many here see that straw necessary to swing many doubting Thomases to the conclusion that the Japanese were on the defensive. A change has come almost all at once.

British forces are attacking on the African front; United States Marines on Guadalcanal are attacking; and finally the Japanese have had the initiative taken from them in Pacific war.

The British continental peoples are beginning to talk of things Hermin would prefer to squelch.

Cut Democratic Majorities in Both Senate and House

NEW DEALERS BEATEN

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 4 — (CP) — A tremendous rebirth of Republican strength reflecting public impatience with the management of the war by the Roosevelt administration, featured the wartime election held in the United States yesterday.

Raising the crest of public favor, the Republicans swept into individual offices or cut down Democratic majorities all over the land but they definitely fell short of capturing the Senate and apparently are headed for another term as minority party in the House of Representatives although with a substantially increased body.

In the state of Connecticut, they placed Thomas E. Dewey, the 40-year-old crusading attorney, in the New York State Governor's House for a four-year term and sent a number of New Dealers, apparently including the veteran Senator Hiram Johnson, down by W. Norris, toppling from high places.

On the basis of incomplete returns, the Republicans, staging a dramatic and only partially-expected comeback, cut into Democratic majorities in both the Senate and House and snatched at least three State Governors' offices that may have marked bearing on the outcome of the 1944 Presidential campaign.

Democrats Win 13 Senate Seats

Of the 34 seats up for contest in the United States Senate, the Democrats had captured 13 while added to the 37 members they already have in the Senate, a majority of at least 25. A majority is 49.

Of the 435 seats in the House of Representatives, the Democrats had elected 192 the Republicans 167 and American-Labor one. Of 64 undecided, a majority is 218. These figures meant a net loss of 22 seats for the Democrats.

Of the 33 state governors, the Democrats had elected eight, the Republicans 11, and the Progressives, leaving nine undecided. This meant a net gain of four for the Republicans.

Democratic governors were ousted in Illinois, Minnesota and Connecticut in addition to New York.

An outstanding upset was the

SARNIA HYDRO BUILDING WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Part of Heating Equipment Blown Through Two Floors and Roof

OVER $85,000 DAMAGE

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — An explosion of undetermined origin wrecked the two-storey office building and sales room of the Sarnia Hydro Electric System early this morning.

Loss is estimated at $85,000 or more.

Persons living in apartments on both sides of the Hydro premises were awakened and there was some damage to their quarters but none was injured. Concussion shattered front windows in stores and offices on the opposite side of Front Street.

Glass was strewn all over the roadway. Part of the heating equipments of the Hydro building was blown through two floors and the roof. It lodged in a garage at the rear.

Firemen arrived shortly after the explosion but there was no blaze.

Mayor Leo Bureau was on hand.

Toronto — (CP) — Premier Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, said today that officials of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office were conferring with Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission officials on an explosion which wrecked the Hydro office building at Sarnia today.

"We will take such action for an investigation as may seem necessary," said Mr. Conant adding that his information was the Hydro building was almost completely wrecked in the blast, cause of which is unknown.

Mr. Conant said that provincial police at Sarnia reported that there was no indication to show the cause of the explosion, although it might have been the heating system.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE IN HIGH GEAR ON WHOLE FRONT

Hurl Back Axis Forces Half Way to El Daba

INCESSANT ATTACK

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 4 (AP)—Lt. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's army of the Nile has followed up its first victory over Field Marshal Rommel's tanks by smashing on beyond Sidi Abd El Rahman, 18 miles west of El Alamein on the coastal railroad, hurling the Axis back almost half way to El Daba from its deepest gain into Egypt.

A British communique indicated today that the 8th Army's offensive has gone into high gear along the whole front. It declared that the British forces also hurled back the Germans and Italians at the southern flank to the desert battlezone, capturing the strong points of Deir El Angar Munassibi and Himeimat.

(In London one British source declared that "the enemy seems to be in full retreat," and it appeared that Montgomery had brought into action the greatest striking force of armor and air power yet engaged in the fight for North Africa.)

Troops Still in Trap

(The wording of the communique, making clear that the Axis forces pinned against the coast were not included in the retreat beyond Sidi Abd el Rahman, gave evidence that the trapped troops had been unable to break out of the pocket in which they were held by Australian infantry, it was noted in London.)

Rommel's losses in the actual ground fighting were multiplied by the terrific aerial onslaught which British and Allied planes centred upon his forces as they withdrew in an attempt to reform.

"For the past 24 hours," the British communique related, "the full force of the Allied air striking power has been concentrated on enemy units withdrawing along the coastal road.

"Our light bombers and fighter bombers have maintained incessant pressure on excellent targets provided by slow moving transports.

"In addition, armored vehicles were attacked by low-flying aircraft along the whole battle area."

Axis Air Force Ineffective

Axis air forces were jolted back almost entirely on the defensive. Only twice, the R.A.F. reported, did German planes attempt to bomb Britain's attacking force, and in those attempts failed at a cost of 10 planes destroyed and at least a dozen damaged. Four more were destroyed in other operations, and another at Malta. British plane losses totalled 16.

Dispatches from the battlefront said the new British thrust developed from a striking base which British forces cleared out three miles west of a broad gap torn in the Axis defence system of minefields, barbed wire and strongpoints.

While British artillery and infantry held open this lane of assault, strong tank forces and troop reinforcements streamed through into a new fight over a battlefield littered with the wreckage of many of Rommel's tanks, while files of enemy prisoners including high officers plodded back to Britain's prisoner pens.

One Third Germans

About one-third of the prisoners were Germans, the rest Italians. Many were suffering from the shock of the terrifying artillery barrage which preceded the final Allied penetration.

International at a Glance

By The Canadian Press

EGYPT — 8th Army advances strongly under protection of "full force of the Allied air striking power;" two sections along 35-mile-wide front occupied by British troops; London quarters declare: "The enemy seems to be in full retreat."

RUSSIA—Red Army finally stems German thrust on Nalchik Plateau; reinforcements ferried across Volga by night to attack German rear north of Stalingrad.

COST-OF-LIVING BONUSES REMAIN AT PRESENT LEVEL

IN FORCE 3 MONTHS

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP)—The cost-of-living index at Oct. 1 was 117.8, a decrease of only 1/10th of a point from the July 1 index, and as a result the cost-of-living bonuses paid to employees in Canada will remain at their present level for the next three months, it was announced today.

The Oct. 1 cost-of-living index was 4/10th of a point above the index for Sept. 1.

"The October increase was due mainly to higher food prices although moderate seasonal increase also occurred for coal," the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said in its monthly cost-of-living index report.

"The food index advanced from 128.5 in September to 129.8 for Oct. 1. Eggs and oranges moved sharply higher and increases of lesser importance were recorded for butte, portance were recorded for butter, lemons.

"Most meats averaged slightly lower on Oct. 1 as did cheese and potatoes. The fuel and light index mounted from 112.5 to 112.8 because of the coal increases. The October rental survey showed small advances in a few localities but they were insufficient to change the Dominion rent index which remained at 113.3.

Clare Booth Luce Wins Republican Seat

Mrs. Luce, wife of the editor of Life magazine, won her first political campaign, and at the opening session of the 78th Congress in January she will take her place in the House with Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democrat, who New Jersey voters returned for her 10th term, and four Republican women who were re-elected. They were:

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, unopposed in her Massachusetts District; Jessie Sumner of Illinois; Mrs. Frances Bolton of Ohio, and Margaret Smith of Maine. The latter was elected in September.

Ham Fish Re-Elected

New York, (AP)—The combined assault of the Democratic and American Labor parties, plus Republican defection, today apparently had failed to unseat U.S. Representative Hamiton Fish, pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist and frequent critic of President Roosevelt's policies.

With returns in from 194 election districts of the 225 in the President's home congressional district, the 26th, Fish held a 3,777-vote lead over Ferdinand A. Hoyt, the Democratic and ALP candidate.

The vote Fish 42,036; Hoyt 38,286.

FIRE DESTROYS VALUED EDITIONS

New York, Nov. 4 — (AP)—Dorothy Thompson, the columnist, was routed by fire from her 48th Street home last night. She said one-third of her library, including many first editions, was destroyed. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

PROBE EXPLOSION IN LOWER SECTION OF VANCOUVER

Two Distinct Blasts In Court House Area Shatter Many Windows

POLICE FIND FUSE

Vancouver, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Police today stood guard at the Vancouver courthouse, in the downtown district of the city, after two explosions rocked the area late last night.

Windows were shattered and one of the large ornamental lions at the courthouse entrance was damaged. Police found a length of fuse which they said indicated dynamite had been used. No one was injured.

Extra police were called in from nearby lower mainland municipalities and a heavy guard was posted around the courthouse.

Windows were blown out in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation offices in the new Hotel Vancouver, the Georgia and the Devonshire hotels and in the old Vancouver Hotel. All the buildings flank the courthouse square.

Miss Odette Aainsworth, a telephone operator in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's office, narrowly missed serious injuries when the explosions blasted a large window across the room only a few feet from her.

Blasts 15 Seconds Apart

Bill Herbert, announcer at radio station CBR, said he was watching a stop-watch at the time and that the two explosions were 15 seconds apart.

Eye-witnesses told police that a man wearing a dark suit and soft felt hat ran down the courthouse steps a moment before the first explosion.

Sgt. P. E. J. Tomey, who was on the main floor of a building flanking the courthouse square, said there were two distinct blasts.

"The second was the loudest," he said. "Right after it I saw a short man dashing from the steps. I could see him in the light from the explosion just as he mounted the curb and started across the courthouse lawn toward Georgia and Hornby Streets."

Constables Oliver Ledingham and Neil McDonald, who were cruising in a prowler car two blocks from the courthouse, said the whole sky was lit up with a lurid blue flash.

Hundreds of persons who heard the blast thought an air raid had begun.

Soviet Commission To Compile Record Of German Crimes

Moscow, Nov. 4—(P)—Establishment of a special Soviet commission to compile a record of "the crimes of the German Fascist invaders and their accomplices" was announced today.

By decree of President Michael Kalinin, the commission is to determine losses suffered by collective farms and social organizations and, wherever possible, "establish the identity of the German Fascist criminals guilty of the organization or the execution of crimes in occupied Soviet territories in order to pass them over to court and punish them severely."

Declares Hess' Flight Made 'With Authority Of Hitler, Colleagues'

London, Nov. 4—(CP)—The London Daily Mail today quoted Sir Patrick Dollan, former Lord Provost (Mayor) of Glasgow, as saying that Rudolf Hess came to Britain as an "official ambassador of the Nazis" with peace terms that in effect would have made Britain "a German colony with Hitler as Dictator and Hess as Protector."

Sir Patrick told a Daily Mail reporter that Hess flew to Britain "with the authority of Hitler and his colleagues" and hoped he would be given gasoline and allowed to return within 48 hours.

The socialist lord provost was further quoted:-

"Hess had no documentary terms but indicated in conversation that all previous German colonies were to be returned to Germany and that Great Britain was to give up her military, naval and R.A.F. strength.

"She was also to pay indemnity and to be left with an R. A. F. to protect the British Isles.

"Europe was to be Germanized with the Fuehrer as overlord. Germany was to get the Atlantic coasts of West Africa, Syria, Palestine and other territories.

"Control of the Suez Canal was to be transferred to Italy and Germany. Mussolini was to get Corsica and Tunis. French Morocco and Gibraltar were to go to Spain.

"Hess said he did not want to see the Prime Minister or any of his colleagues but wished to clear them out of the government and blamed them for having caused the war.

"Hess was annoyed that he was kept a prisoner and complained of unfair treatment."

Hess parachuted from his plane in Scotland, and the mystery of his dramatic trip has never been officially explained. Soon after he left Germany the Nazis said he was mentally unbalanced and had flown to Britain as a self-appointed peace apostle. He is held in Britain as a war prisoner, and Soviet Russia recently suggested that he be tried immediately as a "war criminal."

NEWLY-CONTRIVED JAPANESE VICE IS BEING BROKEN

BENT ON CAPTURE

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—American troops on Guadalcanal have called upon aerial and naval power to smash a newly-contrived Japanese vice threatening to close in on the island's strategic airfield.

While United States marines and soldiers, dive-bombers and destroyers smashed at the invaders westward of the airbase. Nipponese vessels made a new landing of troops to the east under cover of darkness.

This added peril to the field, base of many aerial attacks on Japanese ships, troops and installations, was announced by War Secretary Frank Knox yesterday shortly after he cautioned against any false optimism over the battle of the Solomons.

Despite the offensive which earlier drove the foe back in the western portion of the island, the new Japanese landings Monday night obviously indicated the enemy still is desperately bent on capturing the airfield and with it, control of the Allies' South Pacific supply lines.

Destroyers Used

Meanwhile, the navy disclosed that destroyers bombarded the Japanese positions in Guadalcanal.

ADVANCE GROUPS PUSH SIX MILES BEYOND KOKODA

TRANSPORT SET AFIRE

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 4 (CP)—Advance groups of the Allied army in New Guinea have pushed nearly six miles beyond Kokoda, inland Japanese base captured Monday, and are approaching the village of Oivi on the road to the important coastal base at Buna, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Retreat of the Japanese toward Buna is continuing, the communique said, and there apparently is little fighting in the difficult New Guinea jungle country. There is a narrow road leading from Kokoda to Buna and the Allied supply problem was eased further because Kododa has a small airfield permitting the landing of supply planes from Port Moresby, main Allied base in New Guinea.

The Japanese have held Buna since July 22 when it was occupied by a sea-borne force. Although under almost daily attack by Allied bombers, the Buna garrison has been supplied by barge and larger ships from the Japanese bases at Lae and Salamaua, farther north on the New Guinea coast, and from Japanese-held New Britain.

Transport Set Afire

The most recent attempt to reinforce the garrison was frustrated Monday when Allied bombers found a convoy of two transports, a light cruiser and a destroyer and attacked in three waves between New Guinea and New Britain. One transport was set on fire and apparently was abandoned off the south coast of New Britain. Allied reconnaissance planes found the ship, station-

Many High Officers Captured by British In Egyptian Campaign

By FRANK L. MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the 8th Army, El Alamein Front, Nov. 3 —(Delayed)—(AP)—British armored and infantry forces again attacked Monday night and in heavy fighting completed establishing a strong position extending three miles west of the broken enemy minefields.

On a wide front inside this position and bordered by enemy anti-tank guns in formidable force, our strongest tanks and reinforcements continued to arrive.

It now may be disclosed that large numbers of enemy tanks were knocked out by the British forces during Sunday night and daylight Monday.

An increasing number of German and Italian prisoners had arrived at British pens by sundown Monday. They included some high officers.

RUSSIANS STEM GERMAN DRIVE INTO CAUCASUS

Several Heights In Nalchik Area Retaken by Strong Counter-Attacks

IMPROVE POSITIONS

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Soviet forces hold improved positions against German attacks in the Battle of Stalingrad, and have dislodged the invaders from several heights in the Western Caucasus counter-offensive, the Russians announced today.

Two successive communiques indicated, moreover, that the roundabout Nazi drive from Mozdok toward the heart of the South Caucasus finally had been stemmed by Red Army men southeast of Nalchik.

More than 200 Germans died under Soviet shelling of a Nazi concentration and the armored and aerial strength of the offensive was whittled down, the Russians said.

The noon communique announced that Soviet troops dislodged the Germans from a fortified position northeast of Tuapse in the Western Caucasus campaign while others occupied several heights and beat off an enemy counter-attack.

Better at Stalingrad

About a company of Germans was reported killed or wounded in one action; 170 were declared killed in the other.

Stalingrad's garrison was credited with the recapture of several more strongholds in fierce fighting yesterday and subsequent assaults by the Germans were declared thrown back.

Ontario and Quebec Urged to Give Lead For Canadian Unity

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, War Services Minister, in a speech here last night maintained that Canadian unity would follow if Ontario and Quebec would give the lead to the other provinces.

"Only the moral strength of a united people will carry Canada through to victory," said the recently-appointed War Services Minister in an address before a joint meeting of local Service Clubs and Cornwall Board of Trade.

He added he was speaking as an "apostle of Goodwill to all men who love peace." It was essential that Canada be prepared at first for winning the war and then to face the period of reconstruction which will follow.

Cut Democratic Majorities in Both Senate and House

NEW DEALERS BEATEN

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 4 — (CP) — A tremendous rebirth of Republican strength reflecting public impatience with the management of the war by the Roosevelt administration, featured the wartime election held in the United States yesterday.

Riding the crest of public favor, the Republicans swept into individual offices or cut down Democratic majorities all over the land but they definitely fell short of controlling the Senate and apparently are headed for another term as minority party in the House of Representatives although with a substantially increased bloc of seats.

In their sweep, the Republicans placed Thomas E. Dewey, the 40-year-old crusading attorney, in the New York State Governor's House for a four-year term and sent a number of New Dealers, apparently including the veteran Senator from Nebraska, George W. Norris, toppling from high places.

On the basis of incomplete returns, the Republicans, staging a dramatic and only partially-expected comeback, cut into Democratic majorities in both the Senate and House and snatched at least three State Governors' offices that may have marked bearing on the outcome of the 1944 Presidential campaign.

Democrats Win 12 Senate Seats

Of the 34 seats up for contest in the United States Senate, the Democrats had captured 13 which, added to the holdovers from 1940 gave them a total membership of at least 54. The Republicans had elected 15 for a membership of at least 35. A majority is 49.

Of the 435 seats in the House of Representatives, the Democrats had elected 182 the Republicans 167 and American-Labor one, leaving 83 undecided. A majority is 218. These figures meant a net gain of 22 seats for the Republicans.

Of the 33 state governors, the Democrats had elected eight, the Republicans 15, and the Progressives one, leaving nine undecided. This meant a net gain of four for the Republicans.

Democratic governors were ousted in Michigan, California and Connecticut in addition to New York.

An outstanding upset was the

SARNIA HYDRO BUILDING WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Part of Heating Equipment Blown Through Two Floors and Roof

OVER $85,000 DAMAGE

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — An explosion of undetermined origin wrecked the two-storey office building and sales room of the Sarnia Hydro Electric System early this morning.

Loss is estimated at $85,000 or more.

Persons living in apartments on both sides of the Hydro premises were awakened and there was some damage to their quarters but none was injured. Concussion shattered front windows in stores and offices on the opposite side of Front Street.

Glass was strewn all over the roadway. Part of the heating equipment of the Hydro building was blown through two floors and the roof. It lodged in a garage at the rear.

Firemen arrived shortly after the explosion but there was no blaze.

An investigation is likely.

Toronto — (CP) — Premier Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, said today that officials of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office were conferring with Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission officials on an explosion which wrecked the Hydro office building at Sarnia today.

"We will take such action for an investigation as is deemed necessary," said Mr. Conant adding that his information was the Hydro building was almost completely wrecked in the blast, cause of which is unknown.

Mr. Conant said that provincial police at Sarnia reported that there was nothing definite to show the cause of the explosion, although it might have been the heating system.

35 Former Allied Merchantmen Being Handed by Vichy to Axis

London, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The Ministry of Economic Welfare said today that the Vichy Government is handing over 35 former Allied merchantmen in French Mediterranean ports to the Axis.

There have been previous reports that such transfers were shaping up, but the Ministry's statement was the first such word from any of the United Nations' governments.

The announcement said the ships being handed over totalled 120,000 tons. Thirteen of the vessels are going to Germany and 22 to Italy.

A BBC broadcast Oct. 23 said German authorities in Paris had told Pierre Laval, French Chief of Government, that he must surrender all merchant ships, French or foreign, which were in France's ports.

Foreign ships in French harbors were reported to include Norwegian, Danish and Greek vessels.

The Ministry said that so far as was known only three ships actually had reached the Axis. They were taken to Genoa. Three of the 35 ships involved previously had been under charted to Britain.

Fall of Kokoda Has Tremendous Effect on the Peoples of Europe

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

Madrid, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Fall of the jungle village of Kokoda, which only a handful of Europeans had heard of until this summer, has had a tremendous effect on Europe—thanks to Axis propaganda before the tide turned against the Japanese on New Guinea.

In September, when the Germans became touchy about emphasizing "the last moments of Stalingrad" in their news releases and broadcasts, they started to give a big play to the Japanese offensive in New Guinea.

Under a Tokyo dateline they cited Japanese dispatches from Kokoda, describing it as a "Japanese base on the Australian front," told how the Japanese had Allied forces on the run and explained it was only a matter of days until Port Moresby fell and the Japanese pounced upon Northern Australia.

The name of Kokoda as a Japanese base appeared with monotonous frequency in the Axis press and the press of unoccupied France, Spain and Portugal for weeks.

The stories were complete with maps showing Kokoda at the base of arrows shooting across the Owen Stanley Mountains to Port Moresby, across Torres Strait to Cape York in Australia and even across Australia to Brisbane, Sydney and Melbourne.

But German propaganda now has come home to roost.

No maps appear in the German press — nor does the name of Kokoda.

But small items were in the neutral press reporting Kokoda's fall and London and New York were heard broadcasting announcements of its capture.

This news made a tremendous impression — perhaps an even greater impression than other more important battles now raging — on continental peoples.

It was the last straw necessary to swing many doubting Thomases to the conviction that the Japanese were on the defensive. A change has come almost all at once.

British forces are attacking on the African front; United States Marines on Guadalcanal are attacking; and finally the Japanese have lost the outstanding dateline of their Pacific war.

The result: continental peoples are beginning to talk of things Berlin would prefer to squelch.

BOND MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARS AND AS STRANGELY RETURNS

When her $100 Victory Bond mysteriously disappeared from her place of employment where it had been placed for safe keeping, and could not be found, a city woman, immediately reported the fact to the Victory Loan Committee.

Banks were notified and the usual procedure of stoppage of payment completed.

Whether or not the party who removed the bond suddenly "got wise" to what might happen, and did not be known, but suffice it to say, the bond, later, was found, just as mysteriously, was returned to its original spot.

"That is liable to happen to me any time", the lady in question told Loan officials, and as I can't afford to be without a bond, here is $100 for another one. I'll put this one in a different place".

Obituary

MRS. AMY HENNESEY

After an illness of one week during which time specialists from Toronto were called to attend her, Mrs. Amy Hennesey, widow of Sidney W. Hennesey, died at her home in the 2nd concession, Ameliasburgh, on Friday, Prince Edward County, on Tuesday September 29th, in her 70th year.

The late Mrs. Hennesey was born in Prince Edward County and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Walker. All her life was passed in the county where she was born and she was highly esteemed in the community. In religious faith she was a member of Victoria United Church, Ameliasburgh.

She was the last of her family and is survived by one daughter Mrs. Fletcher Hunter of Belleville, and one son, Mr. Bruce Hennesey, at home. Her husband died many years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MISS MARGARET HOLDCROFT

Tweed —(Special)— The funeral of the late Miss Margaret Holdcroft of this place took place in Belleville in her seventy-second year, was held Monday afternoon from the Martin Funeral Home, Belleville, to Tweed Cemetery. Rev. Tweed, Rev. Eric Lawson, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Tweed, had charge of the service at the grave.

The late Miss Holdcroft was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Holdcroft of Tweed. She was a member of the staff of Tweed Public School, a later Consolidated School, for a quarter of a century. She was first appointed to the staff in 1893, remaining until 1903. Later in the year 1908 she was re-engaged as a teacher. She filled the position most acceptably until ill-health forced her to retire from the teaching profession in 1924 to the sincere and general regret of the citizens of the community. Miss Holdcroft also taught at Chapman's Corners, Sidney, for a number of years and was regarded as a most capable teacher by the Inspectors.

Since her retirement from the teaching profession, the late Miss Holdcroft has made her home with her sister, Mrs. Fred Hicks, in Clearwater, Florida, and for the past few years in Belleville, she is survived by her sister, and a brother, Dr. Holdcroft, Havelock. The pall bearers were Dr. F. T. Bowlby, S. S. Rolling, Arthur Alexander, A. B. McCoy, Geo. A. Mettlejohn and S. H. Conner.

LATE MRS. GRACE BOOTH

The funeral of Mrs. Grace (Martin) Booth, late residence, 70 Purdy Street, took place Tuesday afternoon, from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Dilts, minister of Holloway Street United Church.

The following acted as pallbearers: R. Greatrix, K. R. Earle, H. Sager, R. McKinney, J. Hudgins and G. S. Dobbs.

Marmora

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, Mrs. Wes. Kidney and Mrs. Gordon Alyea attended an Eastern Star afternoon tea in Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kenny and family of Detroit, Mich., are visiting home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Kenny.

P.U.C. Grants Rebate To City Water Users For Nov. and Dec.

No charge to water users of the city will have been taking the service of Belleville Public Utilities Commission since January, 1943, will be made the last months for November and December, the Commission decided at its regular meeting on Monday afternoon. The reduction will apply to all users as specified in the resolution of those on the $ 1-3 cent rate, when one reduction will be made on that portion of their consumption.

The motion was made by Commissioner Morley Duff and seconded by Chairman George A. Reid. Mayor Glen E. Thompson was not present.

Prior to the motion Commissioner Duff stated that the two months reduction is being carried on in many municipalities and he felt "it was the proper thing to do here. "It avoids unnecessary changes in rates and besides, it is a yearly transaction of business."

To this Commissioner Duff continued, "that the people who are putting their money in are getting the rake-off from the same consideration, especially the tenants of the city as well as the ratepayers."

Chairman Reid agreed "those people who are contributing to the profits of the city should receive a share of some share of the profits", he said. "Some people feel that the Commission is piling money up, but they are just as much shareholders as the ratepayers for the time being, and as such should receive a share."

Discussing the forthcoming legal action between the Commission and the Corporation of the City of Belleville, with regard to the erection of the Dam, the City Engineer, Chairman Reid read the following statement to the commission:—

"As Chairman of the Belleville Utilities Commission, I wish to inform the public of some facts regarding the situation between the City of Belleville and the Utilities Commission. The Commission did not enter suit against the City, it is only defending the water rights against the action taken by the City.

"At a regular meeting of the Commission, the condition of the water supply was discussed and the Commission unanimously decided to ask the firm of Gore and Storrie to make a report of the water supply in this city. On the date of June 17th, 1941, it was moved by myself and Commissioner Morley Thompson that the Commission engage Gore and Storrie to make a report.

"One of the recommendations made by Gore, Storrie was to excavate underground reservoir (now standpipe) which would have stored one million gallons of water should be built. When the Commission engineers met with the Council the City Council issued an injunction against the work. So, the members of the Council were in favour of the excavation and are against it so Mayor Thompson gave the deciding vote against it which carried. Hence the suit. "The Commission, after considering the report from Gore & Storrie, with the health of the citizens of Belleville in mind feels that the reservoir is urgently needed. If Mayor Thompson and the members of the Council are with us, they can still withdraw the action and the Commission is glad to go on with the work.

"To show the increase in the amount of water which is being used in 1939 the consumption was 1,400,000 gallons and in 1941 the consumption was 888,981,000. Our largest user, the Canadian National Railways used in 1935—74,313,750 gallons and in 1941—97,000,000 gallons. Our storage is limited. I feel as does Commissioner Duff that the Commission would be betraying the confidence of the water users if it does not go ahead and provide a pure and abundant supply of water. Should a fire break out and the water users suffer from the lack of water, the Commission cannot be laid on the Commission as it was ready to go ahead with the work. The case is now at hand, will be paid out of the water works revenue as the Commission feels necessary to sustain the Water Works Department."

Geo. A. Reid,
Chairman, Belleville Public Utilities Commission."

The Canadian National Railways, it was pointed out, used 97,000,000 in the month of October, 1942, than ever before in the history of the Commission. Difficulty, in getting water connections with the City is the way is being experienced.

It was also stated that the Cataraqui Pumping Station is slight profit during the month of August and September.

Three Killed In Plane Crash Near London

London, Ont., Nov. 4.—(CP)—R. C. A. F. authorities said last night that an investigation had been ordered into circumstances surrounding the crash of an Anson bomber in a field near Dorchester early Tuesday taking the lives of three and critically injuring a fourth person.

The craft was on a routine night training flight from No. 4 Air Observers' School, Crumlin, when the accident occurred.

The dead are:

Pilot Officer Frederick A. Griffin, 30, Whitevale, Ont., an R.C.A.F. Wireless Operator-Air-Gunner. His wife is Mrs. R. J. Griffin, Whitevale.

LAC. Sidney Acker, 23, Guelph, a student navigator, whose next-of-kin is his mother, Mrs. Milly Acker, of Guelph.;

Identification Withheld

Identification of the fourth member of the bomber crew, a student navigator, was withheld pending notification of his next-of-kin. He is suffering from undetermined injuries and is under a 50-50 chance of recovery. He is at No. 4 A. O. S. hospital.

The injured student navigator was wedged in the debris of the crash for almost 12 hours before he was removed. When searchers arrived on the scene after wading into Dorchester swamp for more than 400 yards from the nearest roadway, his feeble cries directed them to him.

Completely buried from sight and completely cut off from water and mud, he calmly directed rescue operations, and collapsed only after he had been extricated from the wreckage.

Rescue workers toiled for more than an hour before they could free the navigator from the mud and wreckage that held him.

Letter To The Editor

OWE MUCH TO GREECE

Toronto.

Editor,
"The Ontario Intelligencer",
Belleville, Ont.

Sir:

As one of your farm readers, permit me to express and noble approval in connection with a recent editorial—"Greece Must Live"—which seemed to me to be in your good forms.

The whole cause of Freedom has been once more imperishably served by the courage and noble deeds who dared to stand in the gap in the dark hours. Invader for five sacrificial months! As we look back on the long and slender margine the brutal Hun has failed to reach certain objectives in Egypt, Palestine, Iraq, Iran and Cairo—it becomes crystal clear how much he owes to the Greek peoples owe to the thin but noble fraternity. As your editorial aptly says: "Canadians feel their obligation to the great men in the United States." The abundance of Canadian farms will go the universal cereal, wheat, which will be the salvation of the people—fifteen thousand tons per month being the present figure—more of shipment."

As I write, the following paragraph in this same connection appears in a news story from New York, detailing with the publication's summary of Broomhall (Liverpool): "Greece is being starved to death without monthly from Canada, but British officials can't survey more further undertakings of this nature will be attempted until the question of the transportation is known. The wheat now arriving represents the roughly estimate of the normal Greek imports before the war; and, with apparently badly disorganization in that country, the food situation is becoming serious.

The above is moderate language, when measured against these grim facts, brought forward in a letter in the New York Times (Oct. 26): "One hundred and fifty thousand children dead in the Athens district alone; about out of eight have water and mud, he calmly directed rescue operations, and collapsed only after he had been extricated from the wreckage.

Rescue workers toiled for more than an hour before they could free the navigator from the mud and wreckage that held him.

Slight Reduction In Building Permits For Month of October

Wartime government building restrictions were held responsible by City Chief Building Inspector for a slight reduction in the amount of residential construction in the city during the month of October as compared to the same period last year. During the month building permits to the value of $20,600 were issued at the City Hall.

Total construction in the city up until the end of October is counted to $175,775, as compared to $223,100 for the same period. Twenty-four permits 101 permits have been issued as compared to 106 permits up until the end of October 1 last year. Seven permits were issued during the month for these being for residences.

Permits issued included list included permits th Howard Carter for a dwelling on Howard Street at cost of $1,500; to J. S. McKenzie for the construction of a chicken house on Bleecker at $100; Robinson Brothers, construction of a milk shed at $200; also on Coleman St. at $5,000; L. G. Foxard, dwelling on Bridge Street at $4,000 and to L. Carruthers for a dwelling on William Street at $4,500.

Victory Loan Speakers Visit Deloro Plant

Marmora — Undoubted stimulus was given the 3rd Victory Loan campaign at Deloro on Monday afternoon as a visit was paid to the plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited, by three officers of the R.C.A.F., Trenton. Following the monthly Safety-First meeting the employees assembled within the Sleithe plant yard. A. E. Yates, M.C., having made suitable introductory remarks, the first speaker was then given by Flight Lieut. J. S. Harris who emphasized the urgent present need for money to maintain the fighting forces. He in turn introduced Squadron Leader Christmas who began his address by telling about Flight Lieut. Walker, winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross. In succession the other speakers in short speeches, brought out the fact that the present seriousness of the present conflict and forcibly drew attention to the industrial workers in Canada must play their part in keeping Hitler's hordes at bay.

At the conclusion of their speeches, Mr. Yates, plant manager of the company, extended thanks to the speakers on behalf of all present and said it should be apparent to all that every man and woman will of necessity follow it, should be well supported. A few cuts announcement was made by Cdr. A. V. Yates before the gathering dispersed.

The monthly meeting of Deloro Safety Committee was held in the electric shop on Monday afternoon under the presidency of R. A. Sleithe. Reports of the Inspection Committee was presented by W. L. Bigg. C. Watson was appointed floating member for November. The report of the Health and Sanitation Committee was given by J. A. Rice.

Cpl. W. Bunkard gave the monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds and the closery report that of the Publicity Committee was given by J. H. Hemphill.

Favors Postponement 'For Duration' Of Annual Conventions, Meetings

Belleville Chamber of Commerce Executive Sees Much Saving of Time in Such Step — Copies of Resolution Sent to Many Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce Throughout Canada

Belleville Chamber of Commerce executive recommends to the public the postponement for duration of the war of innumerable annual conventions, general meetings of trade bodies, service clubs and other organizations which entail a great deal of time, comfort and money by the delegates and hotel and kid to the business of the railways and other public carriers, hotels and restaurants.

Copies of this resolution were mailed to many of the more important Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce throughout the Dominion.

Already some letters have come in to the local Chamber expressing concurrence in such a step.

The resolution is as follows:

"WHEREAS, the holding of innumerable annual conventions and general meetings of trade bodies, service clubs and of other organizations entail a great deal of time, money, not only upon the part of the delegates but also upon the people of the towns and cities where are held such meetings, and

"AND, WHEREAS, our railways and other public carriers, our hotels and restaurants are now regularly crowded to the limit of their capacity by the ordinary demands of wartime traffic;

"AND, WHEREAS, the business carried on by such conventions and meetings is, of lesser than usual importance to the public at large;

"NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved that the Belleville Chamber of Commerce recommend that all conventions of trade bodies, service clubs and other organizations be postponed for the duration of the war and that the business usually transacted at such conventions or meetings be carried on by the executive officers or deferred until the postwar period, or if such postponement or deferment be not thought possible, that measures be taken to reduce the attendance thereat to the number of convention delegates".

Highly Entertaining Program Staged at Victory Loan Show

In one of the most brilliant soirees ever seen on a Belleville stage, the entertainers organized by the Royal Canadian Air Force personnel went over the Victory Loan in the evening "creeps" here Tuesday night and captured 1,100 hearts and subsequently, a large slice of night operations.

Representatives of the Trenton Air Station: 6 R.D.; No. 5 Initial Training School, Picton; Manning Depot, Picton; Technical Training School, Picton; Belleville and district, put on a splendid program that for variety and sheer entertainment, will be hard to be excelled here.

The show was staged under the auspices of the Third Victory Loan Belleville Public Utilities Hall. The unqualified success is due to the versatile ability of the outstanding artistes, from the co-operation of Air Commodore Frank S. McGiffin, Officer Commanding the Trenton Air Station, other station officers generally, Flying Squadron Leader Norman A. Nunn, senior equipment officer, Trenton, and Flying Officer Dunn, entertainment officer at Trenton. The efforts of the latter officer in organizing the artists and program for the show, were outstanding factors to the success of the show.

Indicative of the large crowd present and its attitude was the generous response to the appeal made by the station's prisoners of war in Dieppe, Libya and Malta. The total dollar collection ever taken in a Belleville entertainment, known as the "Incoming" collection amounted to $121 and was taken during the exit brought this amount to well over the $300 mark.

Popularity of the R.C.A.F. station's band was certainly in the fact that not a seat was available when the show started. He is also scheduled for the curtain's rise.

Both orchestra and band was staging provided by the commando of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, black-faced stalwarts of the regiment's band presented stirring and with bayonetted rifles stood sentry-go beside famous Commando Dagger which lay in its case on a table. Commando Cole in full dress regalia near the main entrance to the auditorium.

During the show, Corporal, Lieut.-Col. R. C. Donnan, officer commanding, and staff of commando demonstrated briefly the activities of a heavy and scarcely ever-ending and unarmed combat.

Another hit that drew thunderous applause was a cornet duet given by two Collegiate students, Bonnie Cummings and Jack Bowerman. The youthful musicians showed splendid showmanship and outstanding control.

All new for the show proper.

There was little to choose among the numbers staged by Flying Officer Dunn, but the singing program sparkled with music, showmanship, acrobatics and vocalists. It ran through its sequence smoothly and lasted for 150 minutes without a break.

Urged to Buy Bonds

Prior to the curtain rise, Air Commodore McGill, introduced by Flying Officer Dunn, urged the purchase by Victory Loan Bonds. "This war," he said, "cannot be won by the armed services alone. The total co-operation of the army, navy and air force and the civilian population must be forthcoming if Victory is to be finally achieved."

He pointed out the fine effort being made by the R.C.A.F. personnel in the district stations as regards the purchase of bonds, and counted to Belleville and district's helps have not yet attained theirs. He urged the purchase of providing equipment and arms for the lads overseas, and that sure Canada would come through.

Outstanding in the program was Flying Officer Goff and his acrobatic trio of Sergt. Minshardt, flight sergeant Geo. Hall and aircrewoman 2 Stockton. This clever trio "brought the house down" with its amazing ease and easily earned the applause given them. Minshardt is a former member of the vaudeville Sergt. "Pras" Dowie, cartoonist extraordinary, who took a prominent role with LAC. Mike Botis. The Corner of the sets with Dowie providing the "action" and Botis the singing, nearly brought down the house.

Sheet Music Exhibited

Also earning thunderous applause was the piano act of LAC. Campbell, LT.-Aircraftsman Cole and Templeton and his "grand opera" "Pinafore" (Mrs. Johnson, pianist; a monologue by LAC. John; and another by Sergt. Marjorie and a piano duet by PO. Creeper (sweet-toned Mary Cary, former pupil of the late Mrs. Creeper) and her audience with two numbers and her efforts earned her the applause her harmonies in the mess, sang "Pinafore" and "Mikado" and their departure to the rest of the program.

F/O 2 Scott thrilled with his guitar was a prime favorite and his stirring imitations of Jimmy Crosby and Cab Calloway drew a fine ovation from the audience. Aircrewman Stockton, young acrobatic airwoman gave an individual performance of acrobatic dancing and Aircrewman AW 2 Ella, proved that she was a star with an accordion.

One of the features of the show and one that made an instantaneous hit was "Buff" Estes "Swing Boys". This group, consisting of four lads, will be present but his place was capably filled by one of the station's musicians. The band showed extraordinary ability and versatility and their four numbers evoked a thunderous ovation. An airwomen's chorus was rendered.

R.C.I. Band Plays

Last but by no means least was the fine band of the Collegiate Institute which played several numbers prior to the concert and during the exit. It was under the baton of George Mills who also accompanied the cornet duo. Another outstanding pianist was Corporal Frank Smallman, who performed for several of the acts.

Flight Lieutenant John Harris made a fine master-of-ceremonies and his efforts added much to the general enjoyment.

Following the performance members of the "cast" were treated to refreshments and the whole evening's served by several of the school staff, Mr. Ross Silver, of the Public Relations Committee was conveyed the appreciation of the Victory Loan Committee here for the fine performance and co-operation of the R.C.A.F. officers and personnel.

District Hardware Dealers Meet

Hardware dealers of Central Ontario from an area extending from Port Hope to Kingston met at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday evening to discuss problems pertaining to the hardware trade. Questions discussed were those arising as the result of wartime restrictions and conditions of general hardware lines.

Speakers for the evening were Mr. Fred S. Smart, Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Retail Hardware Association, and Mr. C. A. Lamb, of the management service of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Twenty-eight points of interest to those in the retail hardware business were presented for the meeting by the speakers, each point being suitably illustrated by notes and charts.

About 30 hardwaremen from the district attended the meeting which was presided over by Mr. James Calloway, past president of the Ontario Retail Hardware Association.

GIVEN PROMOTION

Petawawa, Nov. 4.—Private J. Kennedy of Belleville, a member of the Canadian Dental Corps at Petawawa Military Camp, has been promoted to the rank of lance corporal.

Lance Corporal Kennedy, whose wife resides at 41 Mutrey Street, Belleville, was a member of the Argyle Light Infantry before he transferred to the Dental Corps in May 1942.

More than one-third of the Canadian people live on Dairy Farms and are being operated by produce gas derived from wood, charcoal, peat or peat coke.

COINED PHRASE ?

It now comes out that "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" was phrased by the fact that the hell o' Pearl Harbor last December was explained by the late (Lt. Grade) Howel Forgy, ex-footballplaying naval chaplain, who comes from Haddonfield, N.J. Chaplain Forgy, stationed on a cruiser at Pearl Harbor used the phrase to encourage the men as they passed up by hand to fight off the Japs.

THE JUTE SUIT

A Melbourne, Australia, tailor models his own "austerity suit" of jute. He says the normal material shortage caused by the war limited clothing manufacture. He used undyed sugar sacks and the manufacturer's markings leave no doubt as to their origin. While the material used in making the original sacks was dyed, he said the option this could be perhaps a "jute suit."

Fruits of Victory

A tribute to the people of Britain of 1940 was paid the other day by Archdeacon Gower-Lees at Montreal when he said that in that year Hitler lost the war. The Battle of Britain was one of the most decisive battles of the world, in the view of the archdeacon, who said that what now remained was to reap the fruits of that great victory.

Hitler's position as France collapsed in 1940 was one of the most sensational for through his treachery in invading the north-western nations of Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium and by using the full force of his new war machine he was able in a short time to overrun the Low Countries and weaken France.

Only a few miles of water and air separated him from England, the nation he most aimed to strike. But never did he improve his position, for Britain there displayed all the courage of a freedom-loving race. Before more than three months were past Adolf Hitler had given up trying to blast Britain into subjection. It was a great victory for Britain. Her people had been found faithful to the trust imposed in them, they had proven themselves worthy of the high place which they had occupied for generations before the world.

Not even with the accession of Mussolini, the blatant and rapacious, who ran into the Nazi's arms in order to grab desired spoils and to strike a blow at Britain did Hitler's star ascend. Britain girded herself, mastered her task of holding the Mediterranean in spite of the new problems caused by Italy's entry. Next year Hitler tried his hand in the Balkans and then in June the aggressor, grabbing at what he thought was an opportunity, attacked Russia who surprised him. Then came the second Axis accession — the arrival in the war of the grinning, treacherous Japanese — but even this did not make Hitler's star shine more bright, for the Japanese attack on the United States brought the United States with her great resources into the war as a combatant. The United Nations grow in power and Hitler falls to gain his objective while he while being pounded by the Royal Air Force and American air men and facing that dauntless, unconquerable Russian resistance.

The reason of the set-back is that all that remains is to reap the fruits of that victory has its implications.

The British that triumphed over Hitler in 1940 showed that she was most determined tyranny and aggression. She is more powerful today and there are the other United Nations facing the Axis, too.

Today in Canada the people are striving to show that they are in earnest in helping to reap the fruits of that air victory of 1940. One of the outstanding evidences is the response to the Third Victory Loan. Here the people are taking one of the necessary steps to maintain the spirit of the men at the front and to "pass the ammunition" to the warriors of sea, land and air. The home front will make the total of the war loan the high-est it is possible, and will not stop with the minimum objective but go on to a record goal. That is helping to reap the fruits of victory won by the dauntless members of the air force, the men at sea and those who stood ready on land in 1940.

Defy the Huns

The Huns who have desecrated the treasures and shrines of the peoples of occupied Europe and everywhere show the viciousness and evil of Nazism by taking human life have without any suggesting of conscience been demanding that Greeks in Macedonia recruit for war work in Germany. In Greece there is a half answer. It is "no" and they mean it.

So everywhere the coarse Hun finds himself snubbed to his face. No people can see eye to eye with the Hitlerites.

Greeks will not undo the work of patriots who have fought and died, and those who are at work sabotaging the Hun machine. They will not go into German factories to make weapons or munitions or do other work for the unspeakable Boche. The descendants of the men of Thermopylae and Marathon and of the warriors who knew Alexander the Great cannot work for the barbarous Nazi.

NOTHING MATTERS NOW BUT VICTORY

We must not count the cost, though great it be,
Nor yet bewail the losses we've sustained.
In this grim fight, for life itself and freedom,
We must give ALL, until our goal's attained.
For mark you well, the high ideals we've cherished
Of decency and right, a faith in God,
Will soon be swept away from us forever
And 'neath the vile oppressor's heel be trod,
Unless we face the common foe united
And do our part until the world is free
From ruthless tyranny and tears, and terror!
For nothing matters now but Victory.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Many a Pop is going to be disappointed this Christmas. No, dear reader, he won't be deprived of the pleasure of buying gifts for the head of the house, Junior, daughter and the rest of the family and in-laws, but he will be robbed of the fun of playing with the children's gifts, to a great extent.

For instance, Pop, if that electric train he bought the boy last Christmas is out of order, will be out of luck. He won't be able to get spare parts for it and besides there won't be enough power to go around to let the Old Man balance on his stomach and watch the cute little cars speed on their miniature tracks.

The majority of the children's presents this Christmas will be made of plastic and wood. Already some shops are showing British planes and tanks, not to mention soldiers, sailors and airmen, manufactured in plastic. The big kiddie kars are out. The bicycles have joined the realm of things that were.

And just to prove that the little brown Nipponese rats worked, lived and produced for nothing are the celluloid or combination-made rattles and similar toys, that now are priced-marked 59c each, while a few years ago the Japanese made articles sold for 15c.

No use buying strings of colored electric lights for the neighbor. In the first place, there aren't any, and in the second place, you won't be permitted to light them if they are for outside use. There will be nothing lit up outside, unless it is of a temporary nature, and walks on two feet.

There is a sufficiency of picture books, so-it looks as-if the Old Man will have to content himself this Yuletide with coloring crayons, playing soldier with plastic tanks, and, perhaps, with airmen, planes and battleships, or fall back on the annual time-honored practice of comparing the seasonal flock of family neckties with wall-paper designs throughout the house.

The reporter also found out while he was at it that Alaska Sable now becomes natural or dyed Kkunk, Genet is dyed or natural cat, Mouffion is goat and Wolf Fox is dyed dog.

We can just hear Mrs. Jones calling out the window to her friend in a waiting car: "Half a jiff, I'll just throw my skunk over my shoulders and be right down."

REPRISALS

"Two hundred executed more!"
Old men, old women, girls and boys!
The gentle folk who lived next door,
The children at their toys!

"Four hundred thousand killed," they say,
Since first this dreadful war began,
Just for refusing to betray
And send to death a fellow man.

There was a village whole wiped out,
Its every little house knocked flat,
Though war at best is hell, I doubt
It calls for cruelty like that.

And this I wonder when at last
Peace soothes this troubled world again,
How those with such a vicious past
Will dare to pose as gentlemen.

HE KNOWS HOW TO USE IT!

The Commando dagger of Saint John, N.B., is being given an approving polishing-up in this photo by Lieut. Ronald Chapman, R.N.V.R., of Surrey, England. 32-year-old veteran of many lightning raids on enemy garrisons along the coast of Europe, who came to New Brunswick to address the Third Victory Loan mass meetings. Armed only with this famed weapon of cold steel, Lieut. Chapman has often engaged in hand-to-hand combat with Nazi sentries in raids on such enemy outposts as the Lofoten Islands, Le Havre and the Channel Islands. Prior to coming to Canada he had been touring United States training camps demonstrating British Commando tactics to troops in training.

As a matter of fact, all three of the Navy men examining the dagger in the photo have been where things are happening in this war. Surgeon Lieut. R. W. Clark, at left, is a Saint John Officer who has just been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for service with the Royal Navy.

He has had to remove scraps from death in the last two years, his first destroyer, the Broadwater, being torpedoed while on convoy duty in the North Atlantic, and his second, the Airedale, being sunk by dive bombers while convoying in the Mediterranean.

Lieut. G. A. Brown, R.C.N.V.R., at right, officer commanding H.M.C.S. Brunswicker, R.C.N.V.R. training establishment in Saint John, was invalided back from England after having been injured in an air raid. His book pleasage on the battleship Rodney — and it was on this trip that the Rodney participated in the search for and sinking of the German battleship Bismarck.

On 'The Typewriter Strategists'

New York, Nov. 4 — My mind keeps harking back to the President's remarks in his last public utterance about "typewriter strategists," and his advice to leave the war to the experts.

If there were not a queasy feeling in the pits of American stomachs about the conduct of the war, as to both military and domestic mobilization, there would be no room for any "typewriter strategists."

But, as a person with an inscrutable search after definitions, would like to know the meaning of the "typewriter strategist," I have put in his context inquiries that no one has yet in the high places has a right to an opinion on matters of war strategy.

The fact is that in no army or navy do its own experts all agree. I say in no army or navy. General Seeckt, the Italian, the former French, the British, nor ours.

I make only one exception. Students of Russian military strategy find considerable unity in the Russian plan, for the last fifteen years. The purge of the generals was a political matter, not a military, and their successors maintained the same general strategy.

Clearages in German Army, on the other hand, it is now apparent that there have been sharp military clearages concerning the war plans which radically departs from the strategic planning advice given the army by its modern founder, the brilliant General von Seeckt.

The genius of the army is authoritarian and disciplinarian. The strategy of the German generals is purged. One does not have to look ahead for evidence. Take the case of Billy Mitchell, when the "typewriter strategists" could not agree from their own ranks. A certain French general became a typewriter strategist himself, in order to air some views to which no attention was paid in the high command. His name was Charles de Gaulle. His views were shared by a lot of other "typewriter strategists" who could not put over their views, in face of the opposition of Allied high commands.

In the last war Clemenceau remarked, "War is a much too serious matter to be left to generals." The tank was forced upon the British Army by Churchill and Lloyd George. The German generals at the same time, and even after the tank had been proved, used to call the new weapon a "coffin on wheels." Even the talents that Ludendorff was a brilliant general, but he was all wet concerning tanks.

Nobody denies that Robert E. Lee, in the opinion of many Europeans, was a brilliant general but he lost the war.

What gives the military experts in the high commands their superiority? Long training in the art and science of war—out of books and out of experience—and the advantages of a privileged intelligence service.

These last advantages are more doubtful than they seem. For it is apparent that military commands on all sides have made fundamental misjudgments.

The fall of France was not merely a military defeat, but a social and political collapse. These two factors are fundamentally linked in war, but high commands rarely take them into account.

"Unforeseen" Were Right.

The same "miracle" of the right-hand of the "unforeseen" who were not "experts" repeated itself in Russia, where the "typewriter strategists" were misjudged by all high commands, including the German. The American Army there was a minority report, made by Colonel Faymonville, military attache in Moscow, but General Faymonville had to be suppressed by the political instances in our Government, and not the military.

At least one "typewriter strategist" has foreseen the entire course of the Russian war, predicting the war itself, the form of Russian resistance, and even where the armies would be halted. That is the military historian, Max Werner.

Mr. Werner's analysis can be read in his book, "The Military Strength of the Ten Years of his life in almost exclusive study of the military publications of the Germans and the Russians, being capable of reading the language of both countries.

In his opinion worthless because he is not in a high command, an "Expert Not Infallible.

The President excused Pearl Harbor on the ground that we had "our best experts." To which must be replied it is always an error, in any field, to place too much faith in experts. The expert is too often a person possessed of intricate knowledge of one phase of a problem, and unable to see the woods for the trees.

No one needs to be an "expert" to know that the way to conduct a Pacific war is not to draw an imaginary line in the middle of the ocean and give General MacArthur a sphere of influence on one side and Admiral Nimitz a sphere on the other, MacArthur cannot think so either.

The conduct of our war, military and domestic, needs more people with horse sense, treating experts as technical advisers. Great wars are won by leaders of great vision and supreme judgment in choosing between various war plans. The business of a commander-in-chief is to make a choice, and stick to it. And the business of the "typewriter strategist" is, with due humility, and the advantage of freedom and disinterestedness, to try to clarify the issues governing the choice.

FLANDERS FIELDS

It was loaned to the Congressional Library for the purpose by the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, where McCrae practiced medicine before enlisting in the Canadian army.

The association of the poppy with the battlefields of the First World War was largely the result of this popular poem.

It will be interesting to see whether the present war produces a poem of equal quality and popularity.

The physician, soldier and poet wrote "In Flanders Fields" during the second battle of Ypres in 1915 on a page torn from a military dispatch book.

The author, who held the rank of colonel, submitted the poem to London Punch anonymously and it was first published in the issue of that magazine dated December 8, 1915, in a heavy-leaded type that served by the editor for productions of exceptional beauty or merit.

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Norwegian Merchant Marine Doing Splendid Work In Convoy Duty Says Lt. Jarl

Fourth Largest in World and Possibly the Speediest Afloat

WORKS FOR BRITAIN

Stressing the key position which the merchant marine holds in the assurance of an Allied victory over Nazi Germany, Lieut.-V. C. Jarl, of the Royal Norwegian Air Force, spoke to the Kinsmen Club on "Norway and Norwegian Affairs" at the Quinte Hotel Monday evening.

Lieut. Jarl, who for fifteen months was Adjutant at "Little Norway" the R. N. A. F. base at Toronto, was born in Narvik, Norway, and only recently learned that his family home had been burned and destroyed by the invading Nazis.

"The Norwegian Merchant Marine is the fourth largest in the world and as the war came to Norway we had the most modern and speediest merchant craft afloat. That is why our Merchant Marine prefers to sail without convoy, as the slower ships impede the speed of the fast war, although Norway was not a belligerent, the country lost 47 per cent of its merchant magine, which has been replaced and is owned by over 600 different companies," said Lieut. Jarl.

Did Not Obey Orders

"When the present war came on April 9th, 1941, promptly 90 per cent of the Norwegian merchant marine was at sea. The invading Germans ordered our boats to their home ports to put in at Axis ports, or return home to Norway. We have proved that to prove not a single Norwegian ship obeyed these orders and all are now actively engaged in shipping for the Allied Nations. Well, that is, those that were not sunk," smiled the speaker.

"When war broke out Norway had 26,000 trained merchant marines and only 800 were Norwegian shipping took fifty percent of all war and gasoline materials to British ports and thirty-three percent of the foodstuffs, that was delivered to Britain, went to Norwegian boats," revealed Lieut. Jarl, who assured the people of the chief source of revenue of Norway is her merchant marine. "We call them our 'unarmed soldiers' and are naturally proud of them," he added.

Navy Being Rebuilt

Speaking of Norway's active part in the war Lieut. Jarl revealed that Norway has three squadrons of planes over Britain, one in Iceland, while their army is in training for commando work in Scotland. As for our navy, well it sank one-third of the German navy, that approached Norway early in April of 1941 but our navy was small, but is being rebuilt in the ship-building yards of Britain and the United States, he assured the speaker.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding in Canada and the United States regarding who is paying for our active fighting forces, both here and overseas. Every cent for our forces comes from our Merchant Marine shipping, so you can readily see why Norway is proud of her shipping and why we must maintain it at any cost. Only recently the Royal Norwegian Air Force opened an elementary flying school near Muskoka and like all other active fighting units the cost was born by the Norwegian Govern-

Men in Uniform Asked

With men in the armed services virtually taking over last night's Kinsmen meeting, as five other men in uniform took an active part in the program, P/O Chuck Greeley, of No. 5 T. T. S. and former Toronto Kinsman, acted as song leader, P/O Ernie Kershaw, formerly of Vancouver, kindly presided at the piano, while P/O Colin Ashdown, formerly connected with the CBC as a baritone soloist delighted all with two fine solos. Lieut. Kin Dick Arnott was present in uniform, but the surprise treat was the presence of Trip./Sgt. Eddie Clendenning, of the 4th. R. C. A., who recently returned overseas after a long period of training.

"You Kinsmen will never know how much the cigarettes sent to Belleville boys through your "Pal Fund" mean to the boys over there. They look forward to them monthly and the kindness in general should be informed more forcibly," said Sgt. Clendenning, especially the Canadian cigarettes. Our boys train hard and one of their few pleasures during relaxation is a good Canadian cigarette. If you don't believe my word, ask Lieut. Arnott," Sgt. Clendenning as he produced a packet of cigarettes from his tunic, and no Canadian willing to make the test.

During the business period the Kinsmen Club of Belleville voted to subscribe to the campaign for the Third Victory Loan Campaign now entering upon its final week.

Cyclone Kills 11,000 Persons

London, Nov. 4 (CP)— British reports from Iraq, Iran and Russia that 11,000 persons or more lost their lives last month during a cyclone which devastated sections of Bengal Province.

Reuters News Agency said not less than 4,000 persons were killed in Midnapore and 1,000 in Parganas, adjacent districts along the Bengal coast near Calcutta.

Seventy-five per cent of the cattle in the affected districts were lost, it added.

The cyclone began on the morning of Oct. 16, piling in the Bay of Bengal, and lasted until early the following day. During the afternoon, a high tidal wave broke on the mainland.

Heavy rains accompanied the cyclone. Practically every house in the stricken districts was either destroyed or severely damaged, the reports said.

The storm was the greatest disaster in India since the Quetta earthquake killed 60,000 persons and devastated hundreds of miles of the countryside in 1935.

Women Doctors Do 'Man-Sized' Job In Canada's Forces

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Women doctors have proved they can do a "man-sized" job in Canada's Army and Air Force, say Toronto military officials.

The first woman medical officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, Squadron Officer Jean Davey of Toronto, was commissioned in August of 1941. She led the way for eight other women who now take the air force uniform. Canadian (Active) Army has 10 women in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Women doctors serve with women's divisions and also assist in large army and air force hospitals.

Americans Get Sweet Revenge When Naval Squadron Surprises Jap Unit

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 4 — (AP) — American naval guns sank two and possibly nine Japanese warships in Solomons area night of Oct. 11-12 in an engagement described here by Capt. Ernest Gregor Small as "a hell of a melee" which completely surprised the enemy.

"We sank one heavy cruiser and believe we got two others and one light cruiser. We know we sank one destroyer and probably others," he said.

The encounter took place on a dark moonless night in the Savo Island area, known now to navy men as "sleepless lagoon." It was in this area that the heavy cruisers Astoria, Quincy and Vincennes of the United States fleet and the Canberra of the Royal Australian Navy were sunk in a Japanese surprise attack last August 8-9 while the cruisers were screening landings on Guadalcanal. In this second battle of Savo Island, however, the American unit was ordered to intercept an enemy movement toward Guadalcanal, named the tables.

"Within four minutes, I saw our flagship going in, red hot cans on a Jap heavy cruiser, plunging right into her and she sank," said Capt. Small. It was like seeing a prize fighter getting socked on the chin, then shake and just drop cold."

"We caught them at a five-mile range and hit some ships before they could open fire. One had its guns trained fore and aft. It was one of those things naval officials wait 30 years to see.

"We capped their 'T.' (Crossing the head of the enemy line of ships and thereby concentrating a broadside fire against the leading ship which can bring to bear only its forward guns. They were coming at high speed toward Guadalcanal at a right angle to our course and trying to bring the action parallel and increase the disastrous 'T.' Our destroyer came at us at high speed for a torpedo attack and was within 1,500 yards when our salvoes obliterated it.

"The action was in spurts of from three to 10 minutes with both forces coming at top speed."

After the engagement, Capt Small said, the battle area "looked like a field of burning shipe."

He said one of the men at a five-inch gun was hit by a shell fragment which cut open his stomach but cut off part of his hand but kept his gun pointers matched and fired four telling salvoes, then just died." Another, a shell loader, was hit by a fragment but kept the shells coming for the guns until he dropped dead."

Asquith and His Latin

By Lord Mottistone in the Manchester Guardian

One morning at 10 evening Street, the Prime Minister (Mr. Asquith) with several colleagues, was waiting for Sir Edward Grey, who was coming from the Foreign Office with some important news to Asquith said, "The Admiralty Arch looks well, I think, now that it is completely finished." The Devil not prompting me, I said: "Yes, except that the Latin inscription at the top seems all wrong to me."

"Indeed," said Asquith, the Roman features suddenly assuming a stern, almost terrifying expression. "Can you tell me why?"

"Yes", said I. "If I remember rightly the words are 'ANNO DEI-GRATIA EDWARDI SEPTIMI REGIS HIS VICTORIAE REGINAE CIVES GRATISSIMI,' following this the date, 1910. Now, Edward was not the seventh king of this realm, and although we citizens may be most pleasing it is not for us to say so."

There was a silence in which one could hear the breathing of the listeners. Then Asquith said: "I am responsible for those words and the whole of the classical knowledge of Balliol College shares the responsibility with me. In fact, it was at Balliol that the words were written."

Now, sitting next to me was Winston Churchill, whose pose it was to pretend that he knew nothing whatever about the classics or any language other than his own beloved English. Indeed, he rejoiced in making the most inaccurate pronunciations in these languages of which he professed, quite wrongly, complete ignorance. He was always a loyal friend to me in moments of adversity.

This time he did not fail me. He broke the awful silence, saying, "I am greatly relieved, for my Minister, to know that it is all right. I, too, like Jack, have been most anxious days and nights pondering as to the accuracy of those Latin words." The spell was broken and even Asquith's frown relaxed, becoming, for several hours, the regarded me with disfavor.

Parents, 2 Sons Suffocated

The youngsters were Jacques, 7 and Francis, 5.

Firemen extinguished a blaze in the oil stove within a few minutes and then found the bodies of the family who apparently had suffocated in their sleep.

Firemen arrived to find the flat filled with black smoke pouring from a small oil stove.

Bodies of the Cordell were found in one room and those of their sons in a cot in the next chamber. None had been burned.

POSSE TO RENEW SEARCH FOR MISSING WOMAN

Wingham, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — A posse of nearly 100 Wingham townsfolk and district farmers were preparing to renew late Tuesday a search for Miss Eliza Marshall of Wingham, missing from the home of her sister, here since Friday evening or early Saturday morning.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Allen Hamilton, of Wingham, combed the surrounding countryside, under the direction of Provincial Constable William Gardiner and Wingham Chief of Police George Allen. An additional 50 farmers made searches individually or in smaller groups. The Maitland River was also dragged.

MALTA GUNS HIT HARD

Cairo, Nov. 4 (AP) — Malta's air defenders shot down 131 enemy aircraft during October, it was announced 200 others, 50 of which were probably destroyed, in official tabulation showed Monday.

U-Boat Believed Sunk by Corvette

An Eastern Canadian Port, Nov. 4—(CP)—Presumed sinking of a German submarine by a Canadian corvette commanded by Lieut. Jack Moles of Toronto was described today by survivors of a merchant ship torpedoed by the U-boat.

The merchant seamen said the sea's surface near the corvette was black with oil from the submarine after the Canadian ship had dropped depth charges as the U-boat submerged after attacking the merchantman. They said the doomed undersea raider was destroyed.

The corvette picked up a score of survivors from the freighter—all but three of the complement. Lieut. Moles is a son of Capt. W. J. Moles of Toronto. He has lived in Chatham and London, Ont., where his wife lives with her parents.

Enlisted Under Assumed Name, Added to Age

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — After arriving six weeks as Private Warren Wallers, 18, of No. 20, Canada Army Basic Training Centre here, a Hamilton boy is Private Terrence Joseph Cooper of the Canadian Provost Corps officials that he had joined up under an assumed name and added four years to his actual age.

Volunteering for paratroop work, the lad was accepted in the army, and was trapped by accident into revealing his true identity when his brother Warren took his basic training at Brantford. Cooper, first seeing Warren's record noted the two records had identical initials address and name of next-of-kin. A check-up showed they were brothers.

Pte. Cooper is the son of Mrs. Mary Cooper, Hamilton, and his enlistment under an assumed name parallels the record of his father, the late James Cooper in the first Great War. "Dad got away with it and I thought I could," the boy said.

Australian Guard Rendered Unconscious by Rock Python

Following is a letter received by little Louise Patrick of 288 Dufferin Avenue, from a "pen-pal" in Queensland, Australia, and who tells of the strange experience of a soldier cousin, in Port Moresby, who was attacked and crushed unconscious by a rock python while on duty in that war-torn area.—

Hospital Hill, Clermont,
2nd September, 1942.
Q'ld, Aust.

Dear Louise,—

I received your welcome letter last week and am very sorry to hear I have not been writing every month as you asked me as I thought you must have forgotten me and did not want to write.

There are few happenings round about Clermont now, but on account of the war the little town-ship seems to have become a little busier.

We have just finished a fortnight's holiday from school but we are back again now.

"Do you play tennis or basketball over there?" We play both here and I am captain of the Tennis team while Elaine Mills is captain of the Basketball team.

An aeroplane passed here this afternoon and almost all of Clermont was out to see it. It is very seldom Clermont sees an aeroplane, but when one does turn up almost all Clermont's population have a gathering.

It is terrible to think of the Duke of Kent being killed in an air crash. And to we Australians it seems as if one more life is missing somewhere.

That Bert Millar I received and answered her letter some time ago and I think the photo she sent me is lovely also the one you sent me.

I have a cousin named Robert Huston up in Port Moresby, and one night while on guard duty, a rock python fell on him and crushed him unconscious, but thank goodness he has recovered from it now. I also have one in a Canadian Air Training Corps School.

Well Louise, I will have to close now hoping to hear from you soon.

I am,
Your loving pen pal,
Dal X X X X

P.S.—Give my love to mother and family.

Information for Mailing Parcels And Letters to Prisoners of War Obtainable at Red Cross Branch

At Red Cross Headquarters yesterday, the workers were beginning to prepare parcels for the sheets. They have already completed 4,135 which have been shipped off to headquarters in Montreal. Besides the ones on which they are now working 3,000 will be ready to be kept at the Belleville branch for use in time of emergency.

Workers are very grateful for the donation of $61.00 and a pair of flannelette blankets the gift of the Jewish women's group. A shipment of wheeling which has been long delayed because of inability to get supplies has arrived at the branch and the workroom and work can be started on the 18th women's auxiliary meeting in the district.

Garments for British children, urgently needed by the Red Cross, are being rapidly completed by the workers. Mrs. Woodward with the local branch and some very beautifully sewn garments are being turned in.

Many enquiries have been received at the Campbell Street office of the Red Cross concerning procedure in sending parcels and letters to prisoners of war, especially since the Deputy Minister of National Defence spoke to prisoners of war sets are very strictly enforced. It would be well for relatives and friends to get in touch with the Red Cross here. Information will be gladly given on the latest rulings. Donations received from the Jewish women will be sent prisoners of war were gratefully received by the local branch.

Workers at the local branch have been much pleased by the many compliments that have come from headquarters on the high quality of the work received from Belleville district. And they were taken with the packing of the same.

"We don't have to tell you that it is not done in Belleville. We know it's all right", they say.

The acknowledging the shipment of cans of honey from Belleville, contained appreciative comments and express sincere gratitude for the generosity of those making possible this gift for overseas' war work.

Miss Freida Held Discusses Program Of Women's Voluntary Services

Miss Freida Held, assistant director of the Women's Voluntary Services, Division, National War Services, Ottawa, was in the city this week and on Monday addressed the City Hospital Nursing Corps at their meeting in the Blood Donors' Clinic. Miss Held, who was introduced by the Corps Head, Miss Ethel Hassack, addressed the members on the Women's Voluntary Services and how it is to co-ordinate all the voluntary services in a community, and provide a satisfactory plan for the listing of all those who wish to volunteer their services and call for which they are most suited.

"We are fighting this war on three fronts", the speaker said. "The fighting front where our armies and navies are in active combat, the industrial front, and the home front. At this stage in the war it is the job of all of us on the home front to do whatever job has been put to better than we have ever done before and ever and above that we must do it without fail. We must do that voluntary job with the same diligence as we do our paid work. In offering one's services for voluntary work one must be resolved to carry it through".

Miss Held referred to various avenues of service open to volunteer workers. Each community has its own program of war work and those who are not already doing something in this regard should link up with such organizations.

A general discussion on the work a correct attitude toward organization and co-operation was given in details formerly thought inauspicious, were shown over these matters indicates whether individuals are playing their full part or are failing down on the home front.

"Take A.R.P. work for instance, it is shortsighted to say that it is not necessary in our country. We should epidemic or disaster strike here we should be prepared and know what to do."

Discussing Women's Voluntary Services Division which have been established in many cities throughout the Dominion, Miss Held said that this plan provides a central clearing house where a detailed list is kept of all who wish to volunteer for any services, their training and capabilities. When the need for a certain group of workers comes up, organizations know at once from the Centre's files where they can obtain the volunteers. This will help to prevent overlapping, Miss Held said, and avoid confusion of services, a few people doing all the work.

Miss Held published the "block plan" where a block worker was convener for each block of homes and kept in touch with the volunteers in her district. Miss Held also discussed the setting up of a Centre, how it is organized and how it is can be financed.

Canned Foods

We are being told that one of the effects of the war will be that all fruits and other foodstuffs will be canned and that fresh fruits, with the remainder will be shipped or stored; water added will be the rule. But there is nothing new about this as sugar, pears, apples, tomatoes and other food products have been dried and canned for many years.

Perhaps many are asking themselves about canned foods. They have been buying canned fruits, canned vegetables and canned meats and find them tasty and apparently just as nourishing as when fresh.

Are canned foods just as nourishing as fresh foods?

Research workers state that many of the fruits and vegetables are much richer in vitamins, minerals and vitamins as they lie exposed in the fields. The loss is enormous of their minerals and vitamins, when they are canned. Thus, apparently fresh foods, purchased in the store and even cooked at home, may have had as much as 36 to 40 per cent of their total vitamin value destroyed before they reach the consumer—the vitamins and minerals.

What about canned foods? In the Bulletin of the Lancet some months ago Dr. William Savage reported that after an extensive examination of the canning trade he found that from the standpoint of contamination, canned foods compare favorably with fresh foods when allowance is made for the fact that canned goods are already prepared for users and fresh foods must undergo cooking, which must take place in home preparation and cooking.

"In modern canning so much attention has been paid to the preservation of the vitamins that as regards vitamin content, they are not, in general, inferior to the fresh foods after ordinary cooking, and in some instances, particularly from the view that canned goods are devitalized foods is not supported by research students of nutrition".

Further, it can be definitely stated that canned foods are considerably less liable than ordinary food to cause food poisoning.

"Canned foods can be accepted as a safe and wholesome source of food supply and without any special precautions as regards the presence of bacterial (containing harmful organisms)".

...so Much Money Brings Out Delinquency in Adolescents

Does it work out well-for the average sixteen-year-old who has a highly-paid job?

This question, which cannot be answered in the affirmative, is the heart of a war maternity problem, with which many serious persons and groups are now concerning themselves.

It has come about very naturally. Fathers and mothers—and uncles and mothers over-busy, some of them with war work, and with older brothers in Army camps, there has been little time remaining to be connected with war production but not demanding skill or experience. These have been filled by young misses who have been made dizzy with delight at the wages they receive. Most of them have been born into but in many cases gifts, but some of them as young as thirteen, have been among the lucky ones.

Voting for the Senate found Democrats removed from office in Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, North and South Dakota and Oklahoma and definitely threatened in West Virginia, Michigan and Colorado. In addition, the voters of Nebraska apparently retired 81-year-old Senator Norris, independent supporter of the New Deal and one of the great Liberals in contemporary American political life. He had been a Senator for 30 years.

Oklahoma with a normal 200-000 majority, and Michigan, provided a stunning surprise. Senator Josh Lee, staunch New Dealer and Roosevelt administration was defeated by Governor Leo Allen, an old New Deal Democratic drafted by the Republicans. The Democratic candidate for governor, Robert S. Kerr, however, won out.

Hamilton Fish Wins

Two highly-publicized candidates, Hamilton Fish, Republican former House Leader before Pearl Harbor and Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, actress and playwright, both won Congressional seats as Republicans. Fish is in the Hyde Park Roosevelt district.

In Massachusetts, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, won a second term while Governor Leverett Saltonstall, also a Republican, was returned to the State House.

In Kansas, the veteran Republican Senator Arthur Capper was returned without opposition, while a campaign tour Senator Charles L. McNary, the Republican leader in the Senate, breezed to an early victory in Oregon.

The trend forward the Republicans, discernible from the earliest returns last night, was much greater than expected.

The obvious explanation is that the American people, tiring of the New Deal, are going conservative again and are voting with the Roosevelt administration over its handling of several features of the war on the industrial and civilian fronts.

No Defined Issue

During the campaign there was no sharply defined national issue and the Republicans, in addition to local questions, fought the election on the Roosevelt administration's conduct of the war. In addition to that, the Democrats had to run with their strong hold on labor in the big industrial belt in the East with the disputes over farm prices cut into Democratic strength in the farm belt, particularly the midwestern farm belt, from which the Roosevelt administration had its most loyal support and overwhelming support for its price-and-breaking agricultural-aid programs.

Perhaps typifying the midwestern voting was the apparent defeat of Senator Prentiss Brown, Michigan Democrat, who supported the Roosevelt administration's anti-inflation bill. This legislation aroused the ire of such a powerful Senatorial farm bloc and farm organizations with strong followings as Mr. Gallup advised.

Iowa Goes Republican

Similarly, Iowa—home state of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, who, however, has not, perhaps more to do with formulating and developing New Deal farm programs than any other man—turned Democratic Senator Clyde Herring out of office by defeating by a generally aligned himself with the farm bloc.

Other farm states in which Republican candidates brought or held their own included Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, South and North Dakota, Ohio, Colorado, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado and Oklahoma.

With but few exceptions, leaders in the Congressional farm bloc against which Mr. Roosevelt has made—or planned to make—a grand re-election. Among them were Senator Elmer Thomas (Dep.-Okla.), C. Wayland Brooks (Rep.-Ill.) John H. Bankhead (Dem.-Ala.), Richard B. Russell, (Dem.-Ga.), Allen J. Ellender (Dem.-La.), and Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, (Dem.-Mo.), Everett Dirksen, (Rep.-Ill.) and Clifford R. Hope, (Rep.-Kas.)

Vote Generally Light

Another reason for the relatively poor showing of the Democrats was that President Roosevelt's party has the personal magnetism and popularity. This is an off-year election, one coming halfway through the presidential term—four years.

The vote generally was light across the country, indicating apathy on the part of the people for an election with no great issues at stake.

The Republicans increased their chances for regaining the presidency contest with at least four possible in 1944. They came out of the candidates considered mentioned: Wendell L. Willkie—Dewey, Earl Warren and Harold E. Stassen, California race for governor; John W. Bricker of Ohio, re-elected to a third term and Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

The midnight communique told of heavy artillery fighting in the Stalingrad area, with perhaps 30,000 Red Infantrymen seeking to expand their drafted forward the Volga.

Ferry Volga By Night

Red Army troops ferried across the Volga by night were reported to have landed in the German rear south of Stalingrad, diverting enemy forces from assaults on the northside factory district.

Fresh divisions from the Urals and Saxony were moved up to assist in the Axis fight for control of Stalingrad and the central Caucasus from the Russian lines appeared to be stiffening.

Although finally seized both by powerful forces from a field army estimated at 50,000 men, the Russians held the port of Novorossisk and Nalchik four days before withdrawing to new lines.

Indicating that invasion divisions in the Western Caucasus as well as in Stalingrad area have been rushed to reinforce the German thrust toward the Caucasus mountain highway at Ordzhonikidze, Red Star said Russians are fighting battering ram still shelling the Black Sea port of Novorossisk.

The Germans and their Rumanian Allies seized Novorossisk almost two months after the German drive began. The Soviet midnight communique declared that in the Nalchik four days before withdrawing to new lines.

Dewey Possible Candidates For President in '44

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 4.—(CP) — The political battlefield, scene of the gentle, ambitious young Tom Dewey years before he was 40, has at last had achieved the governorship of New York State and, somehow in the future, his Republican friends and neighbors believe, the presidency of the United States beckons.

Dewey's landslide victory yesterday over Democrat John J. Bennett, Jr., Attorney-General and Manhattan district attorney into the limelight as a crime buster in the administration's anti-inflation bill. This legislation aroused the ire of such a powerful Senatorial farm bloc and farm organizations with strong followings as Mr. Gallup advised.

With but few exceptions, leaders in the Congressional farm bloc against which Mr. Roosevelt has made—or planned to make—a grand re-election. Among them were Senator Elmer Thomas (Dep.-Okla.), C. Wayland Brooks (Rep.-Ill.) John H. Bankhead (Dem.-Ala.), Richard B. Russell, (Dem.-Ga.), Allen J. Ellender (Dem.-La.), and Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, (Dem.-Mo.), Everett Dirksen, (Rep.-Ill.) and Clifford R. Hope, (Rep.-Kas.)

Vote Generally Light

Another reason for the relatively poor showing of the Democrats was that President Roosevelt's party has the personal magnetism and popularity. This is an off-year election, one coming halfway through the presidential term—four years.

The vote generally was light across the country, indicating apathy on the part of the people for an election with no great issues at stake.

The Republicans increased their chances for regaining the presidency contest with at least four possible in 1944. They came out of the candidates considered mentioned: Wendell L. Willkie—Dewey, Earl Warren and Harold E. Stassen, California race for governor; John W. Bricker of Ohio, re-elected to a third term and Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

followed up Rommel's beaten and retreating tank forces to pick off as many vehicles as possible.

Light bombers alone have been dropping more than 100 tons of bombs on front-line enemy concentration, it was disclosed today. Serving as "flying artillery," they have been operating apart from the fighter-bombers, fighters and heavy and medium bombers which have been providing a "shuttle bombing service" with Allied bases reaching as far as Tobruk and Crete.

Only a single light bomber has been lost to enemy fighters although the Nazis have failed to enemy anti-aircraft fire, it was said.

This aerial pounding has been in severe that unarmed enemy troops have surrendered rather than face more of it. Although Rommel has used dive-bombers, his Air Force has shown little initiative in striking on the crushing blows delivered by Allied airmen, it was said here.

Most of Girls Who Registered Now Working

A considerable number of the women from Belleville and district in the 18 to 24 year-old age group, who registered at the city hall during the period of compulsory registration for women are now actively engaged in essential war industry, it was revealed this morning by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the Belleville National Selective Service.

No pressure was brought to bear on the women at the time of their registration with the view of placing them into essential industry, but numbers are now being called in regularly for interviews, great majority of the women go directly into local industrial plants where they undergo a short period of instruction before being placed on assembly or production work. Others have their eyes on the idea of attending vocational classes at the Belleville Collegiate with the view of taking responsible positions in industry.

Approximately 25 men have gone out from the local office to the timber limits in the northern part of the county and province and are now engaged in logging operations to help relieve the pronounced shortage of building materials. This has also existed in the Belleville area, workers at Eames had gone to lumber camps following the summer's rush of harvesting. He warned, however, in the fall that there would have to seek work permits following the first 30-day period of their employment.

Crucial Phase Of British Drive Near at Hand

By KIRBY L. SIMPSON

Allied and Axis accounts alike indicate that the crucial phase of the British offensive in Egypt is at hand.

The main tank fleets of the rival armies apparently are engaged. Lieutenant-General R. L. Montgomery, the British commander, and his Nazi opponent, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, both have staked everything on results at that moment in a position to deliver a knockout blow. Each has carefully husbanded of armored strength during the bloody preliminaries, waiting for the moment when the battle-royal could spell disaster.

The British problem was to force a way through Axis mine fields and dug-in anti-tank positions at small expenditure. They have done it with guns. Indications are that they have smashed a corridor to the coast on the coastal flank, where a smiting the same method is reported to be won so brilliantly in becoming New York's first Republican governor in 20 years.

After a highly-successful career fighting organized crime in New York, extending from 1931 to 1938, Dewey tried for the governorship in 1938 and was defeated by Governor Herbert H. Lehman. In 1940 he ran for the senate, but was defeated by Governor Lehman by 64,000 votes. Lehman had won four years earlier by 800,000 votes.

With his vote-getting ability established, Dewey campaigned for the presidential nomination in 1940 and actually won more delegates on the first ballot. Willkie finally won on the sixth ballot.

Yesterday Dewey staged a comeback regarded by politicians as not short of astonishing. His plurality over Bennett may reach 600,000 votes.

DREW BELIEVES PLENTY OF ROOM LEFT IN CANADA

Opposition Leader Says There Is No Reason to Fear Post-War Unemployment

ADDRESSES CHEESEMEN

Kemptville, Ont., Nov. 4.—(CP)—Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, last night scored what he termed the "arguments of weary statesmen" who say that no room exists in Canada for more people.

Speaking at a banquet given for Eastern Ontario cheesemakers here by J. A. Richardson, Oxford Mills cheese exporter, Col. Drew said: "We have more arable land here in Canada than there is in the whole of India. We have also more than twice the area of Germany but the people of India don't even have a wolf over their heads and 13,000,000 people.

"Germany's people are worrying about unemployment in Canada after the war. They are blind themselves to the true facts, or the ourselves up with red tape, there is no reason to fear post-war unemployment.

"I applaud the destruction of material things that had occurred in the world as the direct result of war, and predicted that future destruction of the same kind will be on a scale even more terrible than any so far accomplished."

"A brand-new buyers' market has been and is being created. Piling-up this vast purchasing power and skill of every able-bodied man and woman in Canada will require the full time of our agricultural population to produce the crops of millions of starving people in Europe and elsewhere."

Wealth In Canada

Col. Drew said there was room for 20,000,000 people in Canada and he didn't expect the new Alaska highway to bring a flood of U.S. citizens to Canada. He said that now inhabiting the entire Dominion.

Discussing the gathering there had been dn increase in radio broadcasts from Canada and Radio Berlin which seemed to question the value of the Canadian contribution to the war.

"Every young Canadian flying a fighting plane in the skies over the Mediterranean is flying a machine made in the British workshops. Had it not been for the quality of the Spitfire and Hurricane the United Kingdom and possibly the empire would be under the Nazi heel."

Col. Drew assured the cheesemakers they were doing an important contribution to the war effort by producing a high-quality product to Britain and the Canadian armed forces overseas.

Mrs. H. Kirk Dies While Driving To Colborne

Trenton, (Special)—Residents of North Front St. were shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. Harry Kirk, 72, which took place suddenly in the afternoon, with her three children in the car. Colborne, where she had previously lived. When passing a set of traffic lights they picked up two airmen in her car to give them a ride and when the lights changed Mrs. Kirk started with a heart attack. The wheel was grasped by her son, Jack Kirk, who was sitting in the front seat, and brought to a stop on the curb. The car was brought to a stop on the shoulder of the road but all medical life was extinct. They immediately summoned Gordon Wright, Brighton and Dr. Clarke and Dr. Rundell arrived. It was decided that Mrs. Kirk had died instantly. Mrs. Kirk, who was only 39 years of age, leaves her sorrowing husband and three small children.

Assaulting Sister-in-Law

Miss Iva Childerhose, Baptiste St., reported to police late on Monday night that a man there had entered her house and stolen a sum of money. The matter was investigated by police who placed a French man in custody on a charge of breaking and entering. Part of the money was recovered.

BELGIAN MILITARY AWARDS GIVEN TO 14 CANADIANS

OTTAWA IS SCENE

Ottawa, Nov. 4. (CP)— Award of Belgian military decorations to 14 men of the Canadian army, including a number of high-ranking officers, was officially announced last night. The awards are in appreciation of the part played by Belgian forces in this war.

The 14 Canadian persons received their decorations personally from Baron Silvercruys, Belgian Minister to Canada, in a ceremony at the Belgian Legation last night.

The awards were announced in a statement from the External Affairs Department, a joint release by the Defence Department.

Twelve officers received the Croix Militaire Belge and a Warrant Officer and a non-commissioned officer were awarded the Decoration Militaire Belge.

Those receiving the awards are: Maj.-Gen. H. F. G. Letson, adjutant-General of the Canadian Army.

Brig. T. C. Switzer, deputy master-general of the Canadian Forces in Canada.

Col. T. C. Cook, director of Administration.

Col. A. A. Magee executive assistant to the Defence Minister.

Col. J. J. Ryan.

Col. A. J. Rivett, assistant adjutant-general, Canadian overseas Atlantic Command.

Col. H. J. B. Keating, director of Personnel Movement.

Lt.-Col. W. C. Arnold, of the Canadian Legation.

Maj. J. Leal, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, liaison for the Foreign Forces in Canada.

Lost In Hospital

RSM. Robert Owens, of Canadian Army Headquarters, London, Ont., Cornwall, Ont.

CSM. George Beauchamp, also of Cornwall centre.

Two of the officers—Gen. Pope and the United States on official business and Capt. De Serres of the Belgian Legation—received awards as soon as circumstances permitted.

RSM. Owens and CSM. Beauchamp will receive their decoration shortly after the military attache, who will visit the Cornwall training centre for that purpose.

The presentations were made in the Belgian Legation here last night was the anniversary of the birthday of King Leopold of the Belgians.

Reader Valuable Aid

It was the first time that members of the Canadian army have been decorated by a foreign power while serving in Canada although the Belgian government said all have been recommended while the Belgian forces since they began training in Canada early in 1941.

The Belgian forces first trained in Canada, then fighting with the Allies, have been responsible for the training of the Canadian army, and Belgian officers have been responsible for the training of the first recruits. In April, 1941, the Belgian Government-in-Exile training centre No. 42 at Joliette, Que.

Expect Loan Will Pass Minimum Objective Today

Ottawa, Nov. 4—(CP)—Today's bond sales in the Third Victory Loan campaign amounted to $53,194,100, raising the cumulative total for the drive to $715,305,800—less than $35,000,000 from the minimum objective with four days left to go—Loan Headquarters announced today.

Unless today's sales fall far below the sales of any other day in the current three-week campaign, it seems certain the minimum objective will be reached.

Just after midnight last night it was announced that Manitoba was the first province to pass its initial quota, which was $25,000,000. British Columbia—Yukon with a $75,000,000 objective and New Brunswick with a $12,000,000 objective also had passed their quotas.

$18,000,000 Subscription

Largest individual subscription announced today was $18,000,000 from International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., Toronto.

Other large subscriptions included Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co., Toronto, $1,500,000; Brantford Insurance and B. Axon, Montreal $1,500,000; Hamilton Steamship Agencies, $500,000; Employers Liability Assurance Corp., $175,000; and Masterman, McFeely and Prior Ltd., Vancouver, $622,000.

Announced earlier was a subscription of $1,000,000 from Fraser Companies Ltd., Edmundston, N. B.

Though Calgary's goal is in sight than officials today said they hoped the drive would not slacken, and that the city would surpass its original quota. To date no less than 824 individual applications for subscriptions had been received there, a "substantial increase" over the last loan campaign, Calgary reported.

Nazis Disclose Bomb Explosions In Vichy France

Berlin, (From German Broadcasts), Nov. 4.—(AP)—Time bomb explosions and bomb plots in more than a dozen cities and sections of Unoccupied France were disclosed today in amplified reports from Vichy of bloody events that occurred Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Bombs exploded in Marseille, Bourges, Vichy, and Clermont-Ferrand; two steel posts of an overland high tension wire were destroyed by explosives at another place; and police were reported to have found bombs in the Gare de Lyon apartment, West of Vichy, and in Marseille, Lyon and Nancy.

(Dispatches from Vichy yesterday said Pierre Laval, premier, had escaped were of British manufacture exploded at collaborationist headquarters in the affected cities, causing the death of at least one person and injuring 15. Vichy and three bombs discovered by police in Rouen had been placed in front of a Doriot Movement office and in front of a recruiting office for enlisting French workers to Germany.

Invention of a Canadian armaments sergeant, the aerial "bomb" here being examined by an air force officer is filled with flour and topped with an ice cream cone. Scores of them were dropped on unspecified areas when armed forces and auxiliary organizations took part in a combined co-operation exercise in Canada's Air Force Week. Part of the Third Victory Loan campaign, it showed what the enemy may succeed in doing unless Canadians buy Victory Bonds and in other ways support the war effort to the limit.

Hepburn Pleads For Total Effort

Midland, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — In his first public address since his dramatic resignation as Liberal Premier of Ontario last October two years ago, Mitchell Hepburn last night urged a Victory Loan Rally to "forget party bickering, personal elections and party conventions" to obtain a total war effort.

"The most damned person in Canada today is the private citizen of the man on the street, is the partisan who puts his party first," Hepburn said. "There is great virtue in total devotion of our way of life relegate to the background petty politics. These domestic issues which we can all discuss about but settle in our own way after the war — not in Hitler's way.

"Let us brush aside the partisans who talk in terms of political aggrandisement."

Urging full support of Canada's Third Victory Loan campaign, the former premier said that no one can withhold support "because politically fair. They represent the interests of Ottawa," expressed belief that greater sacrifices will be required in the loan campaign and declared that "every hour of man and woman-power short . . . every ounce, every dollar at our command, is not to be spared for the welfare of Allies and the soldiers of the Allied armies in the battle front."

Keynote Challenge Be Met

He reiterated his opinion that the Victory Loan campaign "has not done its very all" in the war effort, but commended Ottawa for its efforts and might not necessarily be shared by everyone in Canada.

". . . be that as it may, it is our war government and shall continue to be," he said. "I for one, am ready to go for money, there is presented to me a challenge that shall challenge by an overwhelmingly.

"Give us a real mandate to go full in the drive. To date we have failed. Keep our conscience clear."

Mr. Hepburn declared he should be raised by taxation. The Federal government has been criticized for using as existing methods of historical financing were followed. But the writing authority of the Bank of Canada should not be imparted "in a point where we have to manufacture the pound of butter or a pound of cheese."

"I do believe that greater economy could be exercised in the method adopted in Germany."

MACKEREL FISHING POOR

Rockport, Mass., Nov. 4 — (CP) — Fishermen here report the fall mackerel fishing has been poor so far this season due to the prevalence of dogfish along the coast, and an abundance of sea herring in the waters themselves. The dogfish swim into the mackerel nets and destroy them, while heavy losses to fishermen that the sea herring has been removed from the waters.

US. TROOPS IN SYRIA

London, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The Swiss Radio broadcast a report today that United States troops had arrived in Syria and Palestine.

There was no confirmation of the report from Allied sources. The German and Italian radios said a month ago that American troops had landed in Syria.

Gordon, Great Second Baseman Of New York Yankees, Voted Most Valuable Player in Loop

Award Usually Goes to Member of Pennant-Winning Club

WILLIAMS SECOND

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Nov. 4—(AP)—Joe Gordon, the great second baseman of New York Yankees, has been named the most valuable player of the American League for 1942, preserving the tradition that the coveted annual award usually goes to a member of the pennant-winning club.

Since the baseball writers association in America took over the task of selecting the most valuable players in 1931 there have been few breaks in the tradition and none in the last four years.

Gordon's performance this year was the best in his five seasons with the Yankees, and he unquestionably was a powerful factor in the Bombers winning their sixth pennant in seven years.

However, the difference between his value to the Yankees and the value of lanky Ted Williams to the second-place Boston Red Sox was open to controversy which in turn was reflected in the balloting of the committee of 24 writers.

Gordon was given 13 first-place votes and received a total of 270 points while Williams, winner of the "triple crown" for leading the league in batting, home runs and runs-batted-in, finished with nine first-place votes and 249 points.

Pesky Hurts Williams' Chances

The Boston slugger might have done better except for some competition from one of his own teammates, Johnny Pesky, the rookie shortstop star, who polled two first-place votes and 143 points. The other first-place ballot also was cast for a rookie shortstop, Vernon (Junior) Stephens, of St. Louis Browns, who rated fourth, three points behind Pesky.

It was the second straight year in which Williams has been nosed out of the most valuable award. He ran a close second in 1941 to Joe DiMaggio of the Yanks and not though his batting average slouched off from .406 to .321 this season "he is all around play in many respects' was better than last year.

DiMaggio dropped to seventh in the committee's rating of American League players with pitchers Ernie Bonham of the Yanks and Tex Hughson of the Red Sox above him.

Others in the top 10 selections were Stan Spence of Washington, Phil Marchildon of Philadelphia Athletics, native of Penetanguishene, Ont., and Lou Boudreau of Cleighbol.

DETROIT WINGS HAVE CHANCE TO HEAD LEAGUE

Play Rangers With Rookie Bucinski Still Between the Pipes

BRUINS PLAY HAWKS

(By The Canadian Press)

A little soul-searching has continued since Saturday night's big National Hockey League debut with New York Rangers, wasn't so bad, after all.

Toronto Maple Leafs pumped seven goals behind Turk Broda Saturday as Leafs routed Rangers 7-2 and most of the 11,777 fans in attendance reasoned that the 22-year-old Dunnigan, Sask., netminder suffered a severe case of opening night jitters. Bundesen self-effacingly is somewhat different.

"I wasn't nervous so much as I was bewildered by all the scrambly stuff going on around me," said the 25-year-old wheat inspector who graduated to Regina hockey from Swift Current, Sask., Intermediates, Indians. "Most of the time I didn't know what I was back with Swift Current. So far, I haven't seen a great deal of difference between N.H.L. hockey and Intermediate hockey."

The slight, wry Lithuanian who hails from Kaunas, Russia, Hanley's place in the Ranger nets carries his new-found confidence into his second start tonight at Toronto night when Rangers meet Detroit Red Wings at Olympia.

The twice-beaten Bruins, forced to play their fifth game in less than a week at a time when Manager Art Ross has trouble getting set in uniform, oppose Chicago Black Hawks in the only other game on Thursday's card.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Discussion in Dominion hockey circles as to what will happen after the war when the British ice hockey association starts a bunch of hockey players, the C.A.H.A. and some of its branches have nobody but themselves to blame. The Ontario Hockey Association, for instance, opened the door on importation years ago and killed the game in places such as Kitchener-Waterloo, Galt and Preston.... If the C.A.H.A. hopes to get players by the score of players through its various branches, the Canadian Association first has to set its own house in order by telling its branches nobody but Canada is to be no more of this wholesale hockey tourist business. When that is done and the smaller centres once again have a chance to compete on a fair basis with the larger cities, then, and then only, will there be a natural increase in development.

The expert says:

Herb (Whispering Tribune) Manning: "Seventy-five per cent of pin boys and perhaps 50 per cent of pool markers in local recreation establishments now are girls. When the wife beats about it, hubby's explanation of where he went on his night out better be retried."

Humble Apologies:

"This column erred grossly in referring to Lillian Jenkins, assistant publicity director of Madison Square Garden, as the wife of Art Coulter, former New York Rangers defenseman now in the United States Coast Guard. Mrs. Trudy Canton Coulter, program editor at Madison Square Garden, who married Art in Baltimore Oct. 9, graciously wrote to correct the error: "Here I sat finished sending a couple of hundred wedding announcements around Winnipeg to all the folks.... All saying that Trudy Denton and Art Coulter announce their marriage."

Fifteen Packaters:

Dick Irvin, the racing, pigeon fancier and Montreal Canadiens hockey coach, told his players: "Pigeons are like hockey players. Some of them will go like the dickens and come strutting in as proud as punch when a tailwind is blowing, like the player who scores the eight and ninth goals in a 9-1 win. Others will battle a headwind to win the prize like the player who gets his goal when the going is tough."

Play-off Winner To Enter Playdowns

Ottawa, Nov. 4—(CP) — A sudden-death playoff between first place clubs was made official to be held at the end of the regular schedule of the Ontario Junior Rugby League. It was decided at a league meeting last night, with the winner of the play-off game entering in the Canadian playdowns.

The league executive will make application for affiliation with the Canadian Rugby Union and seek permission to enter Canadian playdowns. The O.R.U. has yet to announce its decision on this point.

Last night's sudden-death decision was made when it was learned the R.C.A.F. team said they were opposed to any move to pick an all-star team to represent the league in the Canadian playdowns.

Air Force and Rough Riders at present are tied for the league title with two remaining games of the regular schedule will be played Nov. 7 and Nov. 14. On Nov. 7, Air Force meet Civil Service and the following Saturday Rough Riders play Civil Service. The sudden-death playoff will be Nov. 21.

Players Not Permitted To Leave War Work

Toronto, Nov. 4—(CP)—Under a ruling made yesterday by G. A. Buckley, assistant manager of the Toronto branch of the National Selective Service, professional hockey players, who have been employed in war plants during the playing season, will not be permitted to quit their jobs and return to hockey unless they come under classification of unskilled workers.

Selective Service officials refused permission to Tommy Cooper, star right-winger with the St. Catharines amateur team, to leave his war work to complete training in order to play for the Toronto Maple Leafs. They said he would have to go to one of the three other war plants in the district if he left his present employment. Buckley considers hockey players' work in war plants necessary to the country's war effort."

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

(By ALLAN NICKELSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Nov. 4. (CP)—An English magistrate many years ago told Eddie Hapgood that unless he confined an urge to bout a football he would find himself in serious trouble. The admonition followed a two-shilling fine for breaking a lamp-post with a kick.

But frightened as Eddie was at finding himself in a police court, he couldn't resist the urge to fool around sometimes. It was the same Eddie, now a member of the famed Arsenal Gunners who captained England in a game against Scotland in the first International football match since 1939 and in a scoreless draw at London's Wembley Stadium.

It was the 32nd time since he first was given the call to an international side nine years ago that the fleet forward skippered an England team. . . . That's a record.

The Wembley match also was Eddie's 41st international and brought him within one of Bob Crompton's complete mark of 42 . . . Eddie's total is made up of 31 pre-war Internationals against British sides, 17 against European clubs and 11 wartime Internationals. . . . He won his first cap for England in two Jubilee games in 1935. He then played his full league soccer for 15 years and followers say he's gold for many more seasons because "he uses his head to save his legs".

The Wembley International maximum crowd of 75,000-odd never would have been more but the police wouldn't allow it—contributed a gate of $62,000 . . . Except for expenses, the full receipts were distributed among war charities . . . The Scottish officials, as in the past, refused to allow their players to be numbered, contending the public needed no assistance in identifying them. . . . The Football Association, whose players made up England's team, have begun converted to the numbering of players. . . . England's men wore numbers on the back of their white shirts. .

Sport has contributed approximately $2,300,000 to the British Red Cross Fund since the outbreak of war, the Red Cross Sports Committee announced. Soccer contributed more than $168,000 of that amount, while rugby and cricket each provided more than $40,000.

A silver trophy known as the Victory Cup and purchased by the Football League Management Committee probably will be up for competition in the first season of League football. The "Victory League" may be run before the return to normal soccer conditions.

CALGARY FANS DISAPPOINTED

Ray Bauer Instead of Bobby Bauer Now in Western Canada

Calgary, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Calgary hockey fans, jubilant yesterday over the news Bobby Bauer of Bauer would play hockey in this city again, today are disappointed. Senior Services League this season were disappointed today when it was discovered that Bobby Bauer, a member of the R. C. A. F., and not Bobby, had been posted here.

Officials of No. 4 Training Command announced yesterday that Ray Bauer was the name of the new man and posted to Medicine Hat.

Bobby Bauer, former star on the famous Kraut line of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey league, has been posted here, and would play in a charity game on Friday night.

It was not discovered until today that R. Bauer, was Ray, youngest brother of Bobby.

Winnipeg Bombers Come From Behind To Down Fliers

Winnipeg, Nov. 4—(CP) — Climaxing a spectacular aerial attack, Winnipeg Bombers came from behind a one-point deficit with a last-minute touchdown to win the two-game total-point Winnipeg Senior Football Series against Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers 24-20 in a thrill-packed game here last night.

Spurred by Ches McCance, veteran backfielder, the Bombers took the second game last night 20-15 after watching the Airmen run away 18-14 advantage after the initial game to a 18-point jump in the first quarter.

THEN THERE WAS the baseball umpire who always dusted off the plate before thumer was served. (Ouch.)

WITH THE FROSTY November nights in our midst, the boys are turning their thoughts to basketball. Fg. Alec Ross, who is in charge of the R.C.A.F. Service Cage Loop, phoned in to say the district Air Force hoopsters would show off tonight with Trenton Air Base meeting No. 6 Repair Depot, while Thursday sees Mountain View pay off the 3d at No. 8 I.T.S. Incidentally Archie Green is back at the helm of the Initial Training School quintette here, but isn't exactly blowing off too much steam regarding the prowess of his team. Actually it's too bad Pt. Lt. Strain Casey isn't back to torment Archie again this season. At any rate the Quinte Air Force basketball loop should provide a long winter of competitive sport in the service.

"ALL WE NEED IS ANOTHER gymnasium and about four more nights a week and we would be able to take care of the boys who desire to play basketball this season," remarked Ed Mills, athletic director at the Belleville Y.M.C.A. this weekend.

"Yes, we hope to operate a six-team senior league, and there are already George Pate has 23 teenaged aspirants for our city juvenile basketball team. He intends to split his anxious kids into two squads and enter both in the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League. There are veteran players in the line-up, such as Junkins, while a team from the Reliance Aircraft, a branch of Canada Cars 19 years ago today? The game was played at the Yankee Stadium and the Toronto club was baffled by the Americans' forward passing, and the 13-7 Yank victories was not permitted under Canadian rules.

IF "WHIPPER BILLIE" Watson is the target of an unorthodox attack at the hands of Tony Morrison and Steve Arcana tonight, he has no person to blame but himself. Both met Martines once before in Toronto when the villainous Italian used the sudden-out as he failed to return to the ring following a knee injury. Martinez has vowed vengeance ever since and tonight he'll get full well what he was in for when he accepted the notorious Mexican's challenge. Actually there shouldn't be a dull moment in tonight's main bout. Skipper Tommy is introducing another new face in the "Puritan Pat" Fraley, who is exactly a gent recommended for a pretty tough party, says Tommy.

NOW THAT THE JUNIOR Interscholastic football curtain has been rung down on the 1942 season, attention, all eyes turn towards today's Collegiate at Albert Park at 3 o'clock. The crew from St. "Collegians" are faced with the task of winning over the Tech elimination in the Bay of Quinte series and in the title battle by Eddie Schrieder, who coached the locals at centre-half, and Jimmy Gordon, who when they were eliminated by Bowmanville and the Tanner boys coached.

Looking over the junior rugby scene, which is a group champions St. Mikes only had their goal line crossed once, while Tech's powerful starting the trick for single in each of their games. Both will tries in each of their games. Both teams, in four games Coach Doran's setette racked up a total of 77 points, while only 13 added against them. The final standing in the junior loop read:

| | W. | T. | L. | P. | A. | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| St. Michael's | 4 | 0 | 0 | 77 | 13 | 8 |
| Tech | 1 | 1 | 2 | 31 | 43 | 3 |

A FORMER BATBOY FOR THE New York Yankees is likely to be the 1943 trainer for the dethroned world champions, a favorite of Skipper McCarthy, ever since he carried bats for the Chicago Cubs when McCarthy was manager of that club. Lefty Gomez, who has been a trainer for the Chicago White Sox, appears to have a big track to succeed Dr. Eric Painter, dismissed last week.

According to a story from New York, McCarthy did not want Painter when he assumed the managership of the Yankees in 1931, wishing to bring Andy Lotshaw with him from the Cubs, but Painter, a licensed chiropractor who previously had trained the Boston Braves, was a favorite of the late Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the club.

Since then, his former batboy with the Cubs, Frodick, became a trainer himself, and it is understood that Joe is ready to install him at Yankee Stadium, as his personal choice.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tombstone"

The brawling, lusty days of Tombstone—the Town too Tough to Die," Paramount film coming next to the Capitol Theatre.

The new movie deals with some of the more spectacular exploits of Wyatt Earp, famed gun-fighting Arizona peace marshal, whose exciting career was at its peak when he tackled the job of ridding Tombstone of its many outlaws. It was the toughest job he ever faced.

"Charlie McCarthy"

A galaxy of top radio stars and screen favorites combine their talents with highly entertaining results in "Look Who's Laughing," the added second feature comedy produced and directed for RKO Radio by Allan Dwan.

Portraying the stellar roles are Fibber McGee and Molly, Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy and Lucille Ball, while the supporting cast is comprised of Lee Bonnell, Dorothy Lovett, Nell Hamilton and Charles Halton. In addition, such characters as Fibber McGee and Molly's popular weekly program as Gildersleeve, Mrs. Uppington and Old Timer are seen in prominent parts.

The latest Canada Carries On feature "The New Spirit" completes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Talk of The Town"

Screen entertainment at its best, combining baffling mystery and top-flight comedy, form the background for the absorbing and hit film "The Talk of The Town" co-starring Cary Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman, which is now ending its Belleville showing at the McCarthy Theatre. "The Talk of The Town" is the kind of picture we promise, that you will thoroughly enjoy, don't miss it.

Gene Autry

Opening next at the McCarthy Theatre, Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Call Of The Canyon" is the special Gene Autry production of 1942. Blending plenty of action and thrills with popular Gene Autry song numbers which include "Boots and Saddle," "Someone Else is Taking My Place," "Mountain Plains" and "Call of the Canyon," Republic studios, makers of the Gene Autry hits, have spared nothing in making this Gene's biggest and best. Information at hand also intimates this is Gene's 12th picture for the duration, as Gene is now in the United States Air Corps.

"Parachute Nurse" a picture for everybody who loves thrills that are dynamite, is the second feature which will be presented in addition to "Call of the Canyon," this week end at the McCarthy Theatre. This week's Foto-Nite offers at the McCarthy are first for $175.00 and the second for $90.00, two large amounts that the management hopes will be claimed.

AT THE BELLE

"The Glass Key"

Suspense held the screen last night at the Belle Theatre where Paramount's dramatic mystery, the Dashiell Hammett murder masterpiece "The Glass Key" starring Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd, was unfurled to a thrilled audience.

"Scattergunned Rides High"

Two thrilling racing sequences are featured in "Scattergun Rides High" starring Guy Kibbee, the comedy attraction. This new production is the fourth in a series of pictures based on Clarence Budington Kelland's famous stories.

The Movietone News completes the program.

"Across The Pacific"

"Across the Pacific" thrilling Warner Bros. adventure picture about a ruthless attempt by would-be Japanese saboteurs to blow up the Gatun Locks of the Panama Canal, will end the Belle Theatre attraction.

The picture reunites the quartet which made "The Maltese Falcon" the hit it was—Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet and Director John Huston.

Lens a Camera on the Screen

Mistaken Identity has proven embarrassing to nearly everyone, and in "The Bashful Bachelor" which stars Lum and Abner the added laugh feature, it almost causes Lum to marry a woman he has been dodging for years.

Everything is fairly peaceful down in Pine Ridge for a comedy until Lum pens a proposal of marriage to Zasu Pitts because he hasn't the nerve to "pop the question," and asks Abner to deliver it to her.

By mistake, Abner delivers the note to the future Widow Abernathy, played by Constance Purdy, who readily accepts Lum and he is only saved in the nick of time in the middle of the ceremony for an uproarious climax in this RKO Radio comedy.

Now on the McCarthy Theatre screen, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman, who are co-starred with Cary Grant in "The Talk of the Town," the picture which combines thrilling mystery and top-flight comedy at its best.

AT THE BELLE

Veronica Lake is loved by two strong men, Brian Donlevy and Alan Ladd in Dashiell Hammett's dramatic mystery, "The Glass Key," now on the Belle screen. Right "Scattergunned Rides High," starring Guy Kibbee, in new starlets Charles Lind and Dorothy Moore in the added laugh feature.

Mystery of the Salmon

By Wildwood in the Vancouver Province

The latest "run" of salmon into the fresh waters has exceeded in quantity even the expectations of the packers.

No river duck or trout will be blamed for eating the salmon eggs in four years ago. Herons will be exonerated of slaying thousands of young fish. Eagles, bears and Indians will be forgiven for all they have eaten, for the canneries were gorged, and a vital war food has been harvested fully.

Why this most desirable of food fishes should demand both salt water and fresh is not readily explained.

To say that it lays fewer and larger eggs than cod and halibut, and these eggs are safer in riverstreet than they would be in sea-mud, is simply putting the question back a step further. Why should the eggs be larger?

There is a surmise that the salmon is just a larger trout that found in earlier ages, the lakes and rivers too small for its food supply, so took to the sea as farm boys do cities, but returned to the home streams for family purposes, because the young had there a better chance for survival.

As the scientist cannot find in the room in egg-cells for memories, other suggestions are made.

Since the infant salmon begin life in the stream with young trout, there must be a chemical urge somewhere driving them to the sea, and this is thought to be a change in the pigmentation of the skin, causing them to be hurt by sunlight.

To escape "sunburn" they seek deeper water and so go downward to the deeps of the sea. That gives the outward journey.

When they are mature, their energy quickens, they need more oxygen and cooler water; they therefore come back to the fresh-water rivers.

This is contrary to the drift of other fish, that go northward for cooler water and find plenty of oxygen in waves and there waters, even "solid" with fish, the oxygen would not be much if fresh for the thousands following.

"Temperature" does not explain why the Atlantic salmon returns to the sea year after year, when the eggs are laid, while the Pacific salmon dies when spawning is over, or why the Atlantic fish does not survive when transplanted in the West.

Malta Air Battle In Mid-October Trial of Strength

London, Nov. 4—(CP)—The Air Ministry described the mid-October air battle over Malta as a "deliberate trial of strength" by the enemy, and said that the enemy, with 138 planes shot down, suffered such a disaster he had to call quits after 10 days.

Besides 131 planes shot down by fighters defending the Mediterranean island stronghold, the Air Ministry said, seven fell to anti-aircraft gunners and many more were probably destroyed.

It compared "infinitesimal" damage to Malta in the raids with the enemy's "staggering" losses.

The Air Ministry ranked October as the biggest of three air defeats for the Axis over Malta this year, Never before, it said, were so many planes destroyed in so short a time as in last month's conflict.

Up to yesterday, it said, the official total of enemy planes downed over Malta was 1,004. The two heaviest defeats prior to October were the April-May period in which 253 planes were destroyed and last July when 151 were shot down.

Little Benny's Note Book

A black and white dog got away from some lady and started to jump around with its leash dragging in front of it, and then the lady called it and tried to get a hold of the leash but every time she did jumping out of her reach and looking as if it was having a swell time. Wasn't it a splendid way, and so were me and Pads Simkins standing there watching, and the lady said, Oh dear this is useless, cant one of you boys take that dog for me? I'll give you a dime if you do, she said.

Me thinking, O, a dime, and I said, I'll get him for you and Pads said, I'll catch him, he'll.

And we both tried to grab a hold of the end of the leash and the dog kept on jumping and obliging, being a swell dodger and seeming to have even more fun dodging two fellows than just dodging one lady, and I got a hold of the leash and quick dropped it again on account of the dog making some more fun and the lady said, Oh dear, why didn't you keep hold of it?

Well I was started to grow!, I said, and the lady said, Dont be silly, I'll just let the dog have fun enjoying himself.

Then she showed all his teeth too, I said, and the lady said, That's just his way of smiling.

And we started to chase him again and Pads got his foot on the end of the leash and hurry up look it off again, saying, Hey, he tried to bite me, and the lady said, Oh, I cant believe that. But if he accidently gets your hand in his mouth, dont try to pull it out again or he might misunderstand. Just leave it in there quietly while I talk to him, she said.

The result being we both claimed we were tired and had to go some place anyways.

CHAPTER 7

Doctor Diagnosis

"That is a trap," Nadine looked at him calmly. "But it is not frightful. Our crowd are young people and we never get what you call 'worn out' from staying up late nights. We always stay up late and we have never even left a party that we drop asleep from fatigue. I felt something was wrong more from Miss Day's manner than her words, and I naturally went up to see. Fortunately Mr. Murray followed me; if I had gone in that room alone, I should have fainted, I know. Indeed, I was so sure there was a tragedy I asked Mr. Murray go in first. Then he beckoned to me, and I followed Mrs. McCleod looked awful! Her face seemed bluish, maybe it was the lights and her lip was cut and bleeding."

"Then what did you do?" Raynor asked Nadine.

"Then Ogden went to look for Dickson, Mr. McCleod's man. He was hovering in the hall and Mr. Murray sent him down to get Doctor Lloyd and when Lloyd came he sent Ogden and me away."

"Have you any knowledge of any one who could have caused Mrs. McCleod's death?"

"No."

"Have you any idea, any suspicions?"

"None, Captain Raynor. All the guests were her friends or her husbands, so how could they be suspected?"

"Yet it was done by someone in the house. No one has voiced any suspicion of the servants."

"Oh, no! A servant would have no reason to kill Alma!"

"Why do you say that so positively?"

"Because Alma was the grand sort. She had no associates with the servants. They had no access to her, except just the tops."

"The tops?"

"The upper servants, I mean. Foo Chow and Dickson and Linda, her own maid. She never saw the others to speak to."

"What do you know about Linda?"

"Not much. She is a superior maid, and Alma set great store by her. But only as a servant. She never was friendly with her."

"Would Linda, perhaps, resent this?"

"Oh, no. Linda is a perfect servant. And Alma was generous. She gave the girl her cast-off clothes, which they were almost new. She gave her holidays and presents of money now and then and she remembered her in her will."

"Then Linda knew that?"

"I don't know. Probably. But Linda didn't kill her to get the legacy! Don't get that bee in your bonnet!"

"How do you know?"

"I know everything. I am psychic."

"Psychology is a great science, Miss Glenn. But the psychic term permanent does not greatly impress policemen."

"No; it requires education to understand it."

Though meant to be scathing, this remark brought only a slight smile to Raynor's eyes, and he went on: "There were two maids, one accidentally looking after the ladies' wraps."

"Yes, an extra, from somewhere. But she cannot be suspected, Dickson had his eye on her."

"I do not suspect her. Nor, at present, any of the servants. Also, no intruder from outside seems to be out of the question. That brings us to the guests again. I daresay if you suspected anyone, you would not divulge the name?"

"I'm not sure whether I would or not. But I have no suspicion."

"That's a pity! For you have told me you know everything."

"I didn't mean in that sense—but you cannot understand."

"You might be surprised to know how fully I understand. I have made a study of psychology, under the best available teachers, and it is useful in my work at times. Yet plain police inquiry is necessary. Tell me this, Miss Glenn, supposing you were assured that it was one of what you call 'her crowd' who killed Mrs. McCleod, would you surmise it was a woman or a man?"

"Man, most likely. A woman can hate harder, but I don't think will be strong enough for killing. A man of life in a moment of madness and repents afterwards."

"Yes, there are rules. But rules have exceptions. You never wanted to put an end to Mrs. McCleod's life, herself, I suppose?"

"I've been waiting for that. And the truth is, I should have welcomed the news of her death, had it come suddenly by natural causes."

Raynor nodded. "Yes," he said. "Yes. You wouldn't tell me. Why, I know. But does it not seem strange to you that a woman so lovely and so beloved should have no admirers?"

"You put it strangely. But it is not inexplicable to me. Alma was a queen and a tyrant. She ruled her subjects with a rod of iron; she exacted implicit obedience in all things, and—one time—it went too far."

"Have you thought at all," Raynor said, "as to a motive for the deed?"

"I have often dread lists of the most usual motives for murder," Nadine told them, "but in this case, I think it must have been jealousy of—children, blinding rage."

"Or both?"

"Or both."

They were silent a moment, and then Raynor said: "You have helped me a lot, Miss Glenn. Thank you."

Accepting his tone as a dismissal, she rose to go.

"I may want to see you further, Miss Glenn. Please leave your address with Mr. Bacon."

"I will, Captain Raynor, I suppose you will be talking with Mr. Murray."

"Yes."

"Well—and this is not merely litnature—take whatever he says with a grain of salt. I mean, if he tells you anything of great interest or importance, have it verified before you act upon it. And don't believe anything he says about me."

"Why not?"

he will speak against me if he has the chance."

"Because he's down on me. And

"You stood beside him to look at your dead friend," Raynor spoke gently. "Does not that constitute a bond?"

"Not between me and Ogden Murray, no! It was more chance that brought that about. He did not love Alma, but he was making use of her."

"How?"

"Oh, just in a matter of finance. Alma had a new get-rich-quick scheme and he wanted her to invest in it."

"And she do so?"

"I'm not sure. I think so. But get his word for it and then get somebody else to corroborate it."

"I see. Is he in love with you?"

"He's not in love with anybody but his own dear self. But he pretends he is."

"Thank you, Miss Glenn."

Harry opened the door for her. Because of Nadine's hints and implications Raynor called Ogden first.

This new witness came in with a quick, firm step and an assured manner. He took the chair indicated and awaited questioning.

"As one of the first to see Mrs. McCleod after her death, Mr. Murray, will you give me an exact description of her appearance?"

"As nearly as I can," Murray said, in a crisp, business cut tone. "I followed Miss Glenn up the stairs and she was badly frightened, because of Miss Day's scream, she made me go into the room first. I stepped in and bent over to the couch where Mrs. McCleod lay. I felt sure she was dead, and I beckoned Nadine to come in."

"What did Miss Glenn say or do?"

"She didn't say anything. There was a big pillow on the floor, and she picked it up and threw it on the bed. I don't think she knew she did it, it was a natural gesture for a woman, sort of cleaning up, you know."

"And then?"

"That's all. I went to the door and told Dickson to go down and bring up Doctor Lloyd. Then Doctor Lloyd said Alma was dead, and he showed us out of the room."

"And you and Miss Glenn went downstairs in spite of—"

"We did."

"Where do your suspicions rest, Mr. Murray?"

"I have no any suspicions, and if I had they wouldn't rest anywhere. I should be using them to the limit."

"Well, then, who, in your judgment, could not have done it?"

"Any one of the ladies?"

"I hadn't thought of that. No, I wouldn't put it past all of them. It does seem more like a woman's deed. A man would shoot or stab or even strangle, but he wouldn't pick up a pillow like another the girl!"

"You knew Mrs. McCleod very well, Mr. Murray?"

"We all knew each other pretty well in our crowd. Frankness is the fashion nowadays, but our frankness is not always the truth."

"You mean when one is announcing his life ex an open book, there may be some pages stuck together."

"Some pages easily read, but no fairy stories."

"But you never offer fairy stories, Mr. Murray?"

"About what?"

"About investments, perhaps."

"I'd rather you speak out, Captain Raynor. I don't like veiled allusions."

"Well, in really now, that wasn't much veiled. More plainly then, do you deal in business matters that are so attractive an investment that their description sounds like a fairy tale?"

"My business affairs are not getting into the inquiry, and I decline to answer your irrelevant questions."

"You have practically done so. You say nothing about the appearance of Mrs. McCleod then, that gave you any hint or clue as to her assailant?"

"I have not. But there was a bracelet—did Miss Glenn tell you about that?"

"A bracelet? No; I think not."

Raynor seemed uninterested. He had already used Murray up pretty well.

"It seemed to me as if it might be important."

"Yes?"

"Well, see what you think. Nadine said—I stood only a few minutes looking at Alma, when Doctor Lloyd came, but Nadine's quick eye had spotted a new bracelet on Alma's arm—a bangle she called it."

"And you think that points to the murderer?"

"I don't know, but Nadine said it was a very grand affair. Just a single row of good-sized diamonds."

"The point being, that the bangle was given to Mrs. McCleod very recently?"

"Very, indeed. She had not been wearing it while she was downstairs. The point is that she had received a gift and that it might well have been given her by the murderer."

"Plausibility doesn't count in a crime passioned. Alma had many friends; say, one of them gave her the bangle and then ugh! had a lovers' tiff, and in a rage he grabbed a pillow and, with no intention of killing her he held it over her face an instant too long. There's a theory for you."

"Interesting, but lacking any proof or evidence. But I must ask you directly, were you making or proposing to sell her any shares or interests in some money-making scheme?"

"Sings, that has no bearing on the inquiry, sir. Nothing, I repeat, is due to tell you anything about my financial dealings with Mrs. McCleod, if any."

"Then I shall have no find out in some other way."

"You have my permission to do so."

"That is all, for the present, Mr. Murray. You are excused."

As Murray went out, Dickson appeared at the door saying that Mr. McCleod begged that his turn might come now, as he wished to go up to his father's apartment.

MAJ. S. L. SEYMOUR KILLED IN EGYPT

SON OF MRS. I. L. MOORE

Only son of Mrs. I. L. Moore, and former resident of this city, Major Stanley L. Seymour, Australian Army Medical Corps, was killed on duty in Egypt on October 26th, according to a cable received today by Mrs. Moore from her daughter-in-law Mrs. Seymour in Adelaide, Australia. Major Seymour would have celebrated his 32nd birthday this week.

A brilliant student, he entered McGill University at the age of 16 and was graduated in science and medicine. He was an interne for a year at Kingston General Hospital, later married Miss Betty Elliott, a McGill graduate. He returned to Adelaide, Australia six years ago and was a partner with two other physicians in one of the largest clinics in Australia.

On the outbreak of war, he joined the Australian Army Medical Corps and served with that unit in Syria. He accompanied the first British convoy across Libya and for several months was besieged in Tobruk after returning from Benghazi. In Tobruk, he was in charge of an underground hospital.

After the relief of Tobruk he was sent last December to Palestine and Syria where he took a special course of the study of malaria fever under the noted Viennese specialist Dr. Adler. This year he returned to Egypt with his unit and was killed in action late last month.

Convention Report Given Kiwanians

Although the district convention for Kiwanis Clubs was held in September of this year, the total numbers did not fall below a delegate's report until the Tuesday luncheon at the Quinte Hotel but this was entirely due to programs, which had been arranged well in advance, and no spot could be found to work the matter in. The wait was worthwhile as Jack Trudeau, Jack McVeigh and Harold Carruthers gave comprehensive reports each member taking one day of the convention. The splendid reports are only of interest to Kiwanis members, they did show, however, the tremendous amount of work that is being done in this district town at a time we afford Speakers of the convention were Harold Carruthers, Lieut.-Governor, Information, Mitchell F. Hepburn, former premier of Ontario, and Fred McAllister, International

Christmas Tree Lighting Inside Homes Allowed

Belleville householders will be allowed to light up Christmas trees and decorations within their homes from December 24 to January 1 inclusive, it was announced by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission Tuesday.

The concession applies strictly to trees and decorations inside a house, and to those within the limits of Christmas decorations of any kind on trees or inside or outside stores is still prohibited under the Dominion Power Controller's regulations which ban ornamental lighting.

Other Restrictions

Further restrictions announced by the Power Controller's office include: Used car lots will be allowed only three watts per 100 square feet of area and only during the hours when the lot is in use and in no case after midnight.

Car parking lots will be allowed one watt per 100 square feet of area while in use.

Floodlighting cannot be used in lighting up store show windows nor can any such light fixtures be installed at the front of a store to illuminate the windows. Pendulum fixtures which are installed and in the windows to the store are also banned.

Decorative lighting on "joke horse" or "joke" signs is only enough light to operate them allowed.

Some Concessions

Concessions which have been made by the Power Controller include: allowing of electric air horns on new automobiles and on blind vendors or crippled or disabled persons when no other form of heating exists.

Allowing of electric air heaters in passenger automobiles when no other form of heating exists, the power supplied to be kept at low voltage.

The restrictive measures with regard to the use of electricity have been made by the Dominion Power Controller, Ottawa, and not by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

London, Nov. 4 —(AP)— With the Axis in full retreat through Marshal Rommel's left wing, the battle of Egypt is swelling into a phase of the drive of what may be the decisive engagements in the struggle for control of the Mediterranean area.

This is not time for prophecy but the nature of Montgomery's assault and the enemy's desperate efforts to hold behind it warrant the belief that he is smingarad the big target of annihilation for the Axis in North ern Africa.

Rommel could not let the slowness of movement in the opening days of this push for the Nile blind us to the fact that it represents one of the major efforts of the whole war. The British commander is going about his task in the direct and methodical way that Montgomery is calculated to bring him the best results with the minimum loss. His aim is the destruction of Marshal Rommel's armies.

These steel monsters are the Nazi marshal's Locks of Samson. Once they are shorn of their strength he will be largely reduced.

Hitler has frequently driven generals — and it appears to be probable that Rommel is one of them — we may expect sensational developments.

One of these is likely to be a desperate effort by Hitler to save his servant by ordering counter-movements to him.

And it may be assumed that the Allied high command has not just left a breach between Montgomery's pool and left him to sink or swim without further aid.

Montgomery suddenly flung an infantry attack—preceded by heavy bombardment from artillery and the air and followed by tank-action—on one of the strongest points in Rommel's defensive line.

Such a frontal assault is one of the most difficult operations in warfare. It is necessary for the infantry to lead the way because it is only they who can clear the mines directly against heavy artillery because the troops had broken through.

The ferocity of the British attack and the fact that Montgomery is on front of some 4,000 yards. There was a bitter hand-to-hand fighting pointed out by Reuters correspondent.

Rommel rushed a fleet of tanks to counter-attack but failed to stop the advance, but the Allied air force intervened with devastating effect.

Montgomery had chosen this strong sector for his attack because here the defenses were weak. The tactics were rewarded when the British Eighth Army reached Tel El Akakir—the hill of the wicked men —from the north. This strategically important ridge and the firmer terrain to the west are better adapted to tank manoeuvres than the shifting sands in other sectors.

Rommel has had the increase in freedom of movement for armored forces by the use of electricity here. This was precisely the situation which Montgomery was aiming to create.

Should things go well with the Allied attack, a big opportunity will develop into flank movements which will threaten the communications of large forces of the enemy unless they withdraw with all speed.

Here we shouldn't forget that the chief Marshal is one of the shrewdest captains in the war. You can't say that he is beaten until you have his scalp at your belt.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Golds were off in quiet and sluggish volume on Toronto exchange this afternoon, but industrials weakened with shares.

Hollinger gained 35 cents to 6.15, while Preston 1-8 and smaller gains were boarded by Kerr-Addison, Sherritt Gordon, Preston, Teck, Lake Shore fields, Kirkland Lake, Central Patricia and Wright Hargreaves. Losses to 27 appeared for Chesterville.

Noranda and Mining Corporation were stronger base metals and International Nickel and Steep Rock were down narrowly. Western oils held steady.

Of 74 sold off 1-2 to 8 1-8 on the news that a dividend was not declared. Base metals were utility and miscellaneous issues ruled higher. Trade in the war was active on a sale of 1-2 to 3 1-2.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Stocks showed a lively response today to Democratic victory results, advancing fractions to around a point at the outset but later yielding a substantial portion of the gains under profit-selling.

Displaying the best resistance under the profit-taking were Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Douglas, Curtiss-Wright, American Rolling, Johns-Manville, Great Northern and Westinghouse. Steels were the least resisting a peak for the year.

Canadian stocks, Dome Mines gained 1-8 and Distillers Seagram 1-8 while Canadian Pacific was off 1-8. In the bond market Canadas & were 1-4 point higher.

Hog Quotations

Samuel Aziz Injured While Crossing Street

Trenton, Nov. 4—(Special)—Samuel Aziz, 65-year-old retired merchant here was taken to the Belleville General Hospital at 10:30 a.m. today after being struck by an R.C.A.F. automobile while he was crossing the street in front of the City Cafe. It is understood he is not seriously injured.

The elderly man was rendered unconscious and taken to the home of Dr. J. J. Farley and after examination ordered to the Belleville hospital.

The ambulance driven by Gilmour, accompanied by LAC Singleton, was proceeding to Gen. Gordon's Corner to pick up Flight Lieutenant Wilcox to take him to the station hospital when the accident occurred.

No ambulance siren was blowing at the time.

ROMMEL SMASHED IN EGYPT

Allies Batter Way To New Gains In Guadalcanal

Once-Proud Army Racing in Retreat Across the Desert

British Forces Closely Pursue Remnants And Bent on Its Utter Destruction

9,000 PRISONERS TAKEN

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—An official British source said today that Marshal Rommel's army "is bested" and predicted that its fate would be finally sealed soon.

Rommel's army is "routed in comparatively narrow defile along the coast and the Germans and Italians are being "hunted like rabbit" with every weapon at the Allies' command, this source declared.

He said the British army already has taken "a hell of a lot of prisoners" and will take more, but indicated that the greatest slaughter is being inflicted on "virtually-helpless Italians."

This, he added, is Britain's answer to those who said Britons could not fight on land and could not forget old school-tie traditions.

It was also the answer, he said, to those who scoffed at British and American equipment and he declared it is the frank British intention to turn the roads of Egypt and Libya and the desert tracks mercilessly into streets of death.

This source said that Rommel is known definitely to be in the desert but that he is not directly engaged there.

"It is impossible to be too optimistic" about what has happened and what will happen in the North African, declared this source who ordinarily is extremely reserved in comments on war operations.

He hinted that besides the land and air forces, naval forces also are smashing steadily away at Rommel and that some of the Allies' finest regiments are in reserve waiting for their turns.

This source expressed belief that the Germans had their main supply dumps in the Tobruk area and that they would not find it possible this time to save as many as they did when Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie, then commanding the 8th Army, was chasing them. "We've got Rommel where we wanted him," he said, "and the German soldiers are getting to find out what the kind of warfare they have inflicted on civilian populations is like."

Cairo, Nov. 5 (AP)—Weakened by the loss or thousands of men captured, killed, wounded or isolated in their desert strongpoints, a once-proud Axis army was in full flight today with Egypt's air in a hunt for position to avert destruction.

Only a rearward meeting screen of anti-tank guns and machine-guns of the bulk of Marshal Rommel's German army the greatest offensive advance of the 8th Army while a comparatively impotent air force sought to keep the combined forces of the R.A.F., R.C.A.F., U.S. and South African air forces.

While 9,000 prisoners, by a count of the Germans themselves, fell into the British rear, the Allied air forces kept blasting away at what was the main coastal line of retreat was described as a graveyard of smoking, twisted German and Italian guns and trucks.

The Axis, with Rome acknowledging severe losses, said that Italian and German armies had withdrawn to new lines in the west. The Germans denied that their front had been breached.

(The Italian communique, however, indicated a depth of the 8th Army's drive—at least its tank spearheads—when it told of "fierce and bloody fighting" by tank and infantry forces at both sides between El Alamein and Fuka.

(Fuka is about 70 miles to the west of El Alamein. The British commanders have not announced their present positions.)

It was believed that Rommel has no line of resistance this side either in Western Egypt or Libya. Most authorities believe that he has his full force had been marshalled on the new-crumbled El Alamein line where Rommel had pushed nearly to Alexandria and the Nile.

(Reuters news agency reported from Cairo that some of the Axis advance posts in the western desert were found unmanned in the first light of the 8th Army, indicating that the offensive had hit the Axis forces by surprise.

King George Sends Congratulations To British 8th Army On Achievements

PRESS JUBILANT

London, Nov. 5 (CP) — The defeat of Marshal Rommel's armies in Egypt will be followed by other Allied offensives which will give relief to the embattled Russians, Lord Cranborne, Lord Privy Seal, told an audience of war workers today.

"This is not the only diversion we can or shall make to help our Russian allies," Sir Stafford, former ambassador to Moscow, declared.

"As our strength and that of our American allies builds up, other offensives will be started in other areas."

He said the 8th Army is "destroying German and Italian land and air forces which might otherwise be joining in the attack on the Soviet armies."

Australian Premier Jan Christian Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, suggested today that Allied successes in Egypt might assume the proportions of a victory which would be "the turning point in this war."

The King described the North African development as a brilliant victory and a fitting climax to the period of elation in British and other quarters.

Allies New on March

Optimism over the military outlook obtainable in Norwegian government headquarters where official opinion is that there's no expectation now that the Allies at last are on the march and there is much to be a second from which will free the occupied countries from the Axis' finest regiments are in reserve waiting for their turns.

This source expressed belief that the Germans had their main supply dumps in the Tobruk area and that they would not find it possible this time to save as many as they did when Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie, then commanding the 8th Army, was chasing them. ## THOUSANDS LOST BY GERMAN ARMY IN NEW DRIVE

All Attempts to Take Factory Section Of Stalingrad Repulsed By Soviet Forces

GAIN IN OTHER AREAS

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP) — The Russians have broken up the latest Nazi efforts to expand the invasion salient in northern Stalingrad and, in some areas, have forced the Germans to abandon several basic points, dispatches said today.

While bitter attacks and counter attacks developed about the ruined Volga River city, Red army troops were credited with local gains northwest of Stalingrad, on the Black Sea front and in the Moscow sector of the Central Caucasus.

Reports said the battle of Stalingrad was characterized by a growing manoeuverability of Red army machine in all Northern Africa.

Observers stressed the heroism of the German attacks, however, and in at least one point they threw in a new tank division, hurling many hand-to-hand clashes. The latest German gain reported was 1,000 Allied yesterday.

The Nazi air force bombed the city's defenses steadily in support of the ground operations. There have been several hundred flights in the last few days.

Residents Want Service Continued

Ottawa, Nov. 5 —(CP)— The Ottawa Citizen said today that a municipal plebiscite in the Oshawa-Prescott highway, faced with a drastic cut in transportation facilities, has petitioned premier ecke restricting big trips to 50 miles per hour after Nov. 15, and planning to petition the federal government to back the effort to retain existing bus services on the highway.

The citizens say the highway No. 16 are operated by Colonial Coach Lines in their trips to Prescott-Ottawa run. The Canadian Pacific Railway and Canada Steamship Lines in the same area, with one train daily, each way, operating between Ottawa and Brockville.

Government transit orders, the petition said, prevent adding more trains to the schedules, but not be prevented from adding buses in operation.

Brockville and Edwardsburg township councils were among those that last week passing resolutions to ask the government to refrain from curtailing bus services," the Citizen added.

A C.P.R. official said he was confident the railway could handle any increase in business resulting from the discontinuance of the bus service.

R.A.F. on Offensive Over Europe 11 Nights, 21 Days During October

London, Nov. 5 —(CP)— The Air Ministry said today that the R.A.F. kept up its offensive operations over Europe 11 nights and 21 days during October. Bombers were over Germany seven nights and one day and over northern Italy three nights and one day.

Throughout most of the month weather conditions were unfavorable for raids over Germany, but advantage was taken of cloud conditions to press home daylight attacks, the Ministry said.

Enemy aircraft were reported over Britain four nights and 21 days during the month, but none were destroyed.

The R.A.F. operations in the Middle East during October cost 139 aircraft, compared with a loss of 386 inflicted on the Axis, the Ministry said.

Referring to the attempted raids on Malta on Oct. 11 and 12, it said the German and Italian air forces "received their greatest thrashing, 39 enemy aircraft being destroyed against a loss of six of our aircraft."

The report said the R.A.F. lost 110 planes over the continent during October and three over Britain, while 35 enemy planes were destroyed.

The War Today—

Allied African Triumph Has Great Possibilities In Future Trend of War

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

London, Nov. 5 (AP) — The Allied triumph in Egypt gives strong hope that we are witnessing the beginning of the not-far-distant end of Hitler's hold on North Africa.

The Nazi all-highest also is having visions of disaster for Berlin, claims a "remarkable concentration" of British warships and transports at Gibraltar.

The Vichy government is reported to be holding conferences about North Africa and from Rear-Admiral Leclerc of the German naval staff we get this:

"Casablanca, on French Morocco's west coast, is a danger spot far overshadowing Dakar.

"Africa swarms with United States agents whose gate turns to Casablanca."

Is Hitler conjuring up bugbears to torture his sleep? Is he "seeing things" in the course and so shall we. Meantime, it is a most comfortable feeling to see him worry.

We must temper our natural optimism with caution because there is hard and bitter work to be done before the Axis armies are annihilated. That is the task before us —the destruction of Hitler's fighting machine in all Northern Africa.

Once before we had our dreams when Auchinleck and Allies much stronger.

Certainly the forces under General Harold Alexander must be jubilant as they pursue and hammer what a communique described as the "disordered columns" of the enemy. When you talk about "disordered columns" in retreat you are talking about a "rout," which is one of the greatest disasters that can befall an army.

Axis casualties have been heavy. These are piling rapidly at the shell-shocked German and Italian soldiers retreat across the blazing sands which greedily soak up the lives of those who fall or are wounded.

Enemy losses in material also have been tremendous and probably the heaviest individual blow dealt Hitler has been in the destruction of tanks. These racing monsters have been the backbone of Rommel's striking power.

The Nazi marshal was estimated to have 500 tanks when the offensive started. Now the British communique tells us that 260 of these have been destroyed.

Many more must be falling by the wayside as airmen continue their devastating hail of bombs on fleeing lines along the edge of the great military highway which skirts the Mediterranean.

The communique also records that 1,451 planes have been destroyed or damaged in the air and 1,100 number on the ground. Many of the damaged planes will, of course, have to be abandoned as the Axis forces retreat.

This probably means that a million tons of the Axis Nazi-Italian fleet has been destroyed. The likelihood is that the figure is nearer three-quarters.

As a matter of fact, especially since the Allied aerial fleet had superiority in the air before the offensive started, Rommel's head from the skies.

Elimination of the Axis from North Africa would alter the complexion of the European struggle.

Restoration of British domination over the Mediterranean area would be a threat to the strategic Middle East.

It might easily result in the collapse of Italy.

The already vastly strength Spain's position of neutrality and this would mean a diminishing which has been a constant worry to the Allies.

We wonder the Fuehrer's boasted intuition is making him see plots everywhere. As a matter of fact it looks as if his intuition might be on the right track this time.

CANADA'S VICTORY LOAN OVER TOP BY $22,281,300

Cumulative Total Is $772,281,300 With Three Days of Campaign Remaining

SPLENDID EFFORT

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—Canada's Third Victory Loan by close of business Wednesday had exceeded its minimum objective of $750,000,000 by $22,281,300, National Loan Headquarters announced today.

Cumulative subscriptions amounted to $772,281,300 and pushed the cumulative total for bond sales to $772,281,300, with three days of the 16-day campaign remaining.

Alberta last night became the sixth Province to pass its minimum objective. The Alberta chairman of Public Relations, F. C. Galbraith, wired loan headquarters here: "Calgary over the top; Alberta over the top. Provincial sales organization have voluntarily raised quota to one-third and they promise to get it."

The other five Provinces past their minimum objectives are Manitoba, $30,000,000; New Brunswick, $20,000,000; Nova Scotia, $20,000,000; Quebec and Nova Scotia. All are now striving to "over-top" their quotas.

Large Subscriptions Recorded

Large subscriptions recorded yesterday were: The Bordon Co., Toronto, additional $400,000, making that company's total investment $1,000,000; National Steel Car Corp., Hamilton, $1,000,000; Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co. Ltd., $625,000; Crown Life Insurance Co., Toronto, $2,250,000.

Essex County Bank Robbed By Masked Man

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 5. (CP)—Bank bandits struck in Essex County this morning obtaining an undisclosed amount of money from the branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada at Belle River.

Two masked and armed bandits held up the staff and then escaped from the bank in a waiting car. Provincial police were notified immediately and a search started throughout Essex and Kent counties.

The Stoney Point office is operated in conjunction with the branch of the Provincial Bank at Belle River, which was looted of approximately $4,000 in two daylight robberies several weeks ago.

Police said the two bandits carried a revolver in the stoney robbery and that the description of this man was supplied police in the earlier robberies.

He was tall, wearing a light coloured overcoat and hat. No description was given of the second man.

The pair fled in a car bearing Ontario License "L-4-16."

Last week, the St. Joachim branch of the Provincial Bank was robbed of $2,500. No trace of the robbers of this bank nas yet been found.

NEW MINISTERS APPOINTED TO FOUR COUNTRIES

Maj.-Gen. Odlum, Now in Australia, Will be Minister to China

DAVIS TO AUSTRALIA

Ottawa, Nov. 5 —(CP)—Appointment of new ministers to Russia, China and Chile and a new high commissioner to Australia was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday. At the same time he would soon announce additional appointments.

The Prime Minister announced filling the four posts vacated by diplomatic vacancies as a press conference in the Privy Council office.

The new ministers are:

Maj.-Gen. Victor W. Odlum, 62, first Canadian Minister to China; L. D. Wilgress, 50, Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, first Canadian Minister to the Soviet Union; Warwick Chipman, 63, Montreal lawyer, Canadian Minister to Chile.

The other appointment was that of Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, 63, Saskatchewan lawyer and Associate Counsel to the National War Services, as Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, succeeding Gen. Odlum.

Appointed in 1941

Gen. Odlum, a veteran of the First Great War and a brigadier-general at the age of 35, was commander of the 2nd Canadian Division's artillery in France. He returned to his appointment late in 1941 as High Commissioner to Australia.

NOTED SHOWMAN, GEORGE M. COHAN, DIES IN NEW YORK

Produced and Appeared in Many Memorable Stage Productions

WROTE "OVER THERE"

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—George M. Cohan, 64, one of the most individualistic showmen in show business, died early today after a long illness.

The "Yankee Doodle Dandee" of America, who produced and appeared in many memorable stage productions and who wrote songs that became household possessions of all the American story, died peacefully at his Fifth Ave. home at 4 A. M. (EWT) a few hours after he passed into a coma.

Life Was Ill for one year.

At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Ethel Cohan; his daughters, Mrs. George Ronkin, and Helen and Georgette Cohan, and his old friend, Sam Harris. Also present was his son, Pte. George M. Cohan, Jr., and

A tribute to the affection that Cohan won and maintained among Americans of all walks of life was paid recently in the form of a telegram from the cavaliers, Dixie Dandee," currently appearing with James Cagney depicting Cohan.

Equally well-known as a song writer, actor and producer, Cohan had been inactive for some time. His last important role was in the musical comedy "I'd Rather Be Right," in which he portrayed President

Jap West Flank Forced Back By Fighting Marines

Machine Guns And Artillery Captured Relieving Pressure On the Airfield

NO SEA ACTION

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—Persistent battering of the Japanese by land and air gave American and Allied fighters fresh ground gains today in besieged Guadalcanal.

Further widening of an attempted Japanese vise that threatened to close on the American airfield area in Guadalcanal, marines and soldiers forced back the enemy's western flank, capturing about 20 machine-guns and knocking out field artillery piece in the process.

The navy reported the continued battering of Guadalcanal last night, supported by army and navy planes that strafed and bombed the Nips' pounce troops and positions, the forces inched forward along beaches and through the dense under brush Monday (South Pacific time) in relieving the pressure of the important airbase.

At the other end of the newly-installed enemy vice, east of Henderson field, Japanese troops presumably were maintaining only a thrust at the spearhead of the American aerial assault on the foe's sabre, troops and headquarters. Last night, however, the navy said "there is nothing to report."

Enemy warships, which disappeared after suffering heavy damage Oct. 26 in a major air-naval engagement east of the Solomon Islands and about 400 miles northeast of Guadalcanal, are expected to reappear in formidable numbers, Navy Secretary Frank Knox has said.

Toronto Man Lost in Woods In N. Hastings

Bancroft, Nov. 5 (Special)—Provincial police and posses of hunters and woodsmen are scouring the woods seven miles north of Wooler, Northern Lake in a search for John Wilking, 20, of 68 Erskine Avenue, Toronto, who has been missing from the Allan Gunter hunting camp since Monday.

Wilking is a member of a deer-hunting party of seven men and women which arrived at the Gunter camp last Sunday. The camp is eighteen miles southeast of this village.

Apparently an inexperienced hunter and woodsman, Wilking was told not to cross more than two ridges when he left the camp on Monday. He has not been seen since.

When he failed to return on Monday night, members of his party became alarmed and conducted a minor search for him during which a box of shotgun cartridges was fired in an effort to locate the whereabouts of the missing man.

Provincial constable S. J. Felmaster was called in and after questioning others in the hunting party proved futile, organized a searching party of hunters and woodsmen including Purlington Chard, Cabbel Forestry Tower ranger and William Lamphier, Fire ranger.

Smoke fires were lighted at various locations in the densely wooded area all day Wednesday, but these were unnoticed apparently by the missing man.

The territory in which Wilking is lost covers twenty-five miles of thickly wooded country. Temperatures dropped to freezing level, and there has been no thaw in the district since Monday. There is no snow in the woods, and this factor is handicapping experienced trackers.

TwoNaziGenerals Lost to Rommel

Cairo, Nov. 5—(AP)—The Germans lost the services of two talented general officers in the bloodletting up of Marshal Rommel's defensive position on the El Alamein front, it was learned here today. They are Gen. Georg Von Stumme, killed and General Ritter Von Thoma, captured.

Von Stumme, 56-year-old veteran of the First World War, who was decorated by Hitler in May, 1941, with the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross. He is said to have taught Rommel how to handle armored divisions.

Von Thomas, 51-year-old Bavarian, commanded the German Afrika Corps in December of 1941. Reputed to be one of the most outstanding tank experts.

He was the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross in the last war.

QUEENS STUDENT MISSING

Toronto, Nov. 5. (CP) — P.O. Arthur Douglas Walker of Toronto, formerly rugby player for Queen's University and Balmy Beach, is reported missing, believed killed, his parents revealed today.

He was a navigator and bombardier of a four-engine Anaconder bomber and took part in a dozen or more raids over Germany.

Nearly 100 Axis Planes in Desert Destroyed by Free French Paratroops

London, Nov. 5 (CP)—Fighting French parachute soldiers have dropped far behind the Axis' desert lines and knocked out almost 100 planes on enemy airfields, Reuters News Agency reported today in a dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon.

It said the parachutists were picked men from a corps of specialists who had made forays at Barce, near Bengasi, and Martuba, 60 miles northwest of Tobruk.

The dispatch said the raiders including those incurred in one raid on Crete, have been killed, four prisoners and 13 missing. (The dispatch did not indicate how the men were able to get back to the Free French lines at bases. Boats might pick them up on the coast.)

The men were trained in Britain and sent to Libya where they acted first as instructors and, with their British comrades, staged the biggest and most spectacular raid before the Allied offensive was launched.

They left an air base in the Fuka-Fuka area, they were said to have set 66 enemy lines afire in a few minutes. They lost one man.

Ottawa Not Able To Confirm Facts Of London Report

Ottawa, Nov. 5— (CP) —Prime Minister MacKenzie King yesterday said in a press conference, the government had not yet been able to confirm the facts of a London report that the Vichy government is handing over to the Axis 15 French warships now interned in French Mediterranean ports.

Announcement of Vichy action was made in London yesterday by the British ministry of war, Henry Peterson.

Asked for comment on the report, Mr. King said he was aware of the report but had not received confirmation. He declined to speculate as to whether this action, if confirmed, would affect Canada's relations with Vichy.

"All the facts will be taken into consideration," Mr. King said.

YOUNG PEOPLE HEAR TALK ON TEMPERANCE

The Young People's Society of Tabernacle Church held their weekly meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Smith, Canniffton, with 28 members present. Carl Smith, president, was convener, and charge of the meeting, and took charge of the meeting by devoting his subject under two headings, "The Individual and Strong Drink" and "Remember the Weakness of Others." National Temperance Week. The address was well delivered and showed great thought and work on the part of the convener.

The remainder of the evening took the form of a Halloween party, the rooms being tastefully decorated in appropriate Hallowe'en colors, glasgong and several Hallowe'en games were conducted by the recreation convener, Edith Walker. Doughnuts and sweet cider were served by the hostess, following which a vote of thanks was given to Miss Walker by Rev. R. R. Spencer, who expressed the appreciation of the Young People for being entertained in such a capable and enjoyable manner.

259 DITTY BAGS FORWARDED TO NAVY LEAGUE HEADQTRS.

Members of the Belleville Branch of the Navy League of Canada forwarded 259 ditty bags to League headquarters yesterday. Bags will be distributed to the men of the Royal Canadian Navy and the Merchant Marine who will be at sea on Christmas day.

The Belleville branch of the League has been given a quota of 900 ditty bags and although this number has nearly been reached contributions will be welcomed by officials. Indicative of the work being done by the Navy League and its popularity with the services is the fact that in the first 10 days, 500,000 sailors of all nationalities as well as members of the army and airforce, have passed through 14 hostels of the League.

H. Grills Elected Pres. of Hastings Tomato Growers

Harry Grills, Belleville R. R. 6, was elected president of the Hastings County Tomato Growers' Association at the annual meeting held in Grills Hall here Wednesday afternoon. Other officers elected were: Fred Mitchell, Belleville, R. R. 6, Director; Appointed to the executive committee, Clarence Holmes, Belleville R. 3 Horace Knight, Belleville R. 5; Harry Grills, Belleville R. 6; Dayton Holmes, Belleville R. 6, and Fred Melbourne, Shannonville, R. 2.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Mr. William Newman, of the Farm Products Control Board, Toronto, who emphasized the importance of tomato growing and of growing better quality. He pointed out that tomatoes form an important product in the canning and pickling industries and of this county to devote their efforts to producing as much as possible.

Other speakers were A. T. Streit, Brighton, and Ronald Ryall, Picton, president of the Prince Edward Tomato Growers' Association.

Mr. Streit in his comments of the Ontario Tomato Marketing Board, Prices of the coming year and the possibility of those for next year, formed an interesting basis for discussion. R. Lian Fair, Agricultural representative for Hastings County also briefly addressed the meeting.

President Harry Grills was appointed County representative to the O. T. G. Committee while the association's representative to the Hastings County Federation of Agricultural will be Mr. Fred Mitchell.

Two Charged With Stealing Of Chickens

Provincial Police today arrested Herbert Keegan and Lorne Sanford, of that city, on charges of chicken stealing. The pair were arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court and Keegan pleaded guilty as charged. Sanford, however, chose to plead when he asked the court permission to obtain the services of legal counsel. Keegan was remanded for sentence, while Sanford was remanded until 10 a.m. next week.

Early today Provincial Constables Duncan and Kellogg were called to the home of Mrs. Hamilton Sanford, after a complaint of chicken stealing had been lodged. Mr. Peoples had apprehended Keegan, he said, running from his premises. Keegan was being held when the police arrived. Later investigations resulted in the apprehension of Sanford. Two decapitated chickens were located near Keegan's home and identified as his property.

Crown Attorney R. C. Donnelly, K. C. did not think Sanford's plea after he intimated he desired the advice of a lawyer.

May Be Shortage Of Christmas Trees On Local Market

Belleville market will be devoid of the usual number of evergreens in the pre-Christmas period this year and the trade will be without the customary Christmas trees unless the Tulelight Corporation take the true situation takes a turn for the better between now and December 25th.

According to a recent order announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the cutting of Christmas trees was curtailed on October 31st. This leaves many Belleville people without the annually derive considerable revenue from the sale of evergreens except for the Christmas trees which are now growing in their woodlots.

The order, as announced by the Timber Controller, A. S. Nicholson, restricts delivery of trees cut before October 31st destined for delivery before 15th December and put into cold storage, but these can be delivered after the November 15th deadline.

Cutting in Belleville are most of the farmers offering Christmas trees on the market, and their request greets each day as they were sold in the Christmas season. Unless the situation stands, this source will be completely cut off this year.

However, under restrictions are relaxed between now and Christmas, Belleville residents this year will not find their Christmas presents restricted and the customary Christmas tree.

St. Michael's School Holds Combined Commencement Exercises and Concert

Combining their Victory Loan Concert with the school's annual commencement exercises, the pupils of St. Michael's Academy presented a fine evening's entertainment in the auditorium Tuesday night before a crowded audience. The stage was beautifully decorated in Victory Loan colors and the Victory Loan Committee's famous Commando dagger which has become a symbol of the Victory Loan campaign was on exhibition. Boyd Dopar, student of the school, was palatably attired as the Queen of Canada.

St. Michael's Band, under the direction of Barbara Purdon, welcomed the guests with a stirring march, lusty and in their very masterly fashion contributed various selections to the program. Other numbers included: Queen of the Sea (Rockwell), Flying Squadron (Lawrence), Colonel W.M.S." (Wood), Southern Beauty Waltz (Lawrence), Little Grand Duke (Lemaire), Vive-la-Canada (Lemaire), Overture (Paul Yoder), International Peace (King), and the Skipper (Greenhaw). St. Michael's choir group under the direction of Sister Mary Canice gave a number prior to the program and their singing was splendid, their songs including Over Victory, You Are Still for Canada. There Is No Place Like Home, Dear Land of Home.

Give Short Addresses

The cause of the Victory Loan campaign was very admirably presented in short addresses by Boyd Dopar, Paul Kelly, Jack Hanley and Frank Morrell. Two interesting plays were presented as part of the program. The first was the "Victory Picture" a timely dramatization of the Victory Loan campaign. The cast included: Boyd Dopar as Captain, The leading characters were Cyril Holland as Private Smith, Gerald Cannon as the girl and Louis Scanlon as the boy scout. Other characters as airmen, sailors, soldiers, workers, etc. and the leading characters made the most interesting part of the play by three tiny beginners of Grade One who much delighted the entire audience.

The second skit was a fairy tale drama "Blue Boots" with the small children entering gleefully into the spirit of the play, their taking part in the dialogue were: The Boy, Bobby Burke; Betty Lou Fuller as Betty Mary, Vivian Cannon; Tear Fairies, Carolyn Forhan, Relel Grant, and Sunshine, Barbara Purdon.

Awards Presented

Commencement exercises followed the program. The presentation of awards was made by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, Mrs. George Wilson, president of the Catholic Women's League and Mrs. Gerald O'Neil, Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus. The C. W. L. awards were won by the following—Grade One, Barbara Purdon; Grade II—Relel Grant; Grade III—Sheila Fuller, Grade IV—Beverley Meredith, Grade VI—Thomas Lally, Grade VII—Mary Lou Hanley, Grade VIII—Barbara Chaplin, Grade IX—Robert Nolan and Grade X—Mary Ann Hanley. The Knights of Columbus awards were: Grade I—Boyd Dopar, Grade II—Jack Fuller, Grade III—Bernard Hanley, Grade IV—Robert Nolan and Grade V—Robert Dopar. The Knights of Columbus awards of five dollars per Grade VIII was won by Isabel Dopar, and ten dollars prize donated by Mr. B. J. Black and Sons for Grade IX was won by Boyd Dopar. The School Board prize of fifteen dollars was won by Mary Agnes Wilkinson, and the C.W.L. award of ten dollars for meritorious work of Joan Boyle and Robert Fleury all of Grade Ten.

Presents Certificates

Monsignor Nicholson then presented certificates to those students entering their entrance to High School and Intermediate Commercial, and graduates of the second form. In making the presentation he commended the pupils for the splendid high achievements of the past year and spoke on the importance of supporting the Victory Loan campaign. Mrs. George Wilson, president of the school's committee the Victory Loan, spoke briefly of the significance of the commando dagger. Seven hundred of these have been received from the factory to be sent back at the conclusion of the campaign, signifying that Canadians have done their duty in supporting the campaign. The dagger will then go back into active service.

Tributes was paid to the St. Michael's Rugby champions and the members of the team, Monsignor Nicholson complimenting them on their splendid training. The splendid training of their coach which resulted in bringing honors to the school was highly praised. Mr. Doran then introduced the members of the team which lined again won the championship of Hastings group. Captain Jerry Hanley, Acting Captain Don Barrett, Bob Wilson, Bob Temple, Doug Green, Jack Fuller, Jack Hanley, Jack Wardhaugh, Eddie Thomas, Bob Dunton, Gordon Rosamond, John Doyle, trainer. Don Adams, a member of the team, was absent.

80 Per Cent of Hastings Loan Objective Has Been Reached

The commando dagger is slowly but surely reaching the point where it will "stick" in the hilt in the "heart of Berlin" on the Victory Loan campaign chart.

Official figures up to noon Wednesday and reported to the Provincial Committee officials indicate that Hastings County has subscribed $1,700,000 or 80 per cent. of its quota of $2,100,000.

City subscriptions are also nearing the goal. Up to noon yesterday they had brought the total to an amount of $612,000 or 90 per cent. of the quota of $680,000.

Other county totals released are: Trenton, $243,000, or 89 per cent; Sidney and Thurlow, $200,000, or 83 per cent.; Deseronto and district, $65,000 or 81 per cent.; Stirling and district, $76,750 or 66 per cent.; Tweed and district, $60,000 or 67 per cent.; Madoc and district, $83,000 or 78 per cent. and Marmora and district, $71,000 or 64 per cent.

Victory Program Held By Thurlow School

The following is a report of the "Victory Program" held on Nov. 30 Thurlow school Oct. 30.

The "Victory Program" presented by the teachers and pupils of S. S. No. 20 Thurlow, was attended by approximately fifty parents and interested friends. The program was a combination of "Victory Loan" and Hallowe'en numbers.

The principal, H. E. Darling, acted as chairman and called the meeting to order at 8.15. After a word of welcome to parents and friends the children sang "Stamps Stamps Stamps That We're Buying". The pupils of the junior room did a splendid arrangement of choral reading. "The First White Man" followed by a choral reading "Hallowe'en" by the group of juniors play "Victory Picture" by entire school.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. Morrison of the O. T. C. M. A. an eloquent manner held the attention of all present. He complimented Canadians generally on their war effort, but stressed the fact the war was not yet won, that Canadians really do not know what sacrifices means, but yet might learn.

The program closed with "God Save the King", after which the grownups had a "Bee" in buying stamps of progressive suchre, The proceeds $8.00 was turned over to the Junior Red Cross of the school, for the blanket fund. (Contributed.)

Mr. Hooper's father John Winston of Detroit, noted soldier and journalist, is remembered by Herbert Lott, planist.

Children Under 12 Last June 25 Not Eligible For Beverage Rations

In order to remove a misunderstanding which apparently exists, the ration office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board draws attention to the fact that children must have become 12 years of age before June 30 last, when applications for their ration books were originally filled out, in order to qualify for rations of tea and coffee at the present time.

The page of coupons valid for tea and coffee which was removed from the permanent ration books of children who had failed to reach the age of 12 by last June 30 will be in provision for its restoration in the event of them attaining the age of 12 by the end of the year. There is, however, the possibility of some amendment to this regulation when the next issue of ration books is made.

Various parents have recently written to the ration office drawing attention to the fact that their children have now become 12 years of age since last June 30 and they have given tea and coffee rations. The local office points out that application cannot be entertained under the existing regulations.

Officers' Training Centre No Sausage Factory Says V. C. Commander

Ottawa, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Col. Milton F. Gregg, V.C., commandant of the Officers' Training Centre at Brockville, Ont., said here last night there now was no place for "sausage factories," meaning stereotyping and English-speaking Canadians out of the present day "mass production."

Addressing an audience at the National Press Club, Col. Gregg said 35 per cent of the personnel at Brockville were French-Canadians.

"French-Canadians and English-Canadians went 25 miles there with a will, and as a team bent upon defeating the common enemies, the forces of tyranny and slavery.

Of the men training for commissioned rank at Brockville, Col. Gregg said:

"Above all else we want them to be themselves, to develop their strong points. You may say that this will make for lack of uniformity. Frankly, I don't care if it does. Uniformity in dress, bearing and smartness should be maintained, but there is ample evidence of a diversity of original thinking translated into concerted action than rigid uniformity congealing itself under the fear of the whip lads. The Officers' Training Centre is no sausage factory."

PATROLMEN'S WIVES AS RADIO OPERATORS

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 5. (AP)—Motorcycle Cpl. Ed Orr of the 14 Arizona Highway patrolmen who have gone in the armed services are looking for jobs in the patrol. They won't be hard to find, however. They are training to be radio operators and dispatchers at patrol headquarters.

WARRANT RECEIVED FOR FORMATION OF SEA CADET CORPS

The official warrant for the formation of the Quinte Corps of Sea Cadets was received here yesterday from the Deputy Minister of National Defence, Navy, by Mr. Arthur Wesley, manager of the Bell and J. Cash Company Ltd.

Mr. Wesley is the temporary instructor in charge at which the corps was formed here some months ago and which now has an established strength of 50 boys between the ages of 16 and 17. Twenty-six of the young sailors received their uniforms a week ago, and those for the remainder of the corps are expected in the immediate future.

HOUND IN POUND

A handsome black and white female hound, with a green collar to which is attached a chain, was discovered wandering at large on North Front Street yesterday and is now in custody of City Poundkeeper Thomas Graham.

The dog were no tag, and at the end of the chain was attached a piece of a horse's bit.

The dog will be kept forty-eight hours and if ownership is not established will be disposed of in the usual manner.

$100,000 Fire At Vancouver

Vancouver, Nov. 5 —(CP)— A spectacular, three-alarm fire early today caused damage estimated at $100,000 when it destroyed a sawmill, damaged adjoining industrial plants and cut the main power lines to other plants on Granville Island here before being brought under control.

The blaze, the origin of which has not yet been determined, broke out about 1.30 a.m. (PST) and for a few minutes later two explosions were heard. The second was much more powerful than the first and was heard over a wide area.

Flames roared high in the air from the Overseas Wood Products Ltd., sawmill, lumber drying shed and yard, which were destroyed and the adjoining plant of the Tyee Machinery Company, Ltd., which was badly damaged. Other adjacent buildings suffered minor damage.

Beurling Tells of His System Of Knocking Foe Out of Air

BY SCOTT YOUNG

Somewhere in England, Nov. 4 (CP)—George Howard (Screwball) Beurling doesn't smoke, drink or go out with girls, but he's not a gentle young man either.

Here of the R. A. F. defense of Malta, Beurling sat today on a hospital bed telling how a German he had made out of killing the enemy. As he described it, he was flingying his hedgehog from planes he has shot down, shoving cannon shells across the corridor and looking at his interviewer with big, extremely pale blue eyes.

This 20-year-old face from Verdun, Que., is not seriously injured. He has a cut hand—not a broken leg, as first reported—suffered when the Liberator bomber in which he was a passenger on the first leg of a trip from Malta to Canada plunged into the runway into the sea at Gibraltar.

His first hop is in a cast to cover a wounded heel. He got that over Malta Oct. 14 when the pilot of a Messerschmitt pulled Beurling's own trick—he came up underneath and shot away the controls of Beurling's plane, forcing the Canadian to bail out.

He hasn't flown a fighter since and his record of 26 1-3 enemy planes shot down, 28, so he has been credited with—hasn't changed.

En Route to Canada

When the Liberator crashed Beurling was on the way to Canada to help in the recruiting campaign and he may still make it.

Beurling has reduced air fighting to a diamond-hard system. Let him give it to you in this first interview he has ever given a Canadian reporter.

"First arms shooting," he said. "I have always been interested in shooting and spend a lot of time practicing, especially working on deflection shooting against moving targets.

"Here's the way it works: I try to shoot at 300 yards because that is the range my cannon is harmonized for. But after all, I can't work it that fine and that's where deflection shooting and a lot of just plain shooting comes in.

"You see, if my pilot's grip inside that 300 yards you are shooting two streams of stuff at it. I have figured out how far those streams are apart and I try to get one stream hitting the target, forgetting the other.

"That means I actually have to aim at something else to make my hit.

Speed Allowances.

"So I take a line off an exhaust or something else handy, allow for the speed I am travelling and for what he is travelling, then let go. It sounds complicated but it isn't too hard. In fact it's really quite simple. Don't think some of the fellows apply themselves to it enough."

Then he told how he likes to hit attacking formations—the way he hit the latest wave of fighters and bombers during his five months at the most bombed spot in the world, Malta. His fair hair was ruffled by now and his lean, fine-foot-structure face was restless under the covers. Men in near-by beds in the long thirty-bed ward strained to listen.

"I like to get above them if possible," he said. "You see, they come in on Malta this way—a wave of bombers and then a couple of waves of fighters, usually many more than the bombers and high above them.

"If I can get up above the fighters, I come down in a power dive, probably going up to 450 miles an hour. I go right through the fighter wave.

"I always try for two fighters in a big formation, and it's not too hard to do it if you're right.

Clash to Get Bombers

"By that time I'm through to the bombers. My speed should have carried me a little free of the fighters for a short spell at least. It usually should be a clash to get a bomber.

"I never aim directly for the pilot and most of the way I fight depends on deflection shooting. I practice that as long and often as I can, and I've been practicing for as long as I fly."

There has been some confusion about Beurling's exact score. It is 26 1-3.

He had a score of two in sweeps over France before being sent to Malta last June and added 26 1-3 in the astounding low total of seven flying hours there.

There's one story about his fighting over France that is forgotten by his flying ability better than anything else. He was "bounced" by five Focke-Wulfs while he was alone. He came at them from behind and with the first burst of enemy fire Beurling saw his oddsand-ends.

Dropped Hedgehog

He let them in with wing flaps and wheels and threw his Spitfire into a tight inside loop. It was like hitting a brick wall. The plane stopped in mid-air. The Jerries were miles past before they realized what had happened. They never found him again.

Beurling is not always the first to a fight to spot the enemy, and he doesn't mind a bit if there are eight to one against him.

He told of a battle over the Mediterranean on Aug. 29 while on convoy patrol with Malta's aircraft. The opposition was six-to-seven Messerschmitt and Italian fighters. It was easy to tell that this was a story he relished.

"The fellow in the other plane was Sergeant Stanley (Scarlet) Scarlett of Cross Roads," he said. "We stuck around and played around with them for a while. Then I shot one down.

"We kept on making dirty passes at them until finally they all beat it. I think they were scared after I shot that one. They had figured we'd be easy."

Hedgehog Idea

Beurling hasn't the usual scorn for Italian fliers, possibly because he hasn't thought of it, but he has no respect for the Germans.

"The Italian pilot," he said, "Unless they have all the advantages of height, and sun position they won't attack. Not one in 100 of them will attack. It is the Italian from underneath."

He was having tea while he told this, eating a couple slice of bread and butter with one cup of tea.

Every time he finished he would break his narrative and ask that we make sure his mother was told that leg wasn't broken but just bruised. Nobody spent best be his subject at hand—killing Germans and Italians, outrifying them and sending their planes crashing into the sea.

Water-Soaked Leg.

One of the most interesting objects in the trophy bag beside his bed was his personal log. It was soaked with sea water from the Gibraltar crash.

There isn't enough in the terse items to quote because generally they are just a few words giving the score for the day.

In other items you find a record of two Italian Macchi 202s downed in a Cant bomber damaged. On the day Beurling got three Macchis.

Another day he got two. When his record was eleven enemy aircraft, Beurling was given his first decoration—the Distinguished Flying Medal. He was then a sergeant-pilot.

The day he and Sewell fought six-to-seven enemy planes this entry appeared: "One 109 destroyed. Own shot away." He hadn't mentioned the damage to his own machine when telling of that battle.

Of a flight on Oct. 14 he wrote: "Two 109s destroyed. One JU88 destroyed. Self shot down. Bailed out."

That was the day he was wounded.

This is the man who hoped to return to Canada, see his family and help the Canadian Victory Loan campaign. He doesn't know where he'll be next year but he'll take care either as long as it's the front line or until the enemy not too hard to find.

DEER PLUNGES INTO CANAL

Port Colborne, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP)—A deer, plunging into the canal in its strangest cargo, when a deer, chased by dogs, plunged into the water. Firemen and workmen rescued the animal, which sped away into a bush.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Aging facial lines usually have their origin in eyes that NEED visual comfort; lines-old, sometimes at least-that are sometimes constantly, is strongly indicated. Maybe YOU can afford such a handicap. But however good financially one may be, he or she cannot afford eye-neglect. Nor can the remedy be found in the beauty parlor or the drug store.

The wisdom of the periodic visual analysis cannot be over-emphasized. The advantage in consulting a specialist is hardly debatable.

Make Loan Reach Record

Canada is now looking beyond the "irreducible minimum" objective of $750,000,000 for that amount has already been reached. That was a means of getting the range of the possibilities of the Canadian people's response to the call to make their dollars fight on the battle-front, on the sea and in the air. Where men must of necessity fight, dollars can naturally be expected to bear their share.

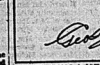
The $750,000,000 was passed some time on Wednesday and salesmen and citizens are dealing with the question of making the loan reach a record total. The patriotic heart of Canada is solidly devoted to its task. These next days will show more and more of that reserve strength of Canada's resources.

Those who have bought can well look over their accounts and see if they can purchase more bonds. Those who have not bought are morally bound to do what ever is possible. For the men who are overseas and under arms here are fighting or are ready to fight for not only every Canadian now living but for the long preceding generations of Canadians. That is a proud task — to dedicate one's wealth to the guarantee of the world's future along the path of light and freedom.

Canadians have never let their defenders down and are not going to do so. Canadians in uniform are showing a fine example for they as well are giving not only their lives but the nation's service as a loan. What they have done has been one of the revelations of this campaign for it has shown how the sailor, soldier, airman and the members of the women's forces appreciate the importance of financial support in giving the efforts of this Dominion the peak of war efficiency and power.

Money is one of the powerful sinews of war. In wartime dollars can be made to serve the highest purpose by becoming keen-edged tools with which to combat the enemy and the train of evils and wrongs he has created and is attempting to impress upon mankind. To fritter one's money which has a national and international aspect as well as a personal one, away on oneself in these fateful hours of history is surely waste when it can be put to the preservation of this world of freedom and justice and the maintenance of the victorious fighting forces. Our men, our boys and girls, may continue to live in the kindly society we know.

Canada has priceless wealth in her young people in the forces, these and wonders. Material wealth can be made to become guns of greatest efficiency which will by their very perfection serve to protect the lives and limbs of our fighters. The dollar can go into every form of necessary mechanism and material and it can become the agent of spiritual force as it is wielded and directed in its great object — to strike the heart of the Axis. What would dollars be without the men and women of heart and action?



Many persons today have an unusual opportunity to invest in Bonds. They have more work than ordinarily and have money to put in the soundest investment, in Dominion bonds bearing a good interest and guaranteeing security of all that Canadians hold dear. Canada has never gone back on her obligations.

Money saved through the war loan will return bearing material interest and a greater interest in that it represents the heart of devoted citizens. It can also serve well in the post-war days of reconstruction.

A humble knowledge of thyself is a surer way to God than a deep search after learning. — Thomas a Kempis.

PLACES THE HEART CAN GO

Within the barracks there are a thousand men,
They eat alike and dress alike and sleep
Beside each other, row on row, yet each
Has special things within himself to keep.

They rise together when the bugles blow.
They learn the art of warfare in the field,
The worth of discipline, concerted strength,
Yet each man's harvest is a separate yield.

They play together and talk of this and that;
They laugh at fear and mock the common fate,
And yet there are a thousand things that each
Keeps locked within a secret iron gate.

Despite the comrades in the neighboring bunks
At resting hour, with the lights turned low,
In the silence of the night, it's strange
How many places where the heart can go.

SALUTE TO A NEW-BORN SON

Dear Son: Though you are five weeks and three days old the cable telling me about you has just arrived and today, for me, is your birthday and I can be a father in earnest. You are so young that I am guessing whether you'd be a little boy or a little girl so all the ruffle-stuff I've been thinking will be discarded for real manstalk. I've so many things to tell you even if we are thousands of miles apart.

You'll forgive me, I hope, for not being on hand to welcome you but a lot of other Americans and I have a big job to do before you and I can take time to go fishing, tell stories and raise a pup.

By the way, I'm mighty glad your mother has a man in the house now—she's been needing you. You're not too young to be told that you have a big job too: keeping Mommy smiling till I get back. Believe you're just the man for the job too. Girls are funny, son, and Mommy is a little sentimental but she's pretty wonderful, as you already know. However, don't get any ideas that you're top man — I saw Mommy first and you're there to protect my interests.

I'd like to show you and your mother this wonderful country — friendly people, our kind of outdoors, horses, dogs and trout streams through green pastures. And animals you'll never believe — kangaroos, wallabies, kookaburras, parakeets, and strange people too — fine handsome black men with fuzzy hair.

Seems strange here on the other side of a troubled world to be writing to you, little fella, and I've known you a long time even if I am so far away. You're a wonderful dream of Mommy's and mine so grow pink and dimpled and get acquainted with your brand-new world and I'll do what I can here to keep it free and fine and decent for you.

So, that our children shall not die
To labor every morning long to Earn up a groan,
And when the toil is over and fair
the place to see
To have it all upset again by thoughtless, careless me.

It must be most annoying when you've got the parlor neat
To have it tracked by someone who has failed to wipe his feet.
And it must be aggravating when you've straightened up the house
To have a husband walk right in and mess it up again.

I wonder how they stand it, all these brave and patient wives
Who have such careless husbands, and with them must spend their lives.
And I've often said "My Nellie is quite courageous has to be
To bear the pangs of living with a heedless man like me."

Soldier: I'm mighty proud to be able to sign this.

Lovingly, your DAD.

POLITE INSULT

An original way of administering an insult comes from overseas, and about it is a flavor and odor of old Holland.

This is how it works: A native Hollander is walking on the street. Across the way he sees a Dutch Quisling, a fellow countryman who has been complacent regarding the German occupation. The loyal Dutchman waves his hand and cries, "Hallo!"

All inoffensive, you may say.

But if you are a Hollander you understand. "Hallo" in this case is made up of the first letters of "Heil aan Alle Laffe Landverraders Op:" words which mean "Hang All Cowardly Traitors."

If I were to spend eight hours in bed every night I would move 4,800 pounds every night. I've decided that's why I'm so tired in the morning I can hardly get out of bed.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 5th., 1922.

The Rev. Dr. William Briggs died this morning early in the home of his son, Mr. A. W. Briggs, K. C., Port Credit, Ontario. He was an outstanding minister of the Methodist Church and at one time was pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, Belleville.

Mr. German Clarke of Hamilton was a visitor here yesterday.

Mr. Tait Elliott of Hamilton spent Thanksgiving Day here.

Mr. John Herity of Toronto spent Thanksgiving Day here with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Thompson have returned home from New York City.

Messrs. Gerald Draycott and Ed. Ridley were home from Montreal to spend Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Grier Roberts, who is attending Toronto University, was home to spend Thanksgiving Day.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 5th., 1912.

Last evening about thirty young people of the vicinity were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moles of Wallbridge.

Mr. Nick Gilbert of Picton was in town today.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, City Solicitor, entertained the members of the city council at an oyster supper at Mr. J. B. Black's restaurant after the meeting of the council last evening. The city solicitor's office was recently renovated and improved greatly in appearance and Mr. Mikel took this means of expressing his appreciation of the action of the city fathers in having the necessary work done.

Mr. William Oster of Toronto is the guest of Mr. Charles Green.

An enjoyable "at home" was given last evening by the members of the Glydona Club in the Academy. The stewards were Messrs. O. B. Green, R. Crawford, C. E. Hawley, H. M. Frost, W. Brotherhood, R. O. Blaylock, W. J. Doyle, E. O. Keeler, R. M. Neal, D. M. McGregor, W. Embury and C. St. Charles.

40 YEARS AGO

NOV. 5th., 1902.

Mr. Will Cunnington, formerly of this city, has been awarded the vocal scholarship at the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

Mr. J. W. Johnson spent yesterday in Picton.

The Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, preached educational sermons in Wall Street Methodist Church, Brockville, on Sunday.

The Misses Holden, George St., are visiting their brother, Mr. J. C. Holden in Montreal.

The city sidewalk patchers have been kept busy repairing board walks which were torn up by boys on Hallowe'en.

The weather at present is delightful.

50 YEARS AGO

NOV. 5th., 1892.

Mr. Nelson Pauley, wife and family, and Mr. St. Roberts of Thurlow Township, have left to spend some time in the Old Country.

Mr. T. F. Pearce, at one time manager of the Merchants Bank here and of late manager of the same bank at Stratford, was given a farewell banquet and presented with a handsome gold watch and chain by citizens of Stratford prior to his departure to reside in Toronto.

Mr. D. J. Lynch has been appointed Police Magistrate at Campbellford.

Mr. Charles F. Hopkins, son of Mr. Hopkins, is home on a visit after an absence of two years.

Dr. James Pavie, formerly of this city, now of Chicago, is spending a few days in town.

SCOTTISH PIPES WAIL ABOVE THUNDER OF BATTLE

The pipers of a Highland division in action on the western desert have distinguished themselves in leading attacks against the Afrika Korps of German Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel in the last few days of fighting. Although the men of his division may not have the native "haggis" to eat in the for-ward fighting areas, they still have the accompanying pipe music with their meals as shown here. Note the Scots have doffed their kilts for the knee-length pants.

Washable decorative trimming for use on painted or papered walls has been invented that can be applied after a thorough soaking in water.

Chile, which began the cultivation of hemp only a few years ago, harvested a record crop of more than 22,000,000 pounds in the last season.

A Pennsylvanian has invented a combined anchor and screw for attaching shelves and various kinds of fixtures to walls made of any materials.

Sheets composed of a mixture of short asbestos fibres, cement and certain chemicals have been developed for roofing small houses in Rhodesia.

A plastic cork coating that can be applied with a brush has been invented to prevent evaporation from pipes, tanks, walls or ceilings.

Exportation or re-exportation from Brazil of airplanes, parts, accessories and articles of aluminum in general has been prohibited by the government.

One manufacturer is testing motor truck tires by subjecting them to 2,500-pound blows administered by a 37-pound weight dropped 22 feet from a tower. . .

The Swiss government has financed the first rayon yarn plant in Mexico, which will supply about one-third of the present rayon industry consumption.

An ink that changes color to forecast weather changes that can be applied to many objects with a brush has been invented by a resident of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The British Board of Trade has permitted the purchase of 500,000 bicycles for export to help meet the gasoline shortage in various parts of the Empire.

Virtually invisible, a metal bracket has been invented to hold potted plants on wooden surfaces without injury.

Vote in U.S. Seen as Demand For More Action

(By ARNE L. SIMPSON)

Above the noise and distant clamor of guns and bombs in North Africa, there hopes are that the election of major scope over Axis foes as the political supervisors, but that is merely a fable. It seems that the commissioners from the U.S. and Canada whose two states were allowed to change the line of demarcation, provided the commissioners of both states agreed. Consequently they ran the line on an irregular course to accommodate influential inhabitants along the boundary who desired to remain in one state or the other.

The Massachusetts-Connecticut line is also a crazy one with the exception of one notch known as the Somers Gore. When this line was adjusted it was necessary for Massachusetts to give up a small northern neighbor a long, narrow strip of land to make the line straight. In turn the Nutmeg State ceded Massachusetts the South-ampton Gore.

Four states meet only on one point in the United States — the common meeting point of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

Tradition says the southeastern part of Indiana was ceded to Kentucky, Arkansas and the Mississippi River because of the influence of Governor William J. Hardeman Walker, if the southern Missouri boundary had been fixed at 36 degrees and 30 minutes along its entire course the Missouri-Arkansas boundary line in which Walker lived would be in between. He did not want to live in Arkansas and exerted his political influence to have the territorial boundary of the Mississippi and St. Francis rivers as far south as the 36th parallel included in Missouri.

The northern part of Lake of the Woods county in Minnesota is farther north than any place in any other state in the Union. This part of the United States cannot be reached by land except from the Canadian territory.

The most southern point on the mainland of the United States is in the extreme southern part of Florida, although Key West, connected with the mainland by a series of viaducts, is farther south.

The slight jog in the western boundary of South Dakota where it intersects the Montana-Wyoming line is an offset due to errors made in determining the true meridian from two widely separated points.

It is said that the crookedness of the Tennessee-Kentucky boundary was caused by iron deposits in high-powered beverages by the political surveyors. But that is merely a fable. It seems that the commissioners from the two states were allowed to change the line at will if necessary, provided the commissioners of both states agreed. Consequently they ran the line on an irregular course to accommodate influential inhabitants along the

Delegation Complains of Service Between Picton and Belleville

Picton, Nov. 5 (Special) — Two building permits were issued at the meeting of town council on Monday night. (1) To Alex Flewelling to rebuild his store damaged by fire a permit for a $15,000 construction and (2) a permit to rebuild had been obtained from the controller. (3) To Walter Thompson for a $300 addition to his residence on Lake St.

Thos. Dumont of Dumo Textiles appeared before the council asking for the free taxation promised him by a former council. He stated he was now operating with 18 workers, and had orders enough to keep the plant operating for three years if he accepted them. Young people of Picton have a good opportunity to learn a splendid trade at his plant.

The Mayor pointed out that the town solicitor was out of town, but on his return would take the steps required, to have a vote taken, to set the rate of taxes on the Dumo Textiles for a certain period of time.

Post No. 91 of the Canadian Legion was granted permission to hold a tag day on Nov. 7th.

Asked to Act as Chairman

A resolution was passed to ask I. R. Calnan to act as chairman of the salvage committee in co-operation with the reeves of Picton and to grant him the use of the town truck as required for collection purposes.

The resignation of Harry Pelen as constable and traffic officer was regretfully accepted. Two applications to fill the vacancy on the police force were received from George Pitt and Allan Vanoni but were not dealt with at present.

The town foreman's report for October was tabled showing an expenditure for salaries and general labor of $789.10.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association acknowledged the report of the Fire and Police Committee on the fire protection of the town and noted the improvements which have been decided upon.

A firm in Montreal wrote offering to buy bottle caps from any patriotic organization in Picton who wished to collect them.

Complain of Bus Service

Two prominent citizens addressed the council citing instances of poor bus service between Picton and Belleville. They were advised to see the Public Vehicle Inspector of Toronto on his next visit to Picton as Mr. Smith receives his franchise from the Department not from the town council.

The report of Dr. D. S. Nightingall, Acting M.O.H., regarding the inoculating of the pupils of Mary Street, York Street, and St. John's Separate School and 66 children of pre-school age was read and tabled.

Life In Navy Described

Life in the Merchant Navy was described by Francis Orpin, wireless operator, speaking at Picton Navy League Club Monday night. He is spending leave with his parents, Rev. E. N. and Mrs. Orpin and has visited many parts of the world. Mr. Orpin spoke in appreciation of the Navy League duty bags. These are especially welcomed by men in the Merchant Navy as they are in civilian clothes and when landing in British require coupons to secure clothing. He stated games were a popular item in these bags and the sailor with any sort of amusement was a popular fellow.

Though he had not been on a ship that had been torpedoed, he experienced several attacks by air but had come out unscathed. He praised the work done by the British, Canadian and U.S. navies on convoy duty.

Food was described as good, as well as plentiful, a year's supply being carried on many boats. His latest boat, a Norwegian, had carried butter ten months and it was still very good.

Stories at sea in which the deck cargo gave the crew a merry time and a least-bend destroyer that almost ran amok when the steering gear broke, were described by Mr. Grant who was thanked by Dr. A. H. Walton.

Fair Board Has Surplus

Enjoying a nice surplus, Picton Fair Board, last night voted to purchase a $500 Victory Bond. A similar bond was purchased during the last campaign. The sum of $126 was voted to patriotic organizations, being divided among the Red Cross, I.O.D.E., Salvation Army, Legion Ladies' Auxiliary and the British War Victims' Fund. Though prize money paid out was greater than usual, the fair, favored by perfect weather, attracted a record crowd and receipts from all sources were the best in ten years, President Sam Dodds reported.

Bancroft and District

Bancroft, Nov. 4. (Special). — On Saturday evening, October 31, Mr. Herman Kelusky of the village celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday. A surprise party was staged at his residence that evening and most of his immediate family were present to honor him on this occasion. Mr. Kelusky is the father of five daughters and four sons; also thirty-six grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren, with no break in the group. Mr. Kelusky was the recipient of many useful gifts and he and Mrs. Kelusky thoroughly enjoyed the family being with them once more. Mr. Kelusky is still enjoying good health and takes an active part in church work.

Mrs. G. W. Jones and Mrs. Stackhouse motored to Peterborough on Monday where they intend spending the week on business.

Mrs. Robert Vance left town Monday afternoon for Peterborough, where she will spend the week, visiting at the home of her son, Ernest.

Dr. J. Grant of Belleville and Dr. G. W. Anderson of Bancroft, held a bowl clinic at the Red Cross hospital, Bancroft, on Monday in which a number of people underwent operations.

RAF Breaks Lull In Air Offensive

London, Nov. 4—(CP)—The British public was without an explanation today for the sudden departure from the air early last night of the principal Continental Broadcasting Stations.

Closing down of the stations usually is an indication that the R.A.F. is out on a night raid but there were no reports today of a night bombing of either German or Italian targets.

The R. A. F. had broken a lull in the air offensive yesterday, with a daylight attack by four-motored sterlings on industrial and railway targets in western Germany and raids on communications in the Netherlands, Belgium and Northern France by other bombers or fighters.

Canadians flying spitfires, damaged at least six locomotives as well as power lines and pylons and casualted enemy trucks, it was announced.

May Increase Pensions In Prov. of Ontario

Midland, Ont., Nov. 4 — (CP) — Mitchell Hepburn, former Liberal Premier of Ontario, forecast last night in an address at a Victory Loan rally here that old age pensions and mothers' allowances may be increased in Ontario.

Hepburn said he hopes as provincial treasurer to be able to report to Premier Gordon Conant "very shortly" that Ontario is financially able to pay increased allowances.

Gore

Gore—Mr. and Mrs. Stan. Barber and Bobby attended anniversary services on Sunday at Centre and were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner.

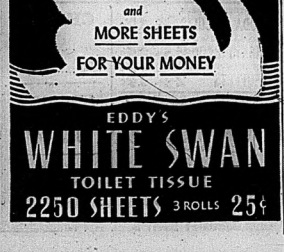
Choir practice was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Purver on Thursday evening.

Centre School held a very enjoyable Hallowe'en party on Friday afternoon under the leadership of the teacher, Miss Foster.

Anniversary Service was held at Centre on Sunday afternoon with Rev. Robins of Wellington taking charge of the service. The junior and senior choirs rendered numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fox spent Thursday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Burton Fox, Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickmish and Marilyn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman.



Mr. and Mrs. Norton and Iva of Carmel were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spencer having attended anniversary service.

PERSONALS

Mr. Arthur H. Jones of Deseronto, has been admitted to the Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Trilan Orser, Bay, N., is spend the weekend in Ottawa.

Flying Officer John R. Mackay, Belleville, has been posted to Rockcliffe, Ottawa, for the past ten months, has been promoted to the rank of Flight Sergeant.

Mrs. J. Hales is now convalescent at the home of her sister, Mrs. G. O'Brien, after a long illness in the Belleville General Hospital, where she underwent a tonsil operation.

At their annual Hallowe'en party on Monday, November 2, the St. Andrew's Y.P.S. entertained Ameowmen from Mt. View and Almonte from Mt. View and 6 R.D. Trenton. Each guest was given a false face and dunce hat which added to the evening's merriment. The Executive was in charge of the entertainment and decorations and had planned many new games and contests. The old-time bobbing for apples provided many laughs. After lunch the Ameowmen sang lunch following the games. The evening ended with Auld Lang Syne.

Miss Margaret Clarke, 36 Chatham Street, was hostess at a very enjoyable miscellaneous shower held on Monday evening, in honor of Miss Anna Hogle, bride-to-be. The rooms were beautifully decorated, the living room with white and pink carnations, in mums and cosmos and the dining room in yellow and blue. The tea table at which Mrs. E. C. Hogle presided was arranged in yellow and blue and was prettily decorated in blue and yellow with the table centre with arrangement was the centre of attraction. Games, contests, the writing of telegrams, made the evening most enjoyable.

Sgt. Jack Ferguson, R.C.A.F., who is in command of the fire fighters of No. 3 P.T.S. Armories, Belleville, and Mrs. Ferguson, with Fire Department, has been promoted to the rank of Flight Sergeant.

Flight Lieutenant Gerard Mulligan, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mulligan, Bridge Street, Belleville, who has been in Montreal, as chaplain with the R.C.A.F., has been posted to Mountain View. Flight Lieutenant D. J. Mulligan, who has been chaplain at Mountain View, has been transferred to another station.

An enjoyable event took place in the Bridge Street United Church parlors last evening, when a group of about thirty-five airmen from Trenton at Base and No. 3 S.F.T.S. were entertained by the Men's Club of the church. The President, Mr. Ross Hall, welcomed the guests and assured them that they would be welcome at any of the Club's meetings. Of special interest was the chorus singing in general of novelty numbers furnished by the pupils of the Carnegie School of Music under the direction of Mr. Alec Gordon. Substantial refreshments were served.

In honor of her daughter, Miss Anna Hogle, bride-to-be, Mrs. E. A. Hogle entertained at a charming luncheon tea at her home, 21 Cathcart Street, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, over two hundred guests attending. The rooms were bright with chrysanthemums in pastel tones, while the tea table was centered with small bride's bouquet and pink tapers. Mrs. Hogle was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Thomas Pue, Brandon, Man., and Mrs. Gordon R. Hunt, Brandon, mother and sister of Miss Hogle's fiance. The door was opened by Miss Doreen Trumpour, sifting at the daintily appointed tea table were Mrs. G. R. Pearce, Mrs. W. Sherry, Mrs. H. G. Retallack, Mrs. H. E. Corby, Mrs. Hope, Miss Ethel Nurse, Miss Margaret Hayes, Mrs. J. C. Gay and Mrs. Ross Hall. The table was replenished by Mrs. R. L. Orr and Mrs. W. J. Neal and the assistant were Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Arthur W. K. Sherrett, Mrs. A. E. May, Jr., Miss Muriel Johnson, Miss Dorothy Keen, Miss Phyllis Mac, and Miss Marjorie Bateman, Tweed. Mrs. P. P. Mrs. Margaret Clarke, Mrs. Earl Hogle, Trenton, Miss Mary Hancock, Miss Harriet Cronk and Miss Edna Johnson.

WEDDINGS

JOHNSON—MOLLINGER

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mollinger, Bridge Street, when their daughter, Mary Evelina, became the bride of Donald Johnson, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Rawdon. Rev. E. M. Cook officiated.

At twelve o'clock to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Marian Johnson, sister of the groom, the bride entered the room with her father. After the ceremony was performed beneath an arch of evergreens, bittersweet, and white flowers.

The bride looked winsome in street length dress of romance blue sheer with fingertip veil, and Mary Queen of Scots headdress outlined with cream roses. She carried a nosegay of white roses, pink carnations and fern.

Miss Verna Sherry, was bridesmaid, wearing royal blue sheer, cap of same fastened with silver roses and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Flight Lieutenant Gerard Mulligan, R.C.A.F., Mountain View, acted as groomsman.

Little Miss Marilyn Hollinger, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and she carried a basket of red roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding party led the way to the dining room, which was prettily decorated for the occasion, where the bridesmaid table with the beautiful parlour of the dinner served by Mrs. Irene Johnson, Mrs. Ernest Wheat and Mrs. J. E. Morgan.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold wrist watch, and to the bridesmaid, a pair of kid gloves. To the groomsman, a R.C.A.F. tie set and to the flower girl, an ear ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left for Ottawa and points east, the bride travelling in a dress of rust wool with an Airforce blue coat, sunset brown hat, brown accessories.

Mrs. Gordon Conant Wife of New Premier Leads a Busy Life

(By FREDA STEPATRICK)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Ottawa, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Because she will "try anything once", Mrs. Gordon Conant, wife of Ontario's new premier, is installed in her new part as wife of one in Ontario's political and social pattern now that her husband is prime minister.

In her turquoise and wine sanctum at her private home, Premier Viola, on the out skirts of Oshawa, she stopped momentarily from a busy day to tell a Canadian Press reporter of the responsibilities that broadened, but they give me the very privileged opportunity of meeting more of the finest women in the world, those in the province of Ontario".

Mrs. Conant wishes she had been born a man. She is in her element discussing business whether it be cooking pancakes for 15 little boys or golfing. She is the township of East Whitby. She thinks nothing of serving tea for 125 ladies and her house parties are among Oshawa's most talked of affairs.

Though she does some of her own housework and makes daily trips to the market, she finds time to put on a dress and something amount of effort into the large number of organizations she serves.

St. John Ambulance brigade in Oshawa honors Mrs. Conant by holding their church parade on the Sunday nearest the birthday of her daughter, who died six years ago.

"When Genevieve went, it took a chunk out of my life", she said, "I seemed lost, and, even now, I get very tax collecting". She has two sons, Gordon Conant, Jr., a student at the University of Toronto, and Douglas, an accountant in Port Arthur, Ont.

Born in Whitby, Ont., she is the daughter of Conservative Sen. R. D. Smith. She has taken an active part of her father's political meetings. At 21 as a small child attended the first meeting of the women's institute in Stoney Creek, Ont., where the Association originated.

As a young girl, she wanted to be a nurse. Leading organizations she made arrangements to enter a New York hospital, female physician discovered her plans and effectively quashed the scheme. She attended Macdonald and Havergal colleges.

Through an efficient organizer, Mrs. Conant has always derived benefits from "extra curricular" activities. She used to sing in the church choir, doubling roles as a soprano and contralto. She played the organ and taught Sunday school. Riding and tennis took care of her outdoor life and she has driven a car for 25 years.

Social affairs should be cut to the minimum with only enough out-

Exercise for a Silhouette

Ginger Rogers recommends bicycling for limberness.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WE ARE pleased to report that exercise is a favorite subject of conversation. When all women become interested in physical culture, statistics there will be much cry crying out loud about figure deficits." Figure deficits? Yes, those calesthenics consist of lifting an eyebrow that she fall into position as to straighten the muscle of the neck.

A good rule for carriage is to keep thrust forward that portion of the torso that is at best below the middle of the ribs. Run your fingers down from the center of your collar bone and you will find it. When it is pushed forward the chest lifts, the abdomen falls in.

Let the arms fall easily and naturally at the sides. Keep the elbows exposed to fumes and gases should wear respirators. Types of masks so that the fumes cannot be breathed in.

Measures now are being employed for disinfecting the air. These measures include ultraviolet light and chemical disinfectants which may be sprayed into the air. Ultraviolet light lamps particularly have been found helpful in this connection.

Protection of the air in work rooms is important to the welfare of the workers.

Parents Warned Against Surprise Visit to Boy in Army Camp

Although he hasn't said so, you suspect that your son is homesick, in camp. You have made up your mind that it would comfort him if you sent a food and cigarette package of your daughter and never-ends and started to put him a surprise visit.

It is important that you change your mind as soon as possible about this surprise visit. Before you have left home, write back a little. Are "surprises" ever successful? Do "surprise parties" ever turn out well? Does the victim is thoroughly informed and prepared for what is coming? There is only one answer.

In the Army, it seems, such visits are even less desired than in civil life. Remember that the greater part of a soldier's life is devoted to routine. He plans in advance for his time off. A mother, however loving, however beloved, wouldn't attempt to interfere either with her boy's work or his play.

There should be approximately 50 square feet of floor space and available feet of air space per person, and there should be adequate light in form of windows or skylights, equal in area to one-twentieth of the floor area. Adequate ventilation cannot be obtained otherwise, some mechanical means of ventilating the rooms are required.

The Army according is meant that not only is the air brought in and removed mechanically but that the temperature, moisture and movement of the air are controlled. For illustration, air conditioning devices take care of dust, fumes, gases and odors. Air filters and washers which have been found effective in getting rid of harmful substances from the air which enters rooms. The beneficial effects of filtered air for persons suffering from hay fever and asthma have been demonstrated.

Because dust, gases and fumes are concerned, these are usually removed by what is known as exhaust equipment. The purpose of this exhaust ventilation is to force pollute ed air from the outdoors but not allow it to spread through the work rooms. If this cannot be done, workers exposed to fumes and gases should wear respirators. Types of masks so that the fumes cannot be breathed in.

Measures now are being employed for disinfecting the air. These measures include ultraviolet light and chemical disinfectants which may be sprayed into the air. Ultraviolet light lamps particularly have been found helpful in this connection.

Protection of the air in work rooms is important to the welfare of the workers.

An Electric Current That Relieves The Dolorous Trigeminal Neuralgia

Anyone who has experienced the pain of tic douloureux, trigeminal neuralgia, will tell you nothing that they have experienced or anything of friends from pain, and leaves just as suddenly.

But during the stay the pain is almost beyond the power of human beings to withstand. Only the most powerful drugs in large doses give any degree of relief.

For past years the ideal treatment to obtain permanent relief was by surgery and it must be admitted that despite other known methods of treatment, there are still some cases in which only surgery gives relief.

Fortunately the injection of alcohol into certain divisions of the large root or plexus of this nerve has given relief in thousands of cases, the relief lasting for weeks, months, years, and sometimes for life.

It is gratifying then to learn of another form of treatment that was suggested in 1937 by Dr. Benjamin Ulanski, Philadelphia, in which relief is obtained. He states that for the previous ten years he and his associates had been using a certain form of electricity for the relief of pain in various nerve affections. The form of electricity used was a modification of the so-called Faradic sinusoidal current. This type of current possesses decided pain relieving qualities. Dr. Ulanski then presented the case histories of several cases of tic douloreux successfully treated by this method. The current used was a 25 cycle or one having 21,600 alternations per minute.

In 1940, again in Archives of Physical Therapy, Dr. Ulanski reported 100 cases treated in which a much stronger sinusoidal current (42,000 alternations per minute.) Eighty-five per cent reported immediate relief and fifty per cent of these have been free of pain for more than a year.

Thus Dr. Ulanski states that the advantages of this method of sinusoidal treatment of trigeminal neuralgia, based on an analysis of 100 patients are:

1.—Patients can be treated at physician's office or at their home.

2.—There is no after effects — pain, numbness or loss of feeling.

3.—This method of treatment can be used regardless of any previous treatment.

4.—There are no possible reasons why this treatment cannot be given and no harm can possibly result from the treatment.

5.—All divisions of the nerve involving the first can be treated.

6.—When pains returns, this method of treatment again gives relief.

Good Ventilation a Stimulus to Workroom Occupants

Although many and wondrous are the achievements of the scientific world, no engineer has yet put forth an automatic device that can adjust itself to atmospheric changes and changes in the temperature and moisture of the air. For example, when the air is too warm, the body perspires. In other words, the evaporation of moisture on the body is cooled. This is just one of the many ways the body adjusts itself. But there are limits to that power of adjustment. And, fortunately, modern mechanical air-conditioning devices can provide ideal conditions both as to temperature and moisture. Thus, whether at home or in the factory, a comfortable climate can be had to work with least bodily strain.

For the average adult engaged in not too active work, the temperature of the room should be between 68 and 72 degrees. There should be a moderate amount of moisture in the air, and the air movement should not be too rapid.

Natural ventilation is satisfactory, as a rule, if the rooms in which people work are not too crowded.

Use Ointment to Protect Skin Against Irritating Substances

When workers are subject to fumes or substances irritating to the skin, it is often possible to apply protective ointments to the skin. This idea is widely used in protecting the hands also the face.

When a protective ointment is used, the worker should remove it with soap and water immediately after finishing his work. By so doing, he will get rid at the same time of all of whatever irritating substances are on the skin.

Dr. Louis Schwartz, of Bethesda, Md., declares that any protective ointment used should fit itself to non-irritating. The ointment should be of such a consistency that it can be easily put on and easily removed.

A simple type of protective ointment is a vanishing cream. Another type is one which contains resin and which, when spread on the skin, will form a thin coat that protects the skin from irritating substances. This sort of ointment may contain such substances as sodium silicate, quince seed, acacia, and tragacanth. Other ointments may contain resin which does not dissolve in water. Such ointments, however, must be removed by a special dissolving solution. Furthermore, these resins take the fat out of the skin and may cause some slight irritation. For some irritating ointments, alcohol or ether may be employed.

When this type of protective ointment is used, it is advisable to put a mixture of lanolin and cold cream on the skin after the ointment has been removed. This will help to keep the skin from becoming irritated.

Still another type of ointment is needed for workers whose skin is exposed to oils, grease, concrete and excessive amounts of sunshine. These ointments contain lanolin and water. Another type of ointment is one which contains chemicals to neutralize the irritating substances. For example, a protective cream against such substances as poison fly, tarring war gases and chlorine may contain magnesium carbonate, talc, soap and castrol oil. Those persons whose work or other activities cause them to be exposed to irritating substances may well inquire into the use of the proper type of protective ointment.

Dear Mrs. Beechman,

I am being married at 11 o'clock in the morning, and am having a reception for the families at a hotel, directly following the ceremony.

There are a few other people whom I would like to invite to an "Open House" at my home in the afternoon. What should I have printed on these "Open House" cards? Should I specify any particular hour or hours?

What would the guests do from the time of the ceremony until the "Open House" in the afternoon? This has me puzzled. Any advice you have would be greatly appreciated.

B. J. S.

I find myself puzzled too, wondering why you are making this awkward plan. For the delayed reception I wish you had given me some hint as to why you are planning to limit your reception directly after the ceremony to members of the family only. It would be so much more gala to follow the usual procedure and have a real reception after the ceremony. Since your guests will be on hand for the ceremony, why not keep them on hand for the reception? So why not have a charming but informal and simple pudding breakfast after the ceremony?

If this doesn't meet with your approval, then I suggest your first invitations to the family merely be in the form of written invitations which could more conveniently be graciously explain your plan. And you should mention the hour, or hours, of your informal reception.

The Plaque of Tableware

Dear Mrs. Beechman,

Last evening my husband and I went to dine at the home of people whom we have recently met. The first course at dinner was shrimp cocktail, and I was puzzled to find the small cocktail fork at the extreme right of the plate. In other words the cocktail fork was not placed with the other forks and I had always understood that all forks should be placed at the left of the plate. Who is right, your hostess or I?

Martha.

Biggest Headlines Herald Victory Of Egyptian Army

London, Nov. 5 (C.P. Cable) — London morning newspapers today hailed the news of the victory in Egypt with their biggest headlines.

"We have waited for this day—for the day when British troops drive the enemy before them," declared an editorial in The Daily Express.

The 8th Army has struck a blow "aimed not to wound but to kill," the editorial continued. "We've pitted into Egypt a vast proportion of the best war output of Britain and much of America's. All the Dominions have fed with weapons and supplies this mighty instrument of the Middle East. We've struck to clear the whole continent of Africa . . ."

The Sketch said it was clear from the course of the battle that British leadership in the campaign, from the highest to the lowest, was supreme. It paid special tribute to Lt.-General B. L. Montgomery and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and added: "We shall probably find the 8th Army performed as great a feat as any of the war."

The Mirror said word that the Axis forces are fleeing in disorder was the "best news we have had since the war began . . . but our powers for work must be intensified."

"There must be no slacking now," it continued. "In factory, workshop and shipyard—in all the places where victory can be hastened—we must not shame our men in the desert."

The Mail cautioned the public that "war is full of surprises and sudden reverses" and warned that there will be hard and bitter fighting yet before the "battle of Egypt becomes the battle of Africa and ends in complete victory."

Said The Chronicle:

"Soldiers, sailors and airmen — fighting with irresistible enthusiasm and with perfect co-operation —may be trusted to do their utmost to exploit this outstanding success and give the enemy no rest until in at least one vital theatre of war he no longer encumbers the ground."

Why

SWEET BISCUITS—COOKIES AND SODA BISCUITS

● Because During recent months the production facilities of all biscuit manufacturers have been largely devoted to requirements for the Canadian and United Nations' Armed Forces, and it is only between "Armed Force Runs" that civilian requirements can be taken care of.

Each week at least a reasonable selection is delivered to and is available in all Loblaw Markets.

IMPORTED AND CANADIAN PACK SARDINES

● Because The famed "Cressed Fish" Sardines, a native of Norway, now at present under Nazi Germany's domination, naturally must be considered "missing" for the duration.

As a result, the demand for Canadian Sardines has greatly increased, and notwithstanding the efforts of Canadian fishermen and packing facilities in the world's largest Sardine packing plant, owned by Connors Bros., at Black's Harbour, New Brunswick, "shortages" as experienced at times, but generally there are at least a few brands on hand to choose from.

CORN AND SUGAR SYRUPS

● Because The demand for these popular products from the lighting forces, war industries, and those on the home front, has been greatly increased, and notwithstanding the efforts of manufacturers they are unable to keep pace with it. It's a wartime problem that is taxing the manufacturers' capacity to the limit.

Even though normal production has been almost doubled, still the demand frequently exceeds the supply.

Then also, the necessary conservation of tin made it imperative that no more 2-lb. tins be packed for the present, therefore only the 5-lb. and 10-lb. sizes are available.

DOG AND PET FOOD IN TINS

● Because The necessary conservation of tin plate decrees that Dog and Pet Foods will no longer be packed in tins. However—"necessity being the mother of invention," the manufacturers of Dog and Pet Food quickly responded to the need and have developed Dehydrated Dog and Pet Food, now packed in cartons, containing the same ingredients as formerly, except that excess moisture has been removed, and all that is necessary now is that the moisture be added and "Rover" continues his healthful diet.

Miss Edith Hagerman is Honored By Friends in Rawdon Community

Rawdon — On Wednesday afternoon October 29th, Mrs. Will Dewsnip opened her home in honour of Miss Edith Hagerman, bride-to-be and over forty ladies were in attendance.

After a social chat Mrs. Charles Yance called the gathering to order and all enjoyed a singing with Miss Mae Currie, Stirling, playing the accompaniments. Several of the numbers sung were specially suited to the occasion. Mrs. Ray Shortt contributed a piano solo while Mrs. Herbert Bonter and Mrs. Thomas Bedford staged some games.

The bride-to-be was given a seat of honor and an address of appreciation was read which was signed by Dorothy Green, Mary Bedford and Nellie Smith.

Edith unwrapped the large array of gifts in red and white graille and graciously thanked her friends for their kindness to her. Several games served as appetizing lunch and all wished Edith every happiness in her new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Donnan and family, Ridge Road, attended Mount Pleasant Church service on Sunday.

Mrs. Ross Ketcheson was a dinner guest Wednesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Read, Fort Hope, spent a few days in Kingston with their son Raymond who is attending University and who has been ill. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Sine and other friends at Campbellford.

Mrs. John Morrison spent a short visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ross B. Wright, Sidney.

He Never Took Her Out Until . . .

He was a fine husband in most respects—but he never took his wife out. He left all the fun out of life in the evenings. They never went to a show or anywhere else together. All the fun and companionship he could find was at his club.

He smoked a pipe—and that was the only kind of tobacco he'd ever buy. Then . . . one day . . . he tried Sir Walter Raleigh Mixture. It was a revelation to him. He found a tobacco he really liked. Without delay, he bought a supply. And he has been buying it ever since. Now he has more money—and better tobacco. He's happier at home. And he's never been more "broad-minded" in his life. Sir Walter Raleigh Mixture is the best blend of ripe, mellow Kentucky Burley tobacco ever put in a pipe. Try it and see for yourself why 1,000,000 pipe smokers call it "the best tobacco in the world." Sold in 15c tins everywhere. Or, if you prefer, write The Carreras Ltd., Montreal, for a free sample.

70th Anniversary Is Observed Of Burr's Church

Burr—On Sunday evening, November 1st, the seventieth anniversary of Burrs' Church was held with the pastor, Rev. F. Pyper, giving a forceful address. He urged that we gather at Kingdom's call, a deeper consecration on the part of the individual members and hope to realize a world recognizing the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of just an ideal. Existing world conditions should be a spur to the realization that a man-made world order is not of the Lord's Word. The old world system with the teachings of Christ into effect and watch for a marked improvement as the result.

The audience was delighted by the beautiful voice of Mr. Laidlaw, Hamilton and with his accompanist, Miss Watts, Alta., when he sang, "My Task" and "In the Garden." Both are in training at Mountain View Airport and when not kindly consented to assist at this anniversary service.

Messrs. Parks, S., Clark, C., Fulford and M. Adams were the ushers and Mrs. Fulford, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Adams received the thank offering. With proceeds from the social in the afternoon, the total over one hundred dollars.

Although numbering in the human sense of life, this church has reached the seventy mile stone and is still active and vigorous and with her many loyal members of the day.

Do Your Letters Add to Friends?

Errors Make Poor Impression

What an unpleasant surprise! Could that charming girl really have written this silly letter?

Darden to visit Alice: writes: "I SURE was nice to HERE from you. I don't feel LIKE I'd been away but my BOY FRIEND says he missed me PLENTY.

Gracious, Alice! You should write SURELY instead of SURE—HEAR, not HERE, and IF, not LIKE. BOY FRIEND you use only in fun! And PLENTY as you used it, is simply ungrammatical.

But even if your spelling and grammar were correct, your letter's deadly dull.

Why not say: "It was sweet of you to write me. . . . Now I'm back in the home grind, it's hard to believe I ever strayed so far away. But my best beau—bless him!—insists he missed me every minute."

Our 32-page booklet tells how to make letters vivid with picture words. Helps you with beginnings, endings, and shows how to put a me-to-you quality into your letters. Includes samples of social and business letters to guide you in writing your own letters.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "Good Letter-Writing Made Easy" to The Ontario Intelligencer, Home Service, 166 Front Street, Belleville, Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

ONCE-PROUD

It reported the destruction of 12 Axis aircraft yesterday and announced the loss of 14 Allied planes, but the Allied losses were relatively small in proportion to the number of planes engaged on both sides.

Last night's British communique declared boldly that the enemy was "in full retreat".

In terse phrases the announcement painted the picture of a sweeping Allied victory, disclosed that Rommel's second in command—Gen. Von Stumme—had been killed in action and declared the enemy was retreating in complete confusion.

Canadians Taking Part

(Canadian airmen are playing a prominent part in the pounding administered the Axis forces. One complete R.C.A.F. fighter squadron is operating on the desert front and in addition there are a number of Canadians fighting with the R.A.F. and a few with the United States army air forces.

(R.C.A.F. headquarters in London last night said Canadians flying fighters, fighter-bombers and torpedo-carrying planes, have bombed ammunition dumps and strongpoints and enemy shipping and engaged in troop strafing. The R.C.A.F. press release also praised ground crews for their maintenance work.)

Assessing Axis losses for the first time since start of the Allied offensive, the bulletin reported that 260 enemy tanks had been destroyed, 600 aircraft knocked out of action, 20 guns wrecked or captured, 50,000 tons of shipping sunk and as much more damaged.

Capture 9,000 Prisoners

In addition, the communique said, the Allies have captured a total of 9,000 Axis prisoners, including Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, commander of the German African corps, and a number of other senior German and Italian officers.

"It is known the enemy's losses in killed and wounded have been exceptionally high," the communique added.

While the announcement did not reveal the full extent of the Allied advance, unofficial advices from the front indicated that ground forces were advancing rapidly on El Daba, site of an important enemy air base 35 miles west of El Alamein, springboard of the current offensive.

Depends on Reserves

Observers said that Rommel's chances of making a stand depended largely on the amount of reserves he might have massed at such strategic points as Matruh, Halfaya Pass and Salum—all of which boast well-fortified positions.

The defeat which British forces suffered last summer, however, when they were driven back deep into Egypt, showed the difficulties of organizing an effective defence and halting a retreat under overwhelming pressure.

(Dispatches from Turkey quoted advices from Greece as saying the Germans are rushing three or four divisions from the Russian front to Africa in an attempt to reinforce Rommel. Four trainloads of Nazi soldiers are said to have passed through Athens en route to embarkation points.

(The German radio said last night that British forces had scored "local successes" but claimed Rommel had the situation in hand.)

Unquestioned Air Superiority

An important factor in favor of the Allies now is the unquestioned superiority of their air forces, which British headquarters said were relentlessly attacking the enemy's disordered columns in furious round-the-clock assaults never before equalled in the desert.

British Canadian, American and South African airmen were reported virtually unopposed as they bombed and machine-gunned from low levels, and returning fliers told of enemy troops "scattering like cockroaches" under the attacks.

Scenes of utter destruction marked the path of the Axis retreat, the Airmen said. Smoking hulks of tanks littered the desert floor and the coastal highway was choked with wrecked trucks, armored cars and motor transport.

"I never saw such destruction," declared Brig.-Gen. A. C. Strickland, chief of the Bomber Command o. the Middle East unit of the United States Army Air Forces, following his return from a personally-conducted bombing foray over the enemy rear lines.

Packed With Transport

"We swept over the road and saw it packed with transport," he related. "But every vehicle was stopped and everywhere there were tiny trails of dust where the crews were running into the desert. Every bomber in our formation turned and sailed down the road, spilling bombs on vehicles and men."

Every available Allied bomber and fighter was reported taking part in the devastating onslaught, operating in shuttles from airdromes scattered all over the desert. Ground crews labored hour after hour without rest to refuel returning planes, reload their bomb racks and machine-guns and send them forth again.

Reports from the land front, meanwhile, said that Gen. Sir. Harold Alexander, British Middle East Commander, was in the field personally directing the Allied advance. Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, chief of the 8th army, was said to be in the thick of the battle.

Moving on 40-Mile Front

While details of the fighting were scanty last night, it appeared the Allied forces were moving forward along the entire 40-mile front between the Mediterranean and the Qattara depression after overrunning fixed enemy positions.

Days of artillery and aerial bombardment paved the way for this advance, blasting holes in the elaborate four-mile-deep minefield, which Rommel had prepared to defend his line and permitting British infantry to sift through.

One of the fiercest battles of the offensive was fought in a narrow sector along the Mediterranean coast, where Australian troops broke through last weekend and pocketed several thousand German and Italian troops.

Tanks Sent Through Gap

After the Australians had punched through, Gen. Montgomery sent a powerful tank and motorized infantry force through the gap to meet rescue efforts of the German 21st Armored Division. The enemy armored forces were smashed and routed, and British forces pushed on past Sidi Abd El Rahman, more than sixteen miles west of El Alamein.

Other units of the Axis army were similarly destroyed piecemeal in break-throughs elsewhere along the line.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Cairo said the Italians had suffered especially heavy casualties and had asked for a truce in one sector in order to bury their dead. There was no indication, however, that the request had been granted.

Von Stumme Killed

The British announcement of the death of the German Gen. Von Stumme said he was reported to have commanded all Axis forces in North Africa during Rommel's recent visit to Germany.

Although he was not further identified, some observers believed he might be Gen. George Von Stumme, 56-year-old veteran of the First Great War, who was decorated with the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross by Hitler in May, 1941. He was promoted to the rank of General and the Command of an army corps in 1940.

Von Stumme was one of Germany's leading tank experts and had made a special study of desert tactics. A personal friend of Rommel, he was a veteran of the last war and also fought in France in the current conflict, where he commanded a tank formation which broke through at Sedan and swept on to Calais.

Italian Version of Battle

Rome, (From Italian Broadcasts), Nov. 5 — (AP) — The Italian High Command today announced that the Germans and Italians, having suffered "severe losses," have withdrawn to new lines in Egypt after violent dawn-to-dusk tank battles yesterday ranging over "The region between El Alamein and Fuka," the latter about 70 miles west of the old El Alamein front.

(Fuka, on the coastal highway, is more than one-fourth the distance from El Alamein westward to the Egypt-Libya frontier.)

"Yesterday from the early hours of the morning until late at night, in the region between El Alamein and Fuka, fierce and bloody fighting took place between our tanks and infantry units and similar enemy forces," the war bulletin said.

"After exceptionally-bitter resistance, toward evening, men of the Italian and German armies withdrew to new lines to the west.

"Enemy losses have been heavy in men and material.

"Our losses have been severe."

The communique also mentioned "appreciable damage" to Tobruk and Bengasi — (the Axis' chief ports for receiving reinforcements and supplies) — in air raids on the two Libyan harbors.

"Greatly-superior" Allied air strength was reported but the communique asserted that Axis fighters engaged the Allied planes "with extreme vigor" and destroyed 26 in two days.

Employees of The Waterloo Trust and Savings Co. at Kitchener, Ont., were reported by Ontario headquarters at Toronto to have reached 175 per cent of their quota, with 100 per cent of the employees participating.

N. M. Patterson and Co. of Fort William, subscribed $375,000; Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Ltd., of Bathurst, N.B., subscribed $500,000.

Large subscriptions received from Quebec were Royal Liverpool Insurance Group, $626,000; Mutual Life and Citizens Assurance Co. of Canada, an additional $50,000 bringing that company's total to $250,000.

The mining town of Sherridon, first town to reach its objective in Manitoba, oversubscribed its $55,000 quota by $9,000. Sherridon has a population of 2,000 people.

In the Second Victory Loan Sherridon sold more bonds per capita than any other unit in Manitoba—one bond to every 3.2 of population.

First rural unit to reach its objective included the municipalities of Winchester, Whitewater, Morton and Turtle Mountain, with headquarters at Boissevain. The second unit included Glenwood, Cameron and the two chief towns, Hartney and Souris.

Unit 21 Over Objective

The fourth Manitoba unit to report its objective was No. 21, including Portage La Prairie, town and municipality. Reaching its objective of $354,000. this unit is now out for $400,000. Crowding these leading units are Gladstone, Neepawa and Brandon.

One of the bright spots in Quebec's industrial canvass was the Walmsley plant of Dominion Engineering Works where 90 per cent of the 2,300 employees have subscribed $257,000, topping an objective of $200,000 by more than 25 per cent. The plant canvassers are seeking subscriptions from the remaining 10 per cent of the workers.

Latest among the R.C.A.F. stations in Montreal area to report exceeding its quota is No. 13 Service Flying Training School at St. Hubert. The men and women there have so far subscribed for bonds worth $55,000, or $30,000 above their original objective. Lac. Raoul Page started the ball rolling with a $1,500 subscription.

There was no pause for general rejoicing when Montreal Island topped its quota yesterday. The workers immediately went after new objectives.

The city of Owen Sound, Ont., reports going over its $1,126,000 quota.

The loan total yesterday was $715,206,800. Average daily subscriptions for the first 14 business days of the 18-day campaign were slightly above $51,000,000.

THOUSANDS LOST

As German bombers flew over the ruins in groups of three to 15 a Soviet garrison force broke up repeated ground drives toward the factories, dispatches from Stalingrad said. The Germans sought to knife between two plants, but this thrust also was stopped.

Artillery Battery Destroyed

"In the southern sector of the city's defences 140 Germans were wiped out," the noon communique said. "Soviet troops destroyed an enemy artillery battery, ten machine-guns and three mortars."

The army newspaper Red Star was authority for the statement that the Germans had lost thousands of dead in their newest futile attack.

17 Planes Shot Down

"Southeast of Nalchik (Central Caucasus) our troops fought violent engagements and our artillery dispersed concentrations of enemy tanks and infantry preparing for attack," the communique said. "The Germans suffered heavy losses. Seventeen German planes were shot down in air combat and by anti-aircraft fire."

In the older theatre about Mozdok, 50 miles northeast of Nalchik, German attacks upon Red army positions were repulsed and the Russians were declared to have occupied an enemy strong point through a counter-attack. The German death toll was placed at 150.

The communique said Soviet troops continued to cut into the ranks of encircled invasion forces northeast of Tuapse and one unit wiped out 270 men. It reported that prisoners "describe enormous losses suffered by their troops."

Aviation was a factor in the fighting on both the central and Western Caucasus fronts.

Red Star said there was increased Russian air activity southeast of Nalchik, where the ground defenders were holding against a tremendous concentration of tanks and bombers, but said that low clouds hampered the fliers.

The Germans assigned fresh bombers for the fight to halt the Soviet advance northeast to Tuapse. Two hundred bombs were reported dropped upon a Soviet-held hill in seven attacks.

Red Star said German garrison had been smashed and the invaders driven from new settlements and important lines.

NEW MINISTERS

Mr. Wilgress had been Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce since 1940 and prior to that had a long career in the government, which began when he went to Omak, in Siberia, as Trade Commissioner in 1916.

Mr. Chipman, member of the legal firm of Brown, Montgomery and McMichael, is Batonnier General of the Bar of Quebec, Professor of Civil Law at McGill University and President of the League of Nations Society in Canada.

Mr. Justice Davis has been interested in politics all his life. He held several cabinet posts in the Saskatchewan government prior to his appointment in 1939 to the Bench. When the war broke out he offered his services to the government "in any capacity," Mr. King said. He has been Associate Deputy Minister of War Service since 1940.

More Announcements Coming

Mr. King told the press conference he would have announcements "in a few days" of "one or two other countries." He would not specify which countries he meant.

There have been reports that Brig. G. P. Vanier, officer commanding Military District No. 5 in Quebec City, and former Minister to France, would go to London as Minister to governments of conquered countries now located there and which have ministries in Canada.

Mr. King intimated there would be a widening of the Canadian representation in South American countries.

He said the men appointed today were showing "a fine public spirit" and he regarded their costs as "a great public and war duty" in time of need.

Delays Unavoidable

Delay in making the appointments had been unavoidable, Mr. King said, but he told the newspapermen that this delay did not occasion any prejudice to relations with the countries involved.

Commenting on his appointment, Mr. Wilgress said "I am very glad to go back to Russia, where I first started my career as a representative of Canada in the foreign service."

Personnel of the new legations will be announced shortly and the ministers will leave about the end of this month to take up their posts.

Mr. King made the announcement at a press conference in his east block office. He said that he realized his selections for these posts were already well known.

Cohan Liked People

A month ago Cohan seemed to be recovering from his illness and was actively planning to return to the stage and to service as air-raid warden.

Because of this liking for long walks in Central Park Cohan liked people, the kind who ask you for a dime for a cup of coffee, and he liked pigeons, the kind which swooped down on the park walk for a peanut. So in 1932 he produced a play called "Pigeons and People" which fictionized that philosophy. In his real life he carried it on, for there were many actors and actresses who remained on his payroll long after they had ceased appearing in his shows.

Cohan, who called himself "a song and dance man," was just that and kind to them all. Since he was seven years old he sang and danced on the stage.

His continuous efforts for American patriotism—he nearly always had an American flag waving in his many shows—received recognition when President Roosevelt awarded him the Congressional Medal for his "outstanding contributions to the American spirit."

Among his best known songs were "Over There", "It's a Grand Old Flag" and "Forty Five Minutes from Broadway".

When "Yankee Doodle Dandy" had its premier on broadway the tickets of admission were War Savings Bonds, some of the seats selling for as high as $25,000 and when the gross was added there were $5,500,000 bonds sold.

KING GEORGE

Political commentators said Prime Minister Churchill would report to the House of Commons on the fighting in Egypt in a new review of the war when Parliament reassembles.

Proud of 8th Army

The King in a message congratulated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British Middle East Commander, Field Officers and men for the cooperative blow by Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery's 8th army, the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy. He said its importance "cannot be exaggerated".

"I can assure all three services, embracing as they do many representatives of the British Commonwealth and our Allies, of the admiration and pride of the whole empire in their brilliant victory . . . ." he said.

(One complete R.C.A.F. fighter squadron went to Egypt last June and in addition there are a number of Canadians fighting with the R.A.F. and a few with the United States Army Air forces.)

While caution was combined with optimism The Daily Sketch said "we shall probably find that the 8th Army performed as great a feat as any of the war".

Commentators cited Gen. Montgomery's battle orders "to destroy Rommel and his Army" to support the view the engagement would continue as a battle of manoeuvre for the annihilation of field forces rather than over-running of ground, such as was emphasized in the two ill-fated Libyan offensives.

"Here is a second front Hitler dare no longer ignore". The London Daily Mail said. "We must expect him to strain every nerve now to retrieve what bears every appearance of a desperately-dangerous situation".

Nile Valley Saved

Other commentators declared flatly that "Marshal Rommel is hard hit and the Nile Valley is saved."

They pointed out that the special Cairo communique which announced the Allied successes last night gained significance from the fact that previous bulletins concerning the drive had been terse and repressed.

Assuming, however, that it will remain a battle of manoeuvre, Rommel's renmants will be penned within a relatively narrow arena between the Mediterranean and the Qattara salt sinks until they pass Matruh, 105 miles west of their broken El Alamein line.

This simplifies the task of both the pursuing ground forces and the shuttling Allied bombers hammering the fleeing troops and transports. Military observers said the retreat would become more difficult hourly.

"His road back is liable to become a shambles under the pounding of Gen. Montgomery's decisive air strength," it was said.

TEACHER SAYS AFFILIATE OF JAP SOCIETY ACTIVE

Told by Japanese Youths of Worries About the "Morii Gang"

JUDGE HEARS STORY

Vancouver, Nov. 5 — (CP) — A Vancouver high school teacher who requested that her name be kept secret testified yesterday at a public hearing into charges by the Vancouver News-Herald that an affiliate of the Japanese Black Dragon Society was active in British Columbia.

The teacher, referred to as "Miss A." by Judge Charles A. Cameron of Belleville, Ont., who is conducting the inquiry, said that two Japanese youths and a Japanese girl had told her of their worries about the "Morii Gang."

She said that when evacuation of Japanese families began the "Christian, Canadian born" Japanese approached her separately as "someone who knew and thought they could trust."

Judge Cameron asked her if they had given any "concrete evidence" of their fear of Etsuji Morii, head of a Japanese Liaison Committee that worked with the British Columbia Security Commission in evacuating Japanese. "I couldn't be certain whether they had personal knowledge," replied Miss A. "They all were sincerely convinced."

Very Much Worried

She said the first to approach her was a former student who was "very much worried, not about what any white person would do, but because a group of Japanese men not friendly to Britain or Canada had won the confidence of those in authority."

"This group had been powerful for a long time and was felt to be very dangerous," she said, adding that another youth came to her three weeks later.

She said the second youth told her of his fears, and "even spelled Morii's name" in identifying him with these fears.

"He mentioned that he firmly believed money had been given by Japanese families to Morii and his henchmen so their families would not be broken up or evacuated soon," Miss A. testified.

She said a Japanese girl who "had no idea" of information supplied by the two youths, approached her and "blurted out the same story, amazingly alike in detail."

POLICE COURT

"We have no desire to remove men from the armed services," commented Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K. C. when Pte. Archie Helm, of the Forestry Corps, appeared for sentence in County Police Court here today on four charges of breaking, entering and theft. The quartette of counts had been preferred by Provincial Constable Stanley Palmateer at Bancroft a month ago at which time Helm signified his intention of joining the armed services. The cases were enlarged until today for sentence and when Pte. Helm appeared in court in uniform, Magistrate Lloyd readily agreed with Mr. Donnan and gave Helm one year's suspended sentence on each count. Helm was charged, among other things, with the theft of a ration book in Limerick Township.

"I had in mind giving the first person convicted before me for stealing a ration book not less than six months, so you see it is fortunate you were acepted in the armed forces," Magistrate Lloyd told Helm in warning to others.

Cases Enlarged

Percy Phillips, 18 and his 17-year-old brother Russell, both of Limerick Township, appeared on charges of breaking and entering the home of Arthur Dionne, a neighbor, and stealing a 44-40 rifle and ammunition. These cases were enlarged for a week when the older Phillips lad asked permission to engage a lawyer.

Somewhat of a precedent was established in the Thursday court when not a single traffic case was completed. Three counts of speeding were enlarged for personal service to the accused persons.

322 HOSTAGES SHOT

London, Nov. 5 —(CP)— The Germans shot 322 hostages in two towns of northwestern Yugoslavia last month in reprisal for the blowing up of a military transport train, officials of the Yugoslav government in London said today.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich quoted reports from Yugoslavia that in the town of Mozirje five boys had been shot for refusing to join the Germany army and their parents had been deported.

CLUNG TO HIS PERCH

Denver, Nov. 5 —(AP)— It could have been worse. Joe Kerley toppled from a third-floor window into a ventilator shaft and landed on a beam 15 feet from the bottom. He suffered a fractured jaw and several bruises, but clung to his perch until rescuers arrived.

Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Given Citation

A citation from the U. S. Treasury Department for "distinguished service" in the National War Savings program was awarded on Oct. 24th to Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Inc.

Raymond N. Ball presented the certificate to John D. Hayes, company president and son of Mr. Patrick Hayes of this city at a dinner given that evening for 450 Fanny Farmer employee at the Hotel Sagamore. The dinner followed by dancing, also featured the presentation of $100 War Savings Bonds to eight employees, who have worked for the company since it was founded 23 years ago.

Mayor Samuel B. Dicker, congratulated employees on their 100 per cent enrolment in the Payroll Deduction Plan of war savings and noted that the company was the first national concern to invest one day's receipt in war bonds and stamps. The U. S. Treasury citation was awarded on the basis of these factors.

Carl S. Fallauer, a director of the company, introduced civic and business leaders, who were guests at the affair. Mr. Hayes was toastmaster. The guest speaker was Mrs. Dorothy Fuldheim, author and lecturer on foreign affairs, who told her audience that establishment of a second front in France at this time is "utterly fantastic" and that it must be opened on the Mediterranean, in Egypt and the countries of North Africa.

7,000 American Troops Arrive In Middle East

Cairo, Nov. 5 (AP)—The arrival of 7,000 United States troops—mostly specialists—and a large unit of nurses in the land of the Pharoahs on Hallowe'en night was disclosed for publication last night.

The troops formed the largest body of American soldiers ever sent to the Middle East in one transport. They made the long voyage from New York without loss.

They included a variety of technically-trained specialists, ground crewmen for army air force units, machinists, engineers one complete Canadian Air Force squadron also is operating on the desert front.

The famous desert "Shark" squadron of fighter-bombers has played a brilliant role since the offensive started. The squadron includes many Canadians who have engaged in bombing Axis landing grounds and transports and fought hundreds of dog-fights.

During one 48-hour period the squadron destroyed 13 Axis planes and suffered in exchange only two wounded pilots.

PO. Joe Crichton of Chapleau, Ont., destroyed a Stuka and PO. L. H. Curphey of, Ottawa got a Messerschmitt.

Most of the divebombers were destroyed when the squadron intercepted a formation of 30 escorted by 15 Messerschmitt fighters. The Allies tore in and forced the Germans to jettison their bomb cargoes over their own lines.

Stephan's Counsel Calls Krug 'Infamous'

Cincinnati, Nov. 5 —(AP)— Counsel for Max Stephan of Detroit contended today that Oberleutenant Hans Krug was so "infamous" he should have been barred from testifying as the chief government witness in Stephan's trial on treason charges.

Stephan was sentenced to hang for aiding Krug after his escape from an Ontario prison camp. Today's brief was in support of Stephan's appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

As a Nazi, Stephan's counsel said, Krug was "without knowledge of, or record for, the obligations or sanctity of an oath and was of such degree of infamy as should have barred him from giving evidence in a capital case in a United States court."

Counsel also argued the Detroit District Court erred to the "incurable prejudice" of Stephan in "permitting Krug to testify after he had given the Nazi salute while he was attired in the full uniform of an officer of the German army."

"Acts of kindness" by Stephan to an "escaped war prisoner in celebration of his birthday" were alleged to be grounds for his indictment, and counsel reiterated previous assertions that the government attorney made "intemperate, improper and inflammatory" remarks to the jury.

Stephan was sentenced to hang Nov. 13, but execution will await the Appellate Court's decision. The case will be heard sometime after Nov. 30.

FREE 105-POUND WIFE OF ASSAULTING 175-POUND HUBBY

Bowmanville, Ont., Nov. 5 — (CP) —A 105-pound wife was freed in court here on a charge af assaulting her 175-pound husband. Provincial Constable William Thompson said the man was a "sorry looking sight" after his wife allegedly threw an ash tray and a jar of cold cream at him.

Large Quantity Civilian Defence Equipment Arrives

Over two and one half tons of civilian defence equipment, including steel helmets, stretchers and First Aid equipment, has been shipped from provincial civilian defence committee headquarters in Toronto to Belleville, it was announced this morning by Mr. H. C. Seldon.

The equipment will be stored at the local fire station pending its distribution among the members of the Belleville Civilian Defence Committee.

Wednesday evening saw another of the lectures in the basic training course for civilian defence members given at the Y.M.C.A., the topic under discussion at Wednesday night's meeting being "Personal Protection Against War Gases". Last night's lecture differed from that of the previous week which pertained to the contamination of foods and water supply by poisonous gases. The lecture was given by Mr. Seldon and was largely attended.

Respirators Demonstrated

During the lecture the various types of gas respirators were demonstrated and detailed instruction on the care, handling and use of the approved respirator for civilian use was given. One of the approved respirators was exhibited at the lecture. Arm bands and identification cards were issued to persons who have signed civilian defence membership applications forms and who have attended the majority of basic training course lectures.

Organization of the local committee is proceeding rapidly, according to Mr. Seldon, who stated the city is now divided into 26 sectors, with air raid wardens having been appointed for several of them. At next week's lecture the complete set-up will be presented before those attending, it was promised.

A concerted drive will be made for air raid wardens to take charge of the remaining sectors in the city for which there are now no wardens appointed. A special appeal will be made for air raid wardens to take charge of the business area of the city it was stated.

Women Praised By New Premier

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—Women in many respects are the "real heroes" of the war effort and "should have a larger place in determining the policies and legislation of our nation..." Premier Gordon D. Conant, Ontario last night told women of South Ontario riding who gave a testimonial banquet here for his wife.

"I think there should be women in every deliberative and legislative body," said Premier Conant, after declaring women had made their voices heard in the Dominion parliament and senate but had no great representation in legislative bodies.

"Provincial legislatures enact laws that effect the domestic and social life of our people to a far greater extent than do the Dominion parliament in many respects."

If there were women in the Ontario legislature "it would constitute a proper recognition of women in this province and they would make a real contribution to our deliberations and to the resulting legislation."

Proud of Her Husband

Mrs. Conant told the women of Oshawa and Ontario county who had arranged the dinner in her honor "I have a feeling of pride in my husband being chosen by Mr. Hepburn to wear the mantle of leadership."

"I know he is a worker and a doer," she continued. "He does not hesitate in the face of difficult tasks, and I stand ready to assist him."

"Canadian women deserve a great deal of credit for so quickly gearing their peacetime plans into wartime activities. May the genuine and all-out selective service not be delayed. Energetic men and women still are being held back by passive men and women. There still is need for a fusion of effort."

A basket of flowers was presented to Mrs. Conant by two small members of the Girl Guide Association, of which she is Ontario Deputy Commissioner.

JAPS MASSING TROOPS IN CHINA SAYS SPOKESMAN

Claim Between 50,000 and 60,000 Troops Concentrated at Hankow

MANY AT SHANTUNG

Chungking, China, Nov. 5 (AP)—A Chinese army spokesman said today the Japanese appear to be making large-scale military preparations in China, massing troops in five provinces, four of them running down inland China from the Mongolian border and one of them on the coast north of Shanghai.

He said Chinese intelligence reports said the Japanese are massing troops in the provinces of Hupeh, Honan, Shansi, Suiyuan and Shantung.

Between 50,000 and 60,000 troops are concentrated in Hankow, in Hupeh Province, great Japanese inland base on the Yangtze River, he said, while 10,000 to 20,000 are in the Tai mountains of Shantung, coastal province.

The spokesman said it is difficult to predict the enemy's objectives until the drive starts. It is possible, he added, that one of the Japanese hopes might be to close the gap in the Pekin-Hankow rail line, of which roughly 60 per cent now is in Japanese control.

The enemy might be seeking to consolidate his positions, particularly in North China. Most of his drives in the recent past have been launched with the purpose of removing potential bases for Chinese counter-attack.

During the past week there has been considerable enemy activity in Chekiang, Kiangsi, Hupeh, Shansi, Anhwei and Kwantung Provinces, although on a minor scale.

Democrats Save A Bare Majority In U.S. Congress

Washington, Nov. 5 — (AP)—Nearly-complete returns from Tuesday's elections today showed the Republicans had drained off the once-formidable Democratic majorities in Congress to a level that might ebb in their favor on important legislation and had about divided the 48 state governorships equally with the Democrats.

Their gains in the congressional and state contests exceeded the brightest hopes of Republican forecasters and almost turned the Democrats out of even nominal control of the House.

With only five House of Representatives races undecided, the Democrats had elected a bare majority of 218; the Republicans 208; Progressives two and Farmer-Labor and American-Labor one each. The Republicans showed a net gain of 43, the Democrats a net loss of 42 and the Progressives a loss of one.

In the present House, which continues until the end of the year, the Democrats have a majority of 93 over the Republicans and five minor party members. Their peak was in 1937, with 333 to 89.

SIDNEY COUNCIL

November session held 2nd inst. Minutes of October meeting read and adopted. Following accounts were ordered paid: Relief accounts for October, Road accounts under voucher No. 9, Haig, McDougall and Bateman $34.25, Municipal World 56 cents, M. Jones $56.00, T. Walt $3.00, A. Clare $6.25, J. A. Hinchcliffe $9.00, Gen. Hospital, Belleville $58.00; Miss U. Foster $15.00. A grant of $15.00 was made to the Sidney Township School Fair.

The matter of closing the road allowance between lots Nos. 12 and 13 in the 5th concession of Sidney was deferred for further information. Mr. Robt. Elliott was given the wood along the roadside adjoining his property provided that he burn the brush.

The council decided to defer the equalization in S. S. No. 11, to be taken up by the 1943 Council. A bylaw to appoint Deputy-returning Officers and Poll Clerks and to provide polling places was passed through its various readings and council was adjourned to meet Dec. 15th at 11 o'clock A. M.

Albert Wins Senior COSSA Title by Holding Collegiate Without Score in Two Games

MANY FUMBLES

Albert College won the Bay of Quinte senior COSSA Intermediate football conference without having their goal line crossed this season. Yesterday Dead Paul Govette's Dundas St. Alberts rolled up a 38 to 0 score over their ancient grid rivals, Belleville Collegiate, to win the district senior six-man football title in two straight games, these contesting scratches being the only clubs in the senior COSSA six-man conference. The Alberts won the initial game 26 to 0 and again applied the whitewash brush to Skipper Hamish Mott's "Collegians" without much of a struggle on their home campus yesterday.

While Albert was playing a rough dandle style of football to mount their score and become group champions of the first time since 1938, the Collegians were displaying their poorest form and literally fumbled themselves out of the 1942 Interscholastic picture. Albert led the half 11-0; 26-0 and 38-0 by period scores. Early in the game Bob Taylor's educated toe kept the Albert Purples in touch in the B. C. I. zone, when he wasn't kicking points for the conquerors. When Taylor wasn't punting, Zeke Ballantyne and Bill Ardiel were ripping holes in the Collegians' line, or Don Ridout was snagging passes, as Coach Goyette's strategy worked on, over and around their opposition with little concern for personages.

Series of Fumbles

To open matters B. C. I. fumbled, one of the many miscues, that gave Albert possession deep in the Collegiate zone. Bob Taylor pitched a long pass to Bill Ardiel and Ballantyne drove over for an unconverted touchdown. Taylor crashed around right end for a substantial gain and Ballantyne booted a single point place kick making the count 6-0 at the quarter. Ran Bush elevated the hopes of the B. C. I. supporters by running in Albert's 19, but the Collegians fumbled on their first play in the second stanza. Albert booted five points in the second frame as play hovered within the shadows of the Collegiate goals throughout. Bob Taylor booted three singletons, while Ballantyne and Ridout each added one. Ridout returning a punt on the last play of the half for a point. Ballantyne and Taylor made yards to put the ball on the B. C. I.'s 20 through its tenth, and Taylor booted 40 yards making the score 13-0. Johnnie Locke pitched to Doug. Burns as Coach Mott's Collegians rallied, but Ridout intercepted a sequence forward pass and Taylor and Langford set the evil one in a position for Ballantyne to score on a plunge, which was converted when Ardiel took a forward standup. The game's only injury followed, when Doug. Burns sustained a laceration over the eye and was carried from the field and unable to return. Taylor pitched to Bason as Albert was on the march again and Bob fired to Loughead, the latter scoring a touch. The picture play followed, when Bill Rankin caught the kick-off and ran rough-shod over and through the Belle Collegiate team for a 45-yard touchdown that left the three-quarter score 38 to 0.

Hurt 40-yard Passes

As the Collegians collapsed Jack Wright carried for Albert and Ridout skirted left end for a try. Taylor pitched two to Ardiel for a 45 yard gain and set up a first-flicker Ridout first. As Ardiel as Albert made it 38, Ran Bush dashed around left end for 19 yards for goal on Albert's 25 yard line and in a last-minute desperation play Bush tried to punt for a single point and endeavor to avoid a whitewash, but Taylor galloped away for the kick. Another tricky running-out as the full gong sounded.

The line-ups: Albert College—Rankin, snap, Ardiel and Loughead, wings, Ridout quarter, Taylor and Ballantyne halves, and Bailey, Alcorf, Bason and Wright. Belleville Collegiate—Gray snap, Mills and Westfall wings, Locke quarter, Burns and Bush, halves and Haggis, Pheln, Bradshaw and York.

Referee: Red Townsend.

Umpire: Eddie Schrieder.

Linesmen: Jack Doran and Jack Cook.

WATSON WINS TORRID BOUT WITH MARTINEZ

Phil Lawson, Referee, Awards Last Fall and Bout to Watson After Pedro is Disqualified

A GOOD SHOW

Any resemblance to wrestling in last night's main, bout at the Hume Arena was purely coincidental.

True enough the people's choice, "Whipper" Watson, was declared winner when the night's villian, Pedro Martinez the Mexican ruffian, was disqualified, but before the verdict was declared "Red shoes Pedro" had committed most everything short of murder and incited the 1,100 odd patrons to mayhem.

Watson took the first fall after about 20 minutes during which Referee Phil Lawson spent most of his time pulling the fighters apart. Whenever in difficulty Martinez sought the sanctity of the ropes, but whenever he entangled he roared and cussed in his best Mexican language. This naturally pleased the patrons, but their glee was no more exuberant when Watson applied a brace of avalanche holds and flattened Pedro with an Indian Deathlock.

Claims He was Robbed

Who at any moment will be the victim of the villian of the show and as Watson entered the ring for the second round, in true Mexican style "Big Pedro" stalked his adversary and landed blow from behind before the gong sounded to send the boys off. Naturally this physical beating in no way helped "our hero" and Martinez roared with rage, protested before crashing Watson with a heavy slam to win in less than a minute. Martinez tried his "sneak act" to open the third round, but was no soap, as Watson was on the alert. Following an exchange of drop kicks Martinez managed to hang Watson neatly by the neck in the upper strands of the ring ropes and when Referee Lawson attempted to salvage, what was left of the hero, Pedro promptly hanged Lawson for good measure. Police and fans came to the rescue as bedlam broke loose and once released Lawson held Watson's hand aloft in token of victory, disqualifying Martinez. "I'm bein' robbed, given the business and it's a fix" were the protests as Watson and he tangled in fistic fury outside the ring and Lawson received a punch on the jaw for his intervening efforts. Now good fellowship and citizens don't like that sort of thing and the fans rose to the occasion with a woman fan stepping into the picture and chasing the villian of the show to the wives. Down went the curtain and the hero had been vindicated.

Thanks Good Wrestling

After announcer Meagher stated next week's wrestling at the Hume Arena would be held on Thursday night, Walter Sirois and "Portland Red" Fraley wrestled in minutes to a sleazing draw. As Sirois relaxed in the roughness, Fraley quickly picked up his robe and started for the dressing room but protested. He changed his mind and returned to argue verbally with Referee Cliff Fox, but this gained him little and he thought how much nicer it might be to sit home by the five-place with his wife and children, that is if he has a spouse and kiddies. Fraley's leaving the ring was a new wrinkle in the local sports palace and seemed to be appreciated, as both ringmen were willing grapplers and gave a pleasing display.

Then in the opener Jan Cobeh pleased the fans by defeating the Ivan (the bearded) Kalmikoff with a series of flying mares after Mister Whiskers has sat in his corner bemoaning the fact he ever took up this sport. Cobeh is huskiness as truck and trade. All in all it was fun and why more can one ask at a rasslin' bout?

NAME 34 PLAYERS FOR BIG GAME

R.C.A.F.-Bombers Combine to Play Regina for the Western Title

Winnipeg, Nov. 5, (CP)—Reg Threlfall, head coach of the Winnipeg Senior Rugby Football League last night named 34 players who will wear the jersey of the R.C.A.F.-Bombers, the chosen fifteen to represent Regina in the western sudden-death title game here Saturday.

Threlfall announced also that Bert Warwick, Bomber coach, would be in charge of the backfielders in the picture workouts, while Herbert Ols, assistant to PO. Bob Pritz, coach of the R.C.A.F. team, would assist with the linemen.

The players, selected from the ranks of the City League-Bombers, R.C.A.F. Flyers and the University of Manitoba, all will have to appear in Saturday's game in order to qualify for the Canadian final if it is held and Bombers defeat Regina.

Sixteen men from the Bombers, 15 from the Air Force and three University players make up the list.

Toronto, Nov. 5, (CP)—PO. Lew Hayman, coach of Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, Ontario Rugby Football Union leaders, started something when he said that, "if we weren't faced with the infinitely more important task of winning the war," Toronto's 16-year-old halfback, AC2. Jack Parry, would prove himself a first-class player than Winnipeg Blue Bombers' famous Fritz Hansen.

Parry, who ran 107 yards for a touchdown here Saturday when Hurricanes beat Toronto Balmy Beach 20-10, is a product of the Windsor, Ont., high school league and, on reading Hayman's opinion, Doug Windsor Star) Vaughan promptly dubbed Lew "our favorite Hurricanes football coach." Doug recalled his first glimpse of Parry as a junior several years ago. "He was a kid with a uniform that was too big for him. But he could run . . . He did everything right—kicked, passed and ran. He was a natural."

Vaughan disclosed the versatile Parry had received a baseball offer from Cleveland Indians. "As a matter of fact, at the time the joint of the Indians was in touch with me, he was trying to make up his mind whether to play baseball or football. I received from the Indians or go to college, get himself an education and play football."

There's no denying Parry is a great all-round backfielder but Tommy (Hamilton Spectator) Thompson refused to let the Vaughan-Hayman backslapping go unnoticed.

Moore saw Hanson, former North Dakota State star, in action during training for a Canadian Army commission at Gordon Head, B.C. ran wild on a Saturday day in 1920 when the Bombers beat the mighty Hamilton Tigers to carry the Grey Cup West for the first time. His commented: "Hayman of course is basing his opinion on what the Windsor lad has shown Toronto this season but the mentor is surely not trying to compare the Canadian Parry is facing with what Hanson had to stand up against. Football in Eastern Canada today is not nearly as good as that played back in the Big Four days, and Hayman knows it.

"Furthermore, Hanson was brilliant singlehanded by plunging through Ross Trimble's ranks for large gains in the final quarter of the 1941 classic to keep his team in front. When Parry played against Hamilton he was used for pass receiving and end-running only and was not called upon to plunge. There is no denying that Parry is good, perhaps the fastest man in the union today, but he is still no Hanson."

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—Herb (How I tried to get that kid) Kopf Manhattan's football coach, set forth what sounds like a sensible explanation for all the grid upsets this season . . . Herb claims that the mental attitude of the players is responsible for 90 per cent of such surprises; that a team gets just the incentive it needs to win when it's in a position to gain the glory that goes with knocking off a favorite and that a "break" early in a game can affect the outcome a lot more than most people think . . . This year, Kopf reasons, "upsets" are more likely to occur than usual because of the youth of the players . . . Squads are loaded up with sophomores and freshmen, who are more easily affected than players who have been through the mill.

CHICAGO HAWKS OPEN SEASON AGAINST BRUINS

Team Little Known Because of Lack of Publicity on Their Progress

WINGS MEET RANGERS

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago Black Hawks make their delayed National Hockey League debut against Boston Bruins tonight, hoping averting a minor disaster. In another week or so, Black Hawks would have the league's forgotten team.

Perhaps you don't remember the Black Hawks, even now. If you do, your memory is better than average, because less has been heard of the Hawks this season than any other team. The lack of publicity may have been caused by the remoteness of their Minnesota training camp, or by the fact that coach Paul Thompson already has five talking points. Whatever it is, the club that is characterized as the outcome of a strange rookie didn't get a call in the National League future books.

A quick glance over the Chicago roster doesn't enlighten you much either. They still have Bill Mosienko, Max Bentley, Art Wiebe, Bob Carse, Red Hamill, George Allen and the evergreen Mush Marsh. They have the makings of an all-brother line (which may not be unique) with Earl, Alex and Doug Bentley. Bert Gardiner, an NHL.L. defector, is in goal. Others of less note include Bill Mosienko, Johnny Mariucci, Joe Cooper, Gully Dahlstrom, Pete Purpur and several American Association graduates.

That gives them a decided edge, in basketball parlance, on Montreal, who had only 13 able-bodied players on hand for their first two games.

Detroit Red Wings, running for first place in the standings, meet New York Rangers in the only other N.H.L. contest tonight.

NEW GRID RULE

Montreal, Nov. 5, (CP)—Quebec Provincial Football Union has announced a new rule for the 1942 season which will prohibit the use of any player who has played with a professional team in the province of Quebec.

The rule was adopted at a meeting of the union's executive committee here last night.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

WITHOUT HAVING THEIR goal line crossed Albert College won the senior Bay of Quinte Interscholastic championship of 1942 in a most impressive manner. They beat B. C. I. 26 to 0 in the first game and yesterday added insult to injury with a 38 to 0 whitewashing as the Collegians displayed their poorest form with fumbles that bordered inexcusable. With the Collegians failing to score a single point in their two games, Albert played a razzle dazzle type of football that left the losers completely baffled. Neither Collegiate football squads won a single game this season, a new low in rugby circles for the Church St. students. It marked the first time since 1938 that Coach Paul Goyette's Alberts have won the Bay of Quinte Interscholastic conference, but they did it this year with superiority in every department. Yesterday Bob Taylor was punting perfectly and booted four points as the oval was in the shadows of the Collegians' goal posts most of the day. Zeke Ballantyne was always a power of strength for Albert closely followed by Lougheed, Ardiel and Ridout, as Coach Goyette's champions played like the titlists they are today.

NGREEN BAY, WISCONSIN, IS the smallest city represented in American professional football circles, but boasts of one of the most formidable records. One of the first cities to sponsor the pro. grid game in 1919, the Green Bay "Packers" have won the National Football championship four times and since 1919 the "Packers" have won a total of 201 games and lost but 72 up to the beginning of the present season. Even today the Green Bay eleven are only trailing the Chicago Bears by one game. Only one year did the "Packers" fail to win more games than they lost, that was 1933 when they won six, lost seven and tied one.

REMEMBER WHEN SEABISCUIT, one of the United States turf's top money winners, won the Riggs Handicap in track-record time at Pimlico five years ago today? Seabiscuit clipped three-fifths of a second from the track in the races.

DAN PARKER, THE NEW YORK Mirror newsboy reports Fred Perry, the English tennis star, has developed into a keen baseball fan since coming to the States, but, says "it wasn't always that way." L. V. Manning, in the London Daily Sketch, recalls that when Fred attended his first ball game, one of the pitchers blew up and was yanked. 'Where is he going?' demanded Perry as he saw the pitcher trudge sadly to the clubhouse. 'To the showers,' explained his American friend. 'Love a duck,' exclaimed Fred. 'I expect the poor chappie will pitch all the better for it when he comes back.'"

A RARE OLD MELODRAMA was re-enacted at the Hume Arena last night when the villian was pursued and thwarted while the hero saved the mortgage (pardon, his dignity.) Now the hero was Billie Watson and the villian Pedro (boo) Martinez, one rough and nasty hombre of a Mexican. Of course the patrons knew beforehand what a stinkeroo "Red shoes Pedro" was, but he stopped to new ring low levels to commit every known infraction in the wrestling business in an effort to win. Why that mean old Pedro wasn't even satisfied with hanging Watson, but he trusted up Referee Phil Lawson for good measure and was quite indignant when the official disqualified him. "It's a gyp, I'm gettin' the business, but I still haven't been taken in 13 bouts here," roared Pedro as he pounded his chest before giving ground, when a female patron took it upon herself to take matters in hand. Incidentally Promoter Tunney has found himself quite a wrestler in "Portland Pat" Fraley.

THIS AND THAT—STRANGELY enough the two disappointing players in the 1942 world series were named the most valuable players in their respective leagues . . . . They were Joe Gordon in the American and Mort Cooper in the National League . . . . Of course Boston Ted Williams is still wondering what has to be done to win the American League most valuable player award. . . . Last year he batted over .400 and DiMaggio got the call, while this year he won the triple batting crown in the junior circuit only to have Gordon named most valuable . . . .Doug Burns, the only casualty in yesterday's grid game at Albert College, was reported as on the mend today. . . .Burns sustained a nasty cut over the eye that needed hospitalization. . . . What's this—still mushballing? . . . .Yes sir, yesterday the Hamilton Pee Gees beat Toronto Peoples in the senior O. A. S. A. finals, making the series two games to one in favour of Toronto. . .They might get it over by Christmas, if not what's wrong with a softball bowl game on New Years?. . .Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart, former Boston Bruins of the Kraut line, are overseas . . . Some do—and again some don't.

BUFFALO BISONS CAN TAKE OVER LOOP LEADERSHIP

Meet Cleveland Barons, Another Undefeated Team in the League

BEARS BEATEN

Cleveland Barons go into tonight's tussle with Buffalo Bisons for leadership of the American Hockey League's western division as the only-undefeated team in the circuit.

Cleveland and Buffalo are tied with six points each, but the Barons got there with three straight victories while the Bisons lost one game on the way. Hershey Bears, eastern section leaders, were removed from the unbeaten class last night when they took a 3-1 thumping from Pittsburgh hornets.

Pittsburgh's victory, coupled with a 2-2 tie between Indianapolis Capitals and New Haven Eagles, tightened the western race a bit. The Caps now are one point behind the two leaders and have a chance to take over second place tonight when they visit New Haven. Pittsburgh trails the top pair by two points. In last night's third game Washington Lions broke into the victory column for the first time, beating Providence, 4-2, to tie the Reds for second place in the eastern group.

Adds to Attack

The return of Tony Hemmerling after a week's absence with injuries added a bit to Pittsburgh's attack. He scored the first goal as the Hornets outsped the Bears. Norm Schultz and Pete Bessone racked up the other Pittsburgh tallies while Frank Daley scored for Hershey.

Washington, playing its first home game, grabbed an early lead on Joe Brown's tally and the Reds, who had only 11 players, tied it up early in the second period but the Lions made two more goals in that frame and another in the third before Providence could score again.

The 1,600 fans who turned out at New Haven saw the home team rally after Bill Thomson had scored two goals for Indianapolis in the second period. A long shot by Joe Shack put the Eagles back into the game and Joe Levandowski made it 2-2.

Tonight's contests at Buffalo and Providence are the season's first meetings between the clubs involved.

AT THE McCARTHY

Gene Autry

Gene Autry's entertainment special of the year, "Call Of The Canyon," is now on the McCarthy Theatre screen. No Autry would be complete without "Smiley" Burnette and in "Call Of The Canyon," "Smiley" is said to be funnier than ever before. Gene sings several outstanding new western songs including "Boots and Saddle," "Montana Plains," "Somebody Else is Taking My Place" and the theme song, "Call Of The Canyon." Also on the program, "Parachute Nurse" is a feature packed with thrills and excitement. These two features make ideal screen entertainment for every member of the family. This is Foto-Nite and the two offers are, first, $175 and second, $90. Your name may be selected. Four amateur acts will be presented to decide the Foto-Nite numbers to be called. Please be early.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tombstone"

Portrayed by Richard Dix, one of the most colorful of the West's gun-fighting frontier marshals, Wyatt Earp, is brought to life in "Tombstone—the Town Too Tough to Die." The new Paramount picture now at the Capitol Theatre.

Packed with action, the new film re-creates the days of the old Southwest, when Wyatt Earp roved the territory and brought law and order through the swiftness of his six-guns. The story revolves around the most spectacular of his clean-up jobs, the one in Tombstone, Arizona, which was ruled by the toughest of the West's badmen.

"Tombstone — the Town Too Tough to Die" stars Richard Dix, Kent Taylor and Edgar Buchanan. In the outstanding featured cast are lovely Frances Gilford, Don Castle, Clem Bevans, Victor Jory and Rex Bell.

The new film was produced by Harry Sherman, veteran producer of Western films, and was directed by William McGann.

"Charlie McCarthy"

With a combined listening audience of more than sixty-five million radio fans, according to a recent official survey, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, and Fibber McGee and Molly, make their first appearance together on the Capitol screen as companion feature in "Look Who's Laughing."

Allan Dwan produced and directed this RKO Radio laugh-fest which is laid in mythical Wistful Vista and presents the quartet of radio favorites as themselves. Lucille Ball, lovely young star, also shares top acting honors. Lee Bonnell, Dorothy Lovett, Neil Hamilton and a host of popular broadcast entertainers are featured.

The latest Canada Carries On featurette "The New Spirit" completes the bill.

AT THE BELLE

"Across the Pacific"

The stars of "The Maltese Falcon" (remember it!) return to the Belle Theatre next in another adventure thriller, Warner Bros'. "Across the Pacific." Reuniting Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet and Director John Huston, "Across the Pacific" pits Bogart against a ruthless band of would-be Jap saboteurs who plan the destruction of the Gatum Locks of the Panama Canal.

The time is pre-Pearl Harbor and Rick Leland (Humphrey Bogart) has just been dishonorably discharged from the U.S. army in which he was a captain. Turned down by the other services and the Canadian army because of his record, Rick heads for the Orient and the Chinese army. He ships on the "Genoa Maru," a Japanese vessel.

"Across the Pacific" is John Hustons third picture, following two earlier success—"The Maltese Falcon" and "In This Or Life." It is also his last picture because immediately after its completion Huston reported for active service with the Army Signal Corps.

The screen play was done by Richard MacCauley who based his script on the Saturday Evening Post serial by Robert Carson.

"Lum and Abner" Comedy

Bringing the type of humor that had made them outstanding favorites of the air waves, Lum and Abner comes to the Belle theatre as a companion feature in their latest RKO Radio film "The Bashful Bachelor."

This comedy is an "all out" for laughs with the two "old-young men" providing chuckles, guffaws and roars as the picture unfolds.

The cast is replete with established Hollywood names that always mean excellent performances. First is ZaSu Pitts playing a dignified spinster of Pine Ridge and romantically inclined toward Lum.

Oscar O'Shea and Grady Sutton add greatly to the merriment as Squire Skimp and Cedric. And to the listeners of Lum and Abner this is news as these two characters are brought to life for the first time. Previously Squire Skimp and Cedric have been merely voices played by Lum and Abner themselves.

Louise Currie, comely blond, is seen opposite Lum and Abner playing their pal and confidant. Irving Bacon and Constance Purdy round out this excellent cast.

For an evening of sheer laughs "The Bashful Bachelor" is the hilarious answer.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma on account of needing new shoes already, and we started to go passed a drugstore and ma said, While I think of it Im going right in here and get a tube of Dentaleen tooth paste, and if the clerk tries to force any other brand down my unwilling throat it will be a sorry day for him. And he's just sure to try, she said.

Well why, ma, why should he? I said, and ma said, Oh, they've always got some pet brands they're trying to push, no matter what you ask for. P. Willis Hinkle had an article in the paper just recently on the subject of shopkeepers trying to substitute inferior brands of merchandise on gullible customers to the detriment of honest advertisers, and I subscribe to every word he wrote, she said.

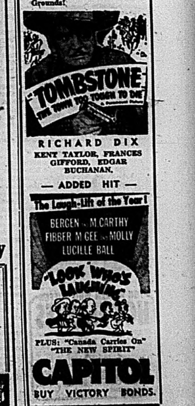
And we went in the store and ma said to the man, I'll have a tube of Dentaleen.

Certainly, madam, the man said.

And he went to get it, and ma said, My goodness I must of just happened to ask for the very brand he's trying to push. What a coincidence, she said.

And the man came back with the Dentaleen and ma said, Suppose a person walked in here ignorant of the virtues of Dentaleen and asked for Gleem instead, what would you do? and the man said, Why, I'd sell it to them, naturally. We pride ourselves on having the largest stock in town and I think I could let you have just about any brand you asked for, he said.

Do you mean to say you wouldn't advocate Dentaleen in preference to Gleem, ma said, and the man said, Most certainly not, the customers preference is always honored in this store.



Well come to think of it, I've heard Gleem highly spoken of, I think I'll take a tube instead of this Dentaleen, ma said, and the man said, Certainly, madam.

And he went and changed it for her without even looking surprised, proving drugstore men are probably used to everything.

CHAPTER 8
The Ghost

Raynor agreed, and, though came in.

"I'm sorry," said the detective, "to trouble you at this time, but I think it fair, now, to be sure. Dickson. Where were you when you were told of your wife's death?"

"I was at father's death-bed."

"Is your father dead?"

"No, he rallied, but he has had another stroke, and he may pass at any time."

"I will detain you but a moment, Mr. McCleod. Who called you from him at the time of the'trag-edy?"

"My man, Dickson. Doctor Lloyd sent him up for me. My father's apartment is just above my own."

"How long had you been up there when Dickson came?"

"Oh, quite a time. I was downstairs, dancing, when I felt a desire to go up to see my father, I knew he was getting weaker. So when the dance was over I went upstairs, I went through the man's own room, it's a guest room, you know, and Alma was there, sitting at the powder table, doing things to her face! At first I wasn't lovely enough without! I went up behind her and kissed her, but of course she saw me coming in the mirror. I told her where I was going and she said she'd go with me. But I said, no, for she had been up not long since, and she ought to stay by the party. I went upstairs, there's a little circular stair-case."

"I know this whole place is a maze!"

Hugh smiled. "So it is!" he said. "It took my a long time to learn its tricks and its manners. Well, I went on up and found father very low. He didn't know me, and Simpson, poor girl, needed some one with her. So I stayed—until Dickson came." He was silent a moment, and then said:

"Raynor, you people must find the unspeakable beast who did this thing! I am not given to vengeance as a rule, but I want to see that killer caught and punished. It is coming to him, and if your force can't find him I shall get someone who can! Have you any clue? Any hint of what way he took?"

"I fear it is too soon yet, Mr. McCleod, to say yes to that, but rest assured everything is being done that can be done, and our best operatives are on the job. Do you know of a few bracelets Mrs. McCleod was wearing?"

"A bracelet? What kind?"

"Quite an elaborate affair, I believe. A circlet of fourteen diamonds, She was wearing it when she was found."

"Oh, well, it was all right."

"Did you give it to her?"

"I don't know. I think very likely I did."

That sounds cryptic to me. Will you explain it?"

"It's this way. I make Alma an allowance for her spending money and I may say that the amount of it is entirely satisfactory to her. Then, I do, frequently, give her a money present, because of a birthday or other holiday occasion. This money she stores away, and when she wishes she buys herself some trinket she wants and tells me it is a present from me. Which of course it is, but she never shows it to me with great glee. I think she would have shown it to me last night, when I saw her in the dressing-room, but then we soon both heard a step in the hall, and I went my way and she continued to her face-painting. I detest those cosmetics."

Raynor noticed that McCleod continued to speak of his wife in the present tense, but that often happened in his experience.

"You notice a new bracelet, then?"

"No; my wife wears jewelry always in the best taste, I see it as a general affect, but not as individual ornaments."

"Your wife had many admirers."

"And deserved them. She was a gracious, kindly hostess and had many friends. But not one that would dare offer her a valuable piece of jewelry! The idea is absurd."

"I begin to think we must look outside the house for the criminal. The report from the autopsy may show us another possibility."

"I cannot think Alma had an alimony. I did not know of it. But I would rather it should be that than murder. It is far more unbelievable that any one would harm her. You suggest, Raynor, that suppose you hint lovers, but my wife is as pure as an angel. She would scorn the idea of a secret intrigue."

"Thank you, and you may go."

Hugh went up to his father's rooms, and Raynor called for Linda, the maid. He felt an interest in the bangle, which stood further any inquiry.

Linda was a good-looking girl, who seemed to be of Swedish extraction, she greeted Raynor with a demure, very respectful curtsey, and took her seat as directed.

"You have been with Mrs. McCleod, how long?" he asked.

"About three years, sir."

"A good mistress, I daresay."

"There could be no better."

"You had full charge of Mrs. McCleod's jewels?"

"Yes, sir."

"Put them away when she came home from the party, and all that?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she ever wear much jewelry at the party here last night?"

"No, sir, clips, rings, several bangles and a small corset-shaped piece, I think, sir."

"Describe her bangles. Are they bracelets?"

"No, last night she wore only bangles, light, slender ones."

"With charms?"

"No sir, bangles do not have charms. They slip over the hand."

"I see. And how many of these?"

"I don't remember. Perhaps four or five."

"When did you put them away?"

Linda seemed a little whiter, but her voice was steady as she answered. "Before the last look I saw away, they removed all her jewelry and handed it to me. I told them I was responsible for it."

"Did you put aside from these men the very same pieces of jewelry that you put on her when you dressed her?"

"I did."

"And how many more pieces?"

"More pieces? Linda looked bewildered.

"Yes; one more piece at least. Better tell the truth."

"There—there did seem to be an extra piece, sir."

"What was that extra piece, Linda?"

"It—it was a bangle, sir."

"Describe it."

"It was quite plain sir. Just a platinum hoop, set all around with diamonds."

"Large stones."

"Medium large."

"Where is that bangle now?"

"I put it away with the rest of the pieces, in the jewel safe."

"Who has the key to that safe?"

"I have it, sir."

"Give it to me."

"I'm glad sir, it is an awful responsibility!"

From a slight gold chain around her neck the girl drew up a little chamois bag and took from it a key, which she handed to Raynor.

He put it in his pocket and said: "Was Mrs. McCleod something confidential with you, Linda?"

"Sometimes, a little."

"Did she ever talk to you about money matters?"

"Not very often, sir."

Raynor looked stern, and said, a little sharply: "Careful now. Speak the truth. Do you know that Mrs. McCleod had or was about to invest quite a sum of money, without her husband's knowledge?"

"Yes." The reply was so low it could scarcely be heard.

"With whom was she making this investment?"

"With Mr. Murray."

"Did she meet Mr. Murray secretly to make these investments?"

Linda's hesitation brought further orders.

"Unless you are frank and truthful, you will find yourself under arrest. Also, what you tell me, if true, will be a slight to Mrs. McCleod and to Mr. McCleod's memory."

"Is that true, sir?"

"Entirely true."

"Then, sir, she did meet Mr. Murray secretly, and she had an understanding to meet him today."

"Where?"

"At the Chandos, at two, for lunch."

Raynor turned to Colby and said, "Go out and put a trailer on Ogden Murray. Get a good one."

Colby went, but very shortly returned, saying, "Murray left the house some time ago, saying you told him he might go."

"I very well did," said Raynor, insincerely.

v v v v

It was now nine o'clock on Thursday morning. As far as Raynor could learn, Alma had died around four o'clock, Wednesday, had been found a short half-past four and had no definite knowledge as yet, of the murderer's identity.

Thomas Raynor had gained his position as chief of the Homicide Bureau by his insistent perseverance, and determination to get his man. He had just finished the last of the unlikely people he had to question, by which term he meant the ones who could not conceivably have had the slightest motive to kill Alma McCleod. Some of these he had turned over to Colby, but now they had all been dismissed, and he could return to his work of questioning the members of the household and the more intimate of the guests.

Having looked over the translcription of his talk with Linda he called for Netta, the other maid in the house, and the ladies at the party. She came in, not in uniform, for her engagement was temporary. In a rather smart street costume she looked more like a guest than a servant.

"You were here just for the party?" Raynor asked her.

"Yes, sir. And my name is Miss Bridgit Netta."

"Good! Now, tell me of the very last thing you saw Mrs. McCleod alive. Where was she?"

"Why, sir, it seems sorta funny but some few of the ladies, they would go into the men's coat room now' and then, cause it had such a lovely dressing table—"

"I see. The ladies own dressing rooms had gotten?"

"Of course, but there was always somebody at 'em."

"And Mrs. McCleod used this cosmetic table in the men's coat room?"

"She was in the room a whole lot. Mostly with some of her beaus. Mr. Ogy about a dozen!"

"Don't tell me anything about the lady, Miss Briggs; just answer my question."

"That's the 'answer, Last time I seen her alive, she was in that men's coat room, with—some handsome young feller."

"Describe him!"

"Oh, I can't do that! I never look at men, sir."

"What were Mrs. McCleod and the young man doing?"

"Nothin', She was kinda showin' him her bracelets, I guess, her arm, She had on three or four beautiful ones. She was lyin' on the couch, chair, day-bed, you know 'tis'n' out, you know, just sorta leanin' back in the corner in the mazdlin of lace pillows."

"Miss Briggs, please try to remember something about the looks of that man."

"Why, I never so much as gave him a glance. I was just thrilled with lookin' at Mrs. McCleod, she lay back there, lookin' most special! at the way her skirt hung. Sorta billowy and yet every seam in place; why! it was, all white, with some touches of goldy stuff here and there."

Miss Briggs seemed to go into a dream about the gold-touches, and Raynor wondered whether he could get any real help from her.

Enemy in Our Power Says Montgomery

New York, Nov. 5 (AP) — A CBS broadcast from Cairo said today that Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery sent the following message yesterday to his 8th. Army:

"The enemy is in our power and he is just about to crack. I call on all troops to keep up the pressure and not to relax for one moment. We have the chance of putting the whole panzer army in the bag and we will do so. Complete victory is almost in sight."

U. S. Pilot Uses New Guinea Boy For Seat Cushion

Somewhere in New Guinea, Nov. 5 —(AP)— Lieut. James Miller of Salines, Calif., who bailed out of his fighter plane over the New Guinea jungle yesterday returned to base today in a plane he found abandoned on a beach. With him was a young native boy who served as a seat cushion.

Field attendants stared unbelievingly as Miller climbed from the plane and then lifted out the young Boong (native).

It happened like this:

While on a fighter mission Miller encountered severe weather and bailed out. He was picked up by natives who led him to the abandoned plane.

The plane had no seat. A native boy climbed into the cockpit, and Miller seated himself in the boy's lap. This enabled him to see, and he made a difficult take-off from the beach.

Miller reported himself none the worse for his experience. The boy was happy because Miller bought him a new red belt.

Export of Creamery Butter Except Under Permit Prohibited

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP) — Export of creamery butter except under permit has been prohibited, it was disclosed today in a memorandum distributed by the Department of National Revenue.

At the Agriculture Department it was stated the action was taken to keep control of exports because of the short position of butter supplies in Canada. Because of this condition it was not desirable to permit any large export shipments.

But very little butter is exported from Canada anyway, and all exports to countries other than British possessions and the United States have been prohibited except under permit for some time.

Small quantities are exported to Newfoundland and the British West Indies and there is no intention of interfering with these shipments.

The order does not apply to dairy or farm made butter nor to whey butter.

Marine Pilot Uses Patrol Plane For Dive-Bomber and Releases Torpedo That Sinks Transport

(By Tom Yarbrough)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

An Advance Base in the South Pacific, Oct. 18. (Delayed)— (AP) At a critical moment in the defence of Guadalcanal three days ago a United States marine pilot made an unprecedented dive with his patrol plane and released two torpedoes that certainly sank one Japanese transport.

The pilot was Maj. Jack Randolf Cram of Seattle, and his dive was made while Japanese troops were landing in daylight 10 miles down the coast from the airdrome.

Dive-bombers in the same attack accounted for two other transports of a total of six that came in with troops, equipment and supplies that morning, after Japanese warships, planes and artillery had pounded the airdrome area continually for two nights in an effort to knock out the marine beach-head.

That was Thursday morning. The marines and their newly-arrived helpers from the army hadn't slept since Monday night. Their runways were damaged and fresh Japanese troops were landing by the thousands ten miles west of their left flank.

Something Had to Be Done

Something had to be done—even if it meant hooking aerial torpedoes to the lumbering Catalina flying boat which was built for long-range patrol work and which never was meant to dive on enemy ships through a swarm of zeros. It was time to do something unorthodox and that is what Maj. Cram and his crew of youngers did. They brought the plane back full of bullet holes but none of them got a scratch.

The fact that one transport was sunk by the PBY's torpedoes was certified by marine and navy fighter pilots who observed the attack.

Catalinas had delivered torpedoes into ships before —at Midway—but that was at night and not by diving.

Cram had never dropped a torpedo before —never been in combat—and his crew had never fired their guns in any kind of fight.

Fifteen Zeros Around

"We got up to several thousand feet and 15 Zeros up there were ready to hit us", he related. "We went into a dive. I watched the needle go past 100 knots but could not keep my eye on it because I had a lot of other things to do. You see, I didn't have a co-pilot—there weren't enough fliers there for that. We were diving fast. I had to keep going to get there when the dive-bombers did. I glanced at the needle and I was afraid to look at the wings or the tail. We got down to 100 feet, then 75—and then I let the torpedoes go. I don't know how far we were from the ships—just close enough not to miss 'em, that's all I know. I had the transports in front of me with their bows overlapping when I let go".

Correspondent Witnesses Crumbling Of Rommel's Lines at El Alamein

By FRANK L. MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With Attacking British Forces on the El Alamein Front, Nov. 3—(Delayed)—(AP)—The enemy's El Alamein line is crumbling tonight.

It cannot hold on much longer.

The coast road leading westward, back from the front toward El Daba has suddenly become choked with infantry crowded into trucks headed away from the line the enemy clung to within 80 miles of Alexandria and clung to grimly under 11 days of punishment.

Night after night since the dusk of Friday, Oct. 23, British infantry has cut great, vicious gashes into that narrow but armor-crusted line. For 11 nights most of it held.

But tonight, Rommel's forces showed the first signs of cracking when their first-line infantry began pulling back.

The withdrawal started in the north sector, which had been under constant barrage for a week and where the bombardment had reached such a pitch of violence that Germans, inured to artillery terror in Russia, fell shell-shocked into British capacity!

The enemy was up against an ominous, ever-expanding bulge carved by British infantry into their fortifications west of the gap in the El Alamein line and bristling with tanks and other armored machines.

Formidable Armored Force

Sheltering the enemy armor, massed to the northwest of this breach, was but one ring of German artillery and anti-tank guns. It was thrown up hastily by the Axis in an effort to delay the advancing Allied armored force—the most formidable ever seen in the desert.

At the same time, Axis infantry had begun to feel the stabs of British steel, for small Allied fighting patrols suddenly blossomed into strong attack forces.

As one British officer summed up the situation:—

"We will punish the enemy infantry until its body becomes so weak it will be forced to fall back. 'Once the enemy is pushed off this narrow front which defied large-scale flanking there will be no other place for hundreds of miles behind him where he cannot be outflanked".

Infantry Carried Main Attack

Except for isolated tank battles, the main fighting up to now has been by infantry and the enemy has hesitated to throw his main forces of tanks into the struggle. Instead, he has preferred to rely on artillery for protection.

The Axis' guns have been quiet by night during the past week to avoid giving away their positions but they have opened up by day when their flashes cannot be seen.

Now the enemy's cannon in the northern sector are fighting a rear-guard action, covering troops which are dropping back to the west, out of the line.

$1,813.52 Contributed To Fund for Blind

The semi-annual meeting of Hastings County Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was held in the Collegiate here on Wednesday. Mr. C. L. Jewell, treasurer of the tag day and donation fund, reported the sum of $1813.52 contributed by the citizens of Belleville, Trenton, Marmora, Frankford, Stirling, Madoc, Tweed and Bancroft. This was an increase over last year but not quite sufficient to meet the county's allotment. Further donations will be appreciated.

Mr. Milton, field secretary, reported 101 registered blind and 70 prevention cases in Hastings County.

Mr. Lawley, superintendent of the Ontario Field Services, was in attendance and thanked the members of the board and through them the citizens for their generous support of such a worthy cause.

Phil Marchildon Joins the RCAF

Penetanguishene, Ont., Nov. 5 —(CP)—Phil Marchildon, pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics in the American Baseball League, has joined the R.C.A.F. at Toronto, his sister, Jean, said today.

Marchildon, whose decision to join the R.C.A.F. had been announced earlier this year, won 17 games for Connie Mack's Athletics last season.

Two brothers are in the Canadian (Active) army.

TORONTO STOCK

Toronto, Nov. 5. (CP) — Gold stocks today advanced in the early session on a report that restrictions on new supplies of equipment going to the Gold mines might not be as stringent as had been anticipated. The war news also may have been a factor.

Bralorne, Kerr-Addison, Hollinger, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes, Preston, East Malartic and other golds all moved up strongly. In the Base Metal group minor gains appeared for Noranda, Steep Rock and Aldermac. International Nickel and Smelters weakened moderately.

Utilities and Seniors Oils were a bit stronger. Bell Telephone, Brazilian, United Fuel A, Imperial Oil and Dominion Steel B were gainers by fractions.

HOGS

Liveweight: Chatham $11.60.

Dressedweight: Barrie $16.20, Brantford $15.85 plus transportation, Chatham $16.75, Hamilton $16.25 delivered, Hull $15.65 plus transportation, London $16.10 delivered.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 5—(AP)—The news still was on the side of the stock market today but, after a moderate advance at the opening, further selling cropped up in most departments.

While fractional plus marks were plentiful near the fourth hour, declines were numerous.

Hiram Walker up 1-8, registered the only change in the Canadian list.

Low-priced stocks were lively, with Continental Motors registering a new peak for the year. Douglas Aircraft, ex-dividend, retrieved a portion of yesterday's loss. Supported were Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Texas Co., Chrysler, U.S. Rubber Pfd., Goodyear and Montgomery Ward.

Hesitant were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Motors, Loew's, Eastman Kodak, Sperry and Sears Roebuck.

Major E.H.A. Watson, Field Secretary Of Red Cross Society, Visits Tweed

Tweed — Major E. H. Watson, Field Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society, addressed a large gathering of Red Cross Workers in the Oddfellows' Community Hall on Monday night, his most enlightening address he told of the importance of Red Cross work in the present struggle and stressed the need for a greater effort among the women of the community, many of whom have so far taken no active part in the activities of the branch, to offer their services.

The urgency of the need for the whole-hearted support of all is shown by the fact that nearly five and one-half million dollars annually are spent for parcels of food to British prisoners of war and for maintain prison camps, the Canadian R. C. supplies 40,000 sleeping bags, bombs weekly at a cost of two dollars and fifty cents per each box. These are urgently needed because of the scarcity and poor quality of the food in Germany with which the prisoners are fed. Their food ration is that on which the peasants subsikes out a meagre existence.

The entire audience was deeply impressed with the splendid address and was encouraged to devote more and more of their time and energy to this most essential work.

Following the address Major Watson showed a number of films, "There Too, Go I", illustrating the work of the Red Cross "Behind the British and elsewhere; and "British at Work", an authentic picture of actual warfare, loaned by the British Ministry of Information to the Canadian Red Cross Society.

In the afternoon a matinee was held for the children of the Consolidated High and Separate schools. A silver collection taken at the door amounted to about twenty-one dollars.

Major Watson was introduced by Mr. W. L. Gordon, President of Tweed Red Cross Branch, Mrs. Marfat, Chairman of the Women's War Work Committee, spoke briefly.

Results of the increased interest aroused by the meeting was in evidence on Tuesday with an augmented attendance at the work meeting in the Veterans' Hall.

Anniversary Service

Tweed United Church will hold the Fiftieth Anniversary of the present Church building on Sunday, November 8th, when Rev. Dr. Walter Brown, D.D., Chancellor of Victoria University will be guest preacher. Services will be held on Sunday morning and evening, with a choir recital at the close of the evening service. The choir has been preparing special music for the occasion and has been fortunate in securing the assistance of Mrs. Fred Houston, Mrs. William Burgoyne, Mrs. Harry Rollins and Mr. Durland Houston, all of Belleville, and Mrs. James Goldie, Peterboro, former member of the choir of Tweed United Church.

On Monday evening a meeting will be held at which former pastors will speak, and greetings will be brought by ministers of neighboring churches.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deacon, Belleville, will be guest artists. Mr. W. S. Gordon is the chairman of the Church Anniversary Committee and has spared no effort to insure the success of the event which will of necessity be affected by the troublous days through which we are passing.

Win at Rugby

Tweed High School rugby team secured a firm hold on second place in the C. H. S. A. Rugby League by defeating their Madoc rivals by a two-sided twenty-yard game, with 13-1 score on Friday night. Tweed scored ten points on forward passes tossed by Glenn Connor, local fullback. Clifford Rivers and Ray Bishotte carrying the ball over the line. Connor converted one of the major scores and kicked a single for the other point.

Watson, Madoc fullback, scored his team's only point on a kick from Tweed twenty-yard line.

The third and final injection of toxoid was administered to the pupils of Tweed Consolidated and Separate Schools on Monday by Dr. M. G. Dales, Medical Officer of Health. The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Green was buried on Monday.

Pte. Doug. Connor, who is enrolled in No. 1 Canadian Army Course, Toronto University, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Connor.

"I Take Syntona Whenever I Fee l Rundown," Says This Man

Improves Appetite; Aids Digestion, Relieves Constipation, Tired, Fatigued Feeling and Rheumatic Pain. "Always Feel Better Afterward," He Says.

MR. HOLGER PEDERSEN

At this season of the year many people feel easily fatigued, worn out and nervous; appetites are lost and they have no energy to do anything; bowels become constipated; with indigestion, biliousness, dizziness, headaches and rheumatic aches and pains. Now is the time to take Syntona for effective aid like that experienced by Mr. Holger Pedersen, Belleville, Ontario.

"I first used Syntona four years ago when I was recovering from a serious accident," says Mr. Pedersen, "and I found it very helpful. I felt so much better in short a good time that I continued and I was badly run-down, constipated, had sour stomach, aching pain in my hips and down through my limbs. I would feel tired, weak, had lost appetite, could not sleep and the whole day long me and my system was filled with hot, horrible feeling in my throat for hours afterward.

"After reading about Syntona helping other people, I decided to try it. It really fixed me up. I am enjoying my meals again, sleep well and rising or soon afterwards. I was feeling pretty good about this and life seemed brighter. Then, as I kept taking it, the aches and pains gradually went away so that I could get around and do my work. Should I ever feel run-down, constipated or have any indigestion I will take Syntona. Since then I take a treatment of Syntona whenever I feel run-down, which usually happens around this time of year. I always feel better afterwards."

We highly recommended Syntona to a friend and know from experience that it can be depended on to give good results.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

AXIS FLIGHT ACCELERATES

Battle Area Widens As Fighting Rolls Steadily Westward

Montgomery Confident Rommel Will Not Be Able to Reorganize Forces

SUPPLY DUMPS BURNED

Cairo, Nov. 6 (AP) — Three fast armored divisions of the British 8th Army led by Lt.-General L. H. Montgomery have driven two wedges through Marshal Rommel's forces and are fighting inside enemy positions.

The Axis high command conceded that the Allied offensive was nearing Sollum, 106 miles west of the old El Alamein battle line, but British headquarters said officially only that the battle had been carried "well west of El Daba," 14 miles from El Alamein.

Tanks were operating at the heels of the Axis retreat in the El Daba sector, a British communique said.

Portions of Rommel's armies which managed to escape the British wedging and encirclement were said by General Montgomery to be in full retreat.

The situation — of deep tank thrusts—prompted one hard-hitting pursuit—suggested that the fate of the German-Italian North African army might well be sealed before the expected German-Italian retreat across the Egyptian Libyan border some 230 miles farther west.

Receives Correspondents

Montgomery told of the armored penetrations when he received correspondents at his desert headquarters yesterday afternoon, and completeness and absolute victory in the battle of El Alamein.

(A well-informed source at London said the head of the Allied staff "there is reason to believe that our armored forces now have succeeded in getting behind some of the retreating German and Italian forces and that their retreat is virtually cut off.

"There are high hopes that we may be able to annihilate them completely without having to chase them across the Libyan desert as in other advances.")

The speedy liquidation of Rommel's forces was recorded today in the official disclosure that 9,000 Axis prisoners alone now total more than 20,000 men and that at least 330 of his tanks have been knocked out.

The full measure of Rommel's defeat was indicated in a British communique which told of a round up of large numbers of Italians afoot, apparently abandoned in their inland positions while the Germans on wheels or caterpillar tractors fled to save themselves by flight along the coastal road.

Still In Reserve

The Axis high command still led British headquarters in progress reports on the Allied offensive. The broadcast communiques from Rome and Berlin placed the area of violent combat between Fuka and Matruh, 22 and 2 miles west of the original El Alamein line.

The new British figures on tanks destroyed and prisoners taken incorporated the latest figures, 4,000 more men and at least 70 more tanks. And still the roundup went on in the desert and the relentless attacks on Rommel's rearguards continued along the coast. A road paced by a continuous aerial offensive which dwarfed the Axis air effort.

(Allied pressure of the Axis Mediterranean lifeline was said to be phazized by the London Admiralty's report that no more Axis vessels had been sunk and two damaged by British submarines.)

Announcement of the new Allied successes indicated the victorious 8th Army had driven a total distance of 80 miles since breaking through the enemy's positions near El Alamein and dispatches from the front suggested the battle of North Africa was rapidly degenerating into a race across the desert with Rommel's forces trying desperately to escape destruction.

Lt. Gen. B. L. Montgomery, Field Commander of the 8th Army, confidently proclaimed a complete victory for the Allies in Egypt and declared his troops would strike at the Axis forces remaining in North Africa.

GERMANS USING AIR TRANSPORTS TO CARRY TROOPS

Desperate Attempt Made to Bolster Rommel's Forces in Africa

APPEAL TURNED DOWN

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 5 —(Delayed) — (AP)— Information received here from Greece today said that the Germans, in a desperate attempt to bolster Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating forces in Egypt, are using upwards of 800 planes to transport troops from Greece Athens, Greece, to an unknown German Africa base.

This information said the troops had been removed from the Russian front to near Athens.

An earlier report said that four truckloads of German soldiers from the eastern front, transported through Rumania and Yugoslavia, had passed through Athens on Monday.

The newest advices said that transport planes to speed the passage of the reinforcements to Africa had been in use since Tuesday. Normally the troops would be sent by sea, it was said.

Another report in the Turkish capital was given confirmation today by an informed Japanese quarter.

It is said that a week ago Berlin had realized the perilous situation of the Axis forces in Africa and Hitler had appealed to Tokio for indirect aid in the form of a Japanese naval attack on Madagascar or South Africa which might compel the Allies to divert strength elsewhere.

Tokyo Turns Down Appeal

This report added that Tokyo turned down the appeal, stating it could not commit the required naval strength because of blows received from the United States Navy in the Solomons Pacific during the summer and fall.

Information received here by a diplomatic source who cannot be identified said, meanwhile, that 18 Vichy-French ships, some of them thought to be converted French naval tankers, had left a North African port in the direction of the Turkish straits which lead to the Black Sea.

The same source said the Germans are urgently pressing Vichy for the use of the Bizerte Air Base, the area to serve German armies fighting in Egypt and retreating and encircled Axis rail transportation of supplies from Germany and Rumania.

A year ago a converted Italian naval tanker sailed in an attempt to pass through the Turkish straits to the Black Sea. But the Turks ruling the ship actually was a war vessel.

U. S. Airmen Wise to Native Chief's Trick to Secure Rations

(By OLEN W. CLEMENTS)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

An advance base in the South Pacific, Oct. 18 (Delayed) (AP) — The native chief of Guadalcanal, has got in bad with Allied airmen, it is said.

In fact Col. U. G. (Blondy) Saunders has ordered his pilots to give the chief a wide berth every time they see him.

It came about this way. A scouting B-17 saw the chief on the island's beach as he boarded a raft and waving a parachute. The American plane came down, but the crew saw only the chief and thinking that American fliers were encamped on the island dropped emergency rations consisting of corn-beef, hard tack and chocolate bars.

Later at this base the pilot told Major George Howard what he had seen. The next day another scouting plane went over tiny Betsell and there on the beach, waving a parachute beside the life raft, was the chief. Down went the as before.

It seems this American fare was just to the liking of the chief for every time he has had a report the Japanese scampered to his boat and left many time and supplies behind. He went over. And of course the chief thought the white man that abandoned stranded fellow airmen.

Then the story came out.

Several months ago a couple of navy pilots were forced down in the vicinity of Betsell and made the trip inland in their craft. The chief found them and with typical Polynesian hospitality invited them to leave behind their rafts and go inland with him. They went away. They did.

And the white man then to good use—for the chief.

But the army is wise to him now.

The chief still comes out with his parachute and raft when a plane goes over and probably wonders why the white man is not there to the coconut, banana and tangerine trees for his food.

REDS MAINTAIN ACTIVITY ON BLACK SEA FRONT

Soviet Armies Improve Positions Somewhat In Stalingrad Factory Area

MANY NAZIS KILLED

(By EDDY GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Nov. 6. (AP)—The Russians said today counter-attacking garrison troops had improved their positions somewhat in a Stalingrad factory area while the Red Army maintained active operations on the Black Sea coast. They killed 1,000 invaders in the battle for the Stalingrad section.

Two companies of tank-supported Red infantrymen were declared smashed as Russian forces struck across a debris-littered canyon of death-dealing fire repulsing many attacks.

Russian artillerymen destroyed eight German tanks by point-blank fire and Soviet fliers attack heavily at German troops positions, the noon communique said.

Bombs and gunfire of the Russian aircraft were reported to have destroyed 13 enemy batteries and 19 machine-gun positions within 24 hours.

Three Batteries Silenced

Three more batteries were silenced and 19 German dugouts and machine-gun nests were wrecked by Soviet shells on the steppes northwest of Stalingrad, it was announced.

The Moscow radio reported that the commander of the 62nd, in a letter expressing determination to fight to the last man, had said that "we are sure the time is not far off when we shall hear of the fall of Berlin in the second front.

Addressed to Stalin

The letter was addressed to Premier Stalin. Delivered on the eve of the 25th anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution, it expressed confidence that the troops would "deal a crushing blow to the enemy from Stalingrad."

"The entire world is watching our struggle," it said. "The voices of our Allies now heard from all corners of the globe expressing admiration for our resistance. According this moral aid, we are sure the time is not far off when we shall hear of the fall of Berlin in the second front. This will be not only a moral but a material aid to the defenders of Stalingrad and will hasten the hour of victory over the common enemy."

The tragedy of the conflict southeast of Nalchik, where the Russians are fighting to hold the routes leading to Ordzhonikidze, has had its own strategic valley between the Caucasus Mountain chains, was illustrated by an account from the Soviet Information Bureau.

Hastings County Passes Victory Loan Objective

True to its traditions, Hastings County Thursday night joined the circle of communities in the Dominion which have attained their objective in the Third Victory Loan.

General Campaign Headquarters at 211 Front Street here announced today that the objective of $2,100,000 has been reached and passed with two days to go before the official closing of the campaign.

The first of the individual communities to reach and pass their quota was the city of Belleville whose allotment of $675,000 was attained early Thursday afternoon.

Trenton followed suit shortly afterward, and while the actual figures are not yet available it is expected that other county districts will do likewise before the end of the week.

Today the official Commando dagger on the Victory Loan signboard at the Front Street-Bridge Street intersection is buried to the hilt "in the heart of Berlin."

While this news is heartening and a distinct tribute to the residents of this county, campaign officials feel that new goals should be sought and a new record attained in the final Victory Loan of the first Great War, the people of this county contributed $2,500,000.

Efforts to reach a new objective should NOT be relaxed because of the success of the campaign thus far, it is pointed out.

In order to accommodate those who have no other time to transact business with the banks of the city, arrangements have been completed with the financial institutions to remain open on Saturday afternoon until four o'clock.

Definite figures up to last night were not obtainable today but will be released in tomorrow's editions.

AMERICANS JAB AT JAP LINES ON GUADALCANAL

Pierce Deep Into 'Only' Flank and Threaten Another

CAPTURE EQUIPMENT

By JOHN M. WIGGINS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 6 —(AP)— Hard-pressed American forces stabbed at Japanese positions on Guadalcanal's broadening battlefront today in a two-pronged attack that pierced deeply into one flank and threatened another.

To the west of the island's Australian-U.S. marines and soldiers successfully attacked enemy positions, the navy reported yesterday, killing 350 Japanese and capturing 12 75mm. field artillery guns, three field pieces and 30 machine-guns.

The attack came about two days after the troops two additional miles of jungle. But a similar attempt to smash enemy concentrations to the east of Mount Austen, also launched day was repulsed.

The Nipponese forces, put ashore on the coast east of the base five days ago under cover of heavy naval gunfire, suffered additional night landings Nov. 3 and 4, the navy said.

VICTORY LOAN CONTINUES TO GAIN GROUND

Only 21 Millions Behind Total Cash Subscriptions

IN FINAL STAGE

Ottawa, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Subscriptions to Canada's Third Victory Loan yesterday totalled $40,894,350, raising the cumulative total for the first 16 days of the campaign to $871,965,550, the National Loan Headquarters announced today.

This cumulative figure is $71,965,550 above the minimum objective set for the drive, and only about $21,000,000 below the level which would mean that the Second Victory Loan last February.

No Conversions This Time

However, conversions of maturing issues amounting to $113,000,000 helped swell the February campaign to a total of $984,786,000. There are no conversions this time. But with Friday and Saturday receipts yet to be received, Loan Headquarters said today, the Dominion's workers can look upon the final two days with a strong push to complete the drive. Many new subscribers and the largest dollar total that can be raised."

To serve the last-minute needs of people who have not yet subscribed, who wish to subscribe again, or for whom the regular banking hours are not convenient, branches of the chartered banks will be open tonight from noon from two until four o'clock, it was announced last night by Finance Minister Ilsley. The city south offices of the banks will be the only branches closed. Some offices of the trust and loan companies will remain open.

Embattled Malta Rejoices Over Victory in Egypt

Valetta, Nov. 6 (C.P.—Reuters) —Malta, embattled fortress-island recorded its seventh year of the siege today with the announcement of the enemy's victory in Egypt with a feeling of unprecedented exhilaration. "Rommel's army has experienced what it means to face an enemy fully prepared and able to deliver from ground and air the hammer blows which Hitler first let loose on Russia."

It is clear the German Africa corps suffered a severe defeat which marks the beginning of rightful justice."

Say Von Thoma Told Montgomery "Situation Critical' for Nazis

Cairo, Nov. 6 (AP) — Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, Field Marshal Rommel's second in command, who was captured by the British 8th Army, was reported today to have had dinner with Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery and commented that the "situation is critical" for German and Italian troops retreating west in Egypt.

The captured general and Montgomery discussed the campaign, sketching battlelines on the tablecloth.

VICHY FORCES IN MADAGASCAR ASK ARMISTICE

Hostilities Cease On Thursday and Campaign is Now Officially Ended

AMBALVA EVACUATED

London, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Vichy forces opposing British troops in Southeast Madagascar asked for an armistice and hostilities ceased at 8 p. m. (Madagascar time) yesterday, an authoritative source announced today.

The only recent fighting on the large island in the Indian Ocean has been in the southeastern section, so the armistice, in effect, terminates the Madagascar campaign.

The Vichy radio announced this afternoon that French troops in Madagascar evacuated the town of Ambalava during the night of Nov. 3 after heavy fighting.

A Reuters news agency report from Port Louis, Mauritius, said the British radio at Tananarive, Madagascar's capital, broadcast an announcement that hostilities conditions had been communicated to Armana Ahmet, Vichy governor-general of the island.

Launched Six Months Ago

Britain launched the successful campaign against Madagascar six months ago.

On May 5 a joint admiralty and war office communique announced British forces had been landed in the north where it was declared early Japanese for months had been plotting to make the vital Diego Suarez naval base. Lying at the north-end tip of Madagascar, it has coast and only 300 miles from the African coast, this sheltered base is of great importance to control of the Indian Ocean and shipping around the Cape of Good Hope.

Diego Suarez fell to the British force on May 7. Four months later they launched a drive, on Sept. 10, to occupy all of the island and Tananarive was taken in 13 days.

The Armistice request which brought an end to fighting in the southeast was the second made by Annet. The first was on Sept. 18 when British troops were pressing on the capital, but Vichy found the terms unacceptable and continued armed resistance.

MUSSOLINI AND HITLER

London, Nov. 6. (CP)—A roundabout report reached London today that Premier Mussolini and Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler by air late in October for a meeting with Hitler at Salzburg, Austria, Reuters correspondent Kesserling, of the German Air Force, also participated.

A Reuters News Agency report from Rome said the two conferred on the Italian dictator's visit.

Two Enemy Ships Boarded by Crews And Destroyed

Two Other Large Axis Supply Ships Damaged in Same Action

LADEN WITH FOOD

London, Nov. 6 —(CP)— The Admiralty announced today that six more Axis vessels have been sunk and two large Axis supply ships damaged by British submarines in the Mediterranean.

Two Axis ships, both coastal boats laden with food, were boarded by crews from a British submarine and destroyed by their own crews abandoned them.

Two Hits on Tanker

Another submarine torpedoed and sank a merchant-supply ship despite an escort of two destroyers and also sank two smaller ships and a cargoboat.

An attack by a British submarine on a large enemy supply ship which had been beached halted salvage operations, said the communique.

Two hits were scored by still another British undersea raider on a big Axis tanker escorted by two destroyers. One of the escorting destroyers also may have been hit by a torpedo, the Admiralty said.

Coal Miner Killed Another is Injured

Stellarton, N.S., Nov. 6 (CP) — One coal miner was killed and another seriously injured late last night in a cave-in at the 350-foot level of the Allan shaft here. Rescue workers early yesterday started their way through the debris that had pinned the men in the depths of the mine. One body was found and brought them to the surface.

William Allan, a Stellarton, was dead when searchers extricated him from beneath some twenty tons of coal. The other miner, Alex. Desmond, of New Glasgow, N.S., suffered from undetermined injuries.

NEXT ONE IS ON THE DOC

Lock Haven, Pa., Nov. 6—(AP)—The stork made his 19th call at the home of James Roy Hill, 46, paper mill worker, and Mrs. Hill, 39, today. Dr. Ellen Blair, attending physician, Dr. T. E. Yash, announced that the eight boys "are doing fine" and they're all in good shape." said he, reaching in his pocket for a full set of artificial features.

RUSS HOME FRONT NEVER SO STRONG STALIN DECLARES

Says Main Reason of Nazi Advance 300 Miles This Year is Absence of Second Front

FORECASTS 2ND FRONT

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP) — Joseph Stalin declared today that because of the lack of a second front in Europe the Germans had been able to break through the Russian lines in the west but summer and in five months' advance about 300 miles.

The statement told special meeting of the Moscow Soviet convoked to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution that never before had the Russian home front been as strong and well organized on the home front.

"The break-through in the west, he said, came because the Red Army had routed the Germans on the approaches to Moscow last Winter, attacked and defeated them.

Returning a second time to mention of the second front, Stalin said the Germans had been able to break through the Russian lines when the initiative "because the absence of a second front in Europe enabled them to do it without risk to themselves."

Stalin said the Russians had won possession of a German document showing that the Nazi plans somewhere realized—was to take Stalingrad last July 25, the Dictator urged it. Kuibyshev September 15 and Baku September 30.

The main aim of the offensive was to finish the war this year by taking Baku, Stalin said.

"In their hunt for oil and for Moscow, the German strategists have got into difficulties," he said.

"Their summer plans appear to have failed.

"The main reason of German success this year is the absence of a second front.

"If they had been a second front in Europe drawing away 60 German divisions as during the First World War, the position of the German armies today would be bad indeed."

Roosevelt Says Victory in N. Africa Looks Like One of Major Importance

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP) — President Roosevelt analyzed the Allied campaign in North Africa today as having the appearance of a victory of major proportions.

He told a press conference he thought the United Nations had been pretty much heartened by what has been done in that area.

Speaking to a question, Mr. Roosevelt said only a small part of the equipment used in the campaign against Rommel's forces was of American origin.

Probably far less than half of the equipment came from the United States, he said, and this equipment, he went on, has been instrumental in the advance only to a limited degree.

He was asked whether, if the British 8th Army were taken as a level of perfection in achievement and training, the United States had anything to equal it.

We could only know and won't know, the president said, until we have had troops in action on a major scale. He said he was regarded as of major proportions.

The action there, the president declared, is on a limited scale on both sides because of difficulties in getting in men and materials.

But he said that the importance of an operation could not necessarily be gauged by its extent, since its importance might be much greater than its size.

FOTO-NITE OFFERS GO UNCLAIMED

Although four names were given selected the two Foto-Nite offers in the Marketing Service went unclaimed on Thursday evening. When the offers were still unclaimed after the last name was called Manager Vincent Spearman announced, the prizes would be awarded next week.

Mrs. R. E. Beeton of No. 5 Bridal Trail, Trenton, was called for the first offer of $10, and Mr. William Madyda of Frankford for the second offer of $50. When neither offer was claimed the call came.

For the past few years Jimmy had heard nothing from his parents and his letters had remained unanswered. The natural inference was that the elderly gentleman was dead.

The Consul also informed Mr. Corvadi that he could now communicate with his father through the offices of the Consulate in Canada.

ROUTE OF MARCH SLIGHTLY CHANGED

Using a slightly different route of march than had been customary in former parades, the entire personnel of the R. C. A. F. No. 5 Initial Training School paraded through the streets of the city in one of their regular fortnightly route marches on Thursday afternoon. Headed by Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, the training school personnel swung out through the station gates shortly after one-thirty and marched down Highland Ave., along Bridge Street to Charles. The parade then swung south to Dundas and along Dundas to Front and back to the station by way of Coleman Street and Dundas West.

GENERAL BROWN HERE NEXT WEEK

General Brown, officer commanding the Reserve Army of Canada, will be in Belleville next week, it was learned today. He will meet officers of the local reserve units and address them on subjects important to the reserve forces of Canada.

FRIENDS STILL CONFUSED

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 6 —(CP)— Many times policemen John Rider and Virgil Thompson were victims of mistaken identity — Rider being called Thompson and vice versa. Both had moustaches. So, to relieve the confusion Rider shaved up at headquarters minus his moustache. Half an hour later Thompson came in for duty; his nitrate adornment also was gone.

Feuding Families Appear in Court

A family feud which has been gathering momentum for the past several weeks finally flared into action on the streets of the village of Sulphide recently and resulted in four members of the Whitford family appearing before Austin Mayers, all of Sulphide, appearing in a Tweed police court yesterday.

Magistrate J. L. Lloyd imposed fines of ten dollars and costs on Millard Moore and Austin Mayers; three years suspended sentence and posture of a $100 bond, to keep the peace, and the court costs on Mrs. Bert Moore, wife of Millard; Frank Moore, three years suspended sentence and Walter Moore suspended sentence.

Three years ago members of both families engaged in a fight and the matter was brought before the police court yesterday.

Chief of Police Hayes of Tweed was notified. He had known of the trouble and had thought it would never itself out. However, he decided to take action and ordered summoned all the participants to court with the above results.

City Council Holds Committee Meeting

The City Comptroller, Harold Bateman and Chairman of Finance H. J. Clarke, will attend the meeting of the Municipal Purchasing Officers' Association to be held in Kingston on November 20th and 21th, it was decided at committee meeting of city council on Thursday evening. The action was short with very little business being transacted.

It was recommended that the account of Mr. Lloyd be paid in full providing his sign, recently ordered taken down and replaced on North Front Street, be turned over to the city. As an alternative, if Mr. Woods so wishes, he may retain the sign and the city will pay the remaining cost of material and labor, amounting to $10.

In the one other recommendation passed the city comptroller was authorized to secure any necessary work permit from the Employment and Claims Office and sufficient unemployment insurance stamps to properly protect temporary employee of Plainclothes Officer Fred Izard following several complaints regarding his actions.

SAFE AT NEWFOUNDLAND

Toronto, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Mrs. E. H. Williams of Toronto said today she had word her daughter, Mrs. Hubert W. Hunter, formerly of Aldershot, is safe in Newfoundland after being evacuated from torpedoed ship which was bringing her to Canada.

Accompanied by her small son, Mrs. Hunter is expected here this week-end. Her husband, Maj. Hunter went overseas to command an anti-aircraft unit of the British army. He is serving in India and until he returns, Mrs. Hunter will make her home here.

CROWN COMPANY TAKES OVERPLANT TO MAKE PLANES

Victory Aircraft Ltd., Will Be Headed by B. J. Bickell

PLANT EXPROPRIATED

Ottawa, Nov. 6—(CP)—Victory Aircraft Ltd., a Crown company controlled by C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, has taken over the former National Steel Car Aircraft plant at Malton, Ont., and will own and operate it henceforth, it was announced here yesterday.

The plant—expropriated by the Dominion Government—is engaged principally in manufacturing Lancaster bombers. It also makes assemblies and overhauls aircraft parts. The factory is regarded as one of the Dominion's most important producers of Lancasters.

National Steel Car held a production order for twin-engined Hamilton aircraft, but terminated last November, to the manufacture of the heavy, four-engined Lancasters, a type which is one of the most important in Canada's today's production schedule for 1943.

No Interruption

The announcement of the change in ownership said the plant's operations, "which are now well advanced", will be interrupted. National Steel Car Corporation, Limited, will be compensated either by agreement or under statutory procedure.

C. Scrutton, George E. Miles, Past President of Aeronautical Sales Inc., A.F.L., said the expropriation followed by less than a week the protest by employees to Ottawa officials against the "irresponsibility of the company's directors" in the resignation last week of Manager David Boyd.

Mr. Bickell, who is heavily interested in aviation, toured the Canadian northwest by air in 1935 with former Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, a close friend.

Assisted by Lord Beaverbrook

In July, 1940, he went to London to assist Lord Beaverbrook, then British Minister of Aircraft Production, and the British Airplane Supply Board in accelerating the production of aircraft. While there Mr. Bickell was associated with Vincent Bennett and Beverley Baxter, all four of them Canadians. He returned to Canada late last year.

Previously, the Dominion Government has in several instances assumed direct management of important war plants by placing government-appointed soldiers in charge without any interference in operations.

The departmental statement announcing expropriation of the National Steel Car plant said the step was taken to expedite operations and to facilitate the responsibility of interest and co-operation between the department, munitions and supply department, and the builders of the Lancaster bomber in Britain."

Given 3 Years On Serious Charge

Robert H. S. Weymark, of this city was sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in city police court here today after he had pleaded guilty to a serious charge indecent assault.

"You are a menace to the public, as your finger print record shows you have been convicted in this sort of thing for the past nine years. The courts can't permit one individual large to corrupt the morals of young boys, so I will have to send you where you will be away from any contact with those younger than yourself," commented His Worship as he imposed the three year term.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., introduced Weymark's record of convictions and described him as "a moral pervert." Weymark was apprehended by Plainclothes Officer Fred Izard following several complaints regarding his actions.

THE WAR TODAY

(By GLENN HARDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The three-power Axis alliance dedicated at Munich seems bent to the remaking of a new world ruled by force and fear, and the first subject, now for the first time to the stricken which gives Chancellor Hitler's arch as such a combination.

While Rommel's armies struggle westward across the Libyan and Egyptian desert under skies made more formidable by the might of Axis and Allied air forces, Tokyo and Rome are reviewing the military forces of their ties to Berlin.

Little doubt remains that the German Afrika Korps Army has brought us to one of the war's great, decisive battles. Adolf Hitler's radio days the turning point of the whole global struggle, comparable to those July days of 1918 when Foch hurled back the last great German drive and seized the offensive.

Britain's leaders, twice burned by previous moments of apparent triumph in Africa can be counted on to be twice shy about overstating the completeness and magnitude of the victory in Egypt. And they leave no doubt of their conviction that Rommel still has an army—that the elimination of the Axis from Egypt is in progress.

Today's sober British headquarters communique fully bears out the exultant announcement of victory which came yesterday from General Montgomery's headquarters and from the "high British officials" in London who doubtless speak with the highest authority and on the basis of the most complete information. Where previous bulletins have announced the continued advance of the 8th Army, today's report has the altered character of the battle with the intention of the 8th Army continued its pursuit of the enemy.

Then it noted that Rommel's mechanized forces apparently are abandoning their hapless Italian allies on the battlefield, where lack of transport leaves no choice but death or surrender. Italy, perhaps still hoping to achieve some of the objectives which have been denied her, gained him renown in Abyssinia, has sent her crack Littorio armored corps at any cost to its confederation.

But it must be lost on Rome, where the Egyptian defeat has been more formidable than a dozen defeats for Mussolini and his Roman Empire. The Italian people have little room for doubt that the Egyptian victory is nearly the greatest Axis campaign to rid the whole African continent of the Axis and restore domination of the Mediterranean to Britain and her allies. Then the soft underside of Hitler's Europe will be laid open to Allied attack; Sicily and Sardinia will lie at the mercy of a constantly-more powerful air force; Italy's communications and Italian homeland itself will be marked for constant bombing. To this is added the chill told the Italian people two years ago when Mussolini's plans met a dream of his imagination, Benito Mussolini will have brought ruin.

At this juncture Japan has summoned the Burmese premier Baw to conclave in Berlin. The announcement is to consider methods of more fruitful co-operation with the three-power alliance. Inevitably the entire question of the value to Japan of her German partnership will be under consideration.

Perhaps the outset there has been great doubt as to Japan's readiness to dovetail her strategy with that of her European partners. She is striving to create her own empire in the east. She is now fighting in Europe and Africa has been little help to her than an opportunity offered by her gods to grab what she can.

Obituary

LATE MR. HUBERT J. C. CARTER
(Formerly of Prince Edward) (Contributed)

The funeral of Dr. Norman J. C. Carter, who died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, took place at St. Rose's Funeral Home, 1141 Bloor Street West, Toronto, on Oct. 19. The service was conducted by the Rev. Father Hall, of St. Mary's Church, Trinity Square, and Bishop Ryan. Many of the pallbearers were from St. John Parish, Cabbagetown, Toronto. In addition the ancient Kontabis, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you" and "Love thy neighbor as thyself" were read in Aramaic, Hebrew and Greek.

The Rector paid tribute to Dr. Carter being a fine and true doctor to those of many races and creeds, bravely and, as a doctor and man of science; he did not believe in the power of God in himself, and the courage in him which was marvellous, and of willingness to leave the issue in God's hands.

The floral tributes were beautiful and many in number, showing the esteem in which the late doctor was held.

Interment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Toronto. The pall bearers were Drs. T. R. Armstrong, J. R. Appleton, Dr. Campbell, Dr. Longmore, V. Marnell, R. H. Carson.

FARMING RAISES ASSESSMENT

St. Louis, Nov. 6 —(AP)— Property owners near Sportsman's Park in St. Louis protested to the city assessments can lay part of the blame for them on Babe Ruth. The fact that the Cardinals won the world series, city officials say, drew added parking cars of baseball fans in their yards and thus raised the land for commercial purposes and made it more valuable.

UNUSUAL HUNTING

Truro, N.S., Nov. 5.—(CP)—Bill Bagnall of Truro shot two deer nearly a month apart and found them both the same day. A month ago he shot a buck in the right foreleg and trailed it for awhile, only to lose it. Last week, near the same spot, he found two bucks locked together by the horns. He killed both, the other with its right foreleg broken, had been dead a short time. Mr. Bagnall stated it is the same one he wounded.

PATROLMAN SHOOTS

New York, Nov. 6 (AP) — As persistent rumors that both investigated arrested strong fight early today, a man slumped out and cried, "Both of you are under arrest." The man wrestled about with a revolver in his hand, whereupon Rod, fired one shot, felling him. He was identified as patrolman Francis J. Brogley, 46, who was off duty at the time. He died in hospital.

Trenton Passes Loan Objective

Trenton, Special — Trenton's bombers are definitely in sight now with the quota to Canada's Third Victory Loan campaign overwhelmingly subscribed. Trenton was asked to subscribe $370,000 to get the bombers and has reached $400,000, sufficient to buy a bomber. At closing time on Thursday evening of the Victory Loan canvassers had brought in $134,450, or banks $62,000 and the employees of the various factories $58,250, making a total of $134,450.

Last week a small dinner party was held in the town by honor one of the departing guests and the huge sum of $1,300 was raised at it for the Victory Loan. On Wednesday night of this week at a banquet at Batawa, at which W. A. Fraser, M.P., was guest speaker, Trenton business men raised the sum of $35,000 and the objective well over the top.

Two other Toronto airmen received the D.F.C. They were PO. Clifford Pendleton Ingham, and Sgdn. Ldr. V. C. McAuley.

All Religious Bodies of City Will Co-operate in City-Wide Survey

Aim at Record of Religious Affiliations of All the Residents

IN LATE NOVEMBER

Another survey is being planned for the city of Belleville, but this time it is of a different nature.

All the religious bodies of the city are co-operating in a city-wide survey to check on church affiliations and to try to extend an invitation to non-churchgoers to attend somewhere—any church.

With many ministers in the city, who have not linked up with some church and these various religious events, who through one cause or another have failed to take advantages of the help a church can give especially in these days, it is hoped it is hoped that this effort as well as acquiring data, may stimulate increased interest in the church and that the church may be of greater help in the community.

It is proposed to have this survey towards the end of November. Each home in the city will be called on and certain information asked, as church affiliation or preference, number of children and sons, etc. The canvassers will be made up of representatives from all denominations, going out in teams of two of different affiliations. To head up the organization of this canvass one from each church is to be appointed to act on a committee. The following is who have been appointed:

Alliance Tabernacle — Robert Shannon; Anglican; Christ Church, Trinity, St. Mary Immaculate, E. Robinson; Baptist; Victoria Ave., Berr Crr; Front Street—Mrs. A. G. Hannah; Bible; Mrs. J. A. Watson; Emmanuel—(To be appointed); Jewish Tabernacle—I. Shapiro; Pentecostal (City Hall)—(To be appointed); Pentecostal Tabernacle—John Barker; Presbyterian—Miss S. V. Scott; Roman Catholic; Rev. Father Deacon O'Brien; Salvation Army—Geo. Wardell; Standard—Don Brown; United: Bridge Street—H. Trussdale; Holloway—A. Campbell; Tabernacle—A. D. Archibald.

OIL REFINERY FIRE IN U.S.

The fire, ABOVE, started by an explosion which killed one man, destroyed the Camache, Camache, Calif. oil refinery of the C. O. Field Gasoline Corp. Company officials said between 1,000 and 10,000 gallons of crude oil were burned. The plant was valued at over $50,000.

MEN AND MULES CARRY SUPPLIES

One of the major problems of the campaign against the Japs in New Guinea is the carriage of supplies to the forward area, especially the Kokoda area. Here the fighting is fiercest and the going most difficult. Jungle. Here native carriers are at a constant point lined up and setting off with their loads. Mule pack teams, which are run by the New Guinea Light Horse unit are also shown.

Whitehall Notebook

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 (CP) — Reforms in service conditions affecting all ranks were asked for by a deputation of 30 members of parliament associated with the army, navy and air force who went to see Sir John Anderson, Lord President of the Council, and Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal.

The deputation, led by Col. Victor Cazalet, chairman of the Serving Members' Committee, asked the government to increase the private soldier's pay by sixpence a day, to abolish payment "unfair deductions" in connection with service grants, to rectify grievances concerned with acting and temporary ranks, to grant special entitlement allowances when a soldier's wife is expecting a child.

The deputation was satisfied with the reception it received but it is believed unlikely that there will be any further all around increase in service pay for the present. Consideration in the immediate future is more likely to be directed to defusting differences.

The representatives, Sir Nairne Swanti Bhalendra of the Maharaja of Nawanagar, criticized Gandhi and other Congress leaders.

David Robertson, Streatham's M. P., has given 30 the dual task of looking after the interests of Peebles constituency, whose member, Capt. A. H. M. Ramsay, is detained under defence regulations. Enough is enough he said, after spending nearly £1,000 of his own money, none of which he could claim as income tax exemption.

Eyebrows were raised when Labor Minister Bevin came out with the startling statement that "Glasgow and the west of Scotland are getting redder every day." But the good news was appeased when it was explained that "red" was merely a departmental term.

In mapping out districts, the Ministry uses various colors to indicate the state of employment and the available supply of labor. A "red" district is one which absorbs all its own labor.

The man the white love, Pierse Creagh Loftus has returned to parliament after four months' absence because of illness. Conservative member for Lowestoft, Loftus missed only one sitting of the House from the outbreak of war until he was taken ill. Very many, members can rival that record.

Sir James Grigg is the most active war secretary that Britain has had since Lord Haldane, who set an all-time record while in army uniform when he was forming the Territorials in 1907. Recently, Sir James saw 34 different units in two days and army officers who covered the ground with him said he had to be in the peak of condition to do the job he did. Only those who have inspected a long string of units of varying kind know how strenuous a task it is.

Reginald Sorensen, outspoken Labor M. P., is frank .... to say the least. Speaking on a vote of thanks to India's representatives in the war cabinet who had addressed a private meeting of M. P's of all parties, he expressed the members' appreciation but stated that he disagreed with practically everything the Indians had said.

Lord Beaverbrook is reported to be preparing a new book to be entitled "The Years Between" and will run about 120,000 words and will deal frankly with persons and events from 1918 to the outbreak of war.

Austerity has come to the House of Commons which, like every other large building in Great Britain, was without central heating until Nov. 1. At one sitting the chamber was so cold that Stafford Cripps and, in his overcoat with the purple Randolph Churchill to ask: "Is it in keeping with the austerity plan of this House that the Lord Privy Seal should wear an overcoat on the front bench?"

Sir Stafford joined in the laughter when the Deputy Chairman of Committees, Col. Clifton Brown, replied: "He is entitled ... to wear anything he likes, and I propose to do so from my other bench. Better that you should wear something that nothing."

Sir Walter Monckton, former Director-General of the Ministry of Information, has returned to private practice at the Bar after serving which took him east to Cairo and west to Canada and the United States in the last two years. He is out of the limelight. Sir Walter plans to join the home guard as a private.

Two hundred and fifty thousand tons of iron ore, which used to be shipped from Spain to Britain, has been mined down for iron and steel production. Next year 1,000,000 tons are still lying on the scrap heaps. Ilhan Pitalis, Parliamentary Secretary, Sir Andrew Duncan, Supply Minister, said the dumps are constantly being called on.

Sir Richard Acland's decision to sit in parliament as an independent member has been upheld by the executive of the north west Devon Liberal party. Elected as a Liberal, the commonwealth movement leader indicated he would be willing to face a by-election in his constituency if there was opposition to his becoming an independent.

Well, if he says so....

Lord Maugham, taking part in a debate about the legal right to search "an Englishman's home," recalled how he once called at a house where no legal basis could be established.

Owners of a certain estate could not be legally settled and the occupant pleaded that this was the property were being invaded by intruders. The former Lord Chancellor related how he advised the occupant to put a warning to keep out—by order."

"By what order," was the question.

"My order," replied His Lordship. "And if anybody wants to know, tell him that."

Today had to be told.

Community Shower At Cherry Valley For Newlyweds

Picton — One of the largest community showers to be held in Cherry Valley hall was that on Tuesday night, given in honor of Ralph Dodds and bride, Evelyn Brumpell. A capacity crowd gathered to pay tribute to the popular young couple. The platform was decorated in pink with the decorated chairs being placed beneath a canopy of streamers, and evergreen and red berries adding a note of color.

Mr. Leslie Hagerty presided as chairman and gave a fitting address. Community singing led by Mrs. A. A. Beckwith with Mrs. A. H. Foster-Gal, the pianist. Readings were given by Mrs. Jack Beaumont, Mrs. Kenneth Stapley and Mrs. Beckwith; Miss Jean Bell sang "Until" with Mrs. G. Bell at the piano; K. Stapley gave banjo solos with Mrs. Foster accompanying; Harvey Steenburgh entertained with songs, playing his accompaniment on the guitar. A group from the audience took part in a singing contest.

As Mr. and Mrs. Dodds were called to the platform, Mrs. Foster played the bridal chorus. The bascake, filled ten times with lovely gifts, was carried in by Margery Dulmage and Bobby McNally. The conveners of the shower, Mrs. L. Pennemore, Mrs. Malcolm Dulmage and Mrs. Ruby Wallace, assisted in opening and displaying the gifts. Mrs. Pennemore read an address of good wishes from the bride and groom thanked all for their kind remembrance and invited them to their home. "For they are jolly good fellows" and the National Anthem brought this pleasant evening to a close.

Be Nice To Nice Skunks

(By Louise Dickinson Rich, in the Atlantic Monthly)

Skunks are a horribly maligned animal. Everyone shuns them. Everyone accuses them, and without ascertaining the facts, or various crimes, such as hen killing and egg sucking. Actually they don't do so much damage; on the contrary, they are the natural enemies of vermin of all sorts and so among man's best friends in the country. They are constantly gentle and easily famed. A skunk will never attack unless he is sure his person is in danger, or unless he is startled. I wish more people would bother to be nice to skunks. We've been, and it paid. Rollo, in spite of being spoiled, made a perfect house pet while he was with us.

We never made an effort to confine him, but he seldom left our cover. He was always free to come and go as he pleased. We even untacked a corner of the screen in the kitchen door so that he could get in and out at will. As he grew older, he began to revert to nature and the wild nature in him got surgical. He slept more days, and roamed about nights. When we went out to the woodshed in the early, dewy morning to get kindling to start the breakfast fire, we often met him coming home from a night's ramble. Then for a while he would not come home for two or three days at a time, and finally he didn't come back at all. We'd meet him sometimes a mile down from the Camp road, and he'd run up to us and we'd pick him up. He never forgot us and we never forgot him. We just grew apart, as those whose interests diverge often do. Finally we stopped seeing him altogether.

I don't know what eventually did happen to him—whether he was shot, poisoned, or killed in a car with an accident. Very few wild animals die of old age. One thing we were glad of then: That is when he did meet with death in any of the common evil-wilderness forms at least he was able to go down fighting. We hadn't rendered him defenceless.

British Girls Make Cannon

(From The Manchester Guardian)

Women compose more than 50 per cent of the personnel of one of England's factories at which the new air pounder tank and anti-tank gun and the 25 pounder gun are being made. In the machine shops, where the gun takes shape out of the solid steel, the proportion of women workers is 60 per cent. Some are volunteers, some have been directed in their respective age groups to factory work. Very few had any previous mechanical experience.

Training, because of the shortage of staff, has been largely a matter of putting the new girls straight onto their machines. After three to six weeks they can mind their own machines. Men setters and checkers are near but the women do considerable spiltside and skill.

I watched one girl working on the delicate machine which cuts the thread in the breech end of the gun—one of the most highly skilled jobs in the shop. She used to work a machine in a clothing factory. The assistant production manager, who has been an engineer since he was 17, said: "As a skilled mechanic I though I was doing fine when they put me on a job like that before the war. I used to say that women could not be trusted with any sort of work, but they're working here to thousandths of an inch on jobs which would ruin the whole gun barrel if they weren't dead accurate."

The girls' working on the similar thread of the breach ring is 22 and once operated the telephone switchboard at a London hospital.

The overhead cranes are driven by women, who, along with all the girls, look trim in blue trousered overalls and blue peaked caps.

Most of the foremen had their have women assistants responsible for discipline and administration. (Welfare work is perhaps barely adequate because of the shortage of trained welfare workers, but the girls seem content). The girls do a six day week"averaging about 51 hours, alternating between day and night shifts; their average earnings are 4 pounds 10 shillings ($18) a week.

Feeding of Turkeys For Market

(Experimental Farms News)

With an urgent demand for meat and poultry products for Britain's big domestic market, preparing turkeys for market this autumn merits special attention. With an unlimited supply of feed available every market turkey should be put in prime condition before being killed, says A. G. Taylor, who has charge of turkey raising at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how turkeys should be fattened for market, he says, because of their personality. What is required in a good market turkey is plenty of meat with just enough fat to have the meat cook properly.

To accomplish this turkeys intended for market should be well fed throughout the growing period and particularly during the few weeks prior to marketing. Feeding with nourishing feeds for several weeks before marketing time should not deny an abundance of fleshing and produce sufficient fat to put the birds in the top market grade.

The common error is to allow the turkeys to seek their feed from range conditions until about three weeks before the marketing day and then to feed heavily for the remaining period. Birds which have been reared on range should not be confined to pens of houses during the conditioning period. If the birds are well fed they will not range far and will take just sufficient exercise for good digestion. Turkeys are fairly hardy and if given protection from winds and inclement weather will fatten well even in cold temperatures.

Two good meals each day is all they will take, unless they are under-fleshed, until the weather gets real cold then they should be fed three times daily until killing time.

Start feeding just what the turkeys will eat each time before growing to roost. Where home grown feeds are being used feed mash in the morning and mixed grain in the evening. A good mash can be made from parts of equal parts ground oats, barley meal, and ground wheat. Ground buckwheat is also good and can be used instead of barley—meal if necessary. It is well to add about 10 per cent beef meal and about 2 per cent ground charcoal to this mixture. The ground grains should be thoroughly mixed before feeding. This mash can be fed either dry in hoppers or moistened and fed in V shaped troughs. It is well to moisten the mash at least one hour before feeding time so that it may become swollen before being eaten by the turkeys. To moisten the mash use sour skim milk or water. Make the mash just moist enough that it will be thoroughly soaked but not sloppy. Grains not eaten should be removed from the troughs when the turkeys have satisfied themselves.

Water, grit and shell should be before the birds at all times.

British Victory in Egypt

Good news from the Egyptian theatre of war in the brilliant victory of the British army and the "busting" of Marshal Rommel's North African force has been a fine tonic to the United Nations. It proves the surge of increasing Allied power and the British army's stout spirit.

The marked success of this British achievement throws into high light the events of the past year wherein Britain and her Allies held their own though they were greatly at a disadvantage for a long time. When thought reverts to the Battle of Britain in 1940 and to the course of manoeuvres in the Mediterranean area, it is realised that the men of those past days who held back the foe performed almost superhuman deeds for they lacked not only superiority but equality in numbers of arms and men, though they always had the superiority in spirit as the achievements of the first two and a half years or more of war show. Today the sweep of United Nations' effort in production of war supplies and in formation of armies is being shown but it has not yet reached the peak.

This serves to mind the words once spoken by Mr. Churchill. "Given equal weapons, we can beat the life out of the enemy." Today there is the evidence of the development of weapons and of superiority of numbers of weapons just as there is the superiority of spirit among the United Nations.

The success has been most cheering and it may assume the proportions of a victory that will be the turning point of the war was the sage remark of that gallant soldier and statesman, Marshal Smuts, prime minister of South Africa. His Majesty the King has called the week's battle in Egypt a brilliant victory. Optimism spread throughout the United Governments and especially of those Governments in exile of the European countries now under Hitler's tyranny. There can be no doubt that all through Europe, suffering and bleeding from the savage blows by the brutal enemy, the news has spread, which no Gestapo can prevent reaching every strata of society in Europe. Russia must feel the inspiration of this development.

There must be anxiety in Germany and the land of Mussolini and in Japan which too have felt the growing might of Britain and Allied power. The United Nations see it in handwriting on the wall that the Germans and their fellow-conspirators of the Axis are losing their punch and power and that they have established a great defeat by this week's British success in Egypt.

How great it has been is shown by the comment of a British source, that the German army in Egypt is "busted," and that the British have Rommel where they want him.

The smashing of Rommel's army will have not only great implications in North Africa but will mean other offensives for the relief of the Russians who have fought so heroically and have performed deeds which will never die.

There has been much talk of a "second front," which was generally understood as a western front. Now the Egyptian campaign has been a "front" and there are other fronts and there will be other fronts and offensives. These fronts are piling up and will pile up as the weight of United Nations' strength grows week by week and month by month as Hitler's effort with Italy's and Japan's proves inevitably unequal to meet the mounting Allied offensive.

This has been a year when the war is taken out of the Allied Nations can through their united efforts continued to the end see the form of the victory that will be.

The Navy

The British Home Secretary showed in an address the other day that the Navy's work is the regular patrol of 80,000 square miles of trade routes, the guarding of between two and three thousand British and Allied merchant ships and sweeping the sea lanes clear of mines and the bringing safe to port of 199 out of every 200 ships.

The Navy has been effective in bringing needed raw materials to Britain which have been used to build up war production ever higher.

"WHAT IS SO RARE . . ."

The ideal wife, says the office bach, who must have read it somewhere, manages to look beautiful and smart on the money her husband gives her. She lets him take the morning newspaper to the office. If he enjoys a cigar she says he is entitled to spend a dollar a day for them. It's HIS money, isn't it?

She packs his bag when he leaves on a trip. When he returns, she is satisfied with a casual account of what happened. She thinks it's good for both of them that he should go on hunting and fishing trips twice a year. Business demands that he should stay down town two nights a week for dinner. And that blonde hair on his shoulder was blown there by a fickle wind when he was driving in a touring car of a friend in Chicago.

She has the knack of attracting men, but she doesn't work at it. She is a good sport in any party. She plays a fine hand of bridge and is a satisfactory golfer. She gets along well with servants. She never talks about the neighbors, nor envies other women what they have or wear.

Even though he never mentions it, she knows her husband loves her and therefore is happy. The flattery of other men makes no impression on her. She is a one-man woman, you know.

She never makes any cracks about her husband's sporta hills. She picks up the good results but the "dirt" she lets lie. She has never complained of a headache in her life.

It never occurs to her that she is an individual.

You see, she's ideal — not real.

IT MAY COME TO THIS

We've lost the cuffs of our pants, and our shirts might follow. Our sugar, coffee, and tea have been rationed. And we're paying unemployment insurance. The giggle-water has been cut down to one container per day, and we're paying high taxes. A lot of us are complaining about conditions. Soon we'll have no gasoline and probably no cars. But we have a long way to go yet as compared to the British people in the last war if what an oldtimer tells us is true. He puts it this way:

"My Tuesdays are meatless
My Wednesdays are wheatless,
I am getting more eatless each day;
My home it is heatless,
My bed it is sheetless,
They've been sent to the Y.M.C.A.
The bar-rooms are treatless,
My coffee is sweetless
Each day I grow poorer and lower,
My stockings are feetless
My trousers are seatless
Ye Gods, I could murder that Kaiser."

FEAST IS DEHYDRATED

All the foods were dehydrated at a test lunch held in London and all agreed that it was a success. Most of the guests who sat down to a meal prepared by experts pronounced it a success. Here is how one of the guests rated the various foods served: Fruits should look and taste like any good mashed potatoes should taste. Carrots—good color and flavor. A little tough. Minced beef—excellent flavor, attractive appearance, slightly tough. Potatoes—good taste of its flavor, but color attractive. Fish cakes—made of cod, mashed potatoes and parsley. Excellent. The guests took away as souvenir a block of Irish stew for three that was no larger than a powder compact.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

The mother and daughter were very busy with the wedding plans when the bridegroom-to-be called. He watched the preparations rather impatiently for a while, until his future wife noticed a look of annoyance.

"Darling, we have such a lot to do," she scolded. "If you want to make our wedding a big success we mustn't forget the most insignificant detail!"

"Oh, don't worry about that," murmured the young man. "I'll be there all right!"

JIMMY HOSEGOOD

The war to us seemed distant until Jimmy Hosegood died.
Reported "died in action" and we knew him oh so well
Our golf club locker servant who had heard his country call—
A blithe and gallant spirit in a body rather small.
A bombey'r rear gunner — and he died, for you and me,
In a crowded rubber raft on the far Pacific sea.

If we though the war was foreign Jimmy Hosegood brought it home,
They're not strangers who are dying from New Zealand up to Nome!
When the Japs hit Honolulu Jimmy Hosegood braved their blows,
Fought the Coral Sea engagement from beginning to the close.
They shot him down at Midway, but he rose to fight once more,
Jimmy Hosegood who came smiling to unlock my locker door.

Where the bulletins are posted there's a message sad today,
"They picked up Jimmy Hosegood, he's reported miles away"
Dead from gunfire and exposure seven days upon the sea!
And the little wag we had boasted such a thing could never be.
War had merely seemed a pastime which he went we'd discuss,
But the gallant Jimmy Hosegood died to bring it home to us.

BRITISH DEFENCE LIGHTS THE SKY AGAINST THE AXIS

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Elections

New York, Nov. 6—There are two aspects to the recent elections. The first concerns the reasons why they went as they did; the second concerns the results.

The first is easier to analyse and than the second. By and large, when the people of the United States want a "tough" Government they elect Republicans. When they feel humanitarian and "tender" they vote Democratic. We are at war, and we feel tough.

Also, there is a popular tendency to believe that the Republicans are the more efficient part of our set-up. There is no thinking the fact that the United States people are the ones responsible for the conduct of the war. And although the vote was light, and no issues were really clarified, the conduct of the war was the latent issue.

The Roosevelt policy: to compromise, postpone decisions, put up one agency against another, run the war by an immense improvised and ramshackle machinery, is unpopular. The vote was a protest against this state of affairs. Nevertheless the vote was an affirmation. For there was no real fear of political foul play in which to vote. The line of the people was: "It can't go on like this. We must have improved"

Some of the voting was provincial. Hamilton Fish was re-elected, not because of his previous record in Congress, but rather, since most of his constituents once shared his isolationism, and nevertheless with victory, because of a certain sense of fairness, of satisfaction with his previous services to the country, and of confidence in forgive him, as they forgive themselves.

Even the combination of Roosevelt, Wilkie and Dewey against Fish produced no effect. The United States communities dislike interference from outside their affairs." They have a special kind of isolationism of their own.

Almost a Default.

In New York State the absence of a Republican candidate against Dewey almost gave him the election. Only a last minute Democratic candidate was Mr. Farley's machine-made yet, and a Republican-Democratic candidate simply split the Democratic vote. Altogether, this election was a fiasco for Democrats. Dewey seen.

The consequences, however, involve a much larger political view. The reactionary Republicans in Congress. He has a clear majority in the Senate, and a very small majority in the House. It is a situation where a very small margin of anti-Roosevelt Democrats reverses the vote. If the anti-Roosevelt feeling, and if he is able to achieve major successes in the war in the coming year, he can turn the tide. But if he does not, the outlook in 1944 for the Democratic party is very bad.

If Dewey Leads—What?

Now, this is not merely an internal affair—and this is the crux of the matter. If the war is prolonged until after 1944, the coming Administration will have to make the peace.

There never has been any real certainty what kind of peace a victorious Roosevelt Administration would make. But the peace would not be an American First peace, but an international peace. If the Republican leader really were Mr. Wilkie, one might expect the same spirit at the peace conference. But it looks as if Mr. Dewey might be the Republican leader. And on the foreign record of Mr. Dewey is an extremely dark horse with neither background nor experience.

This lack of certainty affects the politics and plans of other countries. If there should be indications in this country of the emergence of a new Isolationism, or a new American Imperialism—which is just as likely and arises out of the same spirit of rampant nationalism—then the politics of Britain, Russia and China would be affected.

This question is not answered by a unanimous declaration that we all, Republicans and Democrats alike, want victory. What kind of victory? A victory that is to be built on the foundations of a new world power, with the United States the primary factor? A victory with the United States calling the tune and then withdrawing from responsibility? A victory aimed against Russia? Or a compromise victory, leading to a new and mutual world organization, with liberty and justice for all?

Pertinent Questions

These are not questions which only we must ask ourselves. They are questions which all our allies are asking themselves this very morning and will continue to ask for months past.

They are not answered by the vote, for the very act has not asked the question. They arise as a result of the vote. They are not answered either, by the change in personalities, for there is as yet no definite Republican policy on these questions.

So, in the face of this change, we need clarification. We need more vigorous leadership and more efficient administration from the President; and we need a definition of policy and political responsibility from foreign affairs from the now powerful Republican opposition. If on matters of foreign political policy, we can achieve unanimity between the parties, then the change can be all to the good. If we do not, the unfolding results of this election can be serious for the war of coalitions.

And this will be a difficult political problem of our times.

OUR MUTUAL FRIEND

Seventy-eight years ago Charles Dickens began to write "Our Mutual Friend," the last novel which he gave the title "Our Mutual Friend."

"Our Mutual Friend" was printed serially in 19 monthly installments between the years 1864 and 1865.

Many of the critics of the time accused the great novelist of having given his story the wrong title.

They, they declared, no such phrase in English as "our mutual friend."

"Our mutual friend," according to the critics, means "our reciprocal friend," and "our reciprocal friend" is meaningless. They insisted that the correct phrase to describe a person known to two or more other persons is "common friend."

Macaulay said: "Mutual friend is a low vulgarism for common friend."

Yet, despite the purists, nearly all normal persons acknowledge that "Our Mutual Friend" is a better title for the book than "Our Common Friend" would have been.

Most of us naturally shrink from calling anybody "our common friend" for fear that we may be misunderstood.

Because of these cases where a phrase, incorrect in its inception, is more clear, convincing and expressive than the correct phrase is, everybody uses the phrase "our mutual friend" will find himself in the company of many of our best writers and speakers of the English language. The fact is that "our mutual friend" has established itself in the language of the common people and before Dickens adopted it as the title for his tale, Thackeray belonged to the kind of people who have "mutual friends" and who understand the meaning of the words "mutual" and "friend."

Dickens' "Our Mutual Friend." O. K. Chesterton once declared that no universal genius would have written the title; no university man could have written the book."

In the story the phrase comes only a few times and is applied casually to two persons, one of them the mysterious hero, John Harmon, alias Julius Handford, alias Rokesmith.

"Our Mutual Friend," though not one of Dickens's best, is still good reading.

Germans Relent

"In one sector," it said, "about half a regiment of infantry, supported by tanks, launched an attack on our strong points. Soviet troops met the enemy with artillery and mortar fire and, after losing 300 officers and men killed, the Germans retreated to their jumping-off positions".

Progress was reported in the Russian counter-drive from Tuapse and the communique said 300 more German invaders had been wiped out and prisoners and war material captured. Soviet German losses were said to have been shot down by anti-aircraft gunners in the area.

Action Heavy in North

Action somewhat heavier than usual was indicated far to the north on the Leningrad front.

"Our snipers in three days killed 320 officers and men", the communique said. "Our artillery fire destroyed 26 dugouts and 17-enemy blockhouses."

About 200 enemy officers and men were reported killed northwest of Stalingrad, boosting German losses already estimated to include more than 10,000 killed and 400 tanks and 1,000 planes destroyed in the 76-day struggle for the city.

The estimate was contained in a message to Premier Stalin from the garrison, which has been fighting almost without interruption since a five-day lull was broken by a re-grouping of enemy armies last month.

A German garrison of sixty men was reported wiped out on a farm east of Novorossisk by encircling Soviet troops. Nazi machine-guns and ammunition were among the loot.

Marines are pressing their attack on these enemy troops, added the communique.

On another South Pacific war front, west of the Solomons, Australians invasion forces were continuing to fall back from Buna Gona under steady pressure of an Allied drive.

Allied Headquarters in Australia said today (South Pacific time) that the ill-fated enemy attempt which, late in September had advanced to within 23 airline miles of the Allied Port Moresby naval base, had been pushed back well beyond the half-way point at Kokoda, about 28 miles inland.

Advance Toward Buna

While bitter fighting was indicated, the Australians and the Allied troops were advancing slowly toward the port of Buna and its naval base at Buna.

Allied bombers also struck for the second successive day at enemy-occupied Rabaul, in Solomons and Alfy in Portuguese Timor, northwest of Australia, and at the Japanese base at Koepang, on Timor, base at Salamaua, The Jos's Buin-Faisi area, in the Solomons also was bombed again last night.

The navy said United States warships shelled Japanese positions on the north coast of Guadalcanal near Kokumbona the night of Nov. 3-4.

Army aircraft also continued to blast Japanese shipping and supply dumps in the same area without opposition. No enemy air either for aerial or naval attacks were detailed.

12,000 Prisoners Taken

Official British Headquarters in Cairo announced that 12,000 and the number was growing hourly.

Among the captives taken yesterday was Lieut.-General Ritter von Thoma, the commander of the Italians' ruined Twenty division and his chief of staff.

(The Press Association in London identified the Italian as Gen. Francisco Scotti.)

The British said that a large number of Italians apparently abandoned by fleeing German mechanized formations in the southern sector of the battlefield were being rounded up.

Thirty-two Italian and 30 German tanks were reported destroyed yesterday bringing the total knocked out to 330.

Allied submarines co-operating with the Allied air forces in attacking Rommel's supply convoys have been credited with sinking six more ships, bringing the total to 17, others in the Mediterranean.

Axis Air Force Driven From Skies

The Axis air forces appeared to have been about driven from the battle area by the R.A.F. yesterday that the troops were free from bombing attacks while British warplanes hammered at the enemy almost unopposed.

The German fighters which tried to intercept Allied planes were shot down in numbers by the British and communications aircraft. Allied losses were light, the R.A.F. said.

As the 8th Army pursued its advance northward, the Australian 9th battle area limited heretofore to the 40-mile front between the Mediterranean and Qattara Depression widened steadily.

(A Reuters news agency dispatch from Cairo said the Australian front had doubled in length — a statement which indicates that fighting is now raging at Fuka.)

Although some Axis forces were reported yesterday to be holding out in isolated spots on the southern end of the battle front, Gen. Montgomery said they would quickly be "put in the bag."

He called upon his armoured formations to follow the enemy relentlessly, hounding at the retreating enemy with unremitting fury and giving him no chance for construction. "The enemy is in our power and he is just a wounded animal," he declared in his order of the day.

Reports from the battlefront indicated that tanks and armored cars were carrying out the commander's instructions to the letter, ably supported by allied airmen in-flaming the skies.

2,000 Canadian Airmen in Show

Canadian airmen are also seen, including one complete R. C. A. F. fighter squadron and two bomber squadrons, Many Canadians are serving in R. A. F. units.

Allied bombers, operating in endless relays, struck at the enemy's forces from dawn to dusk yesterday, paying special attention to the coastal road which is the enemy's main avenue of retreat.

Retreating troops reported breaches alongside this highway crowded with Axis traffic and said that the name of Field Rommel is using them as dispersal zones in an attempt to keep their transport from the bomb-pitted road.

Allied aircraft observed many hags fires burning along the line of the Axis retreat and it appeared that the enemy was short of supply dumps.

Little or no opposition was encountered by the fliers, though one fighter-bomber squadron ran into the formidable German Messerschmitts and shot down four of the enemy machines.

In addition to attacking targets on the immediate battle area a mile-ed forces of United Nations bombers swept across the Mediterranean Wednesday night to bomb the Axis airdromes at Malema, Crete.

Enemy motor torpedo boats also were attacked off the North Africa coast between Tuba and Derna. Dabs by Allied naval planes assigned to the task of keeping munitions from reaching Field Marshal Rommel.

Later dispatches from the front indicate the Allied Mediterranean patrols are keeping their work as well the Axis armored forces are beginning to feel an acute fuel shortage.

Reuters dispatch from Cairo said that not a single Axis tanker has reached Libya since the last six weeks.)

Gen. Montgomery paid high tribute to the operations of the Australian troops in which they had played a major role in breaking the enemy's morale.

The also praised infantry and artillery units of the 8th army, which, he said, were responsible for the initial "break-through."

He added, however, that victory had been achieved only by the fullest co-operation of both land and air forces, saying they had worked as one throughout the campaign.

JOKESTER ANSWERS AD

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 6 — (AP) — E. D. Hanson received this answer to his ad for a painter and paperhanger: "Gentlemen: I wish to apply for a job as a paperhanger. Am hunting bears at present, but am about out of ammunition. Anyway, I am a better paperhanger than I am a bear hunter—Adolf Hitler, P.S.—Please rush answer as the job I'm playing out and may have to move soon."

Men of the United States Marine Corps take a field gun position on the fighting front on Guadalcanal Island. The emplacement is complete with camouflaged sandbags as captured from the Japs and immediately turned against the former owners.

Tokyo Echoes Berlin In Prisoner Reprisals

New York, Nov. 6 — (AP) — The Berlin radio said today that Germany announced in Tokyo that Japan would impose "reprisals against British prisoners of war in Japanese hands in case the British government does not change its attitude" toward German captives.

The announcement, attributed by the German broadcast to the Japanese foreign office, was quoted as saying "The Japanese Government has noted with grave concern the inhuman treatment of German prisoners of war and the intention of the British to extend this treatment to Italian prisoners of war."

Presumably the Japanese were talking about the recent Nazi chaining and British-Canadian reprisal chaining of prisoners, all of which was started by the Germans, who charged that Field Marshal Paulus captured during the Dieppe raid were bound.

The Japanese radio revived allegations of bad treatment of Japanese Nationals in Canada and the United States, stating protests had been made with the two governments and asserting Japan's treatment of war prisoners and civilian internees had been fair.

RUSS HOME FRONT

The German's aim in the southwestern drive is to divert the main British forces from the west to attack Moscow from the south, Stalin said.

German Army's Weaknesses

The Red army has shown that the German army has its weaknesses, he said.

"The German," he added, "are not strong enough to attack the southwest and north at the same time, as they did last summer, but are still strong enough to launch a serious attack in one direction."

Stalin spoke of the war on the war, out of 220 German divisions then existing there were 86 on the Russian front.

"Now, however, this year, out of 256 divisions, 176 are on our front," he said.

Will Be Second Front

"To this can be added 23 Rumanian, 14 Finnish, 10 Italian, 12 Hungarian, one Spanish and another division and a half Slovak, making altogether on our front against the British but only four German divisions and one Italian division that is all.

"We have more than 3,000,000 men arrayed against us.

"I think that every country or country could stand up to such an onslaught."

Replying to the rhetorical question "will there be a second front?" Stalin said:

"Yes there will be one sooner or later because it is to be assumed that our Allies than for our country."

"We understand and understand that with France fallen the absence of a second front can mean catastrophe for them."

Contrasting Axis and United Nations policies, Stalin said the nature of the enemy home front:—

"The moral and political reserves of the Germans in Europe are being exhausted. The peoples are rising. Enslaved nations are raising against their turn to take revenge on their oppressors.

"They know this German-Italian coalition is failing to placed the basis for assistance on assistance from the democratic coalition.

"The moral and political reserves of that coalition are growing from day to day."

Russia's task has been grave, especially in transport, he said, but the U.S.S.R. has "been able to build new factories and supply the Red Army "accurately and honestly" with tanks, planes and guns and to furnish it with food.

As a result, he said, there has been an increase in the sense of duty and the discipline of the Russian people.

Of the military situation, the Soviet premier said operations could be divided into two parts: "First, the period when the Red Army had really to fight, when it was being attacked and passed to the offensive.

"Second, the period when the German fascists, using the absence of a second front, have been sold to the West Indies Trading Company Secretary out of Halifax, was announced today by Donald McKay, president of the firm which handled the sale.

KINGSTON PASSES QUOTA

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 6 —(CP)— Officials of the Third Victory Loan campaign announced this morning that Kingston passed its objective by 17 per cent. chalking up contributions of $3,518,000. Its quota was $3,000,000, and workers in the drive expressed confidence in the city reaching the $4,000,000 mark.

POLICE COURT

James Cooney, Trenton, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in city police court here today charged on three counts of purse snatching. When arraigned by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, Mr. Cooney pleaded guilty to the legal counsel and the cases were enlarged for one week, Cooney being remanded in the meantime in charge with an associate on Hallowe'en following the theft of a purse, also being in Belleville.

In Belleville, Belleville, was sentenced to serve six months in the Reformatory after being convicted of theft of $5 and a charge of intoxication within the calendar year. There was no option of fine as the jail term automatically followed the fine. He was given his victim under the L.C.A. in one year.

A local young man was fined $5 and costs after being convicted of operating car refusing to stand military parades at the Belleville Armouries. He tried to enlist in the active service at Kingston and was rejected in my medical and given "C" category. "I'll give you 10 hours a day at war work," explained the accused man.

"You belong to this unit and will have to parade. You see, you do not make the laws," commented His Worship. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., introduced evidence to show the youth had been warned to attend a parade on Oct. 29th. Military officials from the 21st Light Infantry were present on behalf of the militia.

A juvenile case, held in camera, resulted in a teen-aged boy admitting breaking, entering and the theft of cash from Clarke's service station at the intersection of Bridge and Dundas Sts. The boy was placed on probation.

Belleville Collegiate Plays Important Part in Training Of Men, Women for Industry

Representative of the important place which the Belleville Collegiate is taking in training men and women take their place in Canada's industrial war effort, is the fact that since the inception of the Dominion-Provincial War Emergency training scheme here little more than two years ago, more than 3,000 persons have graduated from the local institution.

Of this number 2,000 have been full-time students and three months is the average time spent in the shops and classes, in welding or other phases of industrial work, while the remainder were part-time students, who sought to acquire a vocational training during their spare time.

Total registration in the vocational classes operated by the Dominion-Provincial War Emergency training scheme is now approximately 700, with about half being airmen and airwomen from far flung parts of the country receiving training, while off duty. These girls and boys are now stationed at Trenton and at Mountain View.

Many Courses Taken

Training courses taken by the members of the airmen include typing and business practices, draughting, machine shop practice and welding. They come to the College for four hours a week, their classes being alternated for different nights. The training is purely vocational in the way connected with duties at their respective air stations. Classes were arranged through the educational officer in the two air stations.

Although the part time training of R.C.A.F. personnel at the Belleville Collegiate is considerable, training of boys and girls, men and women to take their places in civilian capacity in wartime industry is still the primary objective, it was stated by Harold Howard, director of the training courses.

Sponsored classes from various local industries take full-time for part time vocational instruction, the classes in some instances being made up of factory workers taking special training in relative factory work. Other sponsored classes will be taken into industry on the completion of courses.

15 Part Time Classes

Local industries sponsoring full time classes at the Collegiate at the present time are the British Aluminium Co. and Trod Company Ltd. Besides the full time classes their are part time classes in specific lines including that of the local unit of the Canadian Legion Educational Service. There is a special course in motor mechanics.

According to Mr. Bill Davies, motor mechanics instructor, it is not the intention to train them as mechanics of the girls belonging to the local auxiliary women's army unit, but to give them elementary training in the care and operation of motor vehicles.

"When the girls complete their course they will then be capable of finding out for themselves what the matter is when their automobile or truck refuses to go," stated Mr. Davies. "We endeavor to train them to put in a new sale or clutch following a breakdown, but if they are in doubt on the road, they will be able to determine the trouble and perform garage mechanics accordingly."

30 Girls in Class

About 20 of the girls turn up regularly for the classes in motor mechanics and the fact that their hands are smeared with a liberal coating of grease is evidence of their enthusiasm. On Thursday afternoon last they were at their work dismantling a motor preparatory to cleaning, repairing, adjusting and ring fitting job. Others were checking clearances on crankshaft bearings and engine blocks.

Included on the regular Dominion-Provincial War Emergency courses are five full-time vocational instructors, directed by the principal of the collegiate. For the part time classes ten of the day school teachers of the Belleville Collegiate are employed during the evenings.

War-Swollen City Faces Meatless Days

Portland, Ore., Nov. 6 — (AP) — Portland today faced the prospect of meatless days — not once a week but for the rest of the year.

Whatever the cause — a dispute rages on that point — only about one week's supply of meat remains under office of price administration quotas for November and December.

Governor Charles A Sprague wired a protest to agriculture secretary Claude Wickard and also asked Senator Charles A. McNary to put pressure in Washington to relieve the shortage.

Meanwhile, Portland's thousands — almost 300,000 more than before peacetime and many of them shipyard laborers — looked on dazed while the controversy over what caused the shortages grew white hot.

Richard Rutherford, Oregon C. P. A. director, blamed the packers. He said they paid little or no attention to the O. P. A. quotas, overbought ahead and butchered the rest of the year's allotted supply.

Quotas Inadequate

The packers said the O. P. A. quotas were ridiculously inadequate for the civilian demand, and charged that they couldn't operate on a part-time basis anyway.

O. P. A. officials, they contended, meant handling an insufficient volume of meat which would prevent running their plants day in and day out. As soon as they shut down, they said, they lose their skilled help, their gas and their steam.

So all the small packers got together and decided to close down — close down — for good — Nov. 13, which would leave only the big Swift and Armour plants operating. But they hastened to add that they really didn't intend to shut — it was merely big talk to force the O.P.A. to boost the quotas.

Rutherford considered if they really did mean it and didn't know it.

Russians Celebrate Twenty-Five Years Of Bolshevism

(By HENRY G. GASSIDIT)

(Associated Press War Writer)

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP) — It would take more than a war with Germany to dampen the ardor of Russians as they celebrate the 25th. Anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution tomorrow.

Red banners, revolutionary signs, portraits of members of the Communist party's political bureau and all traditional decorations have gone up for the holiday.

The war will be celebrated with as much energy as can be spared from the main task of beating the Nazis. All workers are to be at their jobs tomorrow off, but they will be called to duty Sunday, the usual day of rest, to make up the lost time.

Gen. Frank D. Roosevelt, Canadian Wall Disney and Donald Nelson, chairman of the United States War Production Board were among Americans who sent greetings to Soviet rulers. The state announcer quoted Mrs. Roosevelt as saying:

"Everyone is watching the heroic Russian defence with deep admiration and hope that the valiant armies there will be successful and soon liberate their friends. They survived and went on with the wedding, pals but russians.

Young Hunter Is Found Safe, Back in Camp

Bancroft, Nov. 6 (Special)— Twenty-year-old John Wilking, hunter, who did not return on Monday evening to his camp north of Westembon Lake and was first reported by members of his own party and later by an organized party of searchers, was found safe and sound on Wednesday morning about ten o'clock by two brothers Archie and Alex Kerr of Hermon, whose camp is situated at Crowbar Lake, not far from Hermon, and about eight miles from the Gunter camp to which Wilking and the other members of his party had come for the season's shoot.

Archie and Alex Kerr had left their camp some distance behind on Wednesday morning when, after a short shoot, they turned in the direction from which the call had come and had not gone a great distance before came upon Wilking. The place where they found him was three miles west of Birch Lake and the lost youth had travelled some miles northward of the place where he was last seen by members of his hunting party.

Pte. Jim Ill-Effect

His plight was immediately realized and the Kerr boys took him to their cottage. Wilking did not complain of having suffered any ill-effects from his long exposure to the elements and Monday, Tuesday and most Wednesday morning with no more protection than his hunting clothes and a light rain to contend. He did complain of suffering from hunger.

Wilking told them that he had spent considerable time Monday and in all it raised almost continually but that he came through that experience without any ill effects. The next day passed and on Tuesday night he managed to get some sleep in a fire which he managed to light with matches.

The Kerrs had no means of communicating with the Gunter camp but they did get in touch with them the day. On Thursday morning Wilking's hunting forest ranger at Bancroft, came by and stopped at the cottage and soon after they started back for the Gunter camp and arrived there at one o'clock.

Wilking was feeling well today to sat except probably a hunch which he will have for some time he was leaving the party for the hunt on Saturday. He had his gun with him but it is not known whether he had managed to shoot anything for food.

On Thursday Wilking did not feel like it but he had planned to go out hunting again in the afternoon.

The other members of the hunting party from the forest ranger at Bancroft, came by and stopped at the cottage and soon after they started back for the Gunter camp and arrived there at one o'clock.

Wilking was feeling well today to sat except probably a hunch which he will have for some time he was leaving the party for the hunt on Saturday. He had his gun with him but it is not known whether he had managed to shoot anything for food.

On Thursday Wilking did not feel like it but he had planned to go out hunting again in the afternoon.

The other members of the hunting party from the forest ranger at Allan Gunter, owner of the camp, and William Bardeau, A. Barnard and Lloyd Conniveroith, all of whom later as well as Wilking being from Toronto.

When Wilking failed to return on Monday evening members of the party became alarmed and made a search for him. Provincial Police Const. J. Palmateer was notified and as no signs of the young man could be found, Palmateer got in touch with a search party of hunters and woodsmen, including Bancroft friends, they arrived and went on with the wedding, pals but russians.

WEDDINGS

GULLIVER—GAELEY

A quiet wedding took place in Holloway Street United Church parsonage, Monday evening at seven o'clock, when Rev. J. Alf Dills united in marriage, Ellen Gladys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Gaeley, to George Gulliver, only son of Mrs. G. Gulliver, and the late Mr. Gulliver.

The bride was becomingly attired in a street length dress of blue crepe and grey accessories.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

After their wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec, they will reside in Belleville.

HAY—MITCHELL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Mitchell, Warkworth, at twelve o'clock noon, Thursday, October twenty-ninth, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when their daughter, Marjorie Mitchell, was married to Carl Theodore Hay, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Stirling.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Bishop, Castleton, in the presence of forty guests. The bride looked charming in a floor length gown of Victoria blue net over silk with silver jacket and a blue net shood, a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations, entered the living room with her father, who gave her in marriage. The bridal party was then formed by four girl friends and took her place beneath an arch of blue and white and decorated with white bells, and banked with evergreens, ferns and flowers.

Miss Muriel Cowen, friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a floor length powder blue gown, of sheer velvet trimmed and carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Mr. Delbert Mitchell, brother of the bride, was best man. The wedding music was played by Miss Vivian Bowen, Castleton.

Following the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room, which was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers, and a wedding breakfast was served. Miss Leila Mitchell, Campbellford, Miss Thelma Perry, Miss Bernice Bowen and Miss Doris Killingbeck assisted with the service. The bride's gift to the bride was a sterling silver bracelet, to the bridal party, a pearl brooch, and to the best man, a billfold.

Later the happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto, Hamilton and other western points. For traveling the bride wore a crepe dress of alice blue with hat to match, a black coat and black accessories.

On their honeymoon they will reside at Kingston.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Lean Men Live Longer

One hundred years ago the expectation of life was about forty years; today it is more than 65 years. A gain of 25 years in life span in less than one hundred years breaks all previous records. The first child born today has a record of birth and during the first year is one big factor in lengthening the life span; another is the saving of the lives of thousands of children of childhood by the use of vaccines. And now with the use of the antibacterial drugs, pneumonia which formerly had a death rate of nearly ten per cent, has a death rate of less than three per cent.

It is, of course, true that if the lives of youngsters are young and middle-aged adults are prolonged, there will be more and older individuals to be cared for than at present. This means that more cases of heart disease, cancer and diabetes will occur.

Vivid Indian Rug You Weave Easily

Warp Is Candlestick or String

A bold, bright Indian rug you weave yourself on a wild west Flavel! You'll have fun making it—and he'll be thrilled.

In black and white, or dark green and red-rumba, you also be a striking living-room rug. And the whole thing, 31½ by 23 inches, is made simply and quickly, of candlewick and muslin, on a home-size wooden frame. The booklet gives directions.

To warp the frame—that is, prepare it for weaving—drive 87 small nails, ½ inch apart, into each of the short sides.

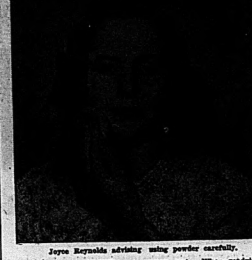
Tie black or green candlewick yarn (or dyed string) to lower right corner of loom and wind it up and down around the nails, as shown in our sketch. First and last nails have a double thickness.

Now tear weaving over and under warp (shown in black). Knot 2-yard strips of unbleached muslin dyed whatever color you choose.

For the Navaho pattern just follow the diagram in our 32-page booklet. Has complete directions for making Navaho rug and fringe; also shows, with diagrams, how to make many beautiful hooked, braided and other popular rugs.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How to Make Your Own Rugs" to The Ontario Intelligencer, 166 Front Street, Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly, your name, address, and the name of booklet.

CONVOYED MACARONI



A New "Get-Together" Dish

THE addition of the right sauce means the difference between the family asking for more or turning up their noses at your efforts.

To make "Convoyed" Macaroni, cook 1 cup of macaroni (which is salted water and then drain. Pour 1¾ cups of scalded milk over 1 cup of soft bread crumbs. Add ¾ cup of melted butter and 1 cup of chopped pimento, 1 tablespoon of chopped onion, 1 tablespoon of parsley, 1½ cups of grated cheese, ½ teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and 1 tablespoon of Fit-Rite Flavor. Add 2 well-beaten eggs and mix well together. Add drained macaroni and mix again. Pour into a greased casserole and bake in a slow oven for about 50 minutes.

Also use Fit-Rite for a richer flavour in stews, meat dishes, gravies, soups, fish and salads.

Less Cosmetics For Duration

Joyce Reynolds advising using powder carefully.

By HELEN FOLLETT

COSMETICS are as precious these days as the family jewels. Old Uncle Sam may get his fill down some day; but when the present supply is gone girls will have to look as nature made them, be bereft of the synthetic blushes and the rest. We won't starve.

Use creams and powders sparingly; there is no shortage existing yet. A light film of cream does as much good as a heavy one.

The restriction at present has caused make-up artists to change their technique. The aim, they say, must appear delicate and transparent. Rather than artificial disgraceful. If you're a black-eyed beauty with a golden skin use a transparent powder or slightly darker tone, no rouge at all on the cheeks, lipstick with an orange cast. When readying for the merry evening add bronze eye shadow. There you have a swell-looking color combination. You won't look scenic, you'll just look sweet.

Pale blondes need the wild rose cheek application, lipstick of rich claret.

The sophisticated type is on her way out, for the wartime girl is practical; she looks that way. No more flairs in clothes, and there's a bit less screwy. Shoes the kind that women should have worn the early part of years and years, broader, longer, and with a firmer foot-hold.

With these sartorial advances, it stands to reason, there's a battle is old stuff. Be slick when putting on the make-up effect and save on the beauty unkeep.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informality and Interest Stressed In Letter to Son's Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My son lives in a city far from here. He has just written us that he is engaged to a charming lady in that city, and that the engagement is to be announced soon.

I have never met the fiancee. But I know that it is my place to write her and welcome her into the family. Please give me some hints as to what I should write.

R. N.

I am so happy that you are going to write your son's fiancee. I have had many letters lately from engaged girls who are troubled about "how" that their future in-laws have paid no attention to their engagement and do not realize, as you do, that you should write at once this so-important welcoming-into -the family letter.

This will be an easy letter to write if you put put yourself in the place of your future daughter-in-law, and write her what you really like she will want to have you write. For example, she will be happy to know that you and your husband are happy about the engagement, so tell her that first.

Undoubtedly your son has written you charming things about his fiancee—tell her that he has, and that these delightful things that he has written about her know that his choice is a perfect one, and that you and your husband are eager to know her and feel sure you chosen for his wife. Tell her too how proud you are of your son and to welcome her into your family, how high-hearted you are looking forward to knowing your new "daughter." Tell her too that you and your husband will be deeply interested in knowing any plans about the wedding. Finally, do not invite her to visit you before or after the wedding, whichever may be possible for her.

Try not to make your letter sound the least bit formal. Chat with her in a motherly way, making your words say just what you would if your happiness for your son and for her.

Also, it would be gracious for you to write to your future daughter-in-law telling her of your happiness in the engagement. This is a charming gesture to establish the relationship between the two families.

Announcing a Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

It is to be married for the second time, and I would like to send our formal wedding announcements. How should these be worded?

Reader

When a young woman is married for the second time, the marriage is, if possible, announced by her parents, as was her first marriage. The bride's full name is used:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Foster announce the marriage of their daughter

Mary Butler Allen

to

Dr. Ralph Hamilton

on Tuesday, the tenth of December Nineteen hundred and forty-two

Ban Johnson Arms

If the bride prefers not to use her first husband's first name, she may use Mrs. Mary Allen Smith Hamilton. This is the only instance when this form of name is permissible. But the formal announcement of Mrs. Hamilton, a widow, and Mrs. Smith Robinson for a divorcee is in better taste.

Not Celebrating

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My birthday comes and I are going to be married in church. We both have large families and relatives, a great many friends. We want to invite them all to the church. Which is quite large.

But this is what's bothering us very much. My family and I live in a very small apartment, so we can't have a reception there. And my family can't afford to have the reception out in a hotel or any other suitable place.

However, we would like to greet our relatives and friends in some way after the ceremony. Do you think it would be proper for us to give up any plan to have a reception, and just stand for a little while after the receptional and greet our friends at the back of the church? We'd like to do this. If you think it would be all right.

Anne.

By all means do this! When there is no room for receptions—and it is never necessary to have a reception—it's a friendly and charming and proper idea for the bride and bridegroom to stand in the back of the church to receive the good wishes of their relatives and friends.

What can be done to prevent these three diseases, which are so frequent at and immediately after middle age? While inheritance can cause or aggravate these three diseases, overeating and the consequent excess weight is the most important factor. Fortunately, overweight can be prevented by care and sacrifice on the part of the individual and the establishment of difficult cases by the family physician. By leaving the table when still hungry, eating more leafy vegetables instead of potatoes and bread, eating fruit instead of candy or cream-and by taking more exercise, overweight can be prevented. It is also known that overweights are poor surgical risks and throw off ailments slowly.

Aside from the above diseases caused or aggravated by overweight is the matter of the life insurance. Dr. Louis Harold Mittal, Dr. E. P. Joslin has an illustration showing that ten fat men to ten lean men, aged thirty fare as they walk through life. At the age of forty there are 9 fat men and 9 lean men living; at fifty there are only 5 fat men but still 9 lean men; at seventy there are three fat men and five lean men, and at eighty there is one fat man and three lean men living.

The lesson then is that if we want to feel well, be able to play or work and to live and live longer, we should avoid overweight.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Swallowed Air, Not Food, Often Cause of Eructation

Many persons believe that gas on the stomach is caused by the decomposition of food or by indigestion. Undoubtedly, these things do play a part in such effect. However, some persons who have this trouble do not "eat" but "swallow air." A person may swallow a great deal of air and have no appetite for food whatever because he is nervous and frightened.

Of course there are various conditions that cause excessive gas formation. When a person has indigestion, one of the main things of which he complains is excessive gas or flatulence. A person who feels he has gas in his stomach may have an ulcer or constipation.

Contrary to the common belief, most of the gas in the bowel is not formed through chemical action which takes place in the food. Another great part of this gas is left from air which has been swallowed. Some persons swallow a great deal of air; just why has not been determined. Since a great deal of this air which is swallowed is not absorbed, most of it remains in the bowel for a time. Repeated belching is due to the presence of gas in the stomach. Many people feel embarrassed at night when they are under great strain.

Bloating, in the opinion of Dr. Abrahms, is not so often due to excessive gas in the bowel as it is due to a condition known as splanchnoptic edema of the intestines, a condition not much like that which there is swelling of the lining membranes of the bowel.

There may be a congestion of the intestine which produces the bloating. The bloating is usually worse during the day and sea severe at night. There may or may not be any discomfort, such as indigestion or constipation. Some people bloat suddenly the minute they drink a glass of water or put any ice-cold food in their stomach. Apparently this is due to a nervous disturbance in which the cold causes the veins to pour from the blood into the body.

In belching and bloating a careful study is needed to determine just the cause before treatment can be satisfactorily carried out.

The duty of the smart hostess—that's the motto for King Cotton. For winter there are cotton velveteens in lovely colors and even meticulously tailored denim suits. For after-dark there are cotton meshes peppered all over with sequins. Cotton-net-in-between makes beautiful winter coats.

No priorities on tulle. So this fabric is used for pretty full-skirted dance frocks for the young crowd. Nice when a full skirt of black tulle teams up with a bodice of white lace.

Comfort is the keynote of this new fashion. Jersey, the queen of fabrics for general wear is of brown corduroy. The slim jacket with collarless neckline is closed with tiny amber buttons. A plaid gingham insert pulls into a big loop under the chin.

FUND'S CHRISTMAS CHEER AUXILIARY WILL CARE FOR SUCH AS THESE

Barbara, aged one, and Sally Smith, aged two, lost both their father and mother recently in one of the sporadic Luftwaffe raids on London. Barbara, the baby of the family, came out of it with head injuries and both are pictured above in a British hospital where a nurse is showing them a picture book.

Barbara and Sally are two of the 469,000 British children who have been wrenched by the war from their homes and sent to "reception areas" in the country. Of these 461,000 boys and girls, 359,000 will spend Christmas away from home and parents too. Many will never see them parents again.

For all the thousands of Barbaras and Sallys in Britain, The Evening Telegram British War Victims' Fund this year again opens its Christmas Cheer for British children auxiliary. First major event of the Christmas Cheer effort will be the annual dance of the Toronto Police War Veterans' Association in the Royal York Hotel on Nov. 26 and 26.

The police war veterans last year raised $34,507.50 for Christmas Cheer for British Children.

Gunners of the coastal batteries of the Atlantic Command are ready to fire within 45 seconds (and getting faster) of the time the alarm bells ring. # Trenton Air Base and I.T.S. Win Opening Games in Service League For R.C.A.F. Squads

Repair Depot Just Beaten 32-27 by Trenton But I.T.S. Wins by 39-10

GOOD CONTESTS

Trenton Air Base and No. 3 I.T.S. won the opening games of the Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. Service Basketball League, Trenton Air Base scoring over-the-No. 2 Repair Depot 32 to 27, while No. 3 Initial Training School experienced little difficulty in downing the Manitoulin View Sailors-easily coasted in to win 39 to 10 over Ray Barrett's Mountain View "Bombers." The second half when finishing the game with a full squad of officers, none of whom were of advanced age for such, a scrounous game of basketball.

Always in Front

At the halfway mark the score stood 16 to 4, Kyle of Mountain View potting the only points for the "Bombers" the second half when equally as one-sided as the hometown outscored the visiting Sailors 23 to 6, McKay being the chief scorer for the losers in this second, getting two baskets and a single foul-shot point. Skipper Green paced the winners with four field goals, Chauvin getting eight points, while Tegerdine of Chapman's followed in the scoring order as the Initial Training School hoopsters played a rapid-passing style of game in front of a strong defence that the hometown couldn't penetrate with any degree of success.

The winners were even more accurate around the basket which was proven in the final tally, No. 3 I.T.S. sacking six of the eleven foul shots awarded them, while the Bombers grabbed only two points on eight free tosses.

The Lineups:

Mountain View 10: Kyle 4, McKay 2, Mallan 1, Zadow 2, Carp 1, Peck, Barrett (skipper) and Saunders.

No. 3 Initial Training School 39: Tegerdine 7, Chapman 2, Hunt-ington 2, Chauvin 9, Green 6, Reardon 2, Gagnon 2, Gilmore 2, Morrow 3, Nolan 2, Reid 2, Wilson, Cameron, Kling, Hall, Whitelaw, Jones and Henderson.

Referee: Cpl. Sharpe; Umpire AC2. Crawford.

Repair Depot Champs

In a more rugged match the Trenton "Flyers" downed No. 6 Repair Depot, when a total of 28 fouls were called, as the squads checked more closely. In last Era bonus was awarded the Repair Depot boys they added but three points and thereby lost an opportunity to perhaps even matters, as the Trenton Air Base sank six of the thirteen foul shots awarded them.

Parfitt, of No. 6 Repair Depot, paced his team on the attack with ten points, while Mac Howatt scored ten points for the winners with PO. Poulfin getting four baskets for eight good Flyer points.

Next week the Repair Depot journeys to Mountain View, while those fat Air Force enemies of the basketball courts, Trenton Air Base and No. 3 I.T.S. meet for the first time this season, when the league leadership will be at stake.

Defeat Cleveland Barons to Move Into Undisputed Possession of First Place

PROVIDENCE WINS

By The Canadian Press

The American Hockey League's leading scorer, Fred Thurier of Buffalo Bisons, scored the only goal last night as the Bisons blanked Cleveland Barons and moved into undisputed possession of first place in the western division of the circuit. The tally came in the second period.

Gordon Bell, 17-year-old rookie goal keeper who played with Portage La Prairie Terriers, Canadian junior champions last season, dominated the game with his brilliant net minding. It was his first shut out as a professional.

The second period also produced an exchange of high-sticking between Thurier and Bud Cook. Both drew minor penalties while Bob Dill of the Bisons, who intervened, was given a 10-minute misconduct.

Before the contest the clubs were deadlocked at six points each for the leadership in their division. The Barons' three-game winning streak also was stopped.

In the night's only other game, Providence Reds increased to within two points of the Eastern division leaders, Hershey Bears, by downing Indianapolis 4-3.

All the Reds' goals were scored in the last period and two of the Hoosiers' also came in the last frame. Three Providence tallies were drilled home in the first eight minutes of play.

No games are scheduled tonight.

BEACHES FAVORED

(By the Canadian Press)

Since everybody but Flying Officer Lew Hayman has conceded the Ontario Rugby Football Crown Sunday to Toronto's Royal Canadian Air Force Hurricanes, the time seems ripe to concentrate on the Rugby struggle between Toronto Balmy Beach, Toronto Navy and Hamilton Wildcats for equality for the other playoff berth.

Statistically speaking, Navy has a slight advantage with nine points compared to eight for Hamilton and Beaches. But other factors point clearly to the Baldwin as the most logical candidate. Two of their three remaining contests are with Hamilton Wildcats at Hamilton and Toronto Oakwood-Indians, against whom anything but a victory would be a disaster. They play Navy and Hamilton, on the other hand, can look forward to only one more appearance with either of the bottom-dwelling clubs.

Nothing definite on the outcome of the second-place struggle is likely to result from Saturday's contests. Beaches, with three or four players on the casualty list, are pinning their hopes on Bobby Bauer, who is strong favorite for the scoring title. Victory in six starts against the tailend Flyers at Kitchener, Navy Flyers will be accorded the nod, though hardly so unanimously, in their meeting with the Toronto Indians at Toronto.

Then, the future tilt Saturday probably will be the clash between Wildcats and Navy Flyers, which Lew Hayman would have you think so. He has been drilling Flyers for the fray with the Hamilton squad as if the playoffs were at hand. Wildcats, strictly on the basis of Nothing definite on the outcome of the second-place struggle is likely to result from Saturday's contests. Beaches, with three or four players on the casualty list, are pinning their hopes on Bobby Bauer, who is strong favorite for the scoring title. Victory in six starts against the tailend Flyers at Kitchener, Navy Flyers will be accorded the nod, though hardly so unanimously, in their meeting with the Toronto Indians at Toronto.

Then, the future tilt Saturday probably will be the clash between Wildcats and Navy Flyers, which Lew Hayman would have you think so. He has been drilling Flyers for the fray with the Hamilton squad as if the playoffs were at hand. Wildcats, strictly on the basis of

M PLAYERS IN PARTY

Regina, Nov. 6 (CP)—Twenty-four players of the Regina Navy team, including seven former members of Regina Roughriders team in the Western Inter-Provincial Football Union, left here today for Winnipeg where they play Winnipeg R.C.A.F.-Bombers for the Western Canada Rugby Football Championship Saturday.

Included in the group was Dean Griffing, former Roughrider coach, but Peterborough Basketball Club is not played in Eastern Ontario Senior league this year, but with the wealth of material at hand and considerable attention being given by the men in the service, the Air Force loop opened early and will continue to the end of the schedule before the Christmas holidays, resuming their regular schedule after the New Year.

DAVE CASTILLOUX WINS FROM LUST IN 12 ROUNDS

R.C.A.F. Boxer Retains Canadian Welterweight Championship

SPLIT DECISION

Montreal, Nov. 6.—(CP)—Al Lust, 21-year-old boxer from Medicine Hat, Alta., is "down but not out" today following his 12-round bout for the Canadian welterweight championship with Montreal's Dave Castilloux, holder of the crown. Castilloux won by a split decision last night before a crowd estimated at 12,000, who attended the Armed Forces Victory Loan boxing show.

The challenger, a private in the Canadian army, weighed in at 147 pounds, while Castilloux, an aircraftsman, second class, in the R.C.A.F., was 138½ pounds.

Lust put a terrific fight from the start, although he admitted afterward that he had been nervous in starting. In fact, he said it took him three rounds to get started.

The fighter from the Prairies gave Castilloux a lot of worry as he battled fiercely for the welterweight title-holder. His grim determination caught the fancy of the spectators and when the decision was announced in favor of Castilloux, the wearer, mingled cheers and boos filled the arena.

At time it appeared as though Lust could have floored his opponent, but Castilloux rallied his attack and returned the challenger's slashing blow for blow. Lt. Jack Dempsey of the United States Coast Guard, one time world's heavyweight champ, refereed the bout.

The loss of the fight left Lust determined so have another chance at the title and he is wishing for a take on Castilloux "anytime he's ready." The latter has been ready for a return bout, but first he will have to meet Harry Hurst of Montreal, a corporal in the R.C.A.F., who openly challenged the winner of last night's bout.

In the semi-final, Sammy Jacobs, 136-pound Montrealer, now with the Navy, won an easy decision over Jean Barrier, 134 pounds. Another semi-final between Johnny Greco, Army and Aubrey Carey, Army, was called off, when Carey failed to appear. The bout was given to Greco.

Other results:

Results of the four-round preliminaries were as follows:

Joe Dubrofsky, 130½, Navy, Montreal, beat Cpl. Jerry Blanchard, 127½, R.C.A.F., Montreal, Oct. decision.

Johnny Ritadis, 158, R.C.A.F., Brasli, beat Mike Sculllon, 159, Navy, Montreal, decision.

Marcel Fournier, 130, Army, Montreal, beat Henry Murray, 129½, Army, Montreal, decision.

Romeo Culnet, 135, R.C.A.F., Montreal, beat Fred Bradbury, 135, Navy, Montreal, decision.

Sgt. Alex Smith, 163, R.C.A.F., Montreal, beat Fred Bradbury, 145, R.C.A.F., Montreal, decision.

Jerry Jacobs, 135, Navy, Montreal, beat Mac Piotkin, 136, R.C.A.F., Montreal, decision.

Sgt. Bob Fulton, 178, R.C.A.F., Montreal, beat Jim Worrall, 186, Army, Montreal, decision.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Lacrosse and cricket are two practically synonymous ... Think of one and the other comes to mind ... So it is not surprising that a Cornwallian should be a shining light among Canadian soldiers playing the game in Britain ... He's Sgt. Larry Deebank, formerly with Cornwall of the Quebec Senior League and Minico of the Ontario Association ...

Larry bagged four goals, total tally of his season's efforts, when his team, which is edged the French bomber squadron of the R. C. A. F. 4-3. ... More than five feet four and, built proportionately, he was one-half of the winning doubles team in a Midlands R. C. A. F. tennis tournament ... Larry also was a basketballer at home and cricketer, but can't find facilities to play that sport over here ... Lacrosse teammate of Larry is P. O. Matt Reid of Winnipeg, a Spitfire pilot who's also pretty good at softball and hockey ...

They say that P. O. Jack McLeod of Barrie, Ont., does everything well ... That not only means flying with the famed Canadian Typhoon squadron of shipwreckers but applies to sport, too ... Jack played lacrosse with Barrie Terriers and is rated highly as a hockey centre ... As an R. C. A. F. track meet he stepped out to win the mile in fast time ... P. O. Steve Cartwright of Toronto was a navigator's wing with a Canadian Wellington squadron three days ... It's the same Steve who was hot stuff as an ankle grabber with University of Toronto Cornells in the Ontario Rugby Football Union ... Steve was also quite a student and was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship at Cambridge when he rounded off his education in the early '30s ...

Flt. Lt. Frank Grant of a Canadian fighter squadron is the same dynamic Bilsy who was an outstanding figure at Queen's University assaults-at-arms three and four years ago ... Bilsy competed with the little guys as a wrestler and boxed in the 125-pound class ... He won his letter and was elected captain of the assault team in his last year ....

That vest-pocket edition of curling, the old English pastime of "shove ha'penny," is solidly entrenched in R. C. A. F. messrooms. Just as it is in many pubs ... It's even putting the venerable game of darts in a secondary role ....

Flt. Lt. Paul Hemmily of Montreal, senior intelligence officer of a Canadian bomber squadron, is proper "place with rare abandon and end up big" runs ....

Thirty flight fans paid $7.35 each to see a London card — but didn't. They bought tickets from sellers outside the club the night of the fight. A doorman spotted sell numbers on the tickets were stamped, whereas those on genuine tickets were printed. The swindled ran after the swindlers but the birds had flown. Now police seek a "hoboty printing press."

CARL LISCOMBE SCORES 7 POINTS TO EARN RECORD

Scoring Spree Established as Detroit Red Wings Swamp Rangers

HAWKS BEAT MAPLE LEAFS

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

After seven years of plodding in professional competition, Carl Liscombe of Detroit Red Wings smiled today as the only National Hockey League player to hold two modern scoring records.

The 27-year-old Perth, Ont., left-wing entered hockeys Hall of Fame for the second time last night, scoring three goals and assisting on four others as Red Wings smothered New York Rangers 12-3, His performance erased —from the record books the mark of Fit Lepine, who had five goals and one assist for Montreal Canadiens in a game against Ottawa Senators 19 years ago.

Liscombe, a steady-going type of player who seldom has been all-star mention, established his other scoring record in 1938 when he tallied three goals in one minute and 52 seconds to defeat Chicago Black Hawks. Last night's record was established in a single game, but Detroits total of 21 goals against Rangers equalled a record between them, Rangers and Red Wings compiled 46 scoring points—equalling the tally of Montreal Canadiens and Montreal Maroons in 1938.

Boston Beaten 5-1

In accomplishing their second straight victory for undisputed possession of first place, Red Wings scored five times in the first period, once in the second and once in the third, Syd Howe, Don Grosso and Harry Watson, the 18-year-old Saskatoon rookie, each had two goals. Others to profit in the scoring by big winner Liscombe were Carveth and Jerry Brown with a goal apiece. Rangers goals were swiped by Lynn Patrick, Angus Campbell and Phil Watson, who scored twice.

Chicago Black Hawks made their first N.H.L. start a winning one in the other Thursday night game, handing Boston Bruins a 5-1 reverse to seize joint share of second place with Toronto Maple Leafs and Canadiens. The Hawks clinched the contest on first-period scoring by Red Hamill, Cully Dahlstrom and Bill Thoma. Bob Carse and Max Bentley completed the Chicago scoring. Buzz Boll tallied Bruins only goal.

ESTABLISH "BOMBLINE"

Cairo, Nov. 6 (AP)—The combined land and air advance of the Allied forces in Egypt compelled the high command to establish a "bombline" somewhat similar to the barrage lines of the First Great War.

"Bombline," the Cairo term for the "front," is the line east of which Allied aviators must not bomb.

AT THE BELLE

"Across the Pacific"

It may take Humphrey Bogart to make "Sve-at Ad-o-ine" a thing a beauty and a joy forever, but a good many men are handy in Hollywood, too.

There was that quartet, for example, which combined to make "The Maltese Falcon" one of the screen's finest, and Warner Bros. which produced this fastprobably more consistent a record. bins the talents of the same four in "Across the Pacific," now at the Belle Theatre.

Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor and Sydney Greenstreet, who had the leading roles in the "Falcon" picture once more adorn the top spots while John Huston is back as director.

Lum and Abner, Funny

For an evening of sheer laughs Lum and Abner in "The Bashful Bachelor" is the answer. The radio favorites of millions are now appearing at the Belle as the companion feature with Tzan Pitts in a feature role.

"Mrs. Miniver" Outstanding Hit

Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, described as a team in "Blossoms in the Dust," are reunited in a totally different type of play, in M-G-M's "Mrs. Miniver," dramatic story of the Britis ism of English families under bomb raids and danger, coming this week to the Belle Theatre.

The story is not a war story, though war is its background. It concerns the inhabitants of a typical English village; middle class people who try valiantly to live life as usual though under constant peril for the sake or morale on the home front. Air raids, the fence at Dunkirk, and the final bombing of the village, are among its thrill. Through these run simple, human episodes of family life, even in air raid shelters, and comedy and romance of everyday folk.

AT THE McCARTHY

Gene Autry

With world events growing more and more complex, picture-goers incline to seek the simple, homespun things for their relaxation, and pictures such as Gene Autry's latest for Republic, "Call of the Canyon," which opened last night at the McCarthy Theatre, are typical of the need for down-to-earth entertainment.

"Call of the Canyon" is a simple, engaging tale about a cowboy who outsmarts a city slicker, but it is told in such a spritely manner, with lilting songs and gay dialogue, that its local audience accorded it a far better reception than that given to plot-heavy melodramas of the "drawing room" type.

The picture was produced on a large budget scale for the "class" trade as well as for Gene's loyal "regulars," and judging from its enthusiastic reception by last night's premiere audience, the film is just what the doctor ordered in the way of entertainment.

Republic has surrounded Autry with a cast of high calibre in "Call of the Canyon," with Ruth Terry, acquitting herself admirably in the feminine lead, and Smiley Burnette in a top comedy spot. Joe Strauch, Jr., a talented youngster constituted an substantial liner, portrays the kid brother of Burnette, and his pie-eating contest sequence is just one of the hilarious scenes which highlight the star-studded production.

"Parachute Nurse"

Presented as the second feature this weekend at the McCarthy Theatre, "Parachute Nurse" featuring lovely Marjorie Chapman, Jr., William Wright and Kay Harris in the principal roles, is one of the most exciting screen stuff of the season and a highly interesting hour to everybody who loves thrills that are dynamite. There is not a dull moment during the entire hour in which "Parachute Nurse" is on the screen and like "Call Of The Canyon" it is a picture every member of the household will enjoy. Satisfying performances will be continuous with matron in charge of Biddie patrons during the afternoon.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Tombstone"

Just as anticipated, "Tombstone —the Town Too Tough to Die," which came a-shootin' into the Capitol Theatre last night, is no ordinary Western, in fact, a matter of fact, it is no overstatement to say that it ranks with some of the best of its out-door agent predecessors.

Produced by Paramount's Harry Sherman, leading producer of Westerns, "Tombstone—the Town Too Tough to Die" sets the gun-smoked, thrill-packed story of Wyatt Earp, the greatest fighting peace marshal the West ever knew. It's a story so exciting it'll keep you on the edge of your chair most of the time.

Richard Dix, who stars with Kent Taylor and Edgar Buchanan, makes his interpretation of the fighting marshall a classic of nerve - tingling characterization. Through the splendid acting of Dix Wyatt Earp comes alive for those who never saw the colorful thrilling figure he actually was.

There's trick gun-play, hard-riding, fast shooting and many a tense moment, as the new film tells the story of Earp's fight on the gang of desperadoes who've made Tombstone the toughest town in the West, and are driving out the respectable citizens.

Leading the gang is Frank Buchanan, who by the way, contributes a superb characterization as "Curly" Bill. Almost singlehanded, just as in the true story, Earp wipes out the gang by engaging in single duels and in mass gun-fights. Lon Chaney, Jr., Jean and "Doc" Hallday, another actual character, portrayed ably by Edgar Buchanan.

An interesting romantic story is progressed between the plot and is heart-warmingly acted out by beautiful Frances Gifford and handsome Don Castle, who weave between being a bandit and a deputy for Earp.

"Tombstone — the Town Too Tough to Die" is crowded with suspenseful incidents and keep going ahead at bullet speed from first minute to last. It's first-rate entertainment and shouldn't be missed.

"Charlie McCarthy"

Designed for laughing purposes only, The added RKO Radio's hilarious 1-inch, "Look Who's Laughing" unites such radio and screen stars as Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Chester Morris and Molly, and Lucille Ball.

Story revolves around the business woes of Wistful Vista's leading citizen, McGee, when he strives to keep prosperity in his community by selling a sewdy airport to a fly-by-night airplane manufacturer and meets with crooked opposition.

To complete this grand double feature program a Donald Duck color cartoon, "The Spirit" as well as a cartoon entitled "Frozen North" is shown.

AT THE CAPITOL

Little Benny's Note Book

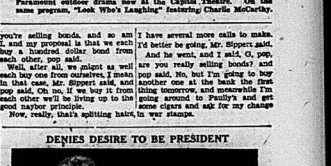
The doorbell rang while we were finishing dinner, and I went to the door and there was a telegram for pop, and I went back to tell pop and pop said, I know what he wants, and He just like him to call before I've finished my dinner. He's pledged himself to get a certain number of war bonds, and even though I derive a proud, patriotic glow from buying all the bonds I can afford, I'll be hanged if I buy one that way. I'll wait till tomorrow, he said.

And he finished his dessert slow and went in the living room and shook hands with Mr. Stupor, saying, Well, this is an unexpected pleasure.



I'm here on a little patriotic mission, Mr. Stupor said. We're in a big fight, Mr. Potts, and we've got the men and the spirit to win it, but have we got the equipment, in other words have we got the money to win it? he said, and pop said, By golies, Mr. Stupor, that's a good question, and the answer is, no we haven't got it.

Well, I'm glad to hear you say so, and the most any of us can give won't be a penny too much. You're a realistic man, Mr. Stupor, and it's a privilege to talk to you. I know you're selling bonds, and so am I, and my proposal is that we each buy a hundred dollar bond from each other, pop said.

Well, after all, we might as well each buy our own bonds, pop said, in that case, Mr. Stupor said, and pop said, Oh no, it isn't. I'll front each other we'll be living up to the good neighbor principle.

Now, really, that's splitting hairs, in war stamps.

DENIES DESIRE TO BE PRESIDENT

From his headquarters in Australia General Douglas MacArthur has issued a statement denying that he has any ambitions for the presidency of the United States. Above, MacArthur, left, with Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia, is one of the latest to be released in the United States.

I have several more calls to make. I'd better be going, Mr. Stupor said.

And he went, and I said, O, pop, are you really selling bonds? and pop said, No, but I'm going to buy another one at the bank the first thing tomorrow, and meanwhile I'm going around to Paully's and get some cigars and ask for my change

CHAPTER 9

Clarence Bligh

"That room had a door at each end, hasn't it?" Raynor asked Netta Briggs.

"Oh, yes. Mr. McCleod rose through it when he's going to see his father. It's a short cut."

"Well, then, Miss Briggs, you have nothing more to tell me?"

"Not about Mrs. McCleod, no. But I can tell you something about Linda, sir."

Being a good detective, Raynor was not above catching at any straw.

"You mean Linda had a motive?"

"Well, rather! You see, she's down in Mrs. McCleod's will for ten thousand dollars."

"Are you sure? That's a lot of money."

"She told me about it herself."

"Very well. But don't tell anyone else, Miss. You don't want to get yourself in trouble if you do. Now, look here, did you think you would recognize that man, who was in the room with Mrs. McCleod, if you saw him again?"

Netta looked doubtful. "I don't think I would."

"Have a try at it, anyway. After that you can go home."

"I don't want to go home, I want to stay here."

"You find our man for me, and perhaps I can arrange for you to stay here a bit longer. Now you go into the drawing-room on library or what not and see if you can recognize the man we're speaking of. Don't look hard at anybody. Have an air as if you were on some errand. Look for a book on a library shelf."

"Yes, sir."

"Make a stab at it. If Poo Chow orders you out, tell him you're there by my directions."

Miss Briggs departed and soon found a few men at the bar, among whom might be her quarry. She was about to leave the room when Poo Chow came in and announced that breakfast was served.

None of the men started for the breakfast room. Netta followed them. There were small tables and she sat at one alone.

Brand Herrick was speaking.

"I think," he said, quietly, "Raynor ought to realize that we have much put out by this long delay. Surely he could—Stanislaus! Better. I'm going to telephone to my partner, Clarence Bliss, to come here. It is necessary that I see him."

He left the room and went to a hall telephone.

"Whatly is a name?" said Van Dyke Haynes, flippantly. "I didn't know Herrick had a partner, but Clarence Bliss! He very sound, vicious a pale face, with sandy hair, mild blue eyes and a figure of weight and muscle. Probably a thug, judging voice."

"You never can tell," said Henry Marbell, one of the guests, and a long-time friend of the elder McCleod.

"I wonder how Emmy is taking this," he went on. "And old Angus. I want to see Hugh before I go away. Perhaps I can do something for him."

"His lawyers are Chadwick and Hart," said Hyatt, reluctantly. "I told them. They have been notified. I'd like to help Mr. McCleod, but I feel it would be intrusive to offer—"

"If Chadwick is coming, your services won't be needed," Van Dyke observed.

"True talk," Brand said, looking at Haynes without a smile.

Netta Briggs finished her coffee and went to Raynor.

"It's no. 27 Officer," she said. "If I'd known, I could've found out who was the guy I saw with the lady, but when I looked at 'em eating their breakfast, there was not one of them. I'd pick. They all looked alike to me."

"You may go now, Colby, get Brand Herrick in here will you?"

Herrick came at once and sat down.

"Don't mind if I drop astep," he said. "I am told I talk in my sleep, so it may do just as well."

Raynor smiled at the big young man.

"You knew Mrs. McCleod pretty well, Mr. Herrick?"

"I belong to what she was kind enough to call 'her crowd.' I have been invited here often, and I am not enough of an intimate to come informally. I have met Mrs. McCleod frequently at other places."

"At her friends' homes?"

"Yes; and at clubs or theatre parties. But I am a busy man, and I don't always have time to drive."

"I see. Now will you tell me of the last time you say Mrs. McCleod alive?"

"I can't tell you the hour, but it was late, and I concluded to go home. I went to the door of the room for my things and she came into the hall. Ladies used that room, too. She said, 'not going, are you? or something like that, and I said I had a busy day ahead.' I said good night and left her there. That was the last time I saw her."

"But you didn't go home?".

"No, when I got downstairs, some of the crowd made me stay to hear the young ringer play some sensational. I went in the bar and listened to the performance."

"And then?"

"I was there when Miss Day screamed. After that, I was not allowed to leave the house."

"What did you do?"

"Nothing in particular. I had an idea I might be of any service I might and then I found a few of our operatives and I sat down with them."

"Oh, yes, you are a lawyer; you have freedom and judgment. Toward whom in your employment may you have been somewhat suspicious?"

Raynor looked blankly at him. Then he said: "You were not in love with her yourself, Mr. Herrick?"

"I most certainly was not. I am not a pirate. It is not in my taste to fall in love with a married woman. Again Raynor I assure you that I had no affection for, and only a slight interest in Mrs. McCleod. I am not a society man."

"Will you tell me what you and Mrs. McCleod talked about, when you saw her for the last time, in the cool corner?"

"The merest commonplaces. Indeed, I remember only that she invited me to stay longer, which was the inevitable thing for a host to do. And I explained that it was late and that I ought to be going."

"You had no more personal chat than that?"

"No, we were there but a few moments, I had no reason or wish to continue the interview, nor, I am sure, did she."

"You are taking your temper/Mr. Herrick."

"I am not and you know I am not. You hope to make me do so, but I am not doing it. Why are you acting as if you suspected me of this crime when you are doing nothing of the sort?"

"You mean I am not suspecting you?"

"I mean exactly that. Why are you pretending that you do suspect me?"

Raynor smiled.

While Herrick was still with Raynor, Bliss came to the door of the breakfast room and announced, "Mr. Bliss."

Those who looked up were almost startled to see the newcomer. Bliss was tall and lean and gave the impression of great strength and trained muscles. He had what is sometimes called a commanding presence.

"Mr. Herrick is not here?" he said to the butler. It was Marbell who answered.

"How are you, Bliss?" he said, cordially. "I'm Marbell, remember?"

"Oh, yes." A smile replaced his inquisitive frown. "Where's Brand?" he said, being interrogated by the Detective Bureau. And I hope they will finish him off soon, we've all waiting."

"Where is he?"

"Shut up in some private room."

"I'll find him," Bliss turned to go.

"They won't let you in." Bliss nodded to Poo Chow, who showed no comprehending bow, and ushered him out.

He came to the room where Mr. Herrick is," was the order and Poo Chow led the way.

At the closed door he paused, and looked at Bliss.

"All right." The determined man opened the door and walked in.

"Hello, Clarence," Brand said. "Captain Raynor, this is my partner."

"Good morning," said Raynor, with a cordial manner that was disarming. "I'm afraid I can't ask you to sit down. This is a private interview."

"I'll sit all right. I thought maybe I could help. If not, I'll just ask for a minute's talk with Herrick. Come out here, Brand, where you put the lease that belong to the Briggs' manor cabin?"

"They're in the filing cabinet D." And as it is, it will prove that the Connolly papers are returned today."

"Yes, I'll look after everything. As well as I can. I'm like a ship without a rudder when you're not there. Let him out as soon as you can, won't you, Captain?"

"It's a serious case, Mr. Bliss."

"Sure thing."

"What are you holding Herrick for? Just routine questioning?"

"So far, yes. But I'm hoping he can give me some sidelights or information that will help."

"I wonder if you're frank with me. I can't help an impression that you're hoping to prove Brand the criminal."

"I can't discuss that with you, Mr. Bliss, but I shall have to ask you to go now."

"I'm going. Don't fret and fume about the office, Brand; Miss Rippley and I can run it."

"Better leave that Crowell matter. I shall have to see to that."

"Yes, I suppose so. Turn him loose as soon as you can, Captain Raynor." Bliss left the room. "I suppose I can get out of this by afternoon!" Herrick said to Raynor.

"I'll do my best. I have to talk with one or two others before I can do anything definite. You can go Mr. Herrick, but don't leave this house, until I say so.

Mr. Herrick went out with a feeling of depression, all the more troublesome because he felt he hadn't carried off the interview with the self-confidence he had meant to. He hadn't told the truth about the time he had been alone with Linda but he felt sure Raynor suspected that.

He went in the habit of drinking in the morning, Herrick went to the bar and helped himself to a pick-me-up.

Martin Delevan, an artist, was there and had a disgruntled look on his thin acquitive face.

"Bad going?"

"Unsatisfactory. You'll get tired waiting."

"I'm that already. Haynes has gone in now. Have you did Raynor say to you?"

"Oh, he just talked. I think he feels pretty sure I killed Alma."

"Did you?"

"No. But I suppose we both say that, and it won't be both killed her."

"And do you think? Some beat from outside?"

"I suppose so. Unless it was one of us. Alma was a siren, you know and—all that. Lured her."

"But not one of us would kill her!"

"Not with a pillow, anyway," Delevan smiled. "That's a deed for a Clarence Bliss—not your man, he'd use a bludgeon. But for the man such a name—conceal—"

"What do you mean, such a name? What's the matter with my partner's name?"

"Well, you know all such names as Clarence, Percy, Harold, Hugh are considered milk-and-water-ish."

Axis Shows Growing Uneasiness To Movements South, West of Libya

Nazi Radio Talks for Third Day, Without Confirmation, of Concentration of Allied Warships and Transports

By C. DANIEL
(Associated Press Writer)
London, Nov. 6—(AP)—DNB reported today that a large Allied convoy, accompanied by several large warships, including a battleship, left Gibraltar and sailed into the Mediterranean last night.

"It appears the British are repeating their attempt to force the Italian grand style," the agency said.

This was the latest Axis guess concerning the large assembly of warships and transports the Axis has said for three days, has gathered at Gibraltar.

With Rommel's armies fleeing westward in Egypt, they showed increasing watch for new Allied ventures which might imperil Axis position elsewhere in Africa and on the Mediterranean.

There was growing uneasiness concerning unanswered reports Allied movements to the south and west of Libya," the London Daily Telegraph commented.

From a successive day the German radio talked, without confirmation, of the concentration of United Nations warships and transports at Gibraltar, estimating that 135 naval vessels had reached that harbor from the Americas. Axis reports said that American troops had reached Casablanca.

The Nazi controlled Paris radio also said that additional R.A.F. bombers had arrived at Gibraltar. German Commentator's Remarks

Berlin radio said that German commentator, Rear-Admiral Lorentz, discussing the British radio the possibility of Allied operations against North Africa and the Balkans, declared Casablanca, from the west, that is, the Atlantic.

Vichy French radio in Spain divides the control of North Africa, Casablanca in the west.

At the same time Axis military propaganda broadcasts in Arabic were a gathering of Allied forces in the Chad area, due south on Tripoli, Libyan capital, and the need for the presence of a fighting-French force at Kufra, Cufa, 600 miles south of Derna, Eastern Libya.

The Belgian newspaper Le Soir recently reported that Marshal Rommel had detached a portion of his Africa Corps to stand guard against attack from Kufra.

The German Evening Standard summed up the current concern of the Axis:

"All Africa may soon be at stake. Not only Egypt, but also Libya, Tripoli."

Anything less than destruction of Rommel's forces might be taken as an Axis victory, the Evening Standard commented, adding: "Because this, it noted, the British Army would have a free hand to transport 1,000 miles of desert to Tunisia—a German-Italian stronghold—to drive the Axis from the rear while he still is under frontal assault.

Press of Canada Has Big Part In Loan's Success

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP)—Describing the part played by the press of Canada in the Victory Loan campaign, J. A. McNeil, General Manager of The Canadian Press, declared: "The press has played its part for the cause of freedom can come only if each of us, in the words of the Prime Minister of the United Nations, strains every nerve and puts forth his uttermost effort."

In a special broadcast over the Trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in connection with the Victory Loan drive, he added: "Only when the cruel war ruthless ends will it have been recovery can we relax our efforts."

He said the part played by the press of Canada in the war effort and in the success of the campaigns for war funds in the past three years "is a proud one. The complete records showed that the present campaign alone, the 36,000,000 words of free publicity were published, in addition to factual information about the campaign and the stimulating effect of the general news of the war."

Space is Stock-in-Trade

"Because space is stock in the publisher's stock-in-trade, the commodity from which he derives his revenue and his profits, if any, and its donation represents a real financial sacrifice," McNeil declared.

"Faced with declining revenues, increased costs, shortages of labor, the makers of the newspapers of Canada carry on with their fellow-Canadians they realize that no sacrifice is too great, and they cheerfully carry out the task of purveying full and accurate information about the war, the domestic and world affairs, coupled with the stimulating effect of factual and particularly of the drive for victory and peace with honor."

Eastern Ontario Livestock Views

London observers saw in the potential complete occupation of North Africa the possibility of establishing a base for a new European front, reopening the Mediterranean to Allied shipping and shortening three-fourths of the sailing time to the Middle East and increasing aid to Russia both by releasing more material for the Soviet and by German propaganda sought to show that Spain is worried.

"The news that Franco has revealed considerable military activity in Spain and Berlin broadcasts of a Madrid dispatch to transocean, German press energy.

"It is believed that such armament is being stored in the Rock in the form of building tanks, fighters and bombers. Such developments are being watched with concern".

The broadcast dispatch said the Gibraltar situation is "playing considerably importance in Spanish political discussions in view of interest shown in the fighting at El Alamein", it continued.

"Gibraltar has developed into such an important transfer harbor that the movement of troops and war material that part of the world has become quite tense".

Retreat Cannot Stop Short Of Libyan Border

By ERNEST L. SIMPSON

Whether the Axis retreat in Egypt is in fact the rout that Cairo pictures or a withdrawal under pressure to new defensive lines, there seems small chance that it can stop short of the Libyan border.

There is no naturally strong front east of that point upon which battered German and Italian forces can be expected to organize a new stand. The Italian defense line on the coastal flank the retreat has already reached, passed, Fuka, thirty miles west of the British dump-off line from El Alamein to the Qattara depression, widens to near-by sixty miles as compared to less than forty at El Alamein. At Matruh, under 150 miles British and Empire troops have penetrated that far.

A British advance to Fuka would represent a wide expansion of the action front. In that region the corridor between the sea and the Qattara depression widens to near-ly sixty miles as compared to less than forty at El Alamein. At Matruh, under 150 miles British troops railhead in Western Egypt, and forty miles west of Fuka, the corridor expands to virtually a 100-mile width.

Except for the length of the line, Matruh seems to offer the retreating Axis forces some hope of standing again. From the town on the coastal railroad to the salt marshes of the depression run desert trails to aid cross-communications. A series of widely spaced ridge-helps also mark that line.

It is to be recalled, however, that the British retreat into Egypt after a smashing Axis defeat of the 8th Army in Libya could not take advantage of the Matruh line. It swept on eastward to the junction of the corridor southward from El Alamein before it turned to halt the Axis advance.

At that time the shaken British forces vitally needed the shortest possible front to hold. Losses in personnel, tanks and other equipment had been staggering. The danger of an Axis break-through in the south to turn the British left flank and open the way to Cairo and Alexandria was extreme.

Rommel now faces the same situation with the odds reversed — and there is no narrow front behind him to secure his flanks. Every foot he retires westward increases the length of front he must hold. The smashing blow administered to his land divisions in the first heavy clash of desert armor after British forces gunned their way through his mine-field defense makes it doubtful that he has the mechanized strength to resort to manoeuvres warfare anew.

There is also a grave question as to whether lack of fuel for tanks and planes was not a vitally important contributing factor in the situation that forced his retreat, or it has been, his case is even more desperate than the most optimistic Cairo and London advices suggest. His only hope would be to reach defensible positions on the coastal flank like Solum, "Hellfire" Pass and Tobruk and hole-up to stand siege awaiting reinforcement.

Greek reports say several Nazi divisions are being rushed from the Russian front toward North Africa. Mad requisitioning of merchant tonnage in French harbors points to some such attempt. However, movement of so large a force across the Eastern Mediterranean in the face of Allied sea and air superiority would mean staggering losses. Only utter desperation in Berlin would warrant the risk.

There is another potential in the situation to which Allied military attention focuses—and probably that of Berlin also. That is the morale of Italian divisions in Africa. For the second time they are tasting the bitterness of a retreat from Egypt from which German military prowess could not save them.

The Australian government has formulated a program for the production of sulphuric acid from domestic pyrites instead of imported sulphur.

NEW R.A.F. WEAPON IS THE MOSQUITO BOMBER

The much-lauded and until now secret new R.A.F. Mosquito bomber which has been raking Germany so successfully is shown ABOVE in the first picture for publication. Built by the De Havilland plant in both England and Canada it has two Rolls-Royce engines and De Havilland three-bladed hydromatic type propellers. Of wooden construction, it has both retractable undercarriage and tail wheel units; and is equipped with four 20mm. cannon and four .303 machine-guns as well as a bomb load. The dimensions of the Mosquito are: Span, 54 feet 2 inches; overall length, 40 feet 9½ inches; height, over vertical propeller up, 15 feet, 3 inches.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 6 (CP)—(Advance)—One fierce battle of the air has been settled amicably in the last few days, the long battle of the Wright Brothers and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

For years everyone, with the exception of the Smithsonian, has agreed that Wilbur and Orville Wright were the first humans to fly a practical airplane. The Smithsonian held to the claim that its former Secretary, Professor Samuel Pierpont Langley, was the prior inventor of successful plane models.

The controversy reached a peak years ago when Orville Wright sent the original Kitty Hawk plane to England, as obvious echo to the Smithsonian, and it has been there ever since. Now Dr. Charles G. Abbott, Director of the Smithsonian, with apologies to the Wright Brothers and an acknowledgement that his institution created in 1846 "the modern concept of aeronautics" has accepted a Wright plane from James Smithson, an English-man, for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men," permitted mistaken loyalty to lead it astray from the path of truth and science.

It is being suggested here that Orville Wright should bring the old plane back to the United States, now that old estrangements have been ended and belated recognitions have been made.

He Does Not Choose

The disavowal of Geh. Douglas MacArthur of presidential ambitions is an interesting and perhaps gloomy sidelight on democracy in action. There would have been no need of his denial of any political ambitions whatever if some ardent Roosevelt newspapers had not boomed him for president after the Philippine campaign.

The allegation that two separate commands were drawn in the Pacific partly because of this MacArthur-for-president campaign sounds fantastic but, as the Washington line-up put it: "The division of command in the Pacific never made any sense except as a manoeuvre to squeeze out Gen. MacArthur, if not for political, then for professional reasons..."

MacArthur, who has been the victim of well-meaning friends and of enemies of civilian popularity and perhaps professional jealousy, now has done all in his power to clear the air. Perhaps his statement brings unified command in the Pacific that much closer.

Navy Music

If a sailor at sea turns on his radio and tunes in his favourite dance band, enemy submarines can fix the position of the ship. So, radios have been things that sailors must get along without.

But now the United States Maritime Commission is installing non-radiating sets on its ships, sets that do not reflect the sound waves. There is one central unit on each ship and a system of amplifiers and the sailors are happy again.

Notes That Make News

Reports that Jim Flynn of New York, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will replace George C. Messersmith as United States Ambassador to Mexico have not been received with any degree of satisfaction in Latin America. The Latin Americans, who hold nothing against Flynn, simply do not like the idea of political debts being repaid at their expense and probably nothing more will be heard of the Flynn appointment.

Eric Knight, author of "This Above All" and the flying Yorkshireman," recently became an American citizen here. He is a Captain in the British army and has fought with the Princess Pats in the last war.

Major Rajkumar Rajendra Sinhji of the British army fought his way through German and Italian forces around Tobruk to win the Distinguished Service Order but he got hopelessly lost in the Pentagon building, the largest office building in the world, recently opened here by the war department.

Sidney Teachers' Association Meets

The Sidney Teachers' Association held their regular monthly meeting in Quinte View school on Monday, Nov. 2, at 8.00 p.m.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada."

The gathering was favored with a piano solo by Miss Dorothy Reid of Ann Street school, Belleville.

An interesting and informative choral reading illustration was presented by Miss Mary Mangold of Belleville.

School ground improvement, school fair prize money and election of new officers were topics of discussion.

The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King.

A number of Sidney schools during the past two weeks held Victory Loan Campaign programs. The various speakers at these meetings were Captain Hewitt, Rev. Scott, Mrs. Kenneth Paul, Mrs. Sales, Mrs. Finkle, Mr. Sean Nicholson, Mr. J. Fred Wilson.

Sincere appreciation and thanks is extended to the above speakers for their services, and to the visitors for their support and interest in the programs.

F.D.R.'s Blueprint Of Possible Course Post-War Traffic

Washington, Nov. 6 — (AP)— President Roosevelt has submitted to Congress a blueprint for possible creation of a post-war transportation system in the United States featuring streamlined cars on express highways and thousands of commercial airplanes.

The recommendations were made by a special committee of research experts, headed by Owen D. Young, industrialist, under the sponsorship of the National Resources Planning Board.

The committee visualized a decade after the war for cheaper, faster, better service.

The period of let-down from war production, the committee said, will be ideal for both public and private expenditure of money to create the desired transportation facilities and at the same time make jobs for former soldiers and war workers.

To speed work an inventor has mounted eleven blades instead of one in a paint scraper.

Miss Marion McMullen and Mr. Hugh McMullen spent the dinner hour Friday evening at Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow's.

ALLERGIC TO WOOL

Pelahoke, Fla., Nov. 6—(AP)—It wasn't war or the strenuous life of a soldier that worried Marvin Berry. He could put up with all that, but his tour in the army didn't work out for another reason. He's back home now, honorably discharged. Military authorities found him hopelessly allergic to wool.

"I've got to be shown!"

"Today, with war hitting retail business in so many ways, I want the kind of support from manufacturers that I can see... the kind that goes to work for me right here in town."

1. "I want ads that help me answer my customers' questions and solve their wartime problems. When a manufacturer runs ads like that in my local newspaper, it really takes a big load off a retailer's shoulders...and it's a service to my customers, too."

2. "How to sell isn't my whole problem any more. I worry about what to sell, too...just as Mrs. Customer wonders what she can buy. The best way a manufacturer can help us both is with newspaper ads both she and I have to see to read."

3. "New products are helping a lot to fill the gaps on my shelves. They help most, though, when they're pushed by newspaper ads...ads that show all my customers what they look like, and tell them these new items can be bought in stores like mine."

4. "A manufacturer's newspaper ads show me, too, that he's still mighty interested in my problems... even though he's got plenty of his own. His salesman may not call so often...but as long as his newspaper ads are pitching, I know he's backing me."

Wide-awake retailers...here in town and all over Canada...are realizing more and more this vital fact: In wartime especially, the best support a manufacturer can give them is advertising in their local newspapers. In scores of new ways, manufacturers' newspaper advertising is helping retailers carry on through these critical days.

EXPECTS ITALY WILL SURRENDER

Halifax, Nov. 6.—(CP)—If the British are able to oust the Axis forces from Africa and the Russians continue to pin down the bulk of Germany's divisions, Italy will "jump the fence" or lay down arms, Dr. Frank Klein predicted here last night. The noted Austrian journalist and lecturer is here to address a meeting tonight of the Canadian Club and Women's Canadian Club of Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley Rosebush of Oshawa have been guests over week at the home of Mrs. Hiram Rosebush at Three Valleys.

Mr. Robt. Prince spent Saturday in Toronto on Business.

Wm. J. Morton of the R.C.N.V.R., is spending a few weeks at his home in Stirling.

Among the Stirling sportsmen who left on Monday for the deer hunt were R. W. McMeekhin, T. W. Holmes, W. J. West, Gordon Bailey, O. R. Thompson, Lawrence Burton Morton, Walter Warren, J. S. Morton, Robert Eggleton, Fred Eggleton and Roy Woodbeck.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — Hallowe'en passed by more quietly than usual on Saturday evening. Many of the younger members of the community called at the various homes dressed in a great variety of costumes. The pupils of the local school enjoyed a Hallowe'en concert on Friday afternoon.

On Friday evening a number from here attended the masquerade party at the Parish Hall, Roslin, and all reported an enjoyable time. Little Miss Jean and Master Jackie Vance, children of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Vance were among the prize winners, having chosen the costumes of a bride and groom. They also favored the audience with some singing.

Mrs. E. J. Grills, the oldest resident of the village and community observed her sixty-sixth birthday on Sunday, November 1st (All Saints Day) by attending Church service in the evening. Although advanced in years, she takes an interest in the various topics of the day, doing her own housework and in the summer months cares for her garden and flowers, as well as being able to make dresses and quilts and various other sewing. Her many friends congratulate her.

Mrs. H. McTaggart is spending a couple of weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Breen in Tweed.

Mrs. James Arbuckle, Miss Bernice and friend of Belleville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coulson on Sunday.

Mr. Earl Bateman of the R. C. N. V. R. was a recent guest at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wood were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs Willie Vance.

Misses Helen and Amey McTaggart of Belleville spent the weekend at their home here.

Mr. J. C. Mitchell spent the dinner hour on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wilson.

School opened one hour later on Monday morning, thus making the school hours from 10.00 a. m. to 3.00 p. m. enabling the pupils who have a long distance to walk that they will not have to leave their homes before daylight in the morning as the days are getting shorter.

Mr. Edward Carter had the misfortune to "lose a horse" recently. While ploughing it unfortunately stepped into a threshing hole, fracturing its leg and had to be destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherry of Toronto were weekend guests of Mrs. O. E. Sherry and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sherry.

By subjecting pits from which they are grown to a chemical treatment a University of California scientist claims to have made peach trees produce fruits in two years.

BRITISH PURSUE BEATEN AXIS ARMY TO MATRUH

6 Italian Divisions Facing Probable Annihilation

Airmen Drop Bombs Into Writhing Columns Causing Indescribable Confusion

DESTROY 50 PLANES

Cairo, Nov. 7 (AP).—With 100,000 of Rommel's total of some 140,000 desert troops captured or trapped and his tank strength grievously crippled, the British chase of the broken axis forces swept on today past Matruh, Egyptian port almost halfway to the Libyan border from the starting point of the Allied drive.

The headlong flight of the once-proud Axis Africa Corps continued at a rapid clip, the British command reported in a communique which listed 20,000 Germans and Italians captured along with 350 tanks seized in addition to hundreds of others knocked out, and 400 guns and uncounted thousands of vehicles in the hands of the army of the Nile.

Far behind and mostly inland from the coastal road were six Italian divisions left in the lurch when Rommel pulled stakes on the El Alamein front. Mussolini's abandoned men, in a bad way without food and water, were reported waiting to be picked up when the British clean up squads could get around to them.

Choicest Italian Troops.

Among the beleaguered Italians were the Bologna division, which was in the southern sector of the El Alamein front, and the Trieste division in the north, both including some of Italy's choicest troops.

Today's British war bulletin said the Axis remnants attempted a stand at Fuka, about 50 miles east of Matruh, but it was crushed and from there the main body of Rommel's forces was pushed on beyond Matruh.

At Fuka the Axis forces tried in vain to take advantage of an escarpment which afforded some degree of natural defences but vigorous attacks by British armor nullified their feeble effort.

The figures given officially on Axis losses in manpower were considered here to be extremely conservative and estimates on how much manpower Rommel had left were lacking, but in the words of one military commentator "he has very little".

Earlier front dispatches that the 8th Army was fighting in the Matruh region were supported by the communique, which disclosed that low-flying allied aircraft were pounding the enemy at a "point west of Matruh". It was not considered likely that the allied air forces would waste ammunition on anything but the main body of Rommel's dwindling forces.

Matruh is 104 miles west of El Alamein, where the great push started.

The 20,000 prisoners already accounted for represent at least one-seventh of Rommel's total manpower of perhaps 140,000 in the desert, it was believed. There was no mention of dead, wounded and uncounted prisoners.

Mopping Up Italians.

In addition, British forces were mopping up a number of Italian divisions abandoned on the edge of the Qattara depression when the axis forces began the headlong retreat from the El Alamein line.

The capture of 350 tanks and "many thousands of vehicles" was a crippling blow to the axis army. Many Italian troops were reported stranded simply for the lack of transportation as Rommel apparently piled his German troops into available trucks and headed for Libya.

It was these riding troops who were being blasted off the roads of Egypt and scattered, dead and wounded, along the bordering desert sands.

At the highest estimate of Rommel's armored force, the 350 captured tanks represented a loss of one-third of his striking force. Some estimates of his original force placed his tank strength at 500 vehicles.

While the pursuit continued, heavy bombers carried out attacks on Bengasi and Tobruk, ports of supply for the tattered axis army. At Bengasi hits were made on a tanker and at Tobruk a merchant ship was hit, the communique said.

There was no sign of axis air activity, it was reported.

Allied forces in the immediate battle area were estimated by British quarters at 30 divisions, three of them armored, against 12 axis divisions, including two Nazi and two Italian armored divisions and three motorized divisions.

Nine Killed In Explosion

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 7 — (AP) —A triple inquiry today sought details of an explosion and fire which razed a small building of the Rochester Fireworks Company, killing eight women and one man.

Ten other employees in the one-storey plant in the town of Periton were burned, and some of them may die, hospital officials said.

Federal Bureau of Investigation and army ordnance officials, with the Monroe County sheriff's office, are inquiring into yesterday's blast. Investigators said the explosion resulted when a workman set down or dropped a pan containing powder, causing a friction spark.

Witnesses asserted the explosion was slight, but the ensuing flames trapped the workers without an avenue of escape, Sheriff Albert Skinner said.

The dead were:—

Rose Constanzo, 42; Evelyn M. Bigelow, 27; Angelina Mandell, 31; Viola Close, 60; Mary Parsons, 43; Bertha Archambo, 53; Angelina Morabito, 33, and Fred Steeley, 26, all of East Rochester, and Evelyn Ellis, 48, Fairport.

International at a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

EGYPT — British troops pass Matruh in pursuit of beaten Rommel; new figures show his defeat passed all estimates with possibly 100,000 men killed, captured or otherwise put out of action.

MEDITERRANEAN —Germans report convoy battle in western Mediterranean with large British fleet from Gibraltar involved; rumor without confirmation. This was the fourth day Germans have talked of British ship concentrations in the area.

AERIAL — R.A.F. again blasts Genoa, losing but three planes from large force which Italians admit caused notable damage.

SECOND FRONT—Canadian "dagger pointed at heart of Berlin," reinforced by thousands of troops, airmen; huge convoy arrives without incidents at sea.

ANNIVERSARY — Soviet Russia receives cheering news from all fronts as she celebrates the 25th. anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution; Stalin says "Anglo-Soviet-American coalition" will win but warns a second front in Europe is needed.

PHIL HARRIS AND BAND ENLIST

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (AP)—Orchestra leader Phil Harris and his entire 25-piece band enlisted in the United States marine service. Harris commissioned a Lieutenant, junior grade, said he will continue his radio performances and will contribute his $70,000-a-year salary for a 30-minute appearance on the Jack Benny radio program to the Merchant Seamen Relief.

ALLIED CONVOY FIGHTS 3-DAY BATTLE WITH SUBS

U.S. Navy Department States at Least One Allied Merchantman Sunk

NAZIS FEAR INVASION

Washington, Nov. 7 — (AP) — An Allied convoy recently fought a three-day battle with an enemy submarine pack in the North Atlantic, the United States Navy department disclosed today, and at least one Allied merchantman was sunk.

The fact that the battle had been fought with depth charges and torpedoes churning the ocean for so many hours on end, was given out by the navy incidental to its announcement of the sinking of the merchant vessel, a medium-sized craft of Panamanian registry.

There were 40 survivors of this ship who were landed at an Allied port after four days in life rafts and rowboats. A neutral ship picked them up and brought them to shore and they since have returned to the United States.

The ship went down "on a Sunday afternoon in September," the navy said, declining otherwise to fix the time of the action or to disclose whether more Allied vessels were destroyed by the submarine pack.

Germany Probably Fishing

London, Nov. 7. (CP)—The German radio reported today that a large Allied convoy, previously assembled at Gibraltar, was steaming eastward through the Mediterranean on a mysterious mission, accompanied by a strong escort of warcraft, including the British Battleship Rodney.

(There was no confirmation of the reported ship movements from any Allied source".)

The convoy was said to include transports, freighters and tankers, and there was some speculation in Axis circles whether the ships were headed for Malta or some point in Africa.

According to the Axis reports, the convoy left Gibraltar Thursday, covered by a heavy umbrella of fighter planes. DNB, German news and propaganda agency, previously reported in a dispatch from La Linea, Spain, that 125 war vessels and other craft had assembled in Gibraltar harbor. (These reports likewise were unconfirmed by Allied sources.)

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau suggested that Gibraltar was being made the springboard for a new United Nations offensive of some sort.

The Reuters News Agency correspondent in Tangiers, meanwhile, said Axis circles there believe the war will spread soon to French territory in Africa with Allied landings in French Morocco or at Dakar.

Victory Loan Goes Over $3,000,000 in Hastings; All-Time Record Set

Hastings County did it!

Exceeding the wildest expectations of organizers or general committeemen, this county not only reached and passed its quota of $2,100,000 but will bring its grand total to over $3,000,000, an all-time record for Victory Loan contributions here.

This was announced today by general campaign committee headquarters at 311 Front Street.

The former record stood at $2,900,000 and was made during the last Victory Loan of the First Great War.

Official figures tabulated up to last night revealed that the total for the county stands at $2,214,150 but returns coming in today and the first of the week will bring the total to over the three million dollar mark.

The City of Belleville, according to Friday night's figures has contributed $698,750 or 103 per cent of its quota of $675,000.

Trenton's contribution thus far is $300,000 or 111 per cent; Sidney and Thurlow, $231,000 or 96 per cent; Deseronto, $70,450 or 94 per cent; Stirling and district, $90,100 or 79 per cent; Tweed and district $69,500 or 77 per cent; Madoc and district, $101,650 or 92 per cent, and Bancroft and district, $76,350 or 70 per cent.

Past Last Loan.

Ottawa (CP). — Canada's Third Victory Loan reached a cumulative total of $879,573,300 at the close of business Friday, National Headquarters announced today. Already well past the minimum objective of $750,000,000 workers across Canada were reported engaged in a last-minute drive to push the final total to the highest possible point.

The new total carried the Third Victory Loan some $27,000,000 beyond the final figure of the Second Victory Loan. At a corresponding stage the Second Loan had a total of $768,960,800.

Friday's business amounted to $57,607,750 and brought the total number of subscribers to 1,218,969, officials reported. Prince Edward Island, the seventh province to hoist a pennant, achieved its objective yesterday and workers there said they would push on for as much money as could be obtained.

ALLIED ADVANCES IN SOUTH PACIFIC COLLIDE WITH JAPS

Enemy Paying Heavily for Unsuccessful Efforts to Regain Lost Ground

BUNA BATTLE RAGING

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—American and Allied advances in the Solomons and New Guinea battlefronts had crashed headon into suddenly-stiffened Japanese resistance today with enemy troops paying heavily for unsuccessful efforts to regain lost ground. Lodged between two Nipponese forces awaiting a chance to spring on the American-held airbase in Guadalcanal, marines and soldiers beat off several strong enemy assaults from the west, the navy reported last night.

They clung to their land gains obtained in an offensive that was started last Sunday, the navy said, and repulsed the counter-attacks from the west with "heavy losses to the enemy."

East of the airfield near Koli Point where the foe twice succeeded in landing reinforcements for a Japanese concentration in the past few days, the battle lines remained unchanged. Further attacks, however, were expected hourly.

The Japanese attempts to stall the offensive in Guadalcanal occurred the night of Nov. 4-5, the navy said, and drew withering fire from ground forces and planes.

Enemy Troops Shrafed

The aircraft strafed enemy troops and installations continuously, the communique said no Japanese aerial opposition was mentioned and apparently the American planes retained control of the air.

The Allied advance in New Guinea to the west of the Solomons also collided with Japanese ground troops and presumably a fierce battle is raging about 50 miles south of the enemy's coastal base at Buna.

Headquarters announced today (South Pacific time) the Allied troops which have pushed the Japanese back more than half way across the island from their drive on the Port Moresby base, had encountered strong resistance near Oivi.

Allied bombers for the third successive day raided enemy-occupied towns in Portugese Timor, northwest of Australia, dropping explosives on barracks and supply installations and starting several fires.

Japanese casualties in the three-months old Solomons campaign were estimated by Navy Secretary Frank Knox at more than four or five times as great as the American losses.

NOW IT'S THE "WEDS"

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 7 (AP).—The United States army has its W.A.A.C.'s, the navy its W.A.V.E.S., and now comes the "WEDS".

A Women's Emergency Defence Service has been organized at the Springfield Report Centre as a means of attracting air-raid precautions volunteers. WEDS members will wear natty blue uniforms with white collars and red and white pocket insignia.

WILLKIE STRESSES IMPORTANCE OF TURKEY, N. AFRICA

Asks for Definition of Britain's Stand on Atlantic Charter

PRAISES MONTGOMERY

New York, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie declared last night that North Africa and the region around Turkey might well be "The area in which our war may be won or lost" and called on Prime Minister Churchill to define clearly Great Britain's stand on the Atlantic Charter.

In a speech at a forum sponsored by the New York Times Willkie said the United States should do its utmost to lead Turkey and added:

"They are prepared to bargain. They would like to deal with us. They produce, in Turkey, nearly one quarter of the world's supply of chrome. Their tobacco and their cotton are badly needed by other countries. With these assets, the Turks can buttress their neutrality, for the time, at any rate. But this will not be for a long time, I am convinced, unless we help them.

Turkey's Needs

"They need foodstuffs, wheat especially, and they need manufactures and machinery. We are today the only country which can adequately supply them. I deeply believe that it is to our interest to do so, as far as we are able, to prevent Turkey's resources from going to our enemies, and to preserve the neutrality of a country which wants to be our friend."

It was his impression, Willkie said, that Turkey is "a very respectable problem for any aggressor nation which might want to use Turkey as a highway to conquest of the East."

The 1940 Republican Presidential candidate said he was glad that President Roosevelt "stated clearly and without reservation" that as far as the United States in concerned "The Atlantic Charter applies to the entire world."

Prime Minister Churchill, however, has spoken "in somewhat different language," Willkie asserted. He read from a speech made by Mr. Churchill in which the Prime Minister said that Atlantic Charter did "not qualify in any way the various statements of policy which had been made from time to time about the development of constitutional government in India, Burma, or other parts of the British Empire."

This statement, Willkie said, caused "bewildered despair" in the Middle East and Far East.

The President and Prime Minister should get together and be "concise and clear and specific" in what they mean about the Atlantic Charter, Willkie asserted.

Public Opinion.

Willkie said that comment on his broadcast report of his globe-circling trip had pleased him greatly.

STALIN PLEDGES NEW RED BLOWS AGAINST ENEMY

'Can and Must Clear Hitlerite Filth From Soviet Soil' Says Order of Day

COUNTRY PRAISED

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP) — The Russians celebrated the 25th. Anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution today with encouraging reports from defence fronts and the assurance by Premier Stalin that new Soviet counter-blows soon would fall upon Hitler's battle-depleted armies.

"We can and must clear the Hitlerite filth from our Soviet soil," Stalin declared in an order of the day.

While tension mounts in the fighting zones, the war leader said, the Soviet people have merged from their trials with honor "and are filled with an unshakeable faith in victory."

He said more than 8,000,000 invaders have been put out of action and that the day is not far off when the German legions—"watered down with Rumanians, Hungarians, Italians and Finns"—will feel the force of fresh Red army blows.

Following up a statement yesterday that the Allies will open a second front "sooner or later," Stalin announced gains made by the Germans since June through the concentration of forces against Stalingrad and the Caucasus.

"The Red army is carrying the full weight of the war against Hitlerite Germany and its accomplices," he said. "By its self-sacrificing struggle against the Fascist army it has won the love and respect of all freedom-loving peoples of the world."

(The order of the day did not speak of the Egyptian offensive, the Allied air and sea war against the Axis nor the supply of aid to Russia from British and American factories.)

Wear Down Enemy is Order

Stalin said it is essential to hold present defences and wear down the enemy; to strengthen discipline, perfect training and prepare for the offensive; and to "fan the flames" of guerilla warfare at the Nazi rear.

Messages of greeting and congratulation on the anniversary streamed to Moscow from friendly governments and individuals. Workmen took the day off, arranging to make up the lost time Sunday.

Stalingrad troops threw the Germans from two fortified points in a factory area and wiped out about a company of infantry, the noon communique said today.

"On a southern sector of the city's defences a Red army detachment destroyed nine blockhouses and killed about 180 German officers and men," it was announced.

Raiders Encounter Difficult Weather Conditions on Trip

Preliminary Reports Indicate Assault Concentrated And Highly Successful

2 BOMBERS MISSING

London, Nov. 7 (CP).—Britain's big, home-based bombers revisited Italy last night for the fifth time since late October, showering Genoa with fire and explosives which, by the Italians' own word, inflicted "notable damage" on Italy's most important supply port for the axis armies in North Africa.

The Air Ministry called the attack "concentrated and effective" and the Italian communique itself said that "particular damage was reported in the centre of the town, and in the eastern part notable damage was caused."

The long haul to and fro over much of the length of continental Europe and twice across the Alps was made in bad weather, the British communique said, but the night skies opened over Genoa and the bombers were able to unload on clear targets.

Casualties so far counted are 20 persons killed and 50 wounded, the Italian communique said. Both it and the British bulletin placed the R.A.F.'s losses at two planes.

It was the third night in three weeks that British "block-buster" bombs have fallen on Genoa which besides its importance as a port, also is the site of the Ansaldo warship building yards.

Although there was no indication from the Air Ministry of the size of the raiding force, a DNB broadcast that wave after wave of planes passed over Vichy after midnight and that the return flight lasted 45 minutes suggested the attack again was on a scale of 100 or more planes.

Show Signs of Panic.

The R.A.F.'s heavyweight battering of Italy, whose people have shown signs of panic in the air assaults, apparently is co-ordinated with the offensive in North Africa. Rome's communique specifically complimented the Genoans' discipline under air assault.

Genoa also was the target on the opening night, the eve of the 8th Army's offensive in Egypt. That was Oct. 22. The next night, big British bombers again blasted Genoa, causing such a scramble for shelter that dozens were reported killed in the crash, and also hit Savona and Turin. Milan was hit in daylight of the same day, Oct. 23, and again the following night. A Canadian squadron played a part in the first smash at Milan.

Last night's attack was the first night raid on either the Italian or German homeland since then.

Body of Woman Found in River

Wingham, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP).—Missing from the home of her sister, Mrs. John Johnson, for over five days, the body of Miss Eliza Marshall was found yesterday in the Maitland River. Search parties and police covered miles of country and were instrumental in dragging the Maitland River on several occasions. Ideal weather and a lower water level enabled searchers yesterday to get a good view of the river depths.

The body was located in several feet of water, not far from the Johnson home. A post mortem is under way to determine cause of death. Dr. R. C. Redmond is coroner and viewing the remains are Dr. W. M. Connell and Dr. W. A. Crawford.

Miss Marshall was a native of Park Head district and a former missionary to West China for 17 years. Fifteen years ago she came to Ontario to live with her sister, Mrs. J. Johnson of Wingham.

Surviving are two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. John Johnson, Wingham; Mrs. Laura Jamieson, Gilbert and Edward Marshall all of British Columbia.

Empire Parliament Suggested by Journalist

Halifax, Nov. 7 (CP).—An Empire Federation, with an Empire Parliament, Common Foreign Office and Defence Council for the British Commonwealth of Nations as a means of promoting better understanding, was suggested here last night by the Austrian journalist, Franz Klein, in an address to The Canadian Club. He said the Dominions should have a hand in formulating policies, instead of following Britain's lead.

Saw Service in Solomons, Robbed on Way Home

Denver, Nov. 7 (AP)—William Magnuson, 20, United States navy shipfitter, was on a submarine that helped sink three Japanese cruisers in the Solomon Island area. He came through without a scratch. But en route home a pickpocket lifted $88, all of his money and then an automobile wreck left him cut and bruised.

Canadian Air Ace Says Being Fighter Pilot Best Fun in World

(Written For The Canadian Press)
By PO. C. F. Beurling, D.S.O., D.F.C., D.F.M., and Bar

London, Nov. 7 (CP Cable)—I wonder, sometimes if my mother is pleased with what I've done. Sometimes I think she worries about me but I hope she doesn't because there's nothing for her to worry about.

That last day when I got shot down with a small splinter of shrapnel through my heel I was afraid she would think I was badly hurt; and then that day when we crashed at Gibraltar somehow or other word got around that I had broken my leg and I want to tell her now I am perfectly okay and that even this business with my heel will be cleaned up by Nov. 16. Right now I feel fine but it would be good to get home for a few weeks and see the family.

I am just another fighter pilot. I don't know why anybody should want to hear my story because there is nothing unusual about it. Ever since I was a kid I've been nuts about flying. In fact, come to think of it, flying is about all I've ever been interested in. I used to hang around the airport at Cartierville and watch the people flying there.

Flying at 17

A little later when I got old enough—most people didn't think I was old enough but I knew I could handle it all right—I began to fly myself. By the time I was 17 I had about 40 hours' flying time and a permit to fly.

I remember when the Finnish war was on in 1940 (I was 17 then) I thought it would be great to go to Finland and fly there. Then in the summer I tried to join the R.C.A.F. but I didn't have enough schooling and the recruiting officer told me I should go back to school for a while and then I probably could enlist alright as a R.C.A.F. pilot.

But I couldn't have stayed at school because flying had got into my bones. I figured my best bet was to go to England and try to join the R.A.F. I hadn't very much money so I signed up with the crew of a freighter and crossed the Atlantic. When I got to England I went to an R.A.F. recruiting centre and told them I wanted to be a pilot.

Preparations for Raids on Axis Coasts Carried Out in Detail

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Nov. 7—(CP) — By air, sea and Commando reconnaissance along the struggling European coast, the United Nations prepare the way for large-scale raids on German garrisons.

Accurate detailed information about the enemy is essential to such daring operations and to obtain this information there probably is plenty going on these autumn days and nights along that coast.

The Germans themselves have mentioned that small Commando landings have been made recently, such as the one on Sark. The British keep mum about activities of their sea-going scouts that go and come in the night with knives and automatic weapons but it is no secret that the Commandos are hitting their stride now.

These advance reconnaissances by the Commandos have produced a great deal of vital information for intelligence officers in London who piece it together with information from other sources and produce a composite picture of German coastal strength.

Planning for a raid involves intensive study by officers and men of every aspect of the target and from maps and photographs produced by the intelligence departments they can get to know the raid area as famililiarly as their own camp in England.

Study of German positions on the European coast has been going on since Dunkerque. A few small-time Commando reconnaissances proved worthwhile from the start. The scouting program grew to large proportions and a considerable number of Commando units was formed.

Save Lives by Risking Own

Here and there you see Commando troops. Perhaps that night they will be roaming some foreign beach, checking the shale, the cliffs, gun locations and emplacements and probably tangling with German guards before returning at dawn.

The Commandos have done a big job and preparations for "such raids as Dieppe are based to a considerable degree on what the Commandos discovered on night sorties. These troops are saving lives in the future by risking their own in thrilling encounters now.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR MISSING MAN

Provincial police are assisting the Prince Edward County authorities in an effort to locate 84-year-old Jerry Kenny, of the Milford Road near Picton, who has been missing since early Friday afternoon. The elderly man left his farm searching for a stray cow and failed to return at sundown Friday. A posse was organized and searched the surrounding area all Friday night without locating the man. Saturday Provincial Police joined in the search, but at noon no reports had been received indicating the finding of Mr. Kenny.

BOY ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY

Seven-year-old Joseph Gibson, 135 East Dundas street, narrowly escaped serious injury when he ran into the side of a passing motor car near his home early Friday evening. The lad was playing alongside the street curb when he suddenly ran in front of a passing motor car and into the path of another automobile driven by Wilbert Kiser, 21 Franklin street and was knocked to the pavement where he sustained a bruised forehead and leg injuries. Dr. Scott attended the youth and later informed police the lad was not seriously hurt. Eye witnesses stated Mr. Kiser's vision was blocked by the motor car driven in the opposite direction.

BEAVER TRAPPING SEASON OPENS DEC. 1

The official beaver trapping season will open on December 1 and last through to Dec. 21 inclusive, Game and Fisheries Inspector Herbert McCabe announced today. Pelts must be disposed of within ten days of the closing date.

Beaver is fairly plentiful in Hastings County, the inspector stated, while current prices are said to be good. Each trapper is allowed only ten skins, and the ordinary trapping licence will cover the operations.

MRS. MARGARET ANGOR
(Madoc)

A patient in the Belleville General Hospital since October 12th, Mrs. Margaret Angor, aged 45, of Madoc, passed away on Friday, Nov. 6. She leaves to mourn her death, her father, Mr. Thomas Hailstone, also of Madoc.

MRS. DAVID WHYTOCK
(Warner, New Hampshire)

Madoc —(Special)— Relatives in Madoc and vicinity were shocked to hear of the passing of Mrs. David Whytock at Warner, N.H., U.S.A. Mrs. Whytock was formerly Isabelle Fleming, daughter of the late Robert and Samantha Fleming and was born in Huntingdon Township 72 years ago. Just last November she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Warner. She took an active part in her church and particularly in the war work of the community. Besides her husband, David Whytock, she is survived by four daughters (Jennie) Mrs. Glenty of Warner, (Vada) Mrs. Martin of Warner, (Marjory) Mrs. Jordon, Old Orchard, Maine, and Dorothea, of Warner; One brother, Richard Fleming, of Huntingdon Township; Five sisters, Mrs. H. Rollins of Ivanhoe, Ont., Mrs. Ed. Blakely, Tweed, Ont., Mrs. W. Holbert, Thomasburg, Ont., Mrs. Stevenson, Holloway, Ont., Miss Alice Fleming, Stirling, Ont.

District Hunters Return With Quota

Although the weather has not been ideal for good deer hunting, already several local hunters are back from the northern parts of the county proudly exhibiting trophies of the chase as their reward for a few days' tramping in the woods.

Clarence Thompson of Belleville has returned from the Bannockburn district, having already attained his quota and reports another hunter in the same lodge shooting a 300-pound buck, one of the largest ever to be shot in the district.

George Ketcheson and Douglas Ketcheson, 5th of Sidney, have returned from Wadsworth Lake district north of Gunter, boasting of a buck between them. Their success in the woods is reported to be rather disappointing, but it was a different story on their trip home.

The two Sidney men had packed their hunting paraphernalia and were resigned to making the homeward trip empty-handed when suddenly fate intervened. Shortly after leaving the camp in their auto they were surprised to see a handsome buck dart across the road in front of them. Quickly stopping their car and grabbing their rifles the Ketchesons stalked the deer a short distance through the bush and were successful in bringing him down.

B.C.I. Cyclists Given Warning

Belleville police today issued warnings to cyclists, especially students from the Collegiate Institute, who make a practice of cycling speedily down Campbell St. hill and enter Pinnacle St. without observing the stop street.

Police and teachers at the Collegiate have both issued warnings against this practice and unless it is discontinued immediately charges of failing to stop at a designated stop street or even the reckless operation of a bicycle may have to be preferred against these careless cyclists in order to stop this careless practice," stated city police officials today.

NO ROAD INSPECTION

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP) — Wentworth County Council's road committee won't go on a trip this year, but the war effort will benefit by it. Instead of inspecting county roads, the committee will stay at home and conserve gasoline and rubber.

PERMIT IS CANCELLED

Edmonton, Nov. 7 — (CP) — William Carnill, Edmonton selective service officer, said today that permits issued to a mine company operating in the Coal Branch mining district, to employ five women as "rock-pickers" had been cancelled because under the Alberta Mines Act, no women can be employed in mine workings.

P. E. County Oversubscribes Loan Quota

Picton, Nov. 7—Maintaining its record for exceeding its quota in every Victory Loan campaign during the present conflict as well as during the last war, Prince Edward County, Friday went over the top with total subscriptions of $720,000. The minimum objective of $645,000 was oversubscribed by $75,000. Canvassers are confident that by tonight the loan will have been over-subscribed by 25 per cent. A total of $105,000 was obtained from special names. The R.C.A.F. at Mountain View passed the forty thousand dollar mark yesterday. Largest subscriber was W. H. Benson, local canner.

Service at Cenotaph

Stores are closing for an hour Wednesday morning when a service is held at the Cenotaph. Rev. J. F. Reycraft will be in charge and Rev. J. B. Creeggan will be the speaker. Taking part in the parade will be flights of airmen from the R.A.F., Picton, and R.C.A.F., Mountain View, a bugle band from the latter station, War Veterans, Collegiate Cadets, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, town and County Council members, members of 'C' and 'D' Companies of the Second Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and others. In the evening, the Legion is holding its annual smoker.

Eggs Maintain Firm Prices

Egg prices firmed slightly on the local produce market this morning with Grade "A" in several instances being quoted at 55 cents the dozen. Others asked 50 cents the dozen with mediums bringing 48 cents and pullets 45 cents the dozen. The fowl offerings were large with prices ranging from 30 to 32 cents the pound, with the average bird bringing from $1.35 to $1.60. A few ducks sold at prices ranging from $1.75 to $2.25 each. Butter sold at the usual 40 cents the pound, although a few vendors asked 85 cents per two-pound roll.

Apples again predominated on the outside market with top-grade McIntosh bringing $2.25 per bushel, and good grade Spys, Talman Sweets selling from $1.75 to $2 per hamper. Snows were $1.75 and cooking apples up to $1.50 per bushel. As a by-product from the apple crop considerable cider was offered on the market.

Potatoes brought the usual $2 per bag with the offering being limited in quantity. Cauliflower has almost disappeared from the market, only small sizes being offered selling up to 20 cents each. Spanish onions brought 65 and 70 cents the peck, parsnips, carrots and turnips, 35 to 40 cents the peck.

Whitefish held steady at 28 cents the pound with herring and pike bringing 20 cents. Suckers sold at three fish for 25 cents.

A limited quantity of honey was offered at 70 cents per four-pound can. Some comb honey sold at 10 to 15 cents the square.

Young pigs were not as plentiful as last week but held at the usual $6 to $7.50 each.

POLICE BLOTTER

Police today are investigating attempts to break and enter the garage at the rear of the Walker Hardware Company. Store officials informed the authorities that on a previous occasion similar efforts to enter the garage were observed, but entrance was not effected.

Oshawa Car Stolen.

Oshawa police reported the theft of a 1929 model Buick sedan bearing Ontario licence plates number 23-M-52 late Friday night.

Damage Results.

Considerable property damage resulted to motor cars when an automobile driven by John Lloyd, Belleville, was in collision with another automobile on Station street, Friday. The second vehicle was being parked along the boulevard in front of 46 Station street by Ray Latta when the impact took place. Police investigated and the matter of settlement was amicably arrived at between the parties concerned.

Disturbances Probed.

Two disturbances were investigated by city police in the downtown area late Friday night resulting in two airmen being held for investigation following the altercations.

DROWNED IN SHALLOW SWAMP

Montreal, Nov. 7 (CP).—Rosalyn Fraser, two, was drowned yesterday in a shallow swamp near her home. An inquest will be held.

Lawrence Ketcheson Elected Pres. Sidney Conservatives

Gordon Graydon in Address Calls for More Forceful Leadership in War Effort

OFFICERS NAMED

Calling for a more forceful government leadership toward a greater Canadian total war effort and asking "fair play" for farmers, laborers and dependents of men in the Canadian armed services, Mr. Gordon Graydon, M.P., for Peel county, prophesied new party policies would be set forth at the Conservative national convention scheduled for Winnipeg next month.

Mr. Graydon, national chairman of the Conservative party, addressed a meeting of Sidney township Conservatives at their annual meeting held in Sidney town hall Friday evening at which Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson was elected president for the coming year. At the same meeting Mrs. Earl Bush was re-appointed to head the Sidney Women's Conservative club. Mr. Ketcheson replaces Murney Reynolds, who has been head of the Sidney Conservatives for the past two years.

Brighter Future Predicted

From its present role as opposition to the government, a great future for the Conservative party was predicted by Mr. Graydon. He declared that from the recent Port Hope conference the framework for the Winnipeg convention was made. The Conservative party has a great responsibility, but to survive it must "meet modern problems with modern views."

Asserting that the Conservatives have never been criticized for lack of loyalty to the Crown and that this policy would be reaffirmed and reiterated at the Winnipeg convention. Mr. Graydon declared only one real issue faced Canada today. This was "Shall we emerge victorious or shall we face defeat? Narrow party partisanship must go in wartime," he claimed.

In their responsibility as opposition to the government, the duty of the Conservatives was not to tear down but to build up, and to raise the party to a position ready to assume power. When a government fails to satisfy, it must be replaced, and the Conservatives must be ready.

Wants More Farmers on Wartime Boards

The speaker called for a more equal representation of agriculture on the many wartime boards, declaring that farmers represented almost one half the total population of Canada but had little equitable representation.

The Conservatives now have an opportunity to espouse agriculture as never before, asserted Mr. Graydon. He claimed the farmers were far from satisfied with the present government.

Cost of living bonuses for soldiers' dependents were "long overdue," according to the speaker. Also a grave responsibility was faced in the rehabilitation of members of the armed forces. "What happened before must never happen again," he claimed.

Stating the question of the future of Canada may well be bound up in the Winnipeg convention, Mr. Graydon expressed the hope that a "sincere and faithful instrument of democracy" might evolve.

"Throw away some of the old ideas and policies, blaze a new trail in the history of Canada and bring forth honesty of purpose and sincerity of objective," were Mr. Graydon's convert hopes for the Winnipeg Conservative convention.

Need to Forget Party Politics

Mr. R. D. Arnott, M.L.A. for West Hastings, briefly addressed the meeting and urged "getting away from party politics until the war is won." Nevertheless, as the result of the recent "earthquake" in Queen's Park, he foresaw a provincial general election "possibly next spring."

"The Liberal party may at the present time seem divided but at election time they seem to have the happy faculty of pulling together," stated Mr. Arnott. He claimed that the Conservatives must be ready for the next election.

Other speakers of the evening were Mr. Fred Wilson, Reeve of Sidney township, Mr. Harry Rollins of Belleville, and Mr. George Stokes, who introduced the guest speaker. Appreciation of the Sidney Conservatives was expressed by William Rogers. Chairman for the evening was Murney Reynolds.

List of Officers

The complete list of officers for the Sidney Conservative Association for next year is as follows: Lawrence Ketcheson, president; Carmen Frost, 1st vice president; Alex Tanner, 2nd vice president; Frank Woods, secretary treasurer. Poll chairmen are: Avondale, George Bush; Gilberts, Earl Bush; Quinte View, Frank Sandercock; Johnstown, Basil Brooks; Town Hall, Carmen Frost; Sniders, Clayton Appleby; Glen Ross, Ed. Palmer; Somerset, Ross Holland, and Turners, Leslie Finkle.

Officers of the Sidney Ladies' Conservative Association are: Mrs. Earl Bush, president; 1st vice president, Mrs. W. E. Tummon; Mrs. Alex Tanner, secretary treasurer. Poll Chairmen are: Avondale, Mrs. C. Holmes; Gilberts, Mrs. Fred Moon; Quinte View, Mrs. S. Reid; Johnstown, Mrs. Curtiss; Town Hall, Mrs. Frank Moon; Sniders, Mrs. Badgley; Glen Ross, Mrs. Ed. Pycar; Somerset, Mrs. S. Danford and Turners, Mrs. R. Wright.

HUNTED, HUNTER KILLED

Dundas, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP)—The hunter fared no better than the hunted in a chase here. A dog chased a rabbit and both ran out on the highway, only to be killed by an automobile.

GOES TO CHILE

Warwick F. Chipman, prominent Montreal lawyer, and professor of civil law at McGill University, goes to Chile as the first Canadian minister. Mr. Chipman is one of the founders of the League of Nations' Society of Canada.

Farley Faulkner Now in Britain

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 7—(CP)—Tall, fair Lieut. J. Farley Faulkner, of Belleville, Ont. former newspaperman and Hollywood critic, cast aside his ambitions to become a film director and joined the army because, as he said, "It's far more interesting to actually live history than it is to merely record it. Faulkner is now overseas with the troops whose arrival has just been announced.

Faulkner is a son of the Hon. J. A. Faulkner, former Ontario Health Minister and present Chairman of the Mothers' Allowance Board in that province.

Newspaper experience of two years with the Toronto Star and reporting from Hollywood for the Winnipeg Free Press and Ottawa Journal during 1937 to 1940 helped Faulkner qualify as a movie critic.

Now a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Faulkner was officer commanding instruction at the Borden Ordnance base workshop before going overseas and also had been instructing at the camps in Kitchener and Brampton, Ont.

"Most of the boys are over there already," he said, "and I'll sure be glad to see them again. I want to make sure they haven't forgotten what I taught them!"

WILLKIE STRESSES

"It has confirmed my feeling that the deep drift of public opinion, which works powerfully but quietly, has already moved ahead of many of our leaders," he said.

Earlier today Willkie praised Lt.-Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British 8th Army, as the "Fighting General" of North Africa and commended him "to some of our arm-chair strategists who take the platform instead of the battlefield."

Willkie spoke at an open-air ceremony marking the presentation of 100 sealed hospital tents, each 16 by 50 feet, to Russian War Relief, Inc., by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

OLD CANNON TO AID RUSSIANS

Port Colborne, Ont., Nov. 7—(CP)—A cannon captured from the Russians more than 76 years ago and long an ornament here will aid the Reds in the second Great War. It has been turned over to the salvage campaign to be made into munitions.

STALIN PLEDGES

Fortifications Wrecked

Further Nazi fortifications were reported wrecked by Soviet shellfire on the steppes northeast of the city, now in its 75th. day of siege.

About 1,000 of the enemy were declared to have perished in vain efforts yesterday to expand their holdings in Stalingrad, falling back to their original lines despite tank and plane support.

A tank-supported infantry brigade struck at Russian defence positions before the Caucasian slopes southeast of Nalchik, but was driven off with heavy losses, the communique said.

"Two Soviet armored trains, in a six-hour battle, knocked out ten German tanks and armored cars, brought down a German plane and dispersed about two companies of enemy infantry," it was added.

STALIN PLEDGES ..........

Holding in All Sectors

Mopping-up operations progressed northeast of Tuapse and booty was reported captured. Soviet troops destroyed an enemy group which fought on despite encirclement, killing 170, the communique said.

The midnight communique indicated that Soviet lines were holding in every active sector. Red navy warships were credited with sinking in the Baltic Sea a 15,000-ton German transport, one of "many a hundred" Axis troop carriers, supply vessels and battle craft destroyed in the war.

Defenders of Stalingrad breasted infantry and tank attacks and heavy bombing, but forced the Germans back to their original positions, the communique said.

"About 1,000 of the enemy were killed," it was announced. "Eleven tanks, 20 trucks and a large number of blockhouses were destroyed."

Soviet artillerymen blasted German equipment on the steppes northwest of the city and broke up a 400-man concentration in a ravine, the communique said.

About 400 German troops and 5 tanks were declared sacrificed in three vain attacks upon Russian positions before central Caucasus passes southeast of Nalchik.

RAIDERS

That only 13 R.A.F. planes have been downed in all five assaults on Italy was hailed by British sources as remarkable in view of the massive numbers involved, the enemy's opportunities for interception over the long continental skyway and the fact that one of the blows was struck in daylight.

Announcement of the raids — which represented a round trip of more than 1,300 miles—was preceded by a Vichy radio broadcast reporting that anti-aircraft guns at Lyons had opened fire at foreign planes which flew over that French city during the night.

Yesterday, however, Allied fighter planes, some piloted by Canadians, made sweeps over targets in Occupied France while R.A.F. bombers pounded objectives in northwest Germany, including Osnabrueck.

The sweeps over northern France extended along coast from Cherbourg to Boulogne and included attacks on shipping and airdromes. Shipping also was attacked in Dutch Harbors.

Three bombers were reported lost in the operations.

CHINESE 200 PER CENT.

Dundalk, Ont., Nov. 7—(CP)—The Chinese in Dundalk are 200 per cent. behind the war effort. Chong Box, only Chinese resident said, "Me take a hundred," when asked to buy a $50 Third Victory Bond.

BABY NAMED ALERT

Baltimore, Nov. 7 (AP).—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Rossa McGrady during Baltimore's first surprise air-raid alert yesterday, Proud Pap McGrady, an aircraft worker, announced his offspring would be named Alert McGrady.

CANADIAN AIR

Had to Get Permission

They asked me how old I was. I told them and they said I'd have to get written permission from my parents before they would allow me to enlist, and also I must produce my pilot's licence and a few other documents.

Rather than wait to get these sent over, I signed up on another freighter and went back to Canada. When I landed I had quite a bit of money and I knew my mother loved driving in the Mountain so I hired a car and took her up for a long trip.

Then I got all my necessary documents together, signed up on another freighter and came to England. This time the R.A.F. accepted me. After my training they made me a fighter pilot. That was what I'd always wanted because I thought then, and still think, it's the best fun in the world.

People keep asking me what my system is. There's nothing particularly complicated about it. It's a matter of training and practice and it's perfectly simple for anybody to follow if they only apply themselves. It's a matter of training your eyes to focus swiftly on any small object that's out there.

Must Spot Enemy First

I think this is the most important because the longer I fly and the more operations I see, the more I'm convinced that in this racket it's the man who spots the other man first who comes out on top in the end. Given good eyesight and lots of practice, there's no reason why any pilot shouldn't be able to train himself to do this.

But after he's spotted the enemy the next thing is to shoot him down. I personally say that no pilot can ever get enough shooting practice. It so happens I've been interested in shooting ever since I could hold a gun ans since I became a fighter pilot, I've devoted a lot of time to shooting with particular reference to air firing.

There must be lots of Canadian boys now training all across Canada who will be fighter pilots soon and I want to say to them that if they want to make a success of it they must never stop practising — practising by shooting all the time and training their eyes to be sharp.

I don't think they should find it very hard.

6 ITALIAN

Not even stopping for the thousands of German and Italian prisoners lining their route, hundreds of tanks and trucks poured westward in an effort to smash and destroy the much-touted African corps.

Six Italian divisions totalling perhaps 80,000 men, were reported in a bad plight in the desert, their communications cut and facing possible annihilation or surrender.

Allied airmen, including Canadians, droned over the coastal road, choked with Axis troops and vehicles, dropping their bombs into the writhing columns and causing indescribable confusion.

Strewn With Axis Dead

Already Allied planes are using the airport at El Daba, 33 miles west of El Alamein. So swift was the Allied advance once it started that a special R.A.F. regiment seized more than 200 prisoners at the airport and destroyed more than 50 enemy aircraft, including several gliders, on the ground. The dispersal areas were strewn with Axis dead, mostly Germans.

Sharp upward revisions of the number of Axis prisoners are expected. The figure of 339 enemy tanks captured or destroyed also is expected to rise. In the El Daba region alone, correspondents said, 300 enemy guns are either captured by the Allied troops or abandoned by the Germans.

Prisoners Streaming Back

Axis prisoners were streaming back to the rear past the bodies of former comrades in arms. Some of them were packed into their own trucks and driven to prisoner depots.

Fuka, 62 miles west of El Alamein, also is in Allied hands and is being used as a forward base for the relentless pursuit of the enemy.

Following up the advance were detachments of road repairmen who hastily cleared away obstacles and patched up bomb craters to permit the orderly movement of Allied tanks and vehicles. They encountered weird scenes of death and destruction.

Bombers, blasting the road from the air, twisted and piled up Axis tanks and trucks in baffling tangles. Bodies of Rommel's troopers were blown yards off the road. Whole truckloads of wounded and dead were stalled along the wayside.

While the mass of the remaining Axis armored equipment was believed headed for the Libyan border, there were reports of many enemy tanks in the desert south of El Daba.

The fleeing Germans on the northern road are not in fighting formation, it was said, and they were reported to be offering little resistance to the vicious jabs at their flanks by armored forces. West of Matruh, 104 miles west of El Alamein, the Allied air forces were reported bombing concentrations of the retreating enemy. Matruh is a little less than half way between El Alamein and the Libyan border.

Situation Confusing

The situation of the Italian divisions reported trapped in the desert is confusing. They are said to be stranded far south of the coastal road at the Axis anchor positions on the Qattara depression. One dispatch said New Zealand troops have passed between the Italians and the depression on a dash to the Libyan frontier to help pin Rommel's forces against the Mediterranean.

Early today the German radio asserted that a large convoy of freighters and the British battleship Rodney steamed away from Gibraltar into the Mediterranean yesterday. The convoy included transports and tankers, the broadcast reported, and there was some speculation in Axis circles whether it was bound for Malta or some destination in North Africa. There was no confirmation from Allied sources of this report or of earlier German reports that a large concentration of warships was anchored at Gibraltar.

Varied Program Given In Victory Loan Concert

A special Halloween concert and Victory Loan program was presented in the local school on Thursday evening. Mr. J. Chard, principal and his pupils revealed that much splendid preparation had been done to give the visitor an evening's treat. Judges for the costumes were Mrs. Mac Sadler and Howard Ashley and prizes were given to Lois Cooke, Helen Ashley, Marjorie Wright, Gordon Duncan, Alma Wallace and Bernard Hunt. While in costume 13 members of the school gave a fine exhibition of folk-dancing.

The main part of the program opened with "O Canada" and Mr. Kenneth Stewart, acting as chairman, Recitations were given by Geo. Peet, Jack Haggerty, Eleanor Wright, and Gordon Donnan. Parts of the play "Snow White" were presented by several of the school with Lois Emmerson taking the part of Queen.

The play "Victory Picture" as prepared by the schools by the Department of Education was then received with Joyce Wallace portraying the victory picture.

A number of stunts, contests, patriotic songs and Hallowe'en items interspersed the program. The National Anthem was sung, candies and apples served and the Canadian work projects arranged by the pupils displayed.

Collectors for the Upper Canada Bible Society met in calling at each home and it is hoped that this worthy cause which is a part of the British and Foreign Bible Society will be generously supported. The object of the society is to provide the Bible for every man in his own tongue without cost or comment at cost price or less to those who can buy and free to those who cannot afford to pay.

The ladies of Fuller United and Fuller Presbyterian churches purposed two successful dinners and quilting bees in the local hall this week. One on Wednesday at Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Adams and another on Friday at Mr. and Mrs. Herb Kellar, at the latter the threshers arrived to finish their work for the season on Mr. Kellar's farm and their presence added to the crowd and swelled the funds.

Mrs. Mary Adams celebrated her 85th birthday on Sunday. Her many friends will be pleased to learn that she is enjoying the best of health. A number called on Sunday to offer congratulations. Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McPee of Keene, Mr. and Mrs. William Nuttall of Hilton.

Mrs. Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson and has lived in the community her entire life and a wide circle of friends join in wishing her many more happy birthdays.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr were: Mrs. Ethel Danford and Mrs. G. Scott of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brimmell and family of Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McKeown and son of Minto, Mr. and Mrs. Don Rodgers of Stirling.

Local boys of wild geese were noticed this week enroute south in formation flying. According to oldtimers prediction, winter is hard by.

The school children were given a pleasant surprise this week when it was made known that the school hours for the winter months would be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Walt of Toronto, spent a few days recently with Mr. Lockhart and Mr. and Mrs. Morley Hagerty.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Marilyn attended the Johnston-ollinger wedding at Foxboro on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vandome and Denyse, Sarah and Arthur Wilson were Tuesday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Ashley and George.

Mr. John Green, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ashley, Gerald and Lucy of the 4th line Rawdon were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Green.

Mrs. Morley Haggerty spent a few days last week with friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Foster Wilson, Mrs. William Vandome, Mrs. Annie Bates, Sarah and Arthur Wilson were Thursday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Preston of Havelock.

Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ashley were Mr. and Mrs. William Nuttell of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Price of Oshawa, Mrs. Joe Reid and Mrs. A. Duncan of Stirling.

Miss Margie Haggerty is to be congratulated on winning first prize at Stirling fair in the girls bicycle race and also 1st in the boys' and girls' bicycle race.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wright and Mr. James Bray were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William New.

4th Thurlow

4th Thurlow — A rather unique event took place on Monday evening of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rita, when friends and neighbors and relatives and near gathered to do honour to two of their num Russell and Clayton who just recently joined the ranks of the homemakers. Following a noisy serenade Mr. Russell Clayton, by the loco) boys, (Russell having been accorded the honor of a visit a week earlier), a short program of music and reading was enjoyed. Mr. Bruce Martin in a few well chosen ceremonies invited the two sets of newlyweds to occupy the seats of honor and an address was read by Miss Stella Bradshaw, welcoming the brides to the community and expressing the esteem in which Russell and Clayton are held by all who know them. The presentation of beautiful occasional chairs and electric table lamps was made. Russell and Clayton each voiced their genuine appreciation of the kindness shown them, and called on and all to visit them in their new homes. Their brides also added their quota of thanks for the welcome extended them by the community. "For they are jolly good fellows" was sung and a light lunch of sandwiches, cookies and ice cream was served.

Mrs. Jay McMath of Belleville spent several days last week with her sister, Mrs. W. J. Sparrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hollinger attended the wedding on Saturday of the former's sister, Mary, at the home of her parents at Foxboro.

Mr. George Wilson of Queensboro was an overnight guest recently of his cousin, Mr. Ernest Wilson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Clapp of Belleville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Beer.

Messrs. Wm. Sparrow and Chas. Miller attended a meeting by Mr. Jim Cranston of Stirling left Saturday evening for their annual hunting trip to the gunflint lake district of Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maston and Ferne also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pound were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker.

Mr. Busbridge of Toronto was a guest for several days recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sparrow.

Mr. and Mrs. George Milligan and family were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. S. Cooley and Mr. and Mrs. E. Trverton.

On Monday evening the teachers and pupils of School sections seven and eleven presented a Victory Loan program in the Rose Hill School. Mr. Seldon Homans of Carmel was guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. George Denike entertained a number of guests to tea recently with Mrs. Ross Bush as assistant.

One hundred workers in the riding organization enjoyed a dinner given by Mr. Hepburn, previous to the nomination.

Sophiasburgh "Over Top"

Sophiasburgh township is the second district in Prince Edward County to go "over the top" in the Victory Loan campaign. Several others are nearing hundred per cent. workers and officials are confident that every district in Hastings county will have attained the objective by Saturday night. Holding a successful food sale in the Lake Women's Association raised fifty dollars and Mrs. Gladys Bird donated a bond. Members of Sir Thomas Picton-Bagot Chapter I.O.D.E. decided to buy a bond with each member making a contribution. Enjoying a meeting at several hundred dollars after making grants to patriotic organizations, Picton Fair Board invested in a $500 bond as they have done in each campaign. Airmen at Mountain View Air Station have now subscribed forty thousand dollars, their objective having been $15,000.

Cousins Now Prisoners

Two cousins who had not previously met before were united when the units took part in the defence of Hong Kong. Now both are prisoners there according to official word received by their mother, Mrs. Mary Hall, of Picton.

Friends of Wilfrid C. Scott of Kingston will be pleased to hear of his promotion to the rank of major.

Mr. Gay Welsh who has been seriously ill, was removed to Kingston General Hospital on Wednesday for surgical treatment.

Corporal Van Dusen, who spent the summer sailing on the Etta Bay, under Capt. Harry Clarke, Picton, and Capt. A. Mid. Allen, has returned to his home here.

Phyllis Wright of the Dominion Metallic, Kingston, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Hazel Weidmark.

This Central Press Canadian map graphically shows why President Ismet Inonu of Turkey told the Turkish Parliament at the opening of its special session that Turkey is in grave danger of attack and "nearer war than at any time since the World War." The map shows the Moslem nation lies in the path of any probable German blitzkrieg drive for the rich oil fields of Iran and Iraq.

Abolishing of Legislatures Would Be No Great Loss Says J. de C. Hepburn

Picton, Nov. 6. — The country would not lose a great deal by abolishing the legislatures at this time. That was said to be pointed out by many Councils," declares James deC. Hepburn, M.L.A., for Prince Edward-Lennox, speaking at the annual meeting of the Conservative Association of this riding here last night.

Mr. Hepburn felt the opportunity is at hand to rebuild the Conservative party, with honesty and sincerity as the keynote of the day, free from the corruption which has been rampant in politics in the past.

Canada's war effort is what it is due to the position of the Government, declared George J. Tustin, M.P., and he defended the right to criticism. That type of freedom is what we are fighting for, he declared.

Mr. Tustin felt that people should be enlightened to a greater extent on the conduct of the war. He declared that, to date, over fifty thousand lives and seven billion dollars had been used at Ottawa in this connection—five thousand of them while the House was in session. Government by Order-in-Council is proceeding because the government party is afraid of criticism if it is discussed openly as considered publicly or debated, he charged.

President Roosevelt, he said, could talk for two or three days about what he was doing with the War-time Prices and Trade Boards policy and only 20 minutes each week is right in that policy. He felt that with a budget of one hundred and twenty millions a year, Canada should be able to budget for the money necessary for an election.

Delegates appointed to the convention in Toronto were: Mrs. Ross Bush, Fred H. Hubbs, J. R. Welsh; alternates, Mrs. George MacFarlane, Howard Wilson, Orrin Hubbs; delegate-at-large, T. W. Kinney.

(a) Two Committees in each section of the riding will study the proposals made at the Port Hope conference and make known their decisions to the delegates to Winnipeg.

T. W. Kinney was elected President; Wesley Young, Roy Simpson, Mrs. Grace McLaughlin, vice-presidents; P. U. Laidley, secretary with Mrs. Ross Bush as assistant.

Salvage, Power Saving Are Important Matters In Every Family Circle

Salvage and power saving should go hand in hand in the minds of every housewife, the family as they go about their wartime duties whether at home or in the office.

For instance, the mother of the house who works as a filing clerk can hold considerable of her filing paper clips from old files which are being thrown away. Perhaps some papers can be clipped together in such a way that fewer clips have to be used.

The young son working at his first job as an office boy can help salvage power by turning out lights in rooms not in use, or in store rooms, and make certain that different machines are not left running unnecessarily. What a number of "dud" electric light bulbs are collected he can say then in his for their proper disposal.

And mother at home. She can collect salvage in hundred different ways. While giving the attic and basement a good thorough housecleaning, she may find salvage scrap that she missed on previous cleanings. In the kitchen she has her rags, fats, and kitchen equipment no longer in use, and she can help power by planning meals so that she used either, but not both, the oven or the top of the stove for complete meals.

Frankford

Frankford — Anniversary Services were held in the United Church on Sunday, Nov. 1st, with both services very well attended. Many friends and former residents outside the vicinity being present for the occasion. Rev. Ernest Pyke, R. M. Patterson of Cameron was guest Minister, taking as his morning theme "Salt of the City and the or go out into the World and Live." Stressing the fact that if we would we seek to save our life but lose our life—God—and Christ for eternal soul. Although the body may live worldly the soul dies spiritually when he refuses to accept God's challenge of Christian Service". The choir rendered two anthems under the very able leadership of Mrs. Percy Charlesworth, "Sing Aloud Unto God" and "Take Time to with You."

In the evening Mr. Patterson's theme was "Magnifying our Obsticles", warning us to look short and fall on God for help, not to set Life's goal afar and then fellow the gleam that leads to destruction. The choir's two evening anthems were "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God" and "Lift up Thine Eyes."

The Zion people are deeply grateful to Rev. Mr. Patterson for his splendid, impressive and inspiring message at the dedication.

Inspiring Words

Great times create great phrases. It was immediately before the opening of the battle of Trafalgar that Nelson sent the signal, "England expects that every man this day will do his duty."

The other day General Montgomery, head of the British Eighth Army, said "The enemy is in our power and he is just about to crack. I call on all troops to keep up the pressure and not to relax for one moment. We have the chance of putting the whole panzer army in the bag, and will do so. Complete victory is almost in sight."

Since those striking words were sent to the army, the battle has widened and carried on far with great success by the British. Remnants of the once proud Axis army of Rommel are being pursued. 20,000 prisoners have been taken.

While the message was not what might be called a battle cry, it had much the same effect. Everyone has heard how Cromwell used the inspiring words of Holy Writ, "Let God arise and let His enemies be scattered" in his address to his troops.

General Montgomery's words expressed the assurance of great power and of ability to deliver smashing blows.

It is a thrilling and effective moment when a man like the British general, knowing confident in his strength of armament and in the resources of the spirit of his army, is inspired to such an utterance and his men to such deeds as have been performed on the sandy Egyptian battlefront.

For Highest Objective

Among the items of good news on Friday was the announcement that Hastings County had passed over its objective on Thursday and was headed beyond the $2,100,000 set as the preliminary mark at which the loan organization had aimed. When Friday's and Saturday's sales are counted the total will be considerably above this amount.

Since early Thursday afternoon Belleville has been driving on toward the highest mark it is able to achieve.

The record of the County and its communities has been such as to hearten the people and those who have been in charge of the organization and canvassing for sales.

The county communities did not let up or relax on the attainment of the preliminary objective.

Everyone had been confident that Hastings and Belleville would do their full share and there is no doubt that the final results will be a source of pride to all those who have participated. This will join with the other organized units throughout Canada to make the grand total which it is realized will be most impressive.

Stalin's Review

Premier Stalin of Russia on Friday showed how Germany had failed in her objective this year when he mentioned the discovery of a German document showing that the Nazis hoped to take Stalingrad by July 5th, then Saratov August 9th, Kuibyshev September 15th and Baku September 25th and that the main aim of the enemy offensive this year was to close with the capture of Moscow.

So for the second year Russia has defeated the Huns in respect to Moscow. The enemy objectives in respect of all these places have failed.

The chief of all the Russians was moderate when he said, "In their hunt for oil and Moscow the German strategists have gotten into difficulties. Their summer plans are going to have place the."

The Russian premier remarked that the main reason of the German success in the summer of 1942 whereby the Germans had been able to break through by massing their strength in one sector and in five months advance about 300 miles was the lack of a second front. Had there been such he remarked that the position of the German today would have been "bad indeed." But there will be a second front said Stalin because it is no less essential for Russia's allies than for Russia that there be a second front.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

In Flanders Fields the poppies grow,
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; Be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us we die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.
—Lt. Col. John McCrae.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

The poppies still blow in Flanders, o'er the fields that once echoed to the gay young laughter of the cream of Canadian manhood,

Today they are trampled beneath the foot of the same foe that these young Canadians hurled back in the final flush of victory.

But the desecration of this sacred soil by the tyrannic Nazis shall not change the earth "that is forever part of Canada."

Despotic Nazism, with its brutality, cruelty and oppression, can efface these hallowed graves, but it can never eradicate the memory of those gallant lads who stood with laughter on their lips, young eyes gleaming, and died "with their faces to the west" that we might live and enjoy the ideals for which they fought.

"We shall remember them."

Today the world-in-which they "lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow" is the scene of another holocaust of war. Today free nations are fighting for the same ideals for which gallant lads of the last war fought and died. Today stalwart sons of heroic sires are carrying the torch flung to them by those men of a quarter-century ago.

And they are fighting with all the glorious courage, endurance and tenacity that are part of their British traditions. This is being exemplified in the steaming jungles; the foam-crested waves of the Seven Seas; the burning sands of the desert and the coldness of the mountain pass and the steppe. Of recent days they are proving to a world that had grown sceptical of British prowess, that British grains, doggedness and determination, is no story-book tradition.

They are dying, too, with the selfsame calmness, willingness and sacrifice. Their names, the places of their deeds, mark resting places in their deeds, mark resting places in their deeds, mark every ocean and land in this war-torn world. The memory of their deeds shall blaze in a pillar of fire that time eternal can never dim.

On Sunday, Canada, remembering, will honor their deeds and sacrifice. From city and town, village and hamlet, will go the prayers of millions of humble Canadians. The memory of the grand men of the First Great War, and that of their gallant sons who have given their all in the present holocause, will be revered.

From London, our mighty heart of the Empire, to the far-flung sectors of the overseas Dominions and Colonies, Britishers, whoever they may be, will pause in their activities, in some cases perhaps for a moment, to "keep faith" with, or pay tribute to the misty legions of Valhalla who rest on their arms, awaiting the final "Cease Fire" that will mark success to their deeds and sacrifice.

We can not, dare not break faith with men who have thrown us the torch "to hold it high." Each and every one of us has a job to do, whether it be with hands or money or both. Today we pause to pay tribute to their memory. We can do that every day in a tangible way, by bending every effort in our power to make sure that they did not die in vain.

By doing this, and ultimately assuring the world of a rosy dawn of peace through Victory, we can let them rest unmolested, to "sleep on content in the fact that they did not die in vain and the ideals for which they fought are being upheld by those "of us who are left behind" and who owe sacred duty it is to see that it is done.

"It takes unlimited shamelessness and cynicism to compare the Atlantic Charter with Hitler's new order."—General Wladyslaw Sikorski.

"The German Army is bleeding to death in Russia."—Jan. C. Smuts.

UNDER FREEDOM ONLY

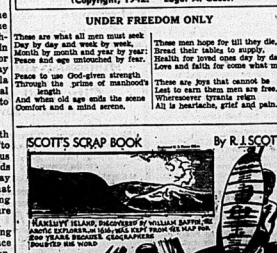
These are what all men must seek
Day by day and year by year,
Month by month and year by year;
Peace and age untouched by fear.



These men hope for till they die,
Bread their tables to supply,
Health for loved ones day by day,
Love and faith for some what may.

Peace to use God-given strength
Through the prime of manhood's length
And when old age ends the scene
Comfort and a mind serene.

These are hopes that cannot be
Lest to earn them men are free.
Whereuneer tyrants reign.
All is heartache, grief and pain.

London Keyed To New High In Optimism

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

British battle advices from Egypt continue to unfold an expanding victory pattern, achieved and in the making, of surprising proportions and possibilities. It has two all official comments in London a new high in optimism.

American opinion, led by President Roosevelt, showed greater caution in appraising reports from the African theatre.

Premier Stalin said in substance that, helpful as an incidental Axis debacle in North Africa might be in easing pressure on hard-pressed Soviet armies, it did not constitute an Allied second-front operation of major scope.

That Russian view is debatable. Much depends on the success of the British effort to encircle and destroy Hitler colony before they can escape from the Egyptian trap into Libya; even more could hinge upon what African offensive moves strongly suggested in the African-Mediterranean theatre.

Hope Running High

Axis advices insist anew that a mighty sea-air Allied armada is designed to strike at Southern Europe through the Mediterranean. It may be preparing to widen the African attack, or even to threaten Italy with invasion.

Hope obviously in running very high in both London and Cairo that a blow is being struck at Axis morale in the field and on the home front that could start crumbling the Axis at its Fascist-Nazi seam. Hitler's decision to withdraw Italian troops in Egypt found abandoned in the desert while their German "allies" and the Italian officers had received equipment to decamp westward is reported to have intensified Italian dislike and distrust of their Nazi partners.

There is evidence in both German and Italian official accounts that Rommel's counter-offensive and retreat have forced Rommel to assume personal command and control of his command. That would include Italian troops who have been compelled to join the south flank of his shattered El Alamein defence front.

Reinforcements for Rommel moving through the breaks to outrace the British Eighth Army and cut off its main strength in from the rear against the sea, with the German commander might be forced to requisition all available motorized equipment. That would include crack down the coastal road before the Tripoli wire upon him.

Speed Vital Element.

That would account for Axis intimations that along the coast the British Eighth has a series of two miles west already of the farthest Egyptian point in its advance movements. Both Rome and Berlin speak of action near Mateuh, more than 100 miles west of the battered original Axis defence line. Cairo reports British armoured advance strides by fifty miles or more.

Mr. R. Richardson, manager of the Bank of Montreal, has returned home after an absence of a few weeks.

Historic Homes

The town in which I live is perhaps unique, in that it has two picturesque and stately old castles, still in an excellent state of preservation.

The first is castle Villeneuve, built in the early days of Upper Canada by Philip Low, Q.C. Mr. Low was a lawyer, and a public spirited man. He was directly responsible for bringing the telegraph to Picton. When he left a fortune to his son, his mother, who was a member of the Villeneuve family, built the beautiful Villeneuve Castle, which is said to be the finest home at that time, between Toronto and Montreal.

Set in beautifully wooded grounds, it is approached through impressive entrance gates. There is a lodge house, and a winding drive leads to the three-storied stone castle, with its turrets and battlements, which are also the drawing room, and library. A large ballroom, with windows with gold brocade, has a very fine parquet floor, smooth, and days of dancing have been held there. Numerous bedrooms are in the turrets of the third storey. The vast kitchen, pantries and servants quarters are in the basement.

Philip Low was an Anglican and his body has been buried in the churchyard of old St. Mary Magdalene's church. A grey granite tomb, on the top of which is a flat stone bears this inscription on the side—"Born 1811—Philip Low—Died 1892 Son of John Low of Leadenurhart, Pitsligo, Scotland. R.I.P."

But Villeneuve Castle is a more permanent and fitting memorial of Philip Low, and a heritage to be enjoyed by succeeding generations in the town for which he did so much.

The second castle is Rickarton, for many years in the possession of the Hepburn family. It was built in the early days of Upper Canada by Colonel Ryland of Montreal, in 1801. It was designed to be a smaller copy of Warwick Castle in England. It was used as a residential school in the early days, but because the location was inconvenient for children to attend, the idea was abandoned. The castle then passed into the hands of the Hepburn family, and was named Rickarton after the castle of their ancestor, James Hepburn, Earl of Bothwell, of Scotland, who became the third husband of Mary, Queen of Scots.

A. W. Hepburn was the owner of the castle when I was in the early days of Picton, that supplied water transportation in the Bay of Quinte District. With twelve ships ministering to Picton, and calling at that port in Summer, the Hepburn family was an important one. They were wealthy, and of aristocratic lineage, but as the sons and daughters of Scots, they possessed a canny sense of thrift. Rickarton is a fine, massive building, with a wide hall, and a large drawing room, and dining room, with a fine parquet floor, smooth, and days of dancing have been held there. Numerous bedrooms are in the turrets of the third storey. The vast kitchen, pantries and servants quarters are in the basement.

The first Lord Hepburn, Earl of Bothwell, King of the Orkney Islands. He was the faithful lieu of Queen Margaret of Scotland, and afterwards her wife, and secretly married the unhappy and luckless Mary Queen of Scots. The ancestral home was Rickarton Castle in Scotland, and the book took on special interest for me because of its connection with the Hepburn family and Rickarton Castle here.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

Any defines "general staff" as "a group of specially trained officers," usually with rank above colonel, to assist a commander's agent in harmonizing the plans, duties and operations of the various organizations and services, in preparing detailed instructions and in supervising executions."

In times of war, on the other hand, is defined as "an assembly of officers, usually of high rank, who form a council to the commanding officer in regard to questions of importance or emergency." The members of a council men which is not in an advisory capacity; the final decision rests with the commander in the field even after he has held a council of war.

The general staff is to grand strategy what a council of war is to the plan of a single battle or campaign.

In modern warfare forts are rarely of any other soldier of his day, Marshal Vauban in 1695 became Governor of Belle Isle at Clermont, which he himself had constructed.

LARGE CONVOY OF CANADIANS ARRIVES SAFEY

First C.W.A.C. Company Ever to Move From the Dominion in Convoy

MANY AIRMEN

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Funnelled through here on their way to the wars, fighting men wearing drab khaki and three shades of blue and bright flag from every Canadian province and every Allied nation sailed from this war port in the Maritimes' or a sunny fall morning.

Safe arrival of those thousands in Britain was announced today.

With those trim, tough, grim men were their sisters under arms, the first C.W.A.C. company ever to move from this country overseas. Commanded by Capt. Frances Riley of Winnipeg, they lent novelty to a scene that here is old as the war itself.

Others swelling the predominantly army movement were a group of nurses, members of the R.C.A.M.C. reinforcements, and a contingent of fire fighters in Britain and a high-hearted band of Royal Canadian Navy sub-lieutenants.

With their battle stations overseas still an Admiralty secret, these brand-new graduates from Canadian naval training schools and fighting ships were looking forward to their jobs.

Most notable R.C.A.F. man aboard was P/O Larry Robillard of Quebec, who holds the D.F.M. for daring in flights over Europe.

He looked like a flier for the "Dawn Patrol" cast, short, stocky and cocky, he was happy to be going back to his duelling high over the British Isles and didn't mind saying so. He amused himself on the troopship, strapping tall and terrifying tales to unmistaked fliers with him.

Another air force officer was Flt. Lt. Art Coles of Vancouver, Dominion rifle champion, who won his title at Bisley. His specialities were the downhill sprints and the tricky slalom.

Dedicated by Army Men

However, the movement was dominated by army men, reinforcements for Maj.-Gen. Harry Wrinington's armoured division already overseas. Leading them was a Maritime unit, the Princess Louise Fusiliers.

Also going over was the only non-Scottish Canadian unit to wear the kilt: the Irish Regiment of Canada. As Irish as the harp, this unit, however, was led by an English Canadian, Lieut.-Col. H. F. Clarke of Toronto.

Most important man in the unit, according to statistics, was the padre, Capt. D. P. Rowland of Toronto. Since the unit was mobilized he has married 115 of the men and blessed 135 of their wedding new-arrivals.

The padre was also a star soccer member of the University of Toronto team and was instrumental in getting sports organized in his unit. Helping him with this was Maj. C. H. Pinhard, former coach of the Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club.

Heading the Edmonton Regiment was Maj. J. C. Cave of White Rock and Barrie, Ont.

A leader with a history that is known to every sport fan in Canada, Conn Smythe, former manager of Toronto Maple Leafs in the N. H. L., also was among the departures.

The trim, moustached little scrapper from the Ice lanes could not be interviewed prior to sailing as he was starting his active service ahead of schedule. Men were needed to man the anti-aircraft batteries on the ship, and the major and his company had volunteered for the job.

Kinsmen Club Of Marmora Name Officers for Year

Marmora — On Monday evening, November 2nd, the Marmora Kinsmen Club held their annual meeting and the following executive was elected:

President—Greg Murray.

Vice-President—Mike Corrigan.

Treasurer—Fred Wells.

Secretary—Al Drew.

The new President, who succeeds Past President Wally Hilton, is the Manager of the Dominion Bank in Marmora and has served as the Treasurer of the club for the past two years, besides being chairman of the Milk for British Children Committee of the Kinsmen Club. Vice-President Mike Corrigan was previously Secretary for two seasons and the Salvage Chairman. He succeeds Kinsmen Bill Dickson. The new treasurer, Fred Wells and the new secretary, Al Drew, will be in office for the first time with the Kinsmen Club.

Following the election of officers, Bill Dickson, on behalf of the members of the club, made a presentation to the retiring President, Wally Hilton, of a Past President's pin.

President Greg Murray then announced his chairmen for the various committees as follows:

Sports Chairman—Percy Gray.

Social Chairman—Carl Whitmore.

Milk for Britain Chairman—Mike Corrigan.

Publicity Chairman—Wally Hilton.

Playgrounds and Service Chairman—Bill Dickson.

A sum of money, twelve dollars and fifty-five cents, not previously acknowledged through the paper, was received by the Milk for Britain Committee from the pupils of the school at Hazards Corners. An official certificate of recognition was sent to the school by the Marmora Kinsmen Club. These certificates are issued by the National Executive of the Kinsmen clubs and are to be given to any organization supplying as much as one hundred quarts of milk to the children of Britain. For each additional one hundred quarts of milk supplied by the same organization a seal is attached to the certificate. The Volunteer War Workers of Ivanhoe donated enough money last year to warrant the receiving of one of these certificates and a presentation will be made to them in the near future.

Pte. Frank Nayler of Petawawa, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nayler over the weekend.

Mrs. Arthur Nobes has returned home after a lengthy visit with her husband Pte. Arthur Nobes in Quebec. She was accompanied by Pte. Nobes who spent a short leave in Marmora.

Mrs. Oscar Cole was called to London on Friday owing to the illness and subsequent death of her father.

St. Paul's Layman's Association held a business meeting in the Parish Hall on Tuesday.

Reports from the hunting camps indicate that local hunters are meeting with good success.

Mr. William Archer of Ottawa, is visiting relatives here for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bondman and Mrs. Charles Phillips visited relatives of the former at Farnham, Que., for a few days this week.

Mrs. W. R. Pearce is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. Thomas Smith left on Wednesday for her husband at Debert, Nova Scotia.

Collegiate News

B. C. I. & V. S.

Assembly, Nov. 4, 1942—The assembly this week started off with the reading of Psalm 23 responsively. Mr. Heard. The hymn "From Ocean Unto Ocean" was then sung by the school, after the repeating of the Lord's Prayer. Mr. Hill then read out the War Savings report. The total sales this year amount to $1,282.90, and the sales for the week were $243.25. The top forms are: IX-X-A, $206.50; XII-B and XIII-B both with $85.75; XII-C and D, $84. Congratulations to Cyril Smith and Ronald Moorman for two very excellent cornet solos which delighted the school for the next few minutes. Is it necessary to add that the whole school hopes you will keep up the good work, fellows?

Mr. Turner then read the announcements. Miss Billings has received more contributions for the Blankets for Britain Fund, making a total of $28 this year. The contributions are as follows: XII-B, $6; XII-A, $2; IX-B, $4; XII-C and D, $2; IX-C, $4 and XIII-B, $8, (proceeds of the tea dance). Miss Dwyer has received several letters of thanks from members of the armed forces who have attended the Collegiate and to whom the Red Cross here has sent cigarettes and gift boxes. Mr. Turner read a few of these letters to the school, from Mr. Thomas, Jim Mackenzie, and Gordon Carter. The band then played "The White Cliffs of Dover" and the "U.S. Marine Hymn." The assembly closed with the National Anthem. —A. E. D. F.

Dramatics:

"Our Town" is coming to our town in two weeks. No wonder the cast is biting its fingernails. Recent additions to the cast are Don Brevis and Jim Greer, both of whom you will remember from the recent "Victory Picture" during the Victoria Loan program of a few weeks back. The play which one critic called "a play which any season should be proud of" by the school dinty. The cast of fifty means that rehearsals are apt to be hectic unless the players really mean to work. And work they do — all in their spare time so as not to miss any classes. After four, and at nights, and over the weekends they are busy polishing the play for the first night on November 19.

As we have noted before, Miss Marakas is directing the play, and the leading roles are those of Kaye Martin, Barbara Bews, Lloyd Gladwell, Vera Flindall, Phillip Flagler, Helen McLean and Gordon Bankier.

The play involves two hunts — one for male extras, and the other for the canines of the 1800-1810 period. You know, long skirts and sailor hats, etc. Just about the time the dogs catch some out, I'm sure we can locate say, the Green Room Gang would appreciate your getting in touch with them.

Cuff notes: What a week! First someone noted that the Collegiate News column of last week had been back-dated to October 2. Then they noticed that the bulletin board was all clean and shiny. And then Mr. Turner mentioned the column during assembly. No wonder we need a new hat.

Glad to see that XIII-Fs tea dance netted enough for four blankets for Britain. . . . Glad, too to see that XII-A's Hallowe'en party turned out so well. Mr. and Mrs. Mott and Miss Walker were invited.

Was the Scot in us that noted the absence of Saint Andrew's cross in the Vickan decorated auditorium. St. George's, yes. St. Patrick's, yes. St. Andrew's, (?), seems that everyone recognized Mr. Thomas' distinctive literary style. At least, they all claim to. Disappointed to hear that the athletes haven't been co-operating as well as they might with regard to gum disposal. We were sure that it would just have to be mentioned.

We were very surprised to hear what we hadn't heard before about Great Uncles being in a boat or something in the Great Lakes. At least, we hope he's in a boat. . . .

You can expect, just between you and me and the proof-reader, a very special assembly on Nov. 11, Memorial Day. Whether or not it will be as elaborate as last year's (remember the reproduction of the monument at Ottawa?) it will certainly involve the two-minute silence. . . . Those who have been watching the rugby scores with growing despair are finding solace in our hockey team. What hockey team? Well, there will be ice soon, don't forget.

Japan Loses 100 Fighting Ships Since Pearl Harbor

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—One hundred Japanese warships, comprising battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines have been sunk by United States forces in the Pacific, compared, to the announced loss since the attack on Pearl Harbor of 26 American naval vessels, in these categories, a survey showed today.

Japan had an estimated 380 fighting craft prior to Pearl Harbor, best available figures indicate, in addition to approximately 20 more with the navy.

At the same time, the United States navy included 944 important ships-of-the-line with about 247 more building.

The situation:-

NEW ARRIVALS WILL BOLSTER ARMORED CORPS

Canadian Division Overseas Rapidly Approaching Full Strength

MANY AIR CREWS

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, Nov. 7 (CP Cable)—New army units landed recently in Britain from Canada will bolster a Canadian armored division rapidly approaching full strength.

These new regiments—part of a great convoy from the Dominion—have moved into camps in southern England and already are in training, encouraged and enthusiastic like everyone else in Britain over the 8th Army's desert triumph. They groaned on the voyage across from Egypt on their arrival.

Included in the contingent were thousands of Canadian airmen, the largest R.C.A.F. draft to date with the first detachment of the Canadian Women's Army Corps; infantry and artillery reinforcements; lumbermen-soldiers for the forestry corps and pioneer companies.

The airman contingent, described as 25 per cent bigger than any previous unit from Canada and made up of about 80 per cent aircrew, disembarked from the close-

Men in the armored and infantry regiments are from Nova Scotia, Quebec and Central Ontario.

A Canadian Army Navy draft included replacements for ships crews, sailors who will take special courses here and a group scheduled to man ships completed overseas. They were led by Lieut. V. L. Miller of Halifax and the executive officer was Lieut. J. G. T. Lee of Victoria.

A detachment of Canadian fire fighters also made the crossing with the convoy.

ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL

BUILD UP THE SCRAP PILE NOW!

Let's root out the old RUBBER!

It's an essential raw material!

● Scrap rubber in your home is of no use to anyone . . . in the rubber scrap pile it's of vital importance to all.

Scrap rubber is an essential raw material, used to eke out Canada's supply of natural rubber. Stock piles must be built up right here in your town and in a hundred other towns to create a visible reserve.

Reclaiming plants must always have this reserve of scrap ahead — and in sight. They can't shut down and wait for collection to be made. So, the sooner we build up large stock piles, the sooner we will be able to make maximum use of scrap and minimum use of our precious supply of crude.

We've told you how Goodyear is working hard on "synthetic" rubber . . . how Canada's precious supply of "crude" is diminishing fast. NOW, we ask you to help Canada meet a real emergency.

This then, is no time to hesitate! Go through your home determined to turn in every ounce of rubber you can find. Remember, everyone's share, accumulated from a hundred homes . . . will build up stock piles across this country that will help Canada's march to Victory.

PERSONALS

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. MacDonald, Shannonville, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Pearl Lena, to Donald Adams White, Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy White, Belleville, Ont., the marriage to take place December first.

Sergeant Erwin Clendenning of the "48 Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment R.C.A. overseas, arrived here a few days ago from England and is spending two weeks leave with his aunt, Mrs. R. B. Chadwick of this city. Sergeant Clendenning was formerly a member of the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here. He is in Canada to take a course of instruction and will report as an instructional centre at the termination of his furlough.

Mrs. James Donaldson, 44 Park Street, has left for St. Petersburg, Florida, to spend the winter and was accompanied by her friend Mrs. Marvin.

Miss Mary Cook and Miss Betty Lou Cooper, Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, are the weekend guests of the latter's grandmother, Mrs. W. A. Cameron, Parnham Avenue, Toronto.

Miss Olive Delaney was hostess at a charming arranged cup and saucer shower held at her home, Yeoman Street, last evening, in honor of Miss Kathryn Gallagher, bride-to-be, the guests including the staff of the Public Library. The guests prepared an interesting and amusing Hard Luck Story, many dainty gifts were contained in a huge pink bag gaily decorated in pink and white. The same color scheme was used in the decorations and the tea table was centred with snapdragons and 'mums, with tall pink tapers in crystal holders.

Clinton Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Smith, Picton, Rev. J. L. Hutchinson officiated.

The bride was a pretty and brown ensemble with corsage of red roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. Davis, wearing a brown suit, matching accessories and corsage of roses.

Mr. George Jones, Trenton, was groomsman.

After a reception at Centennial Chapel, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will take up residence in Picton.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

On Wednesday afternoon, November 4, the Autumn Thank-offering meeting of Bridge Street Women's Missionary Society was held in the church parlors.

Miss Brown, president, opened the service with the use of the hymn "Creation's Lord we Give Thee Thanks", followed by The Lord's Prayer in unison. The next part of the meeting was shortened so give full time for our guest speaker, Miss Constance Chappell, B.A.

Miss Reeves, secretary for Temperance and Christian Citizenship, reported the action of the department of one of the western provinces in passing a law prohibiting liquor and Butterfield to enter beer parlors but putting no restrictions on other drinks.

Mrs. Harrison, the chairman of the occasion, then took charge of worship, emphasized the exceptional blessings that Canadians enjoy and made a plea for generous offerings that these blessings might be extended to needy ones in other lands. And after the reception of these offerings, a prayer for the purpose intended.

Mrs. Thomas presided for her group which was in charge of the program.

All joined in the Thanksgiving hymn: "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come, Raise the Song of Harvest Home"; followed by the Scripture message from Mrs. Baker. Her thought expressed was that where God's gifts, either material or spiritual, or both, had awakened in one's heart gratitude, that deep and abiding, it would be manifested by an outburst of song and outpouring of gifts. Then came the history of the Christian Church are replete with instances of the true spirit.

Mrs. Fred Houston contributed to the atmosphere of the service by the rendition of a solo, "Lead Me to Calvary."

Miss Brown introduced the guest speaker as an associate of one who could give first-hand news of "Those who are now in the limelight" these days. Since Miss Chappell was Principal of the English in the Woman's Christian College in Tokyo.

Miss Chappell spoke on Japanese ways or news from and about Japan. Then came the report of the Thank-offering. First there was the report from Brass—the people who had been for a long or shorter term in Japan representing countries of the Empire. As each responded, there was the report of the diplomatic corps of countries at war.

For reasons easily understood the first class were regarded as aliens and were imprisoned and in many cases were subjected to indignities as to penalizing questioning, while on the other hand, members of the diplomatic corps had a large measure of liberty and suffered no hardship, but felt that they had observed duty to perform, to shock their captors by their complacency in letting them know that the Japanese were strong and formidable foes.

The missionaries all had a different story to tell. Miss Chappell gave us some idea of the success that is to be seen when the group of our missionaries who had been returned to Canada on the basis of an equal number of Japanese being returned to Japan, reached Toronto lowest end of August. Not one of them but had the kindest things to report of the treatment received from their Japanese friends. They had not been driven out and all of them expressed the satisfaction of being left for the eight months after the general evacuation took place.

While the missionaries have withdrawn, Miss Chappell has the full confidence that the Christian Church in Japan will carry on and that after the war, friendly fellowship will be restored between eastern and western churches.

Mrs. Berrie moved the thanks of the Society for her informing and entertaining address. The meeting closed with the use of one verse of the hymn, "Sing to the Lord of Harvest" and the benediction.

BOISSON AT VICHY

Vitamin C Easily Destroyed Careful Cooking Required

Vitamin C is a most important member of the Vitamin family, and is found in many fruits and vegetables: if the diet does not contain already lost.

Upon these facts the following rules for the preparation of fruits and vegetables are based. Never buy wilted, tired looking vegetables and don't buy perishable fruits or vegetables in fur sheets. Never allow soda to preserve the green color of vegetables in cooking. Cook vegetables in a covered saucepan in a minimum amount of water; don't overcook, and cook the vegetable so that they will be served as soon as is ready. It is better to steam or bake vegetables than to boil them. Cook potatoes in their skins. Prepare fruits and vegetables just before using rather than several hours ahead. Use no opened tins of fruits, vegetables or juices quickly and keep unused portions tightly covered and cold, otherwise much of the vitamin value will be lost. Last but not least, serve raw fruits and vegetables as often as possible, as that is the surest way of retaining the maximum amount of their Vitamin C.

At the top of the list of Vitamin C rich foods stand the citrus fruits and tomatoes, and that is why Canada's Official Food Rules emphasize the daily use of either tomatoes (fresh canned or juice) or citrus fruits or their juices.

Canadians need not worry about a possible wartime shortage of Vitamin C rich foods for it is possible to supply adequate amounts of this important vitamin from domestic foods. Potatoes, particularly when cooked in their skins are one of the cheapest and most reliable sources of Vitamin C, so be sure to include at least one day daily. Cabbage, Canada's Official Food Rules emphasize the daily use of either tomatoes (fresh canned or juice) or citrus fruits or their juices.

At the regular meeting Friday evening of the Corby Public Library Board, Miss Olive Delaney, the newly-appointed librarian, was welcomed by the members. Routine business matters of the Library were discussed. The report of library activities for the month of October was presented in the report of the retiring librarian, Miss Kathryn Gallagher, which was read by Miss Delaney.

Librarian's Report

"The month of October proved to be one of our busiest months since April, 1940. Total circulation reached the remarkable figure of 11,316, of which 7,365 were adult, 2,467 boys and girls and 478 reference books committed.

A total of 166 new members joined the Library this month, 89 adults and 87 boys and girls. The latter brings our total membership to date to 914 or 547 adults and 367 boys and girls, and makes our library membership figures to 8280. As we are constantly revising our membership lists this figure means an active membership and not merely membership held and rarely used.

"Our Reference Dept. was busy also this month, with many students working on class projects and adults engaged in various club programs. At times the Reference and crime. The cards rate is always higher in crowded areas.

Many investigations have taken place and help has been given those who desire to build homes. In spite of this we are two hundred thousand and units short of our need.

Many people are able to pay only a small rental, this does not pay people with capital who might build as an investment. A low rate of interest might help this situation.

Some shun slum clearance, others cry out but there are many still in existence. Building materials must be a very promising post war industry. If low rentals were controlled many capital might be available for this type of housing.

In the near future Belleville is to be visited by a commission to investigate the housing situation. Units very interesting meeting closed with a social half hour and the informal discussions of the program.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

One of the gratifying campaigns of recent years has been that of the National Noise Abatement Council. It is a campaign of education and it is the duty of public to prove to the authorities of various municipalities that noise interferes with efficiency, cuts down production, and lowers the quality of service of all affected by it. There are, of course, some individuals who seem to thrive on noise, but the average individual cannot eat or digest his food properly, cannot sleep, has a poor appetite, do precision work properly with loud noises about him.

Aside from its interference with health and efficiency, noise actually creates individuals so that they are a danger to themselves and to others. In Brooklyn, Tenn., Police Chief John Griffin, pointing to a sudden decline in traffic accidents and arrests on traffic regulations declared both have been due largely in part of the city's new anti-horn blowing law, a drastic ordinance now being the principal factor.

"Nashville motorists are now driving with one hand on the wheel rather than with one hand on the horn button."

Within a week after an anti-noise campaign in Columbus, Georgia, Chief of Police Newberry stated that horn blowing on the part of drivers had been reduced 90 per cent.

The Cleveland the anti-noise measure provides fines of from One to Five Dollars for violations. Ten-day work house sentences for "Disorderly Conduct" committed by unreasonably loud, disturbing and unnecessary noise, the ringing of bells and the blowing of horns except for warning signals; harsh and loud noises from radios, phonographs or musical instruments; sounds made by animals and birds; automobile, motorcycle or other vehicles as out of repair or so loaded or driven that unnecessary sound is produced.

The Anti-Noise Council recommends that there must be necessary rules and regulations that we should not be stopped. Their idea is to try to have the public learn to be quiet, have no health, work and happiness of doing away with unnecessary noises. Then, if this is needed it will not be a matter for the police to have to be continually on hand to enforce, because everybody will cooperate.

It is mentioned before, noise tenses nerves and muscles. Tensed nerves affect and react upon the mind and body and lessens the amount of mental and physical work accomplished.

BORN IN PADDY WAGON

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP)—Unable to obtain an ambulance to take his expectant wife to the hospital, Stanley Pawlowski called a patrol wagon. The stork, however, won the race. "We'll name him Pat," decided Naipior, "because he was born in a Paddy wagon."

President, Chicago Board of Health.

Pinworm Effectively Controlled by Drugs

The parasite most often present in the bowel is known as pinworm or thread worm, and fortunately as is not always an easy matter to get rid of this type of worm. By giving certain drugs which have no apparent effect on the patient but destroy parasites, as they have been found by Howard L. Evans and Halnut Moore of Baylor University College of Medicine have shown that this parasite can be successfully controlled.

The doctors sindied a group of children varied in age from six months to twenty-three years. The drugs they used are gentian violet and hexylresorcinol. Over 100 were examined and 80 were found to be infested with the pinworms. The children were divided into two groups. One was given the hexylresorcinol and the other the gentian violet. The hexylresorcinol was given in the morning and the patient was given one and one-half glasses of water. No breakfast was taken and nothing except water is permitted for the next five hours. The gentian violet was given three times before each of the three meals every day for one week. Then a rest period of one week was allowed, followed by another week of treatment. Then another rest period of a week and finally another week of treatment.

In each instance with the hexylresorcinol and the gentian violet the course of treatment was followed by those given the hexylresorcinol acknowledged the stomach and vomiting occurred, and a number of the children, because of the nausea present, were unable to continue with the hexylresorcinol and had to be shifted to the gentian violet treatment. Only one of those children receiving the gentian violet suffered from nausea and vomiting.

Following the date of the last treatment a period of four weeks was allowed to pass. Then all of the children were examined to determine the effect. It was found that the gentian violet treatment was successful in three-fourths of the group and hexylresorcinol was successful in half of those treated with this drug. It would seem that the gentian violet is not only effective but that the results are given with less reaction.

It appears that infestation with pinworms is not only frequent but that there is no difficulty in getting rid easily. Pinworms do not cause many symptoms. The child may be restless and there may be some itching about the lower opening of the bowel. If pinworms are suspected, an examination of the stools should reveal the presence of the worms should be carried out by the physician, and if they are present they should be undertaken promptly.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Visiting-Cards

Dear Mrs. Beechman,

I am going to graduate from high school in several months, and my mother has promised to give me some visiting-cards. Will you please answer several questions about these?

1.—My real name is Margaret, but I am always called Peggy. Could I use this name so much shorter than I do my real name. Could I use this abbreviation on my cards?

2.—I don't like my middle name, and I would like to omit that from my name on the cards. Mother and Father have said it is all right if you tell me it is proper to do so.

Peggy

1.—It's not correct to use a nickname—so Margaret it must be.

And a fine name it is, my girl!

2.—I'm not keen for middle names, and certainly not if the poor child doesn't like it, or considers it meaningless or awkward. Too often your child's "company manners" in this type of worm. By giving certain drugs which have no apparent effect on the patient but destroy parasites, as they have been found by Howard L. The humble sugar beet, shown inset in the above photo, now looms as a very important fellow on the Canadian war scene. Combined with tons of such mates as those shown in the huge pile in the background, it is making an enormous contribution toward the success of our war effort. If it were not for the home production of sugar, Canadians would have to accept a far smaller ration for their daily needs. Large quantities of sugar are consumed in the manufacture of high explosives. Not so long ago we had to depend upon other countries for our sugar supply. Now, thanks to the vision of pioneers, we produce at home and save vital space in our ships.

This photo shows some of the complex equipment used in extracting sugar from beets. This plant has a capacity of more than 1,500 tons of beets a day. A two-pound beet yields 40 tablespoons of good sugar—for food or high explosives.

Workers in a large Western sugar factory are shown loading beet pulp into a battery of presses. Waste mash makes excellent food for fattening livestock.

"Just as sweet as can be!" Violet Cruickshank, of Lethbridge, Alta., samples some of the finished product before sewing up the sugar bag. Much research and other hard work lies behind these bags of pure white sugar, produced on Canadian soil.

Modern machinery speeds beet crop from the field to the factory. In this photo a tractor is shown as it hauls a special loading device down a row of freshly dug beets. Alongside is a second tractor hauling a waggon to receive them. The new industry has been a blessing to both the farmers and our busy war plants.

Workers in an Alberta wheat field sit down to lunch. They "top" beets with hefty knives such as the one held by Elizabeth Szabo, shown in the inset close-up. She is a Hungarian girl who came to Canada five years ago. Beneficial crop rotation has been accomplished by planting beets in soil formerly used for growing grain.

HOCKEY NATURAL IS LEAFS-WINGS GAME AT TORONTO

Teams Have Not Met Since Stanley Cup Series Last Spring

A HOT SQUAD

(By The Canadian Press)

At any other time Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs probably would rate top billing, but tonight their first meeting since the 1941-42 Stanley Cup finals falls wholly to obscure the New York debut of much-publicized (and much-maligned) Steve Buzinski.

If it weren't for Buzinski, the publicity drums would be heralding Detroit's return to the scene of the seventh game of that dramatic final series and proclaiming their desire for revenge against the Leafs. The drums aren't beating, but this initial test of strength between two of the N.H.L.'s top teams still is a hockey natural.

By right of conquest, the rollicking Red Wings are the hottest team in the league right now. Their 3-0 defeat of Boston Bruins and their 12-5 crushing of New York Rangers justify that rating, if their first-place standing doesn't. Leafs, despite some pessimism within their own ranks, showed they retain at least some of their Stanley Cup form by trouncing Rangers 7-2 in their only game to date.

In drubbing Rangers, Leafs and Wings made Buzinski their chief victim. The 19 goals they scored against him in the two games provided a lamentable start for the 25-year-old goalie whom Lester Patrick plucked from Swift Current, Sask., Intermediate Indians. Tonight, against Dick Irvin's promising Montreal Canadiens, Buzinski makes his first New York appearance, and it may be his last chance to demonstrate his ability to make the long jump to bigtime hockey.

Sunday's games match Rangers against Canadiens at Montreal and Chicago Black Hawks against Red Wings at Detroit. Black Hawks won their first start 5-1 over Bruins Thursday to move into a second-place tie with Leafs and Canadiens.

World's Ugliest Monstrosity Is 'Swedish Angel'

A galaxy, of wrestling talent, never before equalled outside the greater metropolis, will grace the Hume Arena ring here next Thursday night. Today Promoter Frank Tunney of the Queensbury A.C., announced he had signed none other than "The Swedish Angel", the world's greatest box office attraction, to appear in a special bout versus the former Masked Wolf, "Irish Jerry" Monnahan. Other rasslin' personages to be included on this wrestling extravaganza included "Whipper Billie" Watson, who meets Walter Sirois, the Flying Frenchman, in a special added attraction semi-final, while the world's most villainous grappler, Pedro Martinez, of Mexico, tangles with "Portland Pat" Fraley, another villain of parts, in the curtain-raiser and if that isn't an array of nifty muscle-bending talent what could be better?

Canadian wrestling patrons have seen Maurice Tillet, better known as The Angel, but the Frenchman's drawing qualities are really put to route when "The Swedish Angel" moves into sight, as his countenance is far uglier than Tillet's ever thought of being. When Promoter Tunney first learned "The Swedish Angel" was available for a Canadian tour Belleville was the second place named on his Dominion itinerary. The next problem was to procure the services of a suitable opponent, and who better could be chosen than "Irish Jerry" Monnahan, the former Masked Wolf, who has been wrestling in the Boston area recently. Without making further mention of "The Swedish Angel's" ring ability of over 200 victories, Thursday night's preliminaries alone are top-ranking attractions into any sports palace.

CORNWALL TEAM FORCED TO STAGE THRILL FINISH

Trailing by One Goal With 16 Seconds to Play, Brown Ties Score

WIN IN OVERTIME

Cornwall, Nov. 7—(CP)—Cornwall Army had to stage a stirring comeback here last night to edge out Montreal Royals by a 5-4 score in overtime in the first Quebec Senior Hockey League game played here this season. The Cornwall Club trailed Royals by a 4-3 margin with only 16 seconds of regulation time remaining but L. Cpl. Jerry Brown tied it up.

Less than five minutes after the overtime session started, with Red Storey on the penalty bench, L.Cpl. Sammy Fasano sank the winning goal. The victory was the second straight for the Cornwall team and sent them to the top of the standing. The same clubs meet in Montreal Saturday night.

The driving Royals threw a real scare into the shorthanded Cornwall team. Minus L.Cpl. Frank Mario, Cpl. Jimmy Drummond and Cpl. Bill Woodward, Cornwall did not look like the club which trounced the R.C.A.F. last week. They carried the bulk of the play in the opening two frames, but brilliant work by Bill Durnan held them off. Royals were unfortunate to be shaded in the photo finish.

Heffernan Leads Scorers

Gerry Heffernan with two goals, led the Royals marksmen, their other counters went to Roy Heximer, and Johnny Mahaffy. Cpl. Punch Imlach, Pte. Larry Thibeault, L.Cpl. Jerry Brown, Pte. Jack Church and L.Cpl. Sammy Fasano got the Cornwall goals.

Cornwall was away to a 3-1 lead in the fast opening frame. Royals perked up as the second was nearly over and smart break-away goals by Mahaffy and Heximer put them on even terms at 3-3. Heffernan got his second goal of the night with less than six minutes to go in the third, but Brown's marker at 19.44 sent the teams into overtime.

Knott and Storey drew early penalties in the overtime and before Storey got back, Fasano sank the winner for Cornwall. Royals had nothing left for a comeback.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 7—(AP) — Now that it seems reasonably sure the Rose Bowl football game will go on as usual New Year's Day, we'd like to sit in on the dickering for teams to play in the various bowls. . . . Ought to provide some of the season's best fun. . . . The Rose Bowl still carries the greatest prestige, but somchow we just can't see a team passing up a nice guarantee from New Orleans or Dallas this year just to sit and wait for the siren call from Pasadena.

There's still a chance that another kind of siren might start calling out there and the whole thing would be cancelled. . . . As we get it, that army approval lasts just as long as the army figures the game and the crowd won't interfere with anything connected with the war. And while we hardly expect trouble, that possibility will give the other bowls a swell talking point. . . . Come to think of it, we wonder what sort of chances the colleges will take on Miami's having enough winter business to make the Orange Bowl profitable. . . . Or if anybody will give a darn about bowl games by that time?

Today's guest star:

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "At least it won't be necessary to carve busts of Morton Cooper and Joe Gordon as the most valuable player in each major league. Each did an artistic job on making a bust of himself in the World Series."

One of sport's most exclusive organizations will have a reunion at the Princeton - Dartmouth game today. It's the "blizzard men of '35." . . . Membership is limited to 22 players on the field and the volunteer from the stands who helped make that snowbound game memorable. . . . When the New York Rovers hockey team returned from its game in Baltimore the other night, the players had to ride in the baggage car because the coaches were filled. . . . From body checks to trunk checks.

Quickie:

In Boston they're suggesting that Mike Holovak, the Boston College halfback, should be called football's "gallop Pole."

Canada's Athletes at War

By MIKE GREENSTEIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—L. Bdr. Viateur Cousineau, one of Canada's best-known skiers has only one regret now that he's overseas with a Canadian artillery unit—he won't be able to ski this winter.

From Somewhere in England we hear that Cousineau, a top man in the Canadian Ski Championships at Banff in 1939, recently paid a visit to Scotland while he was on leave. The hills there brought back fond memories of his Laurentian farm home at Ste. Adele, Que. "Much like the Laurentians—without snow," he said.

Major Charlie Letourneau, former star footballer at McGill University, is second in command of a Canadian Field Ambulance unit Somewhere in England and it's as thoroughly trained as a smart intercollegiate squad.

"We're extremely mobile," the towering 30-year-old army doctor told newspapermen recently. "We can pack up and get out on the road with every bit of equipment in less than half an hour."

Members of the army team in the Vancouver Island senior hockey league are two former Winnipeggers, Pinky Melnyk and Len Halderson. Pinky played with Cleveland Barons and Minneapolis Millers last winter while Halderson played with the Winnipeg District Depot.

A.C. Amy, well-known Kentville, N.S. athlete holds the rank of captain with the Canadian Tank Corps overseas.

Eric Hockey, an outstanding athlete at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., where he was captain of the Varsity track team at one time, is a flight lieutenant in the R.C.A.F.

Wilfie Knights, well-known in Montreal amateur fight circles is a paratrooper now. Cecil "Lollypop" Levey, another Montreal amateur ring favorite, is overseas with the Canadian Army.

Billy Booth, defenceman with Joliette in the Montreal and District Hockey League, is in the army. Larry Superstein of Edmonton, former weight-lifting champion out west, is with the R.C.A.F. Cliff Marshall, former Toronto Argos football star, is with the army.

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Sympathies to old Steve Buzinski, not that he's really old — New York Rangers' rookie goalie is only 25 — but he's probably aging fast.

Of all National Hockey League rookies, Buzinski received closest inspection when the season opened a week ago. The major league has pulled prize plums direct from junior or senior amateur ranks occasionally but to take a man from the Swift Current, Sask., intermediates into the world's fastest puck company was something new, even for Lester Patrick.

Had Horatio Alger written the script for that opening game, Buzinski, when not engaged in shooing villains away from distressed damsels, would have grimly turned aside Toronto Leafs' most blistering shots. But Steve was writing his own continuity that night and when the rain of rubber ceased he found himself beaten 7-2.

Swift Current's hockey-hungry citizens shuddered and all Canada winced in sympathy. Walt (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) Riddell spared a thought for Al Ritchie, veteran Regina hockey coach: "It is doubtful if Ritchie felt so good about the seven goals Steve Buzinski had fired past him at Toronto Saturday night. Al recommended Buzinski to Lester Patrick."

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman commented: "The wolves in Madison Square Garden are notoriously ravenous where goalies are concerned. The New Yorkers are likely to blame Buzinski for the errors made by his defencemen. We hope we're wrong but unless Buzinski is made of pretty rugged stuff, the wolves may break his spirit and send him back to Swift Current before the spring thaw."

Then at Detroit Thursday night, Steve was given cause to doubt reports of a rubber shortage. The Red Wings beat him 12-5 and, if Buzinski didn't draw Referee Lamport's attention to the rule about using only one puck at a time, he missed a good angle.

Tonight Buzz makes his New York debut. As he skates out before the critical fans warming the Garden seats, he will be thinking about the quiet job on the Dominion Experimental Farm at Swift Current. He will be wondering, too, whether those fast-skating Montreal Canadiens have sipped the milk of human kindness or are they as merciless as the Leafs and Red Wings. Steve meets the "wolves" tonight.

TWO IMPORTANT GAMES FOR BISONS

Meet Hershey Bears and Cleveland Barons Over the Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the Western Division of the American Hockey League, will play two games this weekend that are loaded with importance.

The first is scheduled for tonight when they play a return match with the second-place Cleveland Barons at Cleveland. Buffalo and Cleveland were tied for the western lead with six points each when they met at Buffalo Thursday with the Bisons winning a hard-fought contest, 1-0.

Buffalo will return home Sunday to tangle with Hershey Bears, leaders of the eastern division. It will be the first meeting of the year between these two clubs.

Hershey leads the eastern half of the circuit by only two points but the Bears will have a chance to increase their margin over the second-place Providence Reds when they mix with Pittsburgh Hornets at Hershey tonight while the Reds remain idle. Indianapolis Capitals, play Washington Lions at Washington, rounding out tonight's schedule.

BASEBALL'S OLD-TIMERS CHAT

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, LEFT, commissioner of baseball, and Connie Mack, RIGHT, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, have been talking baseball for a good many years, but there was still material for a serious huddle on the subject at the annual baseball draft meeting in Landis' office in Chicago.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

DID YOU KNOW . . . they've commenced dismantling the dance floor at the Hume Arena in preparation for the coming hockey season. . . . Rumors are flying with abandon regarding the future of the ice game in Eastern Ontario, but little authentic news can be expected until the annual meeting of the O.H.A. two weeks hence. . . . One thing sure there'll be hockey aplenty at the Hume Arena. . . . Miss Marilyn Sullivan, 16-year-old swimmer of Santa Cruz, California, can travel a distance of 240 feet under water. . . . This mark is noteworthy when one recalls that the world record for women is 303 feet. . . . It was set in 1937 by a Miss Ruth Kahl. . . . The youngest player on the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team is Max Bentley at 22. . . . The Hawks have eight players who are 30 years old or more. . . . Stanford University's trip to South Bend to play Notre Dame cost the Indians $9,000. . . . Alex Agase, Illinois guard who stole the ball from Bill Daley to register his team's first touchdown recently, was victim of a similar incident when he played for Evanston High School. . . . Notre Dame football players are using plastic helmets and jerseys with a cotton instead of wool base this season. . . . The football used in last week's National League game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants was sold at auction at half time for $50,000 in war bonds.

Despite reports to the contrary, the annual Rose Bowl football game will be played on New Year's Day at Pasadena, Calif., barring unforeseen incidents, reports Rube Samuelsen, NBC sports commentator. Says Rube:

"Right now, Tournament of Roses and Coast Conference officials are drawing plans to hold the game in Pasadena, and not elsewhere."

"Encouragement along that line has come from such persons as Oregon's Senator McNary, after communicating with Secretary of War Stimson. Responsible parties put the chances of the game being held in Pasadena down at odds, in favor, of 50 to one: of being held somewhere in the U.S.A., at a thousand to one.

"True, football fans, you may have to walk to the Rose Bowl, but there's another side. Many persons who have wailed for years over being unable to get Rose Bowl tickets, will be able to see their first game in a long, long time."

When Coach Mike Gonzalez of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals receives his world series cheque from Judge Landis, it will mark the fifth time he has drawn down a participant's share of the classic's take—and four of them have been a winner's cut.

Mike's first experience as a world's series contestant was in 1921, when the tall Cuban performed for John McGraw's New York Giants, who upset the New York Yankees in that series. However, Gonzalez didn't break into any contests of that set—in fact, he saw action in only 13 tilts during the regular season, behind the bat and on the initial sack.

Eight years later, Joe McCarthy piloted the Chicago Cubs to their first National League championship in 11 years and Gonzalez shared the catching burden with Zack Taylor, as Gabby Hartnett was incapacitated the entire season because of a lame throwing arm.

It was in the 1929 post-season classic that Mike made his only appearance in active world's series combat, catching in part of one fray and pinch-hitting in another. This was also Gonzalez' lone series appearance on a loser, the Bruins bowing to Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in five tussles.

Two years later, Mike was third-string catcher on that great 1931 St. Louis Cardinal outfit that overwhelmed the Athletics in seven bitter battles, thanks to the super performance of Pepper Martin in all phases of play.

The Redbirds have copped two National League flags and world's titles since—1934 and 1942—and the Cuban, as coach, was naturally voted a full winning share in each. Lucky man, this Gonzalez!

Although professional wrestling circles have had their ranks depleted considerably through enlistments and the Yankee pachyderms joining the war workers' class, there are still top-ranking box attractions on the horizon. Perhaps the most outstanding in the matter of public attraction today is "The Swedish Angel", the ugliest man afoot today, who will appear at the Hume Arena next Thursday along with a galaxy of muscle-bending artists of the first water.

THIS AND THAT — Connie Mack, venerable manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, received a terrible jolt yesterday when Phil Marchildon dropped his A's contract for an enlistment in the R. C. A. F. . . . The 29-year-old Penetang pitcher was placed ninth in the most valuable player poll in the American League for 1942 . . . Roy Conacher, of the Boston Bruins also has foresaken pro. hockey for a Fliers' uniform . . . Frank Crosetti, New York Yankee infielder, was fined $250 and suspended for 30 days, starting next season, for pushing Umpire William Summers in the third game of the world series, Commissioner K. M. Landis announced today.

Joe Gordon of the Yanks was fined $250 "for language addressed to Umpire George Magerkurth" in the same game, Landis said.

The commissioner said both players would have been put out of the game except for his instructions to umpires not to weaken contending teams in world series competition.

Landis also announced that St. Louis Browns had drafted Pitchers Nelson Potter from Louisville and Woodrow Rich from Indianapolis.

Frank Crosetti Suspended, Fined

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—Frank Crosetti can sit out 30 days of the 1943 baseball season and get away with it. But it wasn't the New York Yankee infielder's idea. Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday suspended him for that period starting next season because he pushed Umpire William Summers in the third game of the 1942 world series.

Landis also fined Crosetti $250. Teammate Joe Gordon was assessed a similar fine "for language addressed to Umpire George Magerburth" in the same game.

PREPARATIONS

But advance raid reconnaissances do not end with the Commandos. The air force plays a part with its aerial "look-see" every day along the coast. As far back as a year ago, army co-operation aircraft of the Royal Canadian Air Force were up and down the French coast with squadrons of the Royal Air Force observing German positions. Photographs are taken from rooftop height by these daring pilots.

Maps and photographs distributed to Canadian regiments for the Dieppe battle were excellent. The photographic mosaics clearly showed streets, buildings, beaches and many of the tough obstacles.

Sea patrols of the Royal Navy also make reconnaissances which add grist to the intelligence mill at Combined Operations Headquarters in London.

The navy prowls around German coastal waters, attacking convoys and Nazi patrol boats and keeps tabs on shipping movements and sea strength.

In the case of such raids as Vaagso, St. Nazaire and Dieppe, the information gleaned from these three sources and others that are secret was incorporated into a plaster model from which officers were briefed before leaving Britain.

The Dieppe model was on a scale of about a yard to a mile and showed the whole terrain, town and defences in minute detail.

50 U.S. COLLEGES CLOSE

New York, Nov. 7 (CAP)—The New York Times says that as a result of financial difficulties caused by a widespread loss in student enrolment, 50 colleges in the United States have closed in the past few months and scores of others are facing bankruptcy. In an article by Benjamin Fine it was said the colleges affected for the most part are either junior colleges or small technical and liberal arts institutions, with enrolments ranging between 100 and 400.

NEW CHILD PROBLEMS DUE TO PROSPERITY

Windsor, N.S., Nov. 7 (CP)—New problems in child welfare work in Nova Scotia are due more to increased prosperity than to poverty, Rev. W. D. Wilson, superintendent of the Halifax Industrial School, said here last night. People who formerly were poor, now had plenty of money, he said, and this had only aggravated the situation.

AT THE CAPITOL

"TORPEDO BOAT"

(First Belleville Showing)

Swift action, spine-tingling thrills and a delightful romance are blended in Paramount's "Torpedo Boat", opening Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre. The picture, which tells a roaring story of romance and adventure with the men who design and test the navy's 70-mile-an-hour P.T. boats, co-stars Richard Arlen and blonde Jean Parker. Ably aiding the stars in making "Torpedo Boat" an action thriller to be remembered are Mary Carlisle, Phillip Terry, Dick Purcell, Robert Middlemass and Warren Hymer. John Rawlins directed.

"Kings Row"

Sam Wood, whose recent hits include such outstanding and prize-winning films as "Goodbye Mr. Chips", "Our Town", "Kitty Foyle" and "The Devil and Miss Jones", directed the production from the script by Casey Robinson, based on Henry Bellamann's novel which was one of the best-sellers of the past decade.

Besides the four stars, the featured cast of "Kings Row" includes Charles Coburn, Claude Rains, Judith Anderson, Nancy Coleman, Karen Verne, Maria Ouspenskaya, Henry Daniell and many other well-known character portrayers.

The Universal News completes the big double feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"My Sister Eileen"

The screen's biggest laugh hit comes to the McCarthy Theatre next.

"My Sister Eileen" is blonde, devastating terrific.

"My Sister Eileen" is the Ruth McKenney magazine character who delighted millions of readers and whose romantic antics, brought to the stage by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, have convulsed the play-goers of the nation for more than two solid years.

"My Sister Eileen" is today, the Columbia comedy considered by Hollywood as "unbeatable," a film which will never be matched for exuberant, light-hearted gaiety and romantic appeal, with Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair starred.

Alexander Hall directed the comedy, employing to the utmost his unique talent for capturing on celluloid all the hilarious hilarity of his characters and scripts, turning out such films as "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," "They All Kissed the Bride," "Little Miss Broadway" and a score of other sensational screen successes. "My Sister Eileen," according to Hollywood is something that Hall himself will never be able to improve upon.

The Misses Russell and Blair are delightfully seen in the new comedy as Ohio's Ruth and Eileen Sherwood, respectively. Ruth is reasonably level-headed and she wants to be a writer. Eileen is phenomenal, a blonde bombshell of personality, and she wants to be an actress. As the editor of New York's most sophisticated magazine, Aherne helps both girls achieve their ambitions—but not until they have involved themselves and him in a series of delirious complications.

"My Sister Eileen" is now in its second week at Shea's theatre, Toronto.

AT THE BELLE

"Mrs. Miniver"

Jan Struther's best-seller, "Mrs. Miniver," heart-warming story of an average English woman, has been brought to the screen as a timely and significant motion picture, dealing as it does with the heroic courage of the British middle classes on the home front during the present war. It is now playing the Belle Theatre.

The story, simply honestly and graphically told as it might be in a dispatch from a bombed English village, is woven around the Miniver's and their family. Greer Garson as Mrs. Miniver and Walter Pidgeon as her husband, Clem, are starred in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. The film happily reunites them as the public demanded, after their outstanding performances in "Blossoms in the Dust," Spectacular Sequences

Principal locales of the picture are London shortly before the war and a nearby village on the Thames, where the Minivers live in solid middle class fashion with their three children. While the picture has several spectacular wartime sequences, the reacue at Dunkirk and the bombing of the village, emphasis is placed on the reactions of these everyday people going through the horrors of war in their own homes, rather than the tragic events themselves. The Dunkirk sequence, for example, shows the non-combatant British men of the village collecting their fleet of tiny boats to rescue trapped fathers, sons and brothers across the turbulent and dangerous channel.

Hollywood Newcomer

Teresa Wright, bright Hollywood newcomer from the New York stage success, "Life With Father," and who recently scored in "The Little Foxes," plays Carole Beldon, granddaughter of the village aristocrat. She is romantically teamed with Richard Ney, also from "Life With Father," son of the Minivers and with R. A. F. pilot. Lady Beldon, benevolent ruler of the village, who looks down her nose at the middle classes, is portrayed by Dame May Whitty, noted English character actress. In other leading featured roles are Henry Travers as the station master and Henry Wilcox as the village vicar.

Football Playdowns In Secondary Schools Cancelled This Year

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP) — There will be no Eastern Ontario Secondary School Association Senior Football playdowns this fall, it was learned today. E. W. Bendit, athletic convener of the E.O.S.S.A., has received word from W. F. Thom of Almonte that Almonte seniors, winners 13-6 over Smiths Falls Collegiate Friday, are dropping out of Eastern Ontario playoffs for the duration.

Perth C. I. previously announced it intended to remain out of the playdowns this year because of transportation problems and Kingston has no senior circuit. As a result, the winners of the St. Patrick's College-Ottawa Technical School game next Friday will be declared Eastern Ontario champions.

Reigiopolis and Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute teams will declare a junior winner next Friday. The victors will oppose survivors of the Ottawa Technical School-University of Ottawa local final in the E.O.S.S.A. junior championship match here Nov. 20.

BROTHER A BARRISTER

Vancouver, Nov. 7—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, who is leading the British forces in Egypt, is a brother of D. S. Montgomery, Vancouver barrister who has lived here for 34 years.

Little Benny's Note Book

It started to rain cats and dogs and I got home soaking wet, and I got home soaking wet, and I got home soaking wet, and ping in the skin.

That fact is relatively insignificant, you said. A boy his age soon dries. What fills me with misgivings is the fact that it thundered and lightninged like mad for 30 minutes before a drop of rain fell, and yet he gets himself trapped in the full downpour. If he has no more sense than to remain exposed after an obvious warning that sends normal people scurrying to shelter, how in his future career can we expect him to profit by the ordinary warnings that signal the common dangers of life? Can it be that we have a son with a mind less wary than the average? he said.

No sir, pop, I mean I acted as normal as anybody else, I said. Us fellows were kicking Fuds Simkins's football in the empty lot, and it got dark and the thunder and lightning was fierce, and we had a debate about whether it would really rain or not, and we all thought the storm might pass over and rain on somebody else and just leave us the notes and stuff, so we kept on having fun till all of a sudden everybody was all wet. So I mean I wasn't the only one, I said.

By golles I'm forced to admit you've made a point there, pop, said. I distinctly remember being caught in a big storm myself a few years back. It was a financial storm known as a market crash, and there was no lack of warning rumblings that should of sent me racing for cover. But I didn't budge, and neither did any of my friends who lost.

CHAPTER 19
Creeping

"But why? They're names of great men, Queen Elizabeth's courtiers!"

"Yes, and what are courtiers? Nuts and truffles and curls, aren't they? Well, anyway, I can't think of one of 'em except using a down pillow for his foul deed."

"Opportunity creates the sinner, so some bigwig said. Maybe one of us was walking up to Alma, and she threatened to scream, and he grabbed up a pillow to stifle her voice, and—and he overdid it."

"Bravo, Brand! I didn't know you had so much detective ability. That could be the explanation."

"No, I don't think it could be. And I haven't detective ability, not in the sense of deduction and that sort of thing. Are you clever that way?"

"Oh, no, I'm too imaginative, I try to think out something and I go off on a tangent. That's why I don't like detective stories. I keep thinking out the solution, and I'll never be right one, because I plan a better one."

"Well, try to think out this one. There's a solution somewhere, you know. Here's Mr. Marshall. Have you seen Mr. McCleod?"

"Yes, I have. Poor man, between his wife's death and his father-in-law's, he's had trouble. He wants to drop the investigation; he can't bear to think about it. I don't believe he would really give up all efforts to find Alma's murderer, but I think he would like to put it off for a time. But that's just what can't be done. The police are quick workers. They may not always get their results immediately, but they have to work while the irons are hot. Who's Raynor we're in the foundation room now?"

"Haynes," Delevan said, "unless he's finished."

Haynes and Raynor were in a serious discussion of the young men of Alma's immediate circle of friends. Raynor was not often inclined to ask advice of his superiors, but when one was so full of gossipy information as Haynes, the detective took advantage of the opportunity.

"You see," Van was saying, "Alma was a vamp. She just couldn't help it. She had a perfect genius for flirtations."

"You were a friend of hers?"

"Very much so. She often told me I was her favorite."

"She may have told others that, too."

"Beyond all doubt. Now, don't misunderstand me. When I speak of Mrs. McCleod as a confidante, I don't mean anything serious, only a bit of harmless flirtation."

"In the case of married ladies, perhaps their husbands have their own ideas as to these harmless flirtations."

"Yes, likely do. But where is all this getting us?"

"To this, if you please. Tell me the exact circumstances of your last time of seeing Mrs. McCleod alive."

"Certainly. It was in the guest room. We had eight and used as a men's coat room. We just happened to meet there and as far as she was present, we had a little harmless flirtation."

"You kissed her?"

"With her entire assent. It is an established custom."

"I must ask you not to be flippant, Mr. Haynes. This is an occasion."

"It is to me. I don't mean to be flippant, but that's the way parties are, nowadays. And let me give you a tip. When you interview young men about the girls, don't expect to be too shocked at their revelations or they'll shut up and tell you nothing."

"Yes, I know that to be true."

"Well, go on, then."

"When you had this interview with Mrs. McCleod in the store room, it must have been not so very long before she was murdered."

"Now that I can't tell you about. Some men always keep Mrs. McCleod at least in a general way. But I don't. I never know what time it is, and when I find out, it is always much later than I thought, or much earlier."

"When you saw Mrs. McCleod, that last time, do you remember what jewelry she was wearing?"

"Why, not definitely. Alma always wore lovely things, but never conspicuous ones."

"She had on several bangles, I believe?"

"I think likely. She often wore four or five at a time. You'd think they'd be uncomfortable."

"She didn't mention them, in any way?"

"Speak of them? Oh, no. Why should she?"

"She may have had a new one, and wanted to show it to you."

"Well, she didn't. She was not given to boasting of her wealth."

"Why are you so emphatic about it? Is it strange for ladies to exhibit a new bracelet?"

"It would be for Alma. I am wondering if there is an agent to infest for you in that problematical bracelet. Why do you harp on it?"

"You're doing the harping. How did you leave Mrs. McCleod? I mean, when?"

"Why don't you say what you mean? I left her, because we both heard somebody coming in. I half closed the door, and somebody rattled the latch."

"Who was it?"

"I've no idea. Alma whispered, 'Go out the other door,' so I did. We always obey her."

"The two doors are opposite each other?"

"Yes, and as I went out one of them I heard someone come in at the other. I didn't know who it was, but maybe Alma took it to be her husband. She may have known his step. We'll never know now."

"And you never saw her again—alive?"

"No. That's all I can tell you, and I'm glad to get it over."

"I can always reach you at your home?"

"If I'm there, and I frequently am. Here's my card."

Haynes complied. Will you tell me if you have any well-founded suspicions of any one?"

"I have no suspicions, well-founded or not and if I had I wouldn't tell them! If I knew of any one perpetrating a fact, I would tell it, but suspicions are the hind foot of the devil!"

"That is sometimes true. You may go, then, Mr. Haynes, and if you learn of any fact I hope you will tell me."

"If it seems worth while, I will."

Haynes went, and Raynor asked for Martin Delevan, who came in looking debonair and interested.

"Here I am," he said, almost jovially. "I'm sorry for you, though, you have a grave responsibility. Or don't you take it that way?"

"I do, Mr. Delevan, I take it very seriously and it is a responsibility. Can you help me a little?"

"Fwish not. I am really an outsider, though I know the crowd fairly well. But I have a soul above sheer frivolity, and their silly dances make me almost ill."

"Yet you attend them."

"I usually have a reason of my own, unconnected with the party."

"And you did on this occasion?"

"Yes."

"Do you mind telling me what it was?"

"Oh, but it will seem trifling. I came solely because I wanted to find if I could for love or money, Mrs. McCleod enough to come again."

"Did you find out?"

"I am sorry to say anything escaped me that she dead, but I discovered that the lady was not one I'd care to cultivate."

"You are sure as to your acquaintance?"

"Yes, I am, but I do not care to pursue the subject."

"Nor I, Mr. Delevan, did you notice Mrs. McCleod's jewelry that was worn conspicuously?"

The witness looked astonished. But he answered readily enough. "Not as to any one piece," he bangle. «She wore several on one arm and I noticed one of them. It was an antique, and it was a mistake to wear it with the modern ones."

"Was it a valuable piece?"

"As an antique, it was worth two or three hundred dollars. Her diamonds and emeralds were of much greater import. But it was a rare specimen and I admired it."

"Did you tell her so?"

"Yes, she seemed pleased that I liked it."

"Even though you didn't like her?"

"I have not said I did not like her. She was a charming lady and very beautiful. But she was exceedingly ignorant of art in all its forms. This was not really against her, but it set her apart from the kind of people I care to know."

Raynor dismissed the artistic gentleman, feeling sure he had no information of importance.

Presently Colby came to Raynor, bringing the report of the autopsy findings.

"Smothered," the sergeant said abruptly, "just plain smothered. No head trouble to speak of, no trace of any sort or kind of poison —not even of those that leave no trace." Nothing wrong with any of the organs, no paralysant, just smothered, that's all."

"Meaning an attacker of a child-like mind, or somebody in a rage?"

"Maybe, but do you know, Cap, I sort of favor a woman killer."

"Why so?" A woman wouldn't be strong enough and determined enough to do it over. You know the most innate have put up a fight as long as she could, oh will, it isn't a woman's style. They almost invariably give poison."

"Well, what's the smothered her?"

"I don't know, Colby, I'm not one of those intuitive fellows who find a cigarette stub and tell the murderer's name. I just have to grow on. But it's dogged as does it, and I'm going to shake the truth out of this bunch of suspects, or—or not."

Raynor had already realized the difficulties of quizzing a set of chuckle-headed half witted dandies, with, in his mind, one smart one. They knew little and what they knew they wouldn't tell. And just what they told wasn't always true. A bad business.

He recounted these infelicities to Sergeant Colby.

"I reason from facts as I see them," Raynor said. "But I can't get the facts. Here's where I stand. The lady was in the room and some man came hit—and then that man went out and another man came, and then he went out and another man came. And then—just like sheep going over a fence. But—is that what did those men appear? You don't think it possible, that those came in like room, saw the lady dead, and went out again and told nobody?"

Tool and Die Workers Idle

Detroit, Nov. 7 —(AP)— An estimated 7,000 to 8,000 employees of the tool and die industry were idle today in Detroit's most serious war work tieup.

A "labor holiday" called last night by the Mechanics Educational Society of America, Independent Union, closed three large plants and several smaller tool shops. Interessions by the United States army and navy was sought by the managements.

The mechanics society, strongest group within the recently organized Confederated Unions of America, charged that members of the Congress of Industrial Organizations United Automobile Workers had interferred with organizational activities of the society.

"We're going to see if there is any law and order in this town," said Matthew Smith, M.E.S.A. president. "We want to find out if a man can join the labor organization of his own choice."

R.C.A.F. Bomber Looks Like Sieve After Return From German Trip

(By LOUIS V. HUNTER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Nov. 7 (C.P. Cable) — Four members of the R.C.A.F. French bomber squadron and their English companion lived a lifetime in three seconds.

Briefed to attack a port in northwest Germany in daylight yesterday, PO. Ted Doucette, 24, of Sudbury, Ont., dropped out of a cloud to pinpoint his position five miles from the target and found three ME-109s on the tail of his twin-engined Wellington.

In less time than it takes to tell, Rear-Gunner Sgt. Pierre Trudeau, 22 year old lumber scaler from Outremont, Que., had destroyed one of the German fighters, but another had riddled the Wellington with cannon and machine-gun fire.

PO. Paul Desroches, 23, of Montreal, fell through an open hatch, but saved himself by hanging on by his armpits. Doucette pulled the aircraft out of a spiral dive after falling almost to the ground from 300 feet.

All this happened in about three seconds and Doucette brought back the aircraft which looked like a sieve. There was a hole 11 by 2 feet wide on either side of the fuselage and another big hole near the starboard nacelle. There was a two-foot hole in the port nacelle behind an engine and the auxiliary oil tank inside the aircraft was pierced. The port wing gas tank also was holed.

Puts Out Fire With Hands

Desroches extinguished fire inside the aircraft with his bare hands after being helped back into the plane.

The story of the flight was told by Doucette and Desroches. They are roommates. Doucette is a thin faced, dark-haired fellow whose crew has been on four operations together. He was resting in bed in his quarters and Desroches, a slight, black-haired youngster, sat in an armchair beside him.

The aircraft went in low over the coast, passing between two flak ships which threw everything at them. The Canadians escaped being hit but their course was apparently radioed ahead and the fighters were waiting for them.

The Nazis poured cannon and machine-gun fire from their 18 guns, but Trudeau held his fire until they were within about 100 yards. One fighter peeled off to attack from underneath and Trudeau sent one of the remaining pair smoking to the ground with a seven-second burst.

He didn't see it crash but from 300 feet the Nazi didn't have much chance.

Doucette, who confessed he felt "about 45 years old," said the Nazi which attacked from the starboard knocked off the aileron. Shells put holes right through the fuselage.

Desroches gave credit for his salvation to the wireless operator, a 24 year old sergeant from Montreal. "I fell through the hatch which I kicked open while kneeling," he said. "He pulled me back into the aircraft."

Y.M.C.A. War Services

The Red Triangle Club Dance tonight will be held in the "Y" gym and invited hostesses are requested to be there before 8.15 p.m. Despite the rainy weather, last week's Hallowe'en Party was most successful thanks to the co-operation of Jack Wilson, Albert Jones, Charles Thorn, the hostesses and all those who contributed to the preparations. Many requests have been received that this type of party be held frequently.

Tomorrow's open house will be concluded by a Sing Song in the lobby at 8.30 p.m. under the direction of Bert Blissette, who is making such a success of our mid-week dance which features old time dances.

Some activity is planned for each night of the coming week including a movie on Tuesday, and all members of the forces and their wives are welcomed to these friendly get-togethers.

Special thanks this week goes to the members of Tabernacle United Church for providing home hospitality and an interesting Sunday evening to twenty airmen, to the Bridge Street Men's Club for arranging to have about twenty-five service men at their opening Fall meeting and to the ladies and gentlemen who share their Sundays with us making provision to provide refreshments to service men here in the "Y". A number of magazines were donated this week and we have been notified of other homes where a number are available.

Industrial Transit Plan Announced By the Controller

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—A plan by which car-owning employees of war plants will help transport their fellow-workers who lack adequate public transportation systems was announced last night by the Munitions Department a few hours after it had issued a statement on gasoline restrictions for taxis which will limit their travel to 2,000 miles a month.

Purpose of the new wartime industrial transit plan is to cut down the number of private passenger cars driven to war plants and at the same time to see that every car used carries a full load.

The plan was announced originally by Transit Controller G. S. Gray in an address in Chicago and already is in effect in some centres.

BRAZIL'S UNITY IN WAR EFFORT IS IMPRESSIVE

Class and Religious Lines Lost in South American Nation's Determination to Defeat Germany's Ambitions

By G. L. LANDSBERG

Recognition of a state of belligerency between Brazil and Germany and Italy by the Brazilian government faithfully mirrored popular sentiment. Public opinion had condemned the sinking of Brazilian shipping carrying material on the international trade routes to German enemies, but although it considered such action entirely unwarranted, it was still understandable.

However, when the Brazilian coastal waters, which could not conceivably be related to the conduct of Germany's war, was sunk in circumstances of extreme cruelty, it could only be considered as direct and wanton Nazi aggression against Brazil herself.

Instantly crowds in every corner of Brazil staged spontaneous demonstrations, which, in the main, were remarkable for their freedom from the smacked of mob frenzy in these manifestations. In Rio de Janeiro they were orderly and sober. They were in the nature of stern, civic demonstrations of determination. The population sensed the tragic responsibility which President Vargas—and he alone—had to assume. The unanimity of every class and interest, of every profession and religion was most impressive.

War In The Air.

Heartening as have been the substantial successes of the Brazilian Air Force against Nazi submarines, the most important factor of the equation is the strong internal unity of the country, which finds a natural complement not only in its anxiety to co-operate with the United Nations, but was seen patient by the reception accorded to Nelson Rockefeller, the American co-ordinator, but in "Continental Solidarity" a concept which has always operated deep in the mind of Brazil.

The latter found an outlet to express itself in the homage paid to General Justo, ex-president of the Argentine, on his recent visit to Rio, and in the Sanitary Congress, in which eleven of the American republics, including Canada, participated. General Justo was doubly welcomed—personally for having wielded his sword at Brazil's service in his capacity as an honorary general in the Brazilian army, and, secondly as the symbol of the sympathy of the Argentine people.

While it is true that Canada has in the past participated in the work of other Pan-American conferences of a humanitarian nature, such as the Red Cross, Postal and Radio Unions — a more distinctly political character was given to the Sanitary Conference of Rio de Janeiro for President Roosevelt's plan to build around the central theme that it was quite essential to unite the western hemisphere body politic against ideological microbes as to protect the physical bodies against microbes of diseases. Unity Achievement.

The achievement of national unity is a remarkable performance of the Vargas administration. Everybody knows the powerful influence exercised in Brazil by the economic strength of the Italian and German minorities and how thoroughly these have been regimented by the totalitarian governments of their countries of origin. What is not so well known is the way the Japanese had insinuated themselves into Brazil's economic life and in establishing extensive groups in strategic parts of the land.

Brazil is not satisfied with playing the important role of safe-guarding the military outposts of the American continent. She is more than ready to devote the industrialism which she has promoted as a framework within which the riches of Brazil might be made useful to the nation, including them available for the war effort of the United Nations and to develop them still further in order to furnish essential war supplies to her Pan-American sister nations, whose sources of supply war has dried up.

Tribute Paid To 'Springboks'

Pretoria, Nov. 6 — (CP Reuters) —South African troops played up the Egyptian victory under banner headlines which paid tribute to the "springboks" part in the offensive and warned the people to avoid over-optimism regarding the final outcome.

"Springboks," as South Africans affectionately call their soldiers, have been active throughout the desert fighting, under command of Lt.-Gen. Frank Theron.

Pretoria News said the campaign is destined to destroy, not encircle, the Axis, while the Volksblad, pro-government Afrikaans paper, warned that sight must not be lost of the dangers ahead.

The Natal witness declared the success must be looked upon as a second-front achievement, and hoped it would provide fulfilment of conditions which would revolutionize the balance of power.

ALASKA HIGHWAY TO BE OPEN FOR WINTER TRAFFIC

Strategic New Military Road Will be Available Through to Peninsula on America's Northwest Front

By ERIC SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A virtual Factory in North America's network of defences — the Alaska highway—a long-dreamed-of road to the far north is nearing completion.

The trail of '42 through Canada's wilderness, across muskeg and bush-land, through mick and mud and across rivers, will feel weapons and supplies to American and Canadian forces stationed in the north.

The great highway, stretching from Dawson Creek, 30 miles south of Fort St. John, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska—a distance of 1,500 miles—is being constructed under direction of Brigadier-General W. H. Hoge, officer commanding United States Army Engineering forces. Following on the heels of army engineers, who are pushing the pioneer road, are Canadian and American civilian contractors who will follow highway construction to order that traffic may flow "Without Interruption Ahead of Schedule."

Henry Stimson, United States Secretary of War, has announced the highway would be ready for use by Dec. 1—three months ahead of schedule—and that traffic would be moving steadily over its entire length until spring thaws make it impassable in April and May.

Difficulties of terrain and weather apparently have been overcome by the hard-driving crews, and the highway, running about 800 miles inland from the Pacific coast, provides a traffic route which enemy bombers would have difficulty in reaching unless land forces were able to gain a firm foothold in Alaska—an event the Allies are determined to prevent.

Air and sea routes have been the only means of communication with Alaska—the sea route along the inside passage to the west coast of British Columbia and the air route, north from Edmonton.

American army engineers and engineering forces started work on the road last March 8. Prior to that time, survey parties of army engineers and construction experts from the United States Federal Works Agency, Public Roads Administration, made trips both by land and air over the area, to select the route.

Army Bases.

One army base was established at Dawson Creek and another at Whitehorse, in the Yukon. Both have railway connection — Dawson Creek with Edmonton and Whitehorse by a 110-mile narrow gauge railroad from the Pacific Ocean. Supplies were rushed to the United States centres and with the influx of army forces, the two towns soon became thriving centres. Camps were established on stiffy frozen ground and were staged a "race" with spring thaws to transport their supplies.

Dawson Creek became a thriving town, with thousands of U.S. army men streaming in and out daily, and instead of the usual weekly train into the town, there were from one to a half dozen rolling in—all loaded with supplies and men.

Observer Describes Big Day in Cabinet Minister's Visit to Canadian Army in Training Overseas

Somewhere In England (CP)—One of the high-spots of any prominent Canadian's visit to wartime Britain is a tour of busy Canadian army camps and training grounds.

Such a visitor sees Canadian soldiers running through assault drills, route-marching, working out under live ammunition. Nowadays he sees men in battle-dress rehearsing briefly for the second front. A visit with the Canadian troops is a personal briefing as it is an opportunity to get first-hand information about the boys overseas to be conveyed to folks back home, as well as to official quarters.

When Postmaster-General W. P. Mulock visited British Columbia and Alberta touring the scattered Canadian camps in Southern England. He left the London hotel after a quick breakfast and motored to headquarters of First Canadian Corps where he was greeted by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar. At the door of headquarters a detachment of the Lorne Scots Regiment presented arms and the minister inspected the guard's rest rows after shaking hands with Lieut. Charlie Bentinck-of St. Catharines, Ont., who was in command. (The postmaster-general has since returned to Ottawa.)

Gen. Crerar asked the postmaster-general: "Now, you come in for a minute?" and led the visitor to his office. A moment later the Corps Commander and his guest were joined with the Ammunition Column, C.O.R.P. in Alberta. In 1918, and holds the rank of honorary colonel in the 15th Regiment of Toronto, emerged from headquarters, entered the general's camouflaged car and the tour started.

Saw Several Units.

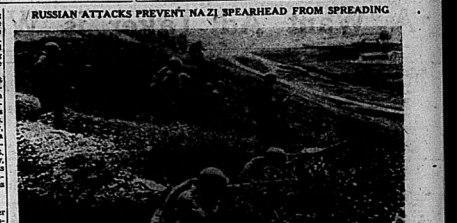
The commander, Col. Mulock and their party were escorted by two officers on motorbikes, L/Cpl. L. W. Paige, Lennoxville, Que., and L/Cpl. A. M. Rose, Toronto. Gen. Crerar's car was driven by L/Cpl. Stuart Watson, Regina.

After a quarter-hour drive, the speeding little convoy whisked by men of Le Regiment de la Chaudiere, on a route march in full kit and wearing respirators.

A few miles on, Col. Mulock stepped down at a street corner in a quiet village to meet a newly appointed divisional commander, and a lieutenant-colonel from Quebec city who commands the Chaudiere Regiment. Gen. Crerar and the minister drove away to a highway intersection where another village to take the salute as the Queen's Own Regiment of Canada stepped briskly by, also in full kit.

Col. Mulock, wearing a grey suit and blue-striped shirt, raised his hat in salute as the Canadians went by. During the impromptu march past, Regimental Policeman B. W. Mitchell of Toronto handled traffic at the crossroads.

A half-hour later, the visiting party reached the big pasup of the Royal 22nd Regiment, where the minister was escorted by Maj. P. M. Juliette, Quebec City, over broad grounds where French-speaking troops were hard at work in battle dress.



Capt. Armand Colas, Montreal, put a squad through an unarmed combat drill in which a dozen men scrambled beyond ranges to aid each other, down defending themselves with nothing but their bare hands.

Capt. Guy Gauvreau, Quebec City, put his 8mm gun carriers through a quick exercise which sent them racing down a long green while Lieut. Raymond Caron, Quebec City, demonstrated the operation of his mortars. Lieut. G. G. Wells, Chicoutimi, showed Col. Mulock the guns of his platoon.

Watched Artillery.

Gen. Crerar and the minister lunched at headquarters of a Canadian Infantry Brigade, chatted with a major-general and then travelled to an artillery range on Southern England's Downs. Seated on a hillside with Brig. F. C. Tees, Col. Mulock watched the men of an artillery regiment move up to a long alert and then bellow out the hell of five shell-fire.

Before the start of the exercise, all officer explained over loud speakers the effect which the shells would have exactly how infantry felt operating under a protective barrage. As the men started forward in three waves there were dull explosions to the rear of the party on the hillside. A second later shells could be heard, first whining and then whistling, plunging into the soft earth with fresh explosions that threw the dirt high. The barrage moved gradually away up the valley slope with gunners scrambling along behind it until they were almost out of sight.

Gen. Crerar apologized for having to return to his headquarters. He climbed in behind the steering wheel of a Jeep, and put in the clutch and drove himself bouncing down a steep hill from the range to his automobile.

Col. Mulock travelled further into the Canadian area to visit the camp of the Calgary Tank Regiment where Lieut. Hector MacDonald of Toronto took him for a ride in one of the tanks. The postmaster rode up and down a street in the wireless operator-gun loader's seat and then escorted by Maj. Fred Jenner of Olds, Alta. inspected gunnery classes and chatted with tankmen who took part in the Dieppe operation.

Col. Mulock wound up his tour with a late-afternoon visit to headquarters of a Canadian Army Tank Brigade accompanied by lieutenant-colonel commanding the Three Rivers Tank Regiment. After having tea with officers of the tank brigade, he motored back to London reaching his hotel in time for dinner.

President Assumes Congress Interested In Winning War

Washington, Nov. 6 — (AP) — President Roosevelt told a press conference today in a brief discussion of Tuesday's election, that he assumed the new Congress also wanted to win the war.

His opinion went on to remark, however, that what he wanted to know was whether Mr. Roosevelt would confer now with both Republican and Democratic leaders about legislative procedure. He replied that he had been doing that.

To a question as to how he would account for the election results, which all but took away the Democratic majority in the House and cut into the party's Senate majority, Mr. Roosevelt gave a cryptic answer.

He said he had had a very pleasant surprise. On Tuesday morning, he said, he went to vote at Hyde Park, N. Y., and he was perfectly delighted to find the polling place was open.

Some of those present thought he leaned heavily toward a commentary on the fact Democratic elective processes still operated in America.

TO INVESTIGATE ROBBERY

Toronto, Nov. 6—(CP)—Deputy Commissioner Herbert McCready of the Ontar'o Provincial Police left today for Windsor to conduct an investigation of the robbery by two armed bandits of the Stoney Point branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada in Windsor.

The robbers escaped after taking between $400 and $500 from the bank yesterday. It was the third bank robbery in the Windsor district since September.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England (CP)—There's no prouder man in the air force than Pvt. Sgt. J. L. Ratz o Vancouver. When his pal, Wireless Operator George Bamfoot, former stewards' room boy at Buckingham Palace, suggested visiting the servants' quarters, the Canadian jumped at the chance.

While they were chatting in the servants' quarters, the king heard they were there and said he would like to see them. The two airmen were received by the king and talked with him for seven minutes.

Ratz was the pilot of a Coastal Command bomber in which Bamfoot was operator when the plane was forced down in the Bay of Biscay. The crew was saved.

Three Canadian air gunners recently provided a striking example of self-sacrifice in order to enable their leave to return to the R.A.F. gunnery school where they were taught, the Air Ministry News Service reported.

The Canadians, who had just completed a spell of operations, entered three days of leave to a visit to their old school, where they gave talks to the new boys" on their experiences in action as well as refreshing their own skill.

Recognizing the value of such visits, Flying Training Command is to encourage graduates to take up refresher courses so that they can note the improvements which are constantly taking place.

VICHY NAVY BADLY DAMAGED

Algiers Captured, Allies Close in On Other Defences

Americans Occupy Safi, 140 Miles South of Casablanca In Swift Action

ORAN ENCIRCLED

(By E. C. DANIEL)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 8 (CP)—United States forces, striking with might and precision, closed today upon the key defenses of French North Africa after a combined British-United States naval fleet delivered serious blows on the Vichy navy at Casablanca and had troops ashore with naval support captured Algiers.

This powerful challenge to Hitler, still only at its start, has been achieved with but slight losses, an Allied headquarters spokesman said.

Most of the resistance so far has been met, he said, in that it has no doubt the combined might of the naval strength under command of Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham backing up the landing operations with its powerful guns, say Vichy forces which might seek battle.

French Fleet at Toulon

Both Axis enemies were said to have entered the defence of North Africa with air action against the Allied fleet of Algiers. At Allied headquarters spokesman declared there was no truth in reports the French fleet had steamed from Toulon to enter the battle.

A German communique asserted that Italian planes had attacked and had scored bomb hits on six Allied warships and four merchantmen in attacks since Friday, all targets of British and American vessels off Algiers.

The Vichy radio reported that Italian planes had attacked Gibraltar today but gave no account of the results.

Besides Algiers, which capitulated under land, sea and air attack last night in the first clear cut step of the campaign, the American-British had occupied Safi, on the Atlantic coast 140 miles south of Casablanca, and a Vichy communique acknowledged the Algerian port of Oran, on the Mediterranean, was practically encircled.

Closing in on Oran

French broadcasts said that the Americans closing around Oran had reached the railway line eastward from the port to Algiers, but there was no evidence as yet of any general effort of operations eastward beyond the Algiers area.

A Vichy communique said no serious fight occurred in the region of constantine, inland from the modern Algerian port of Phillipeville, but infantry and civilian preparations were being made against a possible eventual Allied thrust at Tunisia.

United Nations Forces in Control Of Sea, Air — Token Land Resistance

PETAIN'S ATTITUDE

By THOMAS A. REEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 9 — (AP) — United Nations forces "in control" of the sea and air apparently meeting only token resistance as they advanced almost rapidly in French North Africa today and the United States government's chief duty snapped the 150-year-old diplomatic friendship between the American and French governments, as represented in Vichy.

Formal notice of the severance of relations was served yesterday by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of the Vichy government, as a powerful fleet under Admiral Jean French colonies along a 1,000-mile stretch of the African coast.

News of the break brought no official comment in Washington officials, but it was understood the United States government would make it with indifference. Secretary of State Cordell Hull had said earlier the primary purpose for representation at Vichy had been served, since it had enabled the United States to pave the way for the current military operations.

Petain Rejects Plea to Co-operate

Marshal Petain, Vichy chief of state, rejecting President Roosevelt's appeal, 4 months ago, to join with efforts to block a threatened Axis invasion of the African colonies, directed the French colonies to resist "such a cruel initiative."

"I need not tell you," the president wrote Petain, "that the ultimate end to be attained is liberation of France and its empire from the Axis yoke . . . and that United States seeks no territories and remembers always the traditional friendship and mutual aid which we have so happily given each other."

Mr. Roosevelt told Petain he sent his message as "an old friend of France" and "as a stanch supporter and sympathy" was aroused by France's plight. He said German and Italy are "proposing to invade and occupy French North Africa."

To Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of Spain, Mr. Roosevelt also wrote that "Spain has nothing to fear from the United Nations," and Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, Carmona, head of the Portuguese Government, the President dispatched another message saying the African offensive "presages in no manner whatsoever a move against the people or government of Portugal."

"France and her honor are at stake," Mr. Roosevelt told Petain, "and I feel sure you will defend ourselves."

LOAN OBJECTIVE EXCEEDED BY MORE THAN 200 MILLION

1,560,432 Canadians Have Now Invested $950,246,150 in Third Victory Loan

INVESTORS THANKED

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP) — Subscriptions to Canada's Third Victory Loan exceeded by more than $200,000,000 its minimum objective of $750,000,000 as at the close of business Saturday, final day of the three weeks' drive, the National War Finance Committee reported yesterday.

So far, 1,560,432 Canadians have invested $950,246,150 in the issue, and additional returns have yet to be reported.

Investors in the current issue have subscribed $107,000,000 more than the final cash total of the Second Victory Loan, floated in February, 1942.

About 84 per cent of all subscriptions were for the long-term bonds and the remaining 16 per cent for the shorter maturity. Officials expect that subscription by employees may exceed those of the last issue by a million, as $200,000,000.

Returns showed that the average payroll subscription rose from $96 in the last loan to $97 in this one.

The heavy oversubscription drew the thanks of Finance Minister Ilsley, who said Canadians' "marvellous" support of the Third Victory Loan "can be measured as a response from the people of this country to the principles and aims to which we, as a nation, stand pledged."

Carleton County High

Carleton County, Ont., concluded the most successful Victory Loan drive in its history, collecting $1,090,450 and topping its objective by more than $190,000. It is expected the county will have passed its $1,200,000 objective by midnight when all districts are heard from.

Loan officials said the united efforts of Woodstock, Ont., and Glengarry, Ont., had exceeded their objectives. Victory Loan support of $412,400—21 per cent more than the objective—and Perth at 19 per cent of its canvassing districts exceeded its quota.

300 British, Canadian Spitfires With Flying Fortresses Raid France

Locomotive Works at Lille and Airdrome at Abbeville Attacked

London, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Flying Fortresses, escorted by more than 300 British and Canadian Spitfires, dealt another hard blow to Germany's war machine in occupied France Sunday, one formation blasting the important locomotive works at Lille and another scattering its bombs over the German airdrome at Abbeville.

The bombers and their escort made their way through swarms of German fighters and destroyed a number of the enemy, a joint communique of the Air Ministry and United States Air Force Headquarters said, while one Fortress and six Allied fighters are missing. Included among the missing are four fighters from among the four participating Canadian squadrons.

London, Nov. 8 (CP Cable)—Canadian airmen, flying with both R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. squadrons, participated during a busy weekend in the heavy Genoa raids, extensive fighter operations over northern France and lively patrol of the Bay of Biscay, where Axis submarines prowl on Allied shipping.

R.C.A.F. squadrons formed no part of the bomber force sent to Genoa Friday and Saturday nights but there were a number of Canadians in the big R.A.F. bombers which carried out the two successful raids.

Hitler Meets Old Guard At Munich Beer Hall, His Speech Hysterical

(The War Today column, conducted as a daily feature by Canadian Press war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb, MacKenzie, now touring the war zones, is traveling.)

(By GLENN BABB)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Hitler returned last night to the scene of his Munich beer hall putsch, the flop that introduced his nightmarish career to a still unsuspecting world. The occasion was as redolent of failure as the event of 19 years ago it celebrated. The gloom through which the Fuehrer marched his old guard was far deeper and soul chilling than that of the Munich putsch night. It was a Wagnerian gloom, in keeping with the Fuehrer's tastes and prospects.

For Hitler spoke against the background of the Allied landings in German arms in this war and the announcement that the Yanks really had come back to help finish what was left unfinished in 1918. Rommel, the general who six weeks ago was beating in the Hitlerian drum in Berlin, was falling into Libya, abandoning his allies in a manner that will go far to destroy what little stomach remains in Italy for the Axis alliance and the war in general. An Allied force was in control of operating in the Old World, recalling the summer days of 1918 when Pershing's divisions entered the Allied lines.

Thoughts of 1918

Nineteen eighteen obviously was hanging on the Fuehrer's mind, as much so that the speech, planned for delivery before midnight, lost its climax in the pledge that he, Hitler, would not "go abroad" if Germany lost the war. He did, but would remain to perish in

NAZIS LOSE TRANSPORTS

Moscow, Nov. 9—(AP)—German forces, stalled in their drive toward the Ordzhonikidze military highway over the Caucasian mountains, attempted to flank their positions near Nalchik yesterday, but Russian tank crews smashed up every attempt, Soviet military midnight communique said today.

A battalion of German infantry was wiped out in three days of fighting in one sector of the Nalchik region, the communique said, and earlier in the day reported that 1,700 Nazi soldiers had been killed in this Caucasian region, often stripped for cold, wintry weather.

Fighting in the Stalingrad area was on a small scale and northwest of the city the action was confined largely to artillery duels, but in the Axis rear by provide protection against Axis air attack.

The Germans and Italians, however, still made no attempt to attack the Allies from the air.

Axis Troops Have Been Driven From Egyptian Soil, Retreating into Libya

ONLY 20,000 LEFT

Cairo, Nov. 9 — (AP) — Remnants of Marshal Rommel's fleeing Africa corps sheak loose from the advancing British 8th Army today and plunged across the Egyptian border into Libya in the vicinity of Halfaya (Hellfire Pass) despite a heavy British and Allied air bombardment which made that route nearly impassable.

British advance forces which had been making a desperate effort to catch the Nazi-pedalling enemy jumped into Libya only a few hours behind the rear Axis troops.

The situation in Halfaya Pass at the moment was described as "confusing."

British troops were in close pursuit of the tattered Germans and Italians, and British and Allied pilots were keeping up their relentless pounding of the enemy.

While fighter formations ranged ahead, knocking all vehicles into flaming destruction, other fighters hovered over the advance elements closest to the Axis rear to provide protection against Axis air attack.

The Germans and Italians, however, still made no attempt to attack the Allies from the air.

Day When Canada Will Strike Enemy Brought Nearer

Ottawa, Nov. 9—(CP)—The day when the Canadian Army will strike the enemy with its full force is brought measurably closer by the weekend's vast expansion of the sphere of war operations, in the opinion of informed circles in the capital.

While the plans for the future employment of the Canadians in battle rest secretly within the appropriate time under the same kind of secrecy which veiled the movements of the powerful United States forces now in French North Africa it is known that the Canadians have a definite role to play in the coming United Nations offensives.

Speaking at Brockville, Ont., on Saturday, Defence Minister J. L. Ralston said: "Canadians in that tough and heroic fighting at Dieppe marked the first turn of the tide towards the offensive in Europe. Some of the greatest battles of the war are still to be fought and Canada will be in them."

The length and type of training the Canadian Army has been given in the United Kingdom, coupled with its choice for the first offensive smash at German power in Europe at Dieppe is accepted in France, lead some unofficial quarters to the conviction that Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, force is definitely earmarked for the European front, when it is re-assembled.

The establishment of that front by invasion of the western coastline of France, Belgium and Holland may well involve one of the biggest battles of the war for it will be a thrust pointed directly at Berlin.

Clashes in Paris Between Police And Demonstrators

London, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Reuters New Agency recorded a Paris radio broadcast tonight to that clashes had broken out between demonstrators and police in the French-occupied French capital.

The demonstrations, described as "a few small incidents," followed a meeting of the French People's Party, at which Parliament Jacques Doriot demanded "an immediate declaration of war on Britain and America and immediate conclusion of an alliance with the Axis powers."

WAR VETERANS' RESOLUTION ON PAY AND ALLOWANCES

Toronto, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Representatives of the Dominion Commands of six Canadian War Veterans' associations at a joint meeting here Saturday asked the Dominion Government to set up full responsibility for the welfare of members of the forces and their dependents by a system of pay and allowances distributed in relation to the changing cost-of-living.

Combined Operations is 3-Way Job Worked Out to Split-Second Schedule

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent
Somewhere in England, Nov. 8 —

Combined operations — United Nations style — has become a three-way job worked out on a split-second schedule by army, navy and airforces planning together and going into battle as one striking force.

Results of such military synchronization were seen in the successful invasion of North Africa by United States troops in co-operation with the Royal Navy and the R.A.F.

Earlier examples were made on the French coast at such points as Dieppe, St. Nazaire and Brunerval, which showed the British Army and in this country had taken toward this co-operation. In earlier stages of the war civilians may have only heard that the different services would not work together, but combined operation attacks are proving that they can be synchronized.

In London, in a large building that looks like a modern apartment house but is combined operations headquarters, planning of raids is done by officers from the three branches of the services. Together they work their schemes to shake the Germans on the coasts of Europe and British, American and Canadian officers participate.

Various Tasks Allotted

When a target is decided upon, various tasks are allotted. The war forces may be given a bombing assignment to start off the attack. The R.A.F. would then support bombing to aid the assault troops landing. There would be army co-operation assignment for the Mustang squadrons that will send machine gunning fighters into the enemy lines.

Fighter squadrons are given jobs to provide air cover over the area and the air plan is produced with army and navy representatives showing all about it and giving their advice.

The naval role is worked out in a similar manner. Convoy plans, troop mother ships and small raid-boats that will be used is decided and to this are added the protecting screens of destroyers, gunboats, motor torpedo boats, motor launches and the great fleets of other speedy fighting craft which the navy possess for such operations.

FIGHTING SCOT COMMANDS FLEET OFF NORTH AFRICA

'Andrew B.' Cunningham's Return to Action Bad News for Italy.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS

London, Nov. 9 — (CP) — A fighting Scotsman, Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, 58, is back in action in the Mediterranean this weekend in command of the allied fleet, supporting the United States assault on French North Africa.

And this news is not going to help sagging Italian morale.

For "Andrew B." as he is known throughout the Royal Navy, is the man whose torpedo planes riddled the Italian Navy at Taranto in 1940, and whose outnumbered surface units decisively whipped the Italian off Cape Matapan in 1941.

Admiral Cunningham's appointment to be Naval Commander-in-Chief of the expeditionary force was formally announced by the Admiralty today.

U.S. FORCES HOPE TO PASS THROUGH FRENCH TUNISIA

U. S. President Notifies Bey of Tunis of Object of American Army

PRIVILEGE OF PASSAGE

Washington, Nov. 9 — (AP) — President Roosevelt has notified the Bey of Tunis that the American armed forces in North Africa hope to pass through French Tunisia, apparently in strike eastward from the Axis forces now retreating from Libya.

The White House disclosed today that the message was delivered Saturday night to the Bey, Sidi Moncef Pacha, and that it asserted in one point:—

"The indomitable and massive American armed forces which I am dispatching to North Africa in collaboration with the forces of France will co-operate with you in the defence of your country. They have no other aim than the early destruction of our common enemies.

Close-Mouthed Secrecy and Labor Coupled With Strategy Precede Coup

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 9 — (AP) — Months of close-mouthed secrecy and painstaking labor were coupled today with strategy that preceded the United Nations move into French North Africa.

It was high admiral and authoritative today that probably hundreds of British and American officers and a number of civilians were aware for weeks in advance of the developing coup. Yet until the first landing boats appeared off the African coast the Axis was kept guessing as to the objective of the vast armada steaming toward it.

Preliminaries of the operations had been in progress for months prior to the designation of Lt.-Gen. Dwight E. Eisenhower as commanding General of the European theatre, with headquarters in London.

Among his first moves, it now becomes known, was creation last summer of an Allied force headquarters with a staff of British and American officers. It was kept until the threat of Axis invasion of Libya from Egypt subsided and the War Department says, that plans for the campaign were actually blocked out.

Roosevelt arrangements made with the Vichy government for the supply of certain foodstuffs and other non-military shipments to North Africa made possible the establishment of at least 20 special American representatives in addition to regular consular officials and employees.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

LARGEST COLLECTION IN CITY'S HISTORY

While no figures are available as yet, the fourth and final tag collection in the current year, collected on the week previous, which was paid last week, constitutes the largest annual collection in the history of the city, City Hall officials stated today.

Arrears of taxes are the lowest in years, they added.

Indicative of the collection is the fact that the interim tax bill for the instalment was $1,000 less than last year when the last tag was one and one-half mills lower.

KNIGHTS VOTE $25 TO WAR VICTIMS' FUND

The regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held on Sunday afternoon and was especially well attended. Grand Knight George O'Brien was in the chair.

Much business was transacted. It was voted to donate $25 to Jim Bowen's "War Victims' Fund." Arrangements were made to entertain the city police during the coming winter. This was left in the hands of Chairman Harold Barrett. The installation of the meeting was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

BRIGADE ANSWERS A FALSE ALARM

Smoke rolling from below the cornice above the Belmont restaurant caused the local fire department a short run on a false alarm on Saturday night. The smoke was rolling from the chimney and through the street level with the appearance of coming from one of the upper storey windows. Approaching pedestrians, thinking the upper floors were afire, turned the alarm in to the fire station and on the arrival of the department no flames were in evidence.

C.D.C. VOLUNTEERS VIEW DEMONSTRATION

Fire fighting volunteers of the local Civilian Defence Committee turned out on Sunday morning for another practice demonstration on use of auxiliary equipment. Increasing interest is being shown in this phase of A.R.P., it was reported by the officials this morning with increasing numbers of volunteers coming out for each demonstration.

ADJUTANT HONORED AT INFORMAL PARTY

Officers of the Trenton Air Station, R.C.A.F., honored their adjutant, Squadron Leader A. MacLean Haig, at an informal party held in the officer's mess on Friday night. Squadron Leader Haig has been transferred to R.C.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa, and expects to be there next today.

Air Commodore Frank S. McCill, officer commanding the station, spoke in glowing terms of the services rendered by the departing adjutant and expressed his personal regret at losing the services of such an efficient officer.

Squadron Leader Haig made a brief appearance and reply and regretted the severance of happy associations with the unit he had enjoyed during his tenure of duty at the Trenton Air Station.

JACK HATFIELD WINS BLANKET

Mr. J. Hatfield, MacDonald Avenue, was the winner of the handsome Hudson Blanket, in the draw sponsored by the Belleville company of the Canadian Women's Service Force and held in the ex-Service Force and held in the Kinmount Club Bingo Rooms, Front Street, Thursday night.

The draw culminated extensive activities on the part of the C.W.S.F. in their drive to raise funds to provide Christmas parcels for soldiers overseas who would not receive Christmas comforts otherwise.

Thirty-five boxes have already been packed and addressed and some ten or twelve more will leave this week.

Major Maloney, officer commanding the unit and her officers and other ranks, today expressed their sincere appreciation of the generous response of the club to their appeal for funds. They also thanked the Kinmount Club and others who assisted them.

The unit is now completing arrangements for another service to men in the armed forces here. They contemplate a parcel-wrapping service for the lads at Christmas time. Further details will be announced later.

PARTIES NOT PRESENT WHEN POLICE ARRIVE

Careless pedestrians are believed responsible for the breaking of the show window glass in front of the McCormick Confectionery Store early day night, police were informed. Eye witnesses informed the authorities that two men and a woman had been seen standing near the show glass window when suddenly the party moved backwards and fell against the glass, breaking it. The party conveniently made themselves absent when police hastened to the scene.

Car Occupants Injured in Crash

Occupants of two motor cars were injured and taken to the Belleville General Hospital early Sunday morning following a side-swiping accident on the Massassaga Road two miles south of Thiecelly. The injured persons who were all active in different vehicles, were Police Officer Elgar of Picton, R.A.F., and Mrs. Neita Mitchell, 10 Highland Ave., Belleville. Elgar suffered severe fractured ribs, while Mrs. Mitchell sustained lacerations and a shock. Pte. Elgar, R.A.F., Dyer, C. Crook and R. W. Tennent attended the injured.

The collision took place shortly after two o'clock Sunday morning, between a sainhound motor car, driven by Elgar and in which four persons were riding, and a truck. The north bound vehicle was driven by Flight Sergt. Tennent, of Picton, and in which car were Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Bertha Crook, Belleville. Police Constable Woodcock of Shiloh, Mrs. Hanna, also of Shiloh, attended lacerations to the lower limbs but they were considered not serious to be hospital. Traffic Officer J. H. Hatch investigated the accident. Both cars damaged amounting to fully $800 resulted to the vehicles in the collision.

Veterans Parade To St. Michael's For Service

The annual church parade under the direction of the Army and Navy Veterans took place from the Church of St. Michael the Archangel on Sunday morning, at 10.30 thirty. With the Veterans were present the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Belleville Municipal Band. The beautiful church was decorated with flags for the occasion.

In addressing the veterans, the pastor, Monsignor J. P. Scholard, M.C., welcomed them not only because they were fighting for Christianity but because they were the standard bearers of the Catholic faith in the Canadian Army. In the last war and since many hundreds of Catholic men gave their lives in the cause of freedom. Their examplars of the highest type of citizenship and he was glad to see the attendant of our country in her hour of need. He also spoke of the heroism of France resounded to the onset of the Canadian troops at Dieppe, they were the worthy inheritors of your courage and patriotism.

Following the procession the solemn observance of Remembrance Day was held, a befitting tribute will be paid to our fallen heroes, and the laying of the red poppy badges of courage, braved the same engines of destruction, terror, fear and hell and it was by God's providence that you returned to your loved ones, your country, even though your names and deeds are engraved not on the brass and marble, beyond all they are written indelibly on the hearts of Canada.

Arash Eternal Revelle

He referred to touching terms to the comrades who await the eternal reveille and the joy of friendships welded and forged in the brotherhood of the comrades.

Canada is a land of free men, cherishing the freedom of speech and worship. Canada is a Christian nation. Never will Nazism, triumphant, state after attempting to enslave all religion, and both Protestant and Catholic never will Fascism, claiming for itself the right to rule and rule God's spread their evil blight on these shores. Their banner will always be the Cross of Christ which was dedicated to Christian freedom by the immortal sighthounds and the old Canadian Corps.

During the hymn Jesu which was celebrated by Rev. C. E. Baker, the following acted as pallbearers: Of the Offertory, Bandsman Harold Deschane sounded the last post.

Those attended the Last Post Service, Major Robert Browning, vice president. Among the other veterans present were the president, Mrs. Nick York; Jr. R. Semaine, secretary and vice president; J. Lazenby, treasurer; Mrs. Lazenby; Mrs. Wm. T. G. Hammett and escort, William Lindsay, R. Ford, Albert Jones, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Ena CNIN, Mrs. Evans. Belleville Municipal Band under the direction of Lieut. Fred Jobson.

Series of Thefts Keep Police Busy

The theft of a motor car headed a series of pilferings that kept city police busy over the weekend. On Saturday night a 1927 model Chevrolet coupe, owned by John Shannon, 12 Ashley Street, was stolen from in front of Mr. Shannon's Front Street grocery store. Early Sunday morning the vehicle was found abandoned on West Bridge Street, having been, doubtlessly taken by joyriders.

Albert Alford, 83 Albion Street, reported the theft of the family weekend roast of meat late Saturday night. The meat was taken from Mr. Alford's parked car on Front Street during his absence while shopping.

Two bicycles were reported stolen Saturday night. Alex Manhuis, 369 Front Street reported his bike missing, but it was subsequently found by police. Gordon Robin, Mountain View road, also reported his bike missing from home.

Kingston police reported the theft of two motor cars over the weekend, one a 1929 Plymouth bearing licence plates number 3M-36-07 and the other a 1937 Chevrolet sedan with 3I-N-50 plates.

Earle Jenie, Donald Street, reported the theft of a battery charger from his parked motor car. Provincial Police are investigating.

Trenton and District

$337,550 RAISED FOR VICTORY LOAN BY TOWNSPEOPLE

People of Every Class and Walk of Life, Even Children, Buy Bonds

Trenton, Nov. 8 (Special)—With the Victory campaign completed, on the 21st Offer, Trenton citizens are revelling in their triumph fulfilling their obligations in this campaign.

"Canada's Third Victory Loan Campaign." Yes, and not only did Trenton reach its objective but by a considerable margin, the number of anyone during the third campaign. The objective for the town proper was set at $270,000 by the Loan Committee and individual persons in every part of the town did their bit, Trenton's total was the $300,000 mark, which would be splendid in any city of many thousand more.

The loan started on the first Monday morning in October the first bond being sold to a bone-town lad who has been in the service over The Royal Canadian Navy, since the beginning of the war. Then on followed in fast succession bond buyers of all types of financial ability, soldiers, sailors, tailors, rich men, poor men, airmen and the ladies, both young women, middle men and chief. Even school children subscribed. Trenton's patriotism was discovered.

The canvassers, Mr. A. A. McNish, Mrs. D. Scollard, Mrs. H. W. Hawson, Mrs. Darwin Sager, Mr. S. Mather, Mrs. Ralph Hagerman, put in long hours and trumped many miles and are to be much congratulated on their success. Mr. Doug Mitchell, who was born in Trenton from Toronto, assisted by Mrs. K. Madsen, is an organizer of no small ability. Mrs. Madsen on Saturday night with Trenton not only having made its goal but the bomber costing $300,000 but the Trenton Ladies Auxiliary Canvassers brought in $154,550, banks $124,150 while employees of various industries contributed $58,850.

Air Stations

In addition the three air stations in the Trenton district subscribed a total of 147 bonds to the tune of $112,000 from the main station (nearly four times their objective), $82,000 from 6 A.R.D. and $15,300 from No. 2 S.F.T.S.

The commando dagger which was presented Nov. 8th to Major H. A. Cory at a ceremony held on Mount Pelion just three weeks ago by Mr. Wright of the Canadian Institute for the Honorable G. Howard Ferguson, who was unable to come to Trenton owing to a serious accident, is to be presented to Lieut.-Commander Bruce McGill of the Trenton Air Station. From then on it is expected to be taken to Toronto whence it will be sent along with many others to the Canadian Regiment there to fulfill its proper mission.

A taxi of the Graham Taxi Co. was severely damaged at 7 p.m. on Sunday evening when it collided into the rear of a car owned and driven by Fred Payzie on the corner of Dundas and Bridge Streets. Payzie driving west at the time on Dundas attempted to make a left hand turn to Byron Street, and it is alleged was struck from the rear by the taxi, which was driven by Ed. G. Rice of Brighton. The guilt was placed on the head of the taxi and severely damaged as well as the rear of the Payzie car.

A most delightful afternoon tea was held on Saturday at the home of Miss Ann Hendy, Dundas Street by the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Anglican Church.

The many guests were received by Miss Alice Hendy, president of the group, and Mrs. (Rev.) J. L. Hutchinson, Miss H. Hendy taking the tickets.

Mauve and white chrysanthemums were used throughout the home with the tea table being most artistically decorated with these mums in white, mauve, and tall white candles. Mrs. R. Sims was hostess for the afternoon and Miss A. Hayes replenishing the tea table. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. Crowe and Mrs. Utley. Assisting in the dining room were Miss M. McArthail, Miss Marion Chase and Miss N. McPhail.

A home cooking table, laden with many good things to eat, was in charge of Mrs. R. Burke and Mrs. C. Yorke, while Miss Orrill attended the fancy table.

The afternoon was perfect and a great many guests of the Evening Branch attended making the tea both successful and financially a decided success, well over sixty dollars being raised.

DISCHARGE FIRE ARMS CLOSE TO RESIDENCE

The continued practice of discharging small calibre fire arms along the Moira River banks between Canadian and Belleville is causing farmers and residents in that area no end of anxiety and concern. Over the weekend two residents of this area complained that bullets from the rifle calibre rifles ricochetted close to the farm buildings and stock. Provincial Police hastened to the scene but the guilty culprits had taken cover again. Police authorities warned that charges will be preferred in every case where careless hunters or joy-seekers are found discharging fire arms in this area in the future. "No exceptions are to be made," stated police officials.

Traffic Crashes Claim Nine of 11 Persons Killed

(By The Canadian Press)

Traffic accidents claimed nine of the 11 lives reported in the most violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend. Two members of the crew of a Royal Air Force plane were killed in airplane crashes.

Three R.C.A.F. men were killed Saturday and five others injured when a trunk in which they were riding overturned on a curve of 6 road near St. Damase, Que. Their names were listed as P. H. Parnell, O. M. Dolphin and T. W. Englefield. Parrell was from Montreal but the addresses of the others were not given.

Two men were fatally injured early Saturday when a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train struck their car at a level crossing in Sull, Que. The dead: Percy Barton, 34 and D'Arcy Lawlis, both of Sull.

Cpl. Marcel Lantaigne of a Quebec regiment was killed Saturday at Saint John, N.B., when one of a group of men with whom he was mapped and the vehicle plunged over a bridge.

Hydro Fireman Killed

Thomas Leppington, 18, of Clinton, Ont., suffered fatal injuries Saturday night when a car in which he was riding sideswiped another machine near Hespeler, Ont., Joseph Johnson, 60-year-old Hydro fireman, was killed Sunday when struck by a train near Dundas, Ont., while attempting to avoid collision with an automobile driven by Mrs. Estelle Cadle, Ont.

Cpl. Grandy Quo, Alice Leclerc, 36, suffered fatal injuries when a car driven by Ted Powell, chairman from Christ Church, (Anglican) Church, Amherstburg, and A. C. Campbell, Holloway Street, (United) Church, Shannon, collided with a truck.

The date chosen for the survey was the week of November 23 to 28.

Each church was allotted the number of canvassers expected from them and the names of said canvassers will be listed and duly allocated to separate area by a committee consisting of Mrs. Ross Thompson, chairman, St. Thomas' Anglican Church; Mrs. Gordon Griffin, Trinity; A. D. Archibald, Tabernacle, (United); W. A. Watson, Bridge Street.

While the purpose of this survey is to learn what church people are affiliated with or their preference, it is hoped that as the result of the interest created through this survey, may result in greater church interest.

Survey Group Holds Meeting

The meeting of committees for the city-wide survey of residents as to their church affiliation met in the Salvation Army Hall on Sunday afternoon at 4.15. Mr. Bert Orr of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, was elected chairman and A. C. Campbell, Holloway Street United Church, secretary-treasurer.

A committee was chosen for promoting and arranging the campaign.

Ted Powell, chairman from Christ Church, (Anglican) Church, Amherstburg, and A. C. Campbell, Holloway Street, (United); Church, Shannon.

VICHY MUSTERS LIMITED FORCES TO RESIST ALLIES

Uprisings Are Reported by French Resistance Fighting French Leader de Gaulle

PARIS STIRRED

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Vichy government, having several days ago protested to the United States in a week-end of rapid-fire developments, has mustered its resources today in an effort to fight Allied forces invading the North African possessions.

The decision to resist was taken by Marshal Petain, Chief of State, yesterday after he had called in the highest advisers to study reports of a situation which Vichy dispatches described as grave.

General Maxime Weygand, former commander of the French Army, flew to Vichy from his Sirieres retreat to confer with Petain, and the Vichy radio said French headquarters yesterday and later was reported to have left for Algiers.

Pledges of support were received from commanders of various colonial garrisons, the radio said, and Petain's espionage by followers of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, who threatened to complicate their efforts to resist.

Formal Notification

Formal notification of the Vichy government's severance of relations with Washington was handed to F. Pinkney Tuck, United States Chargé d'Affaires, at Vichy at noon before 8 p.m. (3 p.m. E.D.T.) yesterday.

The Berlin radio reported the American embassy at Vichy had been ordered by the Petain government to remove the American flag flying over the building, and other American authorities in Algeria and Morocco were ordered to close consulates and expel all native American consular officials into custody, the broadcast added.

The chief censor at Vichy immediately forbade newspapers and news presentatives to send any further news dispatches abroad, but the correspondents were advised they could remain at liberty and continue to use their offices.

Both American diplomats and newspaper correspondents to leave Vichy soon for interment at Pau, a Pyrenees resort, have received personal arrangements for their exchange. The correspondents will meanwhile proceed to their hotel rooms.

The French people received their first news of the landings in North Africa early yesterday morning in brief announcement by the Vichy radio.

Petain's Order

A few hours later the radio disclosed that Petain had issued an order to President Roosevelt expressing his "bewilderment and indignation" over Washington's describing the landings as outright aggression by Britain and the United States against resistance.

"Violence and her honor are at stake," Petain said. "We have been attacked. That is the order I have given."

Petain said he had received a communication from President Roosevelt explaining the United States had acted to prevent Germany from taking over North Africa, but rejected this as a mere "pretext."

Gen. August Nogues, commander in Morocco, one of those who proclaimed his loyalty to Vichy, reported he had put down an uprising sponsored by followers of the Fighting French at Casablanca led by Gen. Beligaard.

Another report from Morocco said fighting French followers had killed Gen. Lasserre and Gen. Lasselle, commanders of the Moroccan air force, but that they had later been freed by Vichy forces and had resumed their commands.

The Vichy radio summed up the internal situation in Morocco last night with the assertion that "the troops are well in hand and the population is calm."

Vichy itself was reported quiet and there were no indications of internal disorders within unoccupied France.

In Paris, however, intense feeling generated in opposing factions of the new North African campaign broke to break up a pro-German demonstration yesterday and it was told the pro-Nazi party of Jacques Doriot to hold a big meeting where she died last night.

Hastings County Commando Dagger To Be Presented

The famous Commando Dagger, Hastings County's symbol of victory and pride in not only reaching its Victory Loan objective but attaining it by all-time record for individual loans were accepted, will be formally presented to the Regiment at the Trenton Air Station at 2 o'clock tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon.

Air Commodore Frank S. McGill, officer commanding the station will receive the dagger from the Hastings County General Victory Loan Committee, and will personally fly to Trenton where it will be received by the Toronto Committee.

The dagger with scabbard and counties of the dominion will then be suitably engraved and sent to Malta, where it is to be formally presented to a unit representing the Regiment.

Attending the unique ceremony will be besides the General Victory Loan Committee, His Worship Mayor Glen Thompson, Belleville; Mayor Harry Ovey, Trenton; Warden of Hastings County, Charles Ketcham, and other prominent municipal officials.

Hastings County has contributed over $2,000,000 to the Third Victory Loan. Its quota was $2,100,000 and its contributions to the Loan just concluded is an all-time high record for Victory Loans in the history of the county.

PRICE CEILING SET

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—(CP)— Edgar O. Burton, administrator of retail ceilings, announced today he has set a specific ceiling price, established by the new basic level, upon Canada's wartime bicycle.

Under the order, men's bicycles will sell in Ontario and Quebec for $42.50, and in other provinces for $44. Women's models will retail in Ontario and Quebec for $43.50 and elsewhere for $46.

Address on School Problems Given at Home & School Meeting

Picton, Nov. 7.—"Father's night" saw a good attendance in the kindergarten room on Wednesday when the Home and School Association met with the president, Mrs. C. Butler in the chair.

The treasurer's report read by Mrs. Knapman showed a balance on hand of $247.88. The proceeds from the Fall rummage sale had been $61.10 and the proceeds from the tea at Hospitality House $81.26.

Mrs. Formia read a letter from Mr. Morrison of the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, expressing his pleasure, and that of Miss Nurse and her four pupils, derived from their visit to Picton when they demonstrated the method of teaching deaf children at the October meeting.

Messrs. Don Walters and John Hinkley with his young boy sang "The Hunting Song" in fine harmony accompanied by Mr. Walden.

It was announced that two members, Mrs. Norma and Mrs. Lane would assist Miss Edwards at the Health Clinic this month.

Mrs. Harry Carter gave a splendid paper on "Child Conservation."

Stanley Creegan, a boy tenor, sang "Brahm's Lullaby", accompanied by Mr. Walden.

The guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Perkin, was introduced by Mr. Wilfred Lane.

Balance In Education.

Mr. Perkins said he thought education should be balanced—that more than one hundred were concerned—the home—the school and the citizens playing their part. There is a strong tendency today to shirk responsibility to one another and the school is sometimes expected to give special instruction and guidance that properly be given by the home and church.

Undesirables Leaders of Tomorrow.

Some of the undesirable tendencies Mr. Perkin had noted in Collegiate pupils were, gum chewing; pipe smoking by boys 13-15 and 16 years of age; non-attendance at church and Sunday School; pupils' preference to do things done for them, rather than doing them themselves.

There was a "dumdly" opening of school on September 23, — Tuesday—when workers were lined up. A survey of the summer showed that out of 215 students, 185 were gainfully employed part or all of the Summer. Only 31 were not employed as remunerative jobs. One hundred and sixty were employed on farms or in canning factories.

|---|---|
| In canning factories ..... | $ 4,881.00 |
| On shipping Farms ..... | 2,533.0 |
| On home farms ..... | 2,744.00 |
| At other employments: stores, munition plants, etc. | 5,304.00 |
| Total— | $15,461.00 |

This was an average of $84 per student.

Some Objectives

Some of the objectives Mr. Perkin would like to see the Collegiate realize were:—

1.—Municipally owned bus for pupils from Bloomfield and Hallowell. Drivers to be trained and carry children free.

2.—Household Science for girls.

3.—Shop work for boys.

The services of the Public Health nurse extended to the Collegiate.

4.—Services and interest of the H. & S. Association transferred in a measure to the Collegiate, in such matters as

(a) Backing and supporting the teachers,

(b) Confuting some stories that get out, or that have confidence pupils have in their teachers may not be understood.

School Boards Maligned at Times

"School boards are also maligned at times. Your average school board member is anxious to provide the best possible educational facilities possible. Demand from your school board the education you want your children to get", said Mr. Perkin.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Perkin and to those who sang, was moved by Mrs. H. Knapman and seconded by Mrs. A. F. Brown.

Refreshments were then served in the Domestic Science room by the Social Committee.

Acting on a suggestion of Mr. L. B. Calnan, the following "fathers" were appointed as a committee to see what sports and recreational facilities might be arranged for our boys' and girls':

Chairman: Mr. Frank Creegan.

Members: Messrs. Clarence Butler, Ed. Williams, Wilfrid Lane, L. B. Calnan, P. J. Webster.

These members will hold a meeting in Mr. Butler's office in the county building on Monday evening at seven o'clock.

No Small Boy Sent to Market In Offensive

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Eleven months almost to the day from that tragic Sunday at Pearl Harbor when treacherous Japanese bombers turned the second Great War into a global conflict, the United States has cast aside its defensive role to come back at the foe on fronts half the world apart.

From Western Africa to Eastern Asia the pledge to hit the enemy hard and to keep on hitting him as found is being kept to the letter. Not one, but two second fronts to relieve pressure on valiant Chinese and Russian allies have been opened by the United States. The United Nations' striking force, augmented by at least 1,000,000 fighting men trained and equipped for battle, has made a grim beginning on the business of exposing the Axis conjuest dream to death at its source in Hitlerized Germany.

That is true import of the American-led incursions into French Africa to match American initiative in the Pacific. With the inception of that movement, the sorry role, of the Axis collaborationist regime in France is all but played out. Liberty-loving French hearts around the world must be throbbing with new hope that the hour of liberation from the Nazi yoke is drawing near.

On Adequate Scale

To what extent that will shape the outcome in French Africa cannot yet be estimated. There is no question, however, that the United Nations' decision to intrust the invasion of French Africa to United States forces with an American general in supreme command flowed out of well-grounded hopes that it would minimize French resistance.

Behind it, however, lies the grim determination to establish all necessary allied footholds on French territory in Africa to gain the military ends sought, which are very great. President Roosevelt and General Eisenhower left no doubt of that in their broadcasts to French Africa. Nor do available estimates of the size and power of the forces massed for the far-flung operation and the clock-work precision timing of its movements permit doubt that it is on a scale adequate for the task.

Advices from Spanish observation posts near Gibraltar relayed from Berlin indicated the huge nature of the Allied armada even before the American correspondents in traveling fog set it down as the greatest sea-borne military adventure ever staged. No small boy has been sent to market this time. The hastily extemporized emergency characteristics mark the Allied strategy.

Purposes Crystal Clear

The broad purposes of the expansion of the war to French Colonial Africa are crystal clear. The overall strategic concepts on which it is based are discernible, if not the exact tactical dispositions by which landings on the south shore of the Mediterranean and simultaneously in French West Africa are to be exploited.

It is intended as it was with the British break-through in Egypt for annihilation of the Nazi-Fascist army in North Africa, a huge allied power movement to eliminate Axis influence from the whole African continent is taking shape. Its first military aim unquestionably must be an Anglo-American junction from east and west along the southern shore of the Mediterranean, precisely in Western Libya.

Once that is achieved, the whole pattern of global strategy will be altered tremendously by allied favor. Secure in control of the southern Mediterranean coast line from the Strait of Gibraltar to the Suez Canal, Allied shipping could use the middle sea with relative freedom. It would cut ocean distances to be travelled in fighting a global war by thousands of miles.

Rev. E. Larson is Inducted As Minister of St. Peter's Church

Madoc—On Wednesday evening, Nov. 4th, Rev. E. Larson, formerly of Trail, B.C., was inducted as minister of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, and St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed. The service, in charge of Rev. Mr. McKay opened with prayer and singing of Psalm 110. After Scripture reading by Rev. McKay, a duet, "God is Working His His Purpose" was rendered by Messrs. Stanley Hawthorne and Douglas Bruce. The minister chose his text from Matt. 25, verse 15,

"Young men, he said, starting out on life were very optimistic, not ordinary, do big things and then live a few years to discover they are like the rest of us, ordinary people. Remember the man who had only two talents, he was trusted and commended by Christ. The average man underestimates himself. Average people do the biggest share of the world's work. Be loyal to Christ and country. That is the privilege of ordinary people. The lesson is plain. The two talented man received as much praise as the man with the five talents. Time will come when Jesus will say: "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

Rev. Mr. McDonald of Roslin and moderator in charge read the steps leading up to Rev. Larson's call and thanked the congregation for their loyalty and faithfulness. Rev. Mr. Walker of Stirling addressed the newly inducted minister, choosing as his text "Take heed unto thyself." Rev. H. R. Graham of Belleville and a former minister of St. Peter's congregation addressed the people and reminded them of their duties in the church and their minister. Mr. Graham recalled reminiscences of his stay in Madoc as minister of St. Peter's congregation.

At the conclusion of the service a reception was held in the school room, following a social period. Mr. George West as chairman called on the visiting clergy and representatives. Rev. Mr. Larson, rector of St. John's Anglican Church brought greetings from his people and also brought regrets from Rev. Mr. Morrison of Tweed United Church, who through illness in his home was unable to attend. Rev. Mr. Poulter of Trinity United Church, Madoc, on behalf of his people welcomed Rev. and Mrs. Larson to Madoc. Mr. Garrett Morton, Tweed, brought greetings from St. Andrew's Church. In reply Rev. Mr. Larson thanked the many speakers for kind words of welcome to his new field of work and concluded with the benediction.

BURRIS—SPOONS

On Saturday afternoon at the parsonage, Warsaw, Ont., Lois Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Poste, Madoc, was united in marriage to Elliott J. Burris of Madoc Township by Rev. Mr. Snelling. The couple were unattended. The bride wore a navy blue suit with black accessories. Following the ceremony the young couple left for North Bay and Callander. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm, Madoc Township.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, girl friends and neighbors of Miss Lois Poste (bride-to-be) were entertained by Miss Rita O'Riordon at her home in Madoc. Miss Poste was given a miscellaneous shower and received many lovely and useful gifts. Cards were played during the evening and a dainty lunch served by the hostess. Best wishes were extended to the bride-to-be by her many friends.

Addresses Red Cross

On Tuesday evening Major H. H. A. Watson, field secretary of the Red Cross, addressed a meeting of interested Red Cross workers in the High School auditorium, Madoc. In his address he stressed the need of a greater effort among the women of the community, many of whom so far have taken very little interest or active part in the activities of the branch. He spoke of the urgency of the need of the support of all in regard to the parcels sent to the prisoners of war. The Canadian Red Cross supplies 40,000 eleven pound boxes weekly at the cost of $1.50 each. Their scripture lesson, the 23rd Psalm was given orally by Master Ray Scott. A solo "Fairies" was rendered by Miss Barbara Hamilton and the Junior members of the Band sang "I'll be a Sunbeam."

Mrs. Lyle Jones, teacher at the High School, and Superintendent of the Mission Band and the members of the Band are to be commended for the fine manner in which this service was conducted.

At the conclusion of this part of the service, Miss Chapelle, who had been introduced to the audience by Mrs. S. W. Spafford, congratulated the Band and told of Japanese story to the boys and girls—"the tongue-tied sparrow", which was enjoyed by all present.

In her opening remarks Miss Chapelle reminded her audience of the stories of authority which were released by members of the press, who, the Canadian and United States diplomats who were caught in Japan on Dec. 7th, 1941; stories of their treatment as prisoners of war, under the Japanese leaders.

These reports were compared with those of the Missionaries who did not heed their Government's warnings and were held also, but later released and sent home. The Missionaries were not deep what the others had reported, but they were eager to tell stories of the kindness of their Japanese Christian friends. Many reported gratitude for the last of Christmas, feeling it a test — for themselves, for their friends, and for tomorrow. Through this test it was learned how deep and strong were the bonds of Christian fellowship and how deep was the power of God.

Miss Chapelle said the question had often been asked: Have Missions failed? — and she felt that the experience of these fifteen missionaries proved that a bond of Christian fellowship had been established that would create a universal brotherhood between the Christian in Japan and the Christian in Canada. Words of appreciation for this timely address were extended to Miss Chapelle by Mrs. H. K. Hubble and Mrs. Fred Moon and the President of the Society, Mrs. Fred Westover who conducted the meeting, following the Mission Band Worship service.

Miss Laselle Brown, President of the Bridge St., W. M. S., and Mrs. Semple, of the Bridge St. Parsonage were present and brought greetings from their Society.

Appropriate hymns were sung and the meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. L. W. Scott.

Deepest sympathy is extended to the family and relatives of the late Mrs. Harry Kirk of Trenton, whose sudden death caused great sorrow to her friends and relatives here. Mrs. Kirk was the eldest daughter of Mr. W. J. Hoole of Brighton and was well and favorably known in this community. Many attended the funeral services held in Trenton on Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Saylor, Mrs. Wm. Wheeler, Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. Harry Hubble and Miss Martha Hazard met at the home of Mrs. Selburn Westover on Thursday and completed quilting the quilt that had been made and donated to the Alkene Red Cross by Mrs. S. Baker of Toronto.

Miss Doris Irwin spent a week-end recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Irwin.

Mr. T. A. Hinchliffe left for Toronto on Thursday having spent the past few weeks at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. K. Hubble.

Madoc High School presented the Victory Loan concert at the Collegiate on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. W. J. Wills who has spent the past month with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Westover, and daughter at their home Lakefield is now in Woodstock with her daughter, Mrs. Spencer Conlin, Reg. N.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickman and Marilyn attended the Anniversary Services held at Victoria Church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Spafford, Miss Ruth and Mr. Gordon Spafford, who was home on leave, were dinner guests Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westover and Mr. Douglas McPherson.

Miss Bessie Beatty has been visiting friends at Foxboro and Belleville.

A New York man has invented a lotus handled scrubbing brush to which dry soap suds are fed from a tank. It's recommended air to clean carpets without removal from floors.

Miss C. Chapelle, Former Missionary At Tokyo Addresses W.M.S. Meeting

3rd Sidney — Miss Constance Chapelle, former English teacher at the Women's Christian College in Tokyo, Japan, addressed the members and friends of Alkene Women's Missionary Society at their Autumn Thank Offering Service at the Church on Tuesday evening.

Miss Chapelle was born in Japan of Missionary parents and has lived the greater part of her life there, having served as a Missionary teacher in a Christian college.

A gifted speaker and knowing her subject well, Miss Chapele's address was listened to with rapt attention by young and old.

The Thank Offering service was opened by Master Roy Bonisteel, President of the Mission Band, who conducted the worship service. The food ration in Germany is that on which the peasant class exist on. Following the address Major Watson showed a number of films, the "Red Tide" and "Britain at Work," an authentic film loaned by the British Ministry of Information to the Canadian Red Cross Society. Major Watson also introduced by Mrs. Newel Broad. On Wednesday morning a meeting was held for the students of the High School.

The meeting for the purpose of organizing a salvage committee of the community was held at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Nickle.

Mr. R. Carruthers, organizer for the National Salvage Committee, Ottawa, was present and gave valuable information regarding the collection and sale of the many kinds of waste. Mrs. Nickle, President, Kenneth West and Secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Nickle. The following represented the various organizations: Community Club, Kenneth West; Women's Institute, Mrs. Ramsbah; Mrs. Wyer; Red Cross Society, Mrs. Armstrong; B. B. B. Club, Mrs. W. McCoy, Mrs. Stephens; Kin's Corner Club, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. (Dr.) Nickle.

A rough canvass of Madoc and vicinity will be made in the near future and each of the organizations above mentioned will be asked to be responsible for a certain district.

The Rising Tide

The great British victory of the Battle of Egypt of which the world was hearing all last week and before has been bringing results which outstrip expectation, and is proceeding as the chase after Rommel's fleeing remnants goes on. Throughout the world there was a sense of impending events likely to follow sooner or later but outside of general conjecture and the uneasiness of the Germans and Italians, over the convoys of the Allies about Gibraltar and on the Mediterranean reported by the Germans, there was little to forecast the immediate invasion by American troops of French North Africa by way of the west coast and through the Mediterranean which was announced to a surprised world on Saturday night. It was a fitting event to crown a week of the rising tide of United Nations' confidence in their determination of growing might. The fact that the Royal Navy and Air Force were co-operating was seen as proof that full co-ordination is at work in every sphere.

But this was a work of long preparation for such a step, had to be planned far in advance in order to reach that perfect co-ordination and timing which have been demonstrated in the sudden attack by American forces to forestall Axis use of French colonial territory and fire the opening gun of the fight for the liberation of France and her empire from the enemy. The coming of the Americans was also seen as aimed at striking a blow at the defeated Rommel army fleeing westward from the British forces across North Africa. Commentators see in it the opportunity of great developments in the Mediterranean theatre in respect to Italy and Russia and also with regard to France and her colonies and the immense possibilities which would flow through the complete opening up of the Mediterranean to United Nations' shipping in shortening voyages to the East, thereby releasing ships and making it possible for many fewer ships to carry the same amount of traffic.

One of the most dramatic features of the sudden news was the address in French President Roosevelt to the people of the French North African colonies, in which he explained the reasons for the invasion—to prevent Axis using French colonial territory and to strike the first blow for the liberation of France and her empire from Hitlerism and that the Americans came as friends. He made it clear that the time had not yet come for the French people in France to rise.

Results of the opening phase of the invasion were counted successful on both the west coast and on the Mediterranean coast of French colonial territory.

The two major events continue to move along, creating a vast problem for the Germans, who are tied up with the stern resistance of the Russians and the frustration of Hitler's plans in Russia, while Rommel is being chased westward through Libya with a bare few months' breathing space before he has been driven from the El Alamein to-wards the Nile. There is also the problem created by the presence of a powerful and successful army of American troops in French colonial territories and beyond that the fact that these three factors are all part of the co-ordinated plan of the United Nations.

Hitler was taken by surprise and engaged as he is he must realize the danger to his structure along the Mediterranean.

These two strategic hammer blows by the Allies have roused a buoyancy of spirit among the peoples as the best news out of the war in a long time. This re-emphasized the view recently expressed that the tide has definitely turned against the Axis.

The success of the Victory Loan represents the labor and will of the people devoted to the noblest effort. Canadians have shown that they are armed in spirit and that they realize their fighting forces must have the highest possible equipment and support of the home-front.

The successful Victory Loan campaign was well organized throughout the Dominion and Hastings organization may well feel proud that they have had the task of organizing the wealth and spirit of this county for the loan.

UNDER WRAPS

He wouldn't figure very well
In dank New Guinea bogs;
He wouldn't be exactly swell
In cold Aleutian fogs.
And, anyway, the beaten tracks
Are best for such as he,
For what, of course, they say he lacks
Is elasticity.

But possibly he did his bit,
Before in days gone by
Although they're sure he isn't fit
To have another try.
In fact, he seems a little ripe
For duties to the front.
And isn't just that gallant type,
The man behind the gun.

Yet at the end of daily toil
He'll grimly go to bat
To battle with the fuel oil
And lick the thermostat.
Ah, yes, he'll do the best he can,
While trying to be snug,
So say a word for dad, the man
Behind the steaker rug.

—George Ryley in Boston Herald.

PLEASE TELL US

Why some people say "Yes, he's here, do you want to speak with him?" when another person is called on the telephone?

Why some men will lie in a cold, dreary duck-blind for hours at a time, come home with one duck, a severe cold, wet feet and a grouch and then boast of what a swell time they had?

Why that hard, stony expression comes over a woman's face when she sees another attractive woman tripping down the boulevard dressed up in her finest?

Why the sweet young things call the opposite sex of their own age "cute?"

Why the boss picks the day before the semi-annual date for cleaning the typewriter, to inspect the office?

Why a man will grouse and grouch about doing jobs around the house, and go north on a deer-hunting trip and earn the reputation of being the best darned cook in the country?

Why the not-so-tidy housewife criticizes the home of the bridge club hostess especially if it is spotless?

Why Junior picks the day he wears the new suit, to start a mud-battle with the kid next door?

FRECKLE-FACED LAD

Seems only a little while ago since that freckle-faced lad annoyed you so, pegging snowballs at your hat, teasing your dog and chasing your cat; riding his bike across your lawn; letting you get to him before he was gone down the street, no hands on the bars, weaving along in front of the cars. You stood and watched him and angrily sighed 'If I catch you, boy, I'll tan your hide.'

Then somehow or other you had to grin. To hide it you'd walk off scratching your chin; you'd pat the dog, call to the cat, straighten out the dents in your hat and, things back to normal, you couldn't stay mad; shaking your head you'd say 'Darn that lad!'

Queer how, today, as you sit on the step you think of that lad so full of pep. (The dog at your side and the cat on your lap seem waiting for him to disturb their nap.) That last time you saw him he seemed quite tall . . . why that must have been away last fall when that team and wagon got stuck across the road, he came along and helped with the load. He sure was tickled as could be when they finally got that wagon free.

Suddenly . . . it comes to your mind . . . 'Good grief . . . you must be getting blind. That Sallors' Parade you watched in the spring, he was 16 if . . . you gave an impish grin, dogone it . . . certainly that was him.

The paper comes. Startled . . . you stare at the freckle-faced actor picture there. You look at the headlines "Lost at sea . . . boat torpedoed." Oh no!. Not he . . .

You sit there and think how you used to chase an impish youngster away from your place. He was never mean, just full of the life which he gave for his country, a sacrifice. Creep down inside you feel sort of glad that you never did manage to catch that lad.

Three Stages of Loss of Hearing

When I was a youngster any man or woman that put on glasses was thought to be old or growing old. An unyoung man or woman wearing glasses was a rare sight. Today thousands of young men and women and thousands of little children are wearing glasses because it was found they were needed. Nobody thinks anything about it now.

It is taking much longer for those who have lost some of their hearing to get the idea that their hearing can be helped just as failing or defective eyesight has been helped. There is some hope for those who have lost enough of their hearing so that they cannot hear one in twenty are using one.

An investigation showed that it was the fear of loss of the hearing aid but that it did not give the results that were hoped for by frontal attack, with the Caucasian oil fields as only an auxiliary aim.

The Stalin Speech

New York, Nov. 8.—The Stalin speech, coinciding in time, with the electrifying victory in Africa, is as sensational a political event as the turn in Africa is a military event.

For Stalin's speech is the clearest and most positive declaration of the solidarity of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition which has yet come out of Russia.

Note that Stalin repeatedly refers to it as the "Anglo-Soviet-American coalition," not the Anglo-American-Soviet, or the Soviet-Anglo-American. He puts Russia in the middle. This is politically correct. But it is more. By it Stalin stresses a political attitude. He indicates that Russia is not an outsider; that it is not Russia plus the Anglo-American world, or vice versa, but is one solid block which historically came into being in the order in which he names it.

It is an open secret that there have been rifts in this coalition for some months past . . . rifts upon which the Axis had done its best to play. Rifts which came into the open after Churchill's visit to Moscow. Churchill is said to have admitted that Russia had her own viewpoint about the conduct of the war, but expressed the hope that the misunderstandings might have been overcome by his visit. Subsequent statements from Russia, and especially the Stalin letter to the Associated Press, reproached the Allies on the second front issue. Strong rebuttal by Stalin.

So it is of the highest importance that Stalin should say in his speech: "Lastly, one should mention as important a fact as the visit to Moscow of . . . Mr. Churchill, which established complete mutual understanding between the leaders of the two countries."

It is true that Stalin, retroactively, deplores the fact that a second front had not been opened earlier. He could not do otherwise. It is also true that Hitler's power would crumble within a year. Stalin is a cautious man, and assumed both the Russian campaign and the long, hard, and as Allied action which he expected.

This is important in view of the U. P. letter, which calls upon the Anglo-American forces to "fulfil their obligations fully and on time." If now says "second front" and thus makes a strong gesture toward the coalition.

Nazis Again Miss Moscow

Stalin also reveals the German plan for the capture of Moscow, and confirms that the principal and final aim of the Russian campaign again was Moscow, this time by a drive from the south outflanking Moscow from the east. Instead of by frontal attack, with the Caucasian oil fields as only an auxiliary aim.

The more important part of the speech, that cements the coalition, is the second part. For, in the form of simple slogans, Stalin affirms the basic principles of the Atlantic Charter, including "the restoration of democratic liberties," and supports to the full President Roosevelt's recent statement, which has had enormous effect in Germany, that the Hitlerite clique will be punished for this war, and not the German people.

Stalin's acceptance of "democratic liberties," at the end of the Soviet constitution of the October revolution on a nation-wide broadcast to the whole Russian people, is a promise to them as well as to the world, and recalls Litvinoff's speech of the last spring, in which he said that no country, including Russia, would be unchanged as a result of this war.

There is one point in Stalin's speech which is new, and does not conform with anything previously said by Churchill or the President. Answering Hitler's announced purpose of destroying Russia as a state and all Russian military force, Stalin remarks with humor that this is "crazy and illiterate," and then says: "It is not our aim to destroy Germany for it is different to destroy Germany," and, "it is not our aim to destroy all military force in Germany . . . it is inadvisable . . . but the Soviet army can, and should be, destroyed."

This division between German people and Hitler's army is unexplained. Obviously there is no other military force in Germany at present but Hitler's army. Apparently Stalin is trying to split the military mind in Germany and offset the German fear that either Germany will be permanently occupied or the German people turned over helpless to the mercies of their enemies.

It also might be interpreted as a concession to the fear that Russia, with her immense military land power, would dominate the whole Russian Continent after this war, if this concession is apparently accompanied with a warning, for he again calls the Allies to arms "to form armies establish themselves on Continental things may lead by for all freedom-loving countries." This point needs further clarification.

Finally, Stalin made as clear a statement as has been made by any of the Hitler new order and the Coalition that the war has been made by any responsible statesman. In his statement of conditions he has intimated for any man in the street what this coalition between nations and ideologies is fighting for. In other words, he has defined everything that might cause further strife. For instance, there is no reference to the future of the British Empire. It is to be hoped that the Empire, too, with these words of "agitation as usual," will take note of them.

TEENS OR TEENS

Which is correct, teens or 'teens' or 'teens'?

During the discussions on the question of extending the selective service age down to 18 and 19 years of age, many writers were puzzled as to whether "teens" and "teen-ager" should or should not be preceded by an apostrophe.

Some newspapers and magazines printed them teens and teen-age, while others printed 'teens and 'teen-ager.

"Teens" refers to the years of a person's life or the numbers ending in "teen" and is correctly written without the apostrophe or sign of omission.

It is possible the plural form of the termination of the cardinal numbers from thirteen to nineteen inclusive are digrdlles "and 'ten."

"Sixteen," for instance, literally means "six and ten."

A person twelve years of age is in his thirteenth year, but is not yet in his teens.

When he first sees on his thirteenth birthday and leaves them on the fourteenth, he enters his twenties, which he leaves on his thirtieth birthday.

The apostrophe or sign of omission is not correctly placed before "teens" because no word, syllable, letter or figure is omitted.

We properly write '70's or 'seventies when we refer to the years from 1870 to 1880, because 1800 or "eighteen hundred" is understood to precede "seventy."

But in reference to a person's age we should properly write that he is in his 70's or seventies, not in his 70's or 'seventies, there being no word, syllable, letter or figure omitted.

Webster's International Dictionary defines the word "teen" as follows: "The syllable of one's age, in numbers, having the termination -teen; as, a girl in her teens."

Webster's also defines teen as the singular, although it is derived from the plural, and correctly defines the adjective "teen" as follows: "Of the age of one between thirteen and nineteen; as, a boy in his teen age."

In "Modern English Usage" H. W. Fowler says simply: "Teens (in the sense of the years thirteen to nineteen) it is not likely that anybody will think of writing or printing that 'teens and 'teen age are correct, but they are among the most frequent errors in the English language.

WEDDINGS

BARNES—LITTLE

Trenton, (Special)—A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the parsonage of the Bridge Street York Road, Trenton, on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when Rev. Frederick Lamont Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Little, became the bride of Robert Barnes, formerly of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Bernice, Ont., R. C. Minister, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, officiated at the ceremony which was performed in a setting of mauve baby chrysanthemums. Wedding music was played by Miss Jean Adams, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor length gown of white sheer, fashioned in classic Grecian lines. Her long veil, caught to her hair with orange blossoms, formed a train and she carried a shower bouquet of pink Briarcliffe rose buds with satin streamers dotted with rose-buds. Miss Velma Radford, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore orange velvet over taffeta with finger-tip veil and bouquet of pink and white carnations. Little Miss Shirley Bonter, as flower girl in pink taffeta, carrying a basket of flowers, made a pretty picture.

Mr. Gordon Priest, Foxboro, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Gerald Radford, brother of the bride, and Mr. Carl Wright, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Pink and white streamers and pink 'mums decorated the bride's table which was centred with the wedding cake. A number of friends of the bride assisted in the serving. Mrs. Radford in dusty rose crepe with corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. Wright, mother of the groom, wearing navy blue crepe with corsage of pink roses, received. The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the bridesmaid and flower girl, gold lockets, and to the pianist a gift of cash.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and Western points, the bride travelling in a dusty rose crepe suit with coat and brown accessories. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm, Foxboro.

MARSE—CAMPBELL

White and yellow chrysanthemums adorned the altar and sanctuary of Christ Church for the wedding at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon of Vera, Josephine, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Alan V. Campbell, and Opl. William F. Marse, R.C.A.F., Prince Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marse, Minitonas, Manitoba. Rev. G. O. Wright performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a black and rose ensemble with rose accessories. A ruffled basque of white lace formed the bride's table presenting a dainty picture with its centrepiece of the wedding cake and pink tapers in silver holders. White and yellow chrysanthemums were used in the decoration of the rooms.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. George Macdonald, Glen Stanley and Miss Lorraine Burley, all of Trenton.

WILSON—CONLEY

Stirling, Nov. 8. (Special) —St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Hilda Jane Conley, only eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Conley, Charlotte Street, Stirling, became bride of John Bertsell Wilson, son of Mrs. Harold Evans and the late Joseph Russell Wilson of Bonarlaw. Floral decoration with pink and white as a basic colour scheme added beauty to the setting for the rites given at the home of the bride's parents, where a reception and wedding dinner were held later in the day. Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones, rector of the parish, officiated. The wedding music from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. R. A. Bell, organist. A solo "I Love You Truly" was capably rendered by Mr. Conley, brother of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was prettily attired in a gown created in Grecian lines of white slipper satin with long full veil with coronet of orange blossom and silver allegiers. She carried a large bouquet of Talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Myrtl June Conley, Stirling, who wore a floor length gown of pink sheer crepe with matching sobrezza, silver slippers and picture hat. Her flower was pink and white carnations and ferns. Mr. Mr. Harold Evans, brother of Bonarlaw, acted as groomsman.

A reception and wedding dinner took place at the home of the bride's parents with guests being received by the bride's mother, assisted in an afge fons-ette crepe. She was assisted by Mrs. Evans, mother of groom, who wore black and white crepe with accessories in matching. Assisting at the dinner were Misses Betty Ruth, Dorothy Spencer, Hazel Bates, Vivian Rands, Bernice Stevens. The rooms were decorated with Autumn leaves and ferns.

Early in the evening the bridal party left for a short wedding trip to Ottawa, and other points of interest. For travelling the bride selected an ensemble of sand and brown shades with matching accessories. Upon their return the, will reside on the groom's farm at Bonarlaw.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Mary Ann and Mrs. Leonard Bates and Miss Hazel Bates, Mrs. F. Hannah and Mrs. Chas. Stevenson all of Belleville; Mrs. Harold Peters of Sylvanus, Miss Lois Wilson of Peterborough, Miss Betty Hulin of Wallbrook's Corners, Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Miss Dorothy Spencer, Mr. Spencer, Jackie Spencer, and Miss Margaret Sconce, all of Campbellford; Mrs. Harold Price, grandmother of the bride, Campbellford; Mrs. Bedford, and visiting papers please copy.)

Right Perfume Casts a Spell

This pretty model it has floral perfumes

By HELEN FOLLETT

PERFUMES ARE romantic, cast a bewitching spell. They are treasured by women above all the items on her dressing table. And short bottle go slow with hers. It will last longer if she uses an atomizer. What greater treat for the honeymoon, after she has had her bath, sprays her throat and chest with the florried water.

Makes her forget the dishes she has washed, the laundry work she has done, the cooking of the baby's toys, all the rest of the daily chore.

Careful Selection

First she must find the scent that satisfies her soul. All too often she has lugged home a purchase from the perfume counter, found that she and it could not live in the same house together. She made too casual a selection. If she had applied some to her wrist, waited for the alcoholic content to evaporate, then sniffed, she would have been able to make a wise decision.

Avoid strong, musky offerings. The delicate florried odors are the ones that tickle and delight the nostrils. It enhances you think of old-fashioned gardens.

Sachets

If the personal budget does not permit indulgence in perfumes one can comfort one's soul with toilet eau colognes that has freshness and vitality. It works like magic on the skin cleanser. If dark specks appear, then it's time for a dry cleaning with eau de cologne. Pour a teaspoonful on a moistening cloth —an old, soft washcloth, is best for the purpose—and pass it over the skin lightly after the face has been washed.

Sachets are good investments. Tuck them in handkerchief, glove and hat boxes.

Unusual Marriages Destined For Success

In these topsy-turvy war days, it seemed not unusual when a pretty young bride departed, alone, on her honeymoon, destination 800 miles away.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the registrar's office of a telephone company; the traditional "I do" was said over a telephone wire, and with Marine Private Aubrey Holmes standing in the same words, the couple were made man and wife.

Rev. T. T. Roberts, pastor of the Strauss Memorial Christian Church, Benning, D. C., read the text and kissed the bride in the absence of the bridegroom. The parents of both contracting parties were present at the telephone marriage.

Following the ceremony the news of marriages in this country, it seems is that many of the unusual marriages which have lasted. Con-sequently, I feel that those of our generation ago, who climbed into the covered wagon and settled in the Western frontier with their husbands to take chances with Indians, blizzards and unknown hardships.

The trek lasted sometimes two and three years. Children were born in the covered wagons some-times, and little Sunday or stone, rude monuments surviving to this day, told of heartbreaking deaths on the trail. Yet this country has never produced better women than these pioneer wives who, when they pledged their troth "for better or for worse" meant it.

When I was a very young girl, I was taken to see an old lady, 80, in Wyoming. She had been a covered wagon bride. Her husband had prospered; her sons and daughters and sons had achieved distinction and wealth.

She showed me the blue calico gown in which she had been married, treasured in a box worth a hundredfold times the value of its contents. Her mother had wanted her to be married in white with bridesmaids, but she had chosen things that a bride cherishes. But the old lady told me she knew the money would be needed and her forethought helped to buy that first flock of sheep through which the family fortune came.

And the blue calico gown and the little square-toed shoes which had walked with her for hundreds of miles marked a wedding in which they lived happily ever after.

Sore Throat, Infection, Rash Symptoms of Scarlet Fever

When a child has fever and a sore throat, it may be that he has a cold or a more serious infection. Scarlet fever begins that way.

This disease occurs most often in cold, damp climates. The disease is contagious for only a few days, but is most common between the ages of two and ten years.

Scarlet fever is probably passed from one person to another by discharges from the nose and throat. It has been found that the fever is caused by a streptococcus. There are other authorities who think that perhaps a virus also has something to do with the disease. As with measles, it is a minor infection. It is fortunate that new-born babies are immune to scarlet fever. A good protection lasts in most cases for from six to nine months. Once a child has had scarlet fever, he is protected for the time being.

Scarlet fever usually begins suddenly with fever, sore throat, headache, vomiting and a rash. The symptoms may be mild or severe, depending on the degree of the infection. The temperature varies from 100 to 102 degrees, but may usually appears within the first 24 hours. The rash may be out by from 48 to 72 hours. It starts first on the neck, chest and trunk and spreads rapidly to other parts of the body. It is a red rash rather than scarlet. Spots and areas may be made up of tiny red spots. Ten days to two weeks after the disease starts there usually is peeling but this does not occur in all children's cases.

Scarlet fever may be accompanied by severe complications. The infection may extend to the middle ear, the mastoid bone, the lining of the nasal sinuses and the lymph glands in the neck. The lymph glands may become enlarged and painful. Damage to the heart and inflammation of the joints often occur. Damage to the kidney, which sometimes develops in from one to ten per cent of the cases. The kidney disease usually does not begin about three weeks after the attack of fever and develop in mild as well as in severe cases.

The child with scarlet fever should be put to bed, given food in large quantities and, of course, kept away from other children.

The care and throat should be examined frequently by a doctor. Any infection starts it may be treated early.

There is a scarlet fever antitoxin which may be given to prevent the disease and seems to aid in relieving the symptoms. Sulfanilamide is helpful. It has been found to be helpful in preventing many of the complications that occur in scarlet fever. Convalescent serum also is helpful. Children are frequently recovered from the disease—often is used hospital in this country, it seems to me. Prompt diagnosis and proper treatment of scarlet fever has greatly reduced the seriousness of many lives.

AIKEN'S W.A.

The October meeting of the Women's Association of the Bridge Street United Church was held on Thursday afternoon, October 29th, with a record attendance. Dinner was served to thirty-four members and their husbands—members and three visitors at the afternoon meeting—by the ladies of the circle, the president, Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, presiding over the table. Mrs. Wilmot Hamilton as pianist, opened the meeting and led in the worship service by the president.

A hymn was sung followed by the Lord's Prayer, repeated by all. Mrs. Cyril McMullen, Secretary-Treasurer, read "Will Pass" was given by Mrs. Thos. Irvin. Sheer speed, showmanship and stickhandling ability as smooth as any ice surface has thrust Gaye Stewart into prominence many times before, but none of those admirable qualities feature his publicity today. He's one of hockey's villains now.

For the first time in his cinderella-like career the played junior, senior, minor professional and National League hockey last season), the 19-year-old left wing of Toronto Maple Leafs earned the bad man label Saturday by tangling with defenceman Jimmy Orlando of Detroit Red Wings. The wild shopping duel they staged was the highlight of the National League's second period of combat.

This flareup started just before the final whistle. Orlando swung a left hook that sent Stewart spinning to the ice and escaped miraculously without a penalty. The Toronto player served two minutes for a previous offence, but it didn't cool him out. The next time the two collided, Stewart slashed Orlando three times with his stick.

Drew Match Penalties

Both drew match penalties and $50 fines. Orlando's ultimate status is still in doubt, since he played against Chicago Black Hawks Sunday in violation of N.H.L. regulations. Physically, he was in bad shape with two head wounds which took six stitches to repair.

Leafs won the game 5-3 with Sweeney Schriner, Lorne Carr, Billy Taylor, Mel Hill and Norman (Bud) Polle doing the heavy damage. Detroit goals were scored by Mud Bruneteau and Joe Carveth. The victory moved Toronto temporarily into a first-place tie with their conquered rivals, but Wings picked up a point in their 3-3 overtime tie with Black Hawks Sunday to regain sole possession of the lead. Robert (Red) Hamill tallied all three Chicago goals to nullify the work of Detroit's Captain Harvey Watson and Bruneteau.

Canadiens Split

Montreal Canadiens split a pair of weekend games with New York Rangers to tie the undefeated and untied Leafs for second place. They dropped the Saturday night game at New York 4-3 in overtime as Rangers recorded their season's first success, but went better on home ice Sunday for a 10-4 verdict. It was another bad night for rookie Steve Bushnell of New York, who now has allowed 32 goals in four games.

Thirty-six scoring points were compiled in the fast-moving contest at Montreal, Gordie Drillon and Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens obtaining six each. Howard Wartick, the 1941-42 Calder trophy winner, snatched three of Rangers' four goals.

GOAL-GETTER

Displaying remarkable ability as goal-getter, Carl Liscombe, burly left-winger in the Detroit Red Wings created a record or near-record when he was credited with three goals, and four assists, in a game with the New York Rangers.

KROL AND CUDDIE BLOSSOM AS NEW O.R.F.U. STARS

Cuddie Stars for Navy Against Indians, While Krol is Hero at Hamilton

BEACHES WIN

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Note to Flying Officer Lew Hayman, coach, Royal Canadian Air Force Hurricanes, Toronto: Better retract that statement about ACL Jack Parry, Lew, or your reputation for smooth football "politics" will be sadly damaged.

Not that you were necessarily wrong, Lew, but when you said Parry would prove to be a better player in ordinary times than Winnipeg's Fritzie Hanson, you weren't choosing your words with the usual Hayman discrimination. You should have made it a four-way argument, or kept the comparison to yourself.

You should be convinced, by now, that there are at least two other Ontario Rugby Football Union players with possibilities of becoming Big Four all-stars. Fritzie Hanson undoubtedly is (or was, before the Hurricanes started to carry uniform.) Take, for instance, OB. Hugh Cuddie of Toronto Navy — or Joe Krol of Hamilton Wildcats.

Cuddie has played under numerous handicaps, but his assets, including an injured side, but the erstwhile Riverdale Collegiate and Toronto Balmy Beach halfback has managed to score six touchdowns in the eight games played. He tallied the latest two Saturday as Navy trounced Toronto Argonaut Indians 19-3 and while he may not be so swift as Parry, he wasn't battling against any other Navy backs who were credited to Cuddie's capable understudy, Corder Ewen. Morris three converts; Padre Ivan Edwards, touchdown; and OS. Shag Bell, single.

There was nothing particularly sensational, with Parry's brilliant performance against Hurricanes in the other Saturday league engagement at Varsity Stadium. True, Hurricanes made it 17-10 for seven wins and one tie in eight starts to clinch one playoff spot, and Krol only scored one point. But the Windsor schoolboy sensation overshadowed Flyers Parry, minus a sore ankle, long enough Thursday in what Toronto writers called a "pathfinder" exhibition. His all-round work created the spark for a Hamilton team which showed more aggressive strength than any other club has showed against Hurricanes this season. At Lenard, R. N. U. scoring king, tallied the other nine Hamilton points, with a touchdown, convert and placement.

Wildcats will have to work extra nicies to do it, but Krol and Co. Kroc isn't likely to play against Hurricanes. Their club should be such that could make the final round, and if it does Cuddie conceivably might make the Big Four all-star team. Not so seem a bit ridiculous. The Sailors' only opposition will come from Beaches, who hardly warmed up in whipping Mimico-Kew Beach Legion here 20-0 at Kitchener in the third game Saturday. Navy holds a one-game lead in the O.R.F.U. standings could clinch things with a victory over Beaches next Saturday.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

ALF PIKE, RANGERS, whose overtime goal gave New York a 4-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens, Saturday.

TURK BRODA, MAPLE LEAFS, for brilliant goal-tending performance as Toronto turned back Detroit 5-2.

GORDON DRILLON and BUDDY O'CONNOR, Canadiens, each earned six points in Montreal's 10-4 defeat of New York Rangers, Sunday.

GRANT WARWICK, RANGERS, who provided New York with three of their goals in Sunday's game.

ROBERT (RED) HAMILL, BLACK HAWKS, who pushed in Chicago's three counters as Hawks and Red Wings drew 3-3.

Duke Keats, one of hockey's greatest centres, came out of hiding to pick an all-time, all-star team in an interview with Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell—goal, Happy Holmes; star with Victoria Cougars and Detroit; defence, Joe Simpson, Sellkirk boy who became the "Corkscrew Joe" of Edmonton Eskimos and New York Americans, Sprague Cleghorn, who wound up with Boston Bruins, and Eddie Shore, who needs no identification; centre, Dick Irvin, whose playing career ended at Chicago; right wing, Bill Cook of Saskatoon Sheiks and New York Rangers; left wing, Gordie Roberts, now a Montreal Senior Canadien with the old Montreal Wanderers, and George Hay of Winnipeg Monarchs, Regina Capitals and Detroit Cougars ..... Keats is not impressed by the present game. "Today they just run around like chickens with their heads off. We played hockey."

BUFFALO BISONS STILL ON TOP

Hershey and Providence Tied for Top of the Eastern Division

Hershey and Providence share the top spot in the eastern division of the American Hockey League today but Buffalo Bisons are alone at the head of the western race with a record of five triumphs in seven starts.

The Bisons won game No. 5 last night as they crushed Hershey Bears 5-1.

Hershey's defeat enabled Providence Reds to draw even in the eastern sector with a 4-3 overtime triumph over Pittsburgh Hornets. Jack Flynn scored for Providence in the fourth minute of the extra period.

Cleveland Barons missed a chance to stay even with the Bisons by falling apart in the third period of their tussle with Indianapolis, which the Capitals won 5-2. The Caps scored four times in the final period.

The other game, between Washington Lions and New Haven Eagles, ended in a 4-4 tie.

New York, Nov. 9 — (AP) — If you're a pretty husky, healthy specimen, go you! How about getting matches against the records set by cadets at the Iowa army pre-flight school? Here are a few: Pushups from floor, 70; pushups on fingers, 35; single, feet not anchored, 535 (no, not setups. They'd anchor your feet); distance on floor, 1 minute 50 seconds; straight up chins, 30; one-finger chins, 20-foot rope climb in 27.5-pound sack, 11.8 seconds.... these aren't all the records, of course. If we think you'll be ready to stop before you get any farther.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

sometimes isn't encouraging, but as Scribe Craig points out—and—something is done during war time that will mean a lot to the fans in the post-war period, well we won't have any. During the last war the late Richard Arnott through the portals of the Turnbull Street arena gave the youth of the district and Bantam kids who wanted to play hockey a terrific public rental. Directly after the war in the early 20's proved to be the golden age of hockey in Belleville. However it took foresight to realize there was little thought to realize there was little use in depending upon players over 17 years of age to takeup hockey seriously during the summer the merchant setting up a business that many years ahead, well sports in the midget and bantam classes are a business, and a business that pays dividends in more way than one. As Fred Craig intimates, here's an opportunity for service clubs to assist in a community service.

THERE'S A LOT OF FOOD FOR Billie Watson and Earl McCready thought in the following two paragraphs penned by hyperbolous Fred Craig recently, which went as follows:

"Although the hockey season is not more than just around the corner and there are a lot of problems that need clarification, one thing is crystal clear and that is that there is an excellent time for a lot of effective missionary work in the direction of organizing leagues for young players. There never was a period in hockey's history when it is more desirable to provide organized competition for bantam, midget and juvenile players than right now, and the communities which do not recognize that fact and act upon it are going to miss the boat. Fortunately may be one of the centres in the boat-missing class unless we awaken to the dire necessity of encouraging and developing players in their middle teens. With transportation becoming increasingly more difficult and the calls to military service in the 18-year-old mark with 18-year-olds likely to be next, communities that are going to have to depend upon city leagues to a great extent 10 years hence are going to suffer.

"In recent years Peterborough has produced hockey talent by looking after young talent. This is true in all fairness, and in building a team which for the moment has become the major summer activity. It is established policy and one that will result in a dearth of senior players in baseball, hockey and football in rugby. And now with the explosion of the sports players likely to become the main source of hockey thrills, there is a clear call for effective organization in dealing with the problem of providing ample opportunity for the youngsters to play in organized competition. We should see a flock of bantam, midget and juvenile teams in action this coming winter, and it is not too soon to begin planning along that line. Perhaps the service clubs may be able to render a lot of help in admirably with their community service work."

REMEMBER WHEN THE WIN-nipeg Blue Bombers smashed through to their fourth consecutive Western Interprovincial Football championship with a 31 to 1 win over the hockless Calgary Bronks two years ago today? The Bombers took the lead in two straight with the first of 7-0 at Calgary and finishing the Bronks off at home.

DID YOU KNOW LEFTY HOWIE Pollet pitched only one ball for St. Louis Cardinals in the fourth world series game this year and could have been credited with the victory automatically would have under the old rules. Bat scorers, with displays allowed him one, voted that Lefty Max Lanier's three scoreless innings were more meritorious.... And also that at least it won't be necessary to carve busts of Manager Joe Cronin and Coach as the most valuable player in each league hereafter. He can exhibit bust of himself in the world series.

COMMENCING JUST WHERE the world series left off, Harley Cup series last spring, the Toronto Maple Leafs again beat the Detroit Red Wings at the Gardens Saturday night, but not before some thrilling fist and stickwrangling and resulted in match penalties. Toronto won 5-2 but not before the patrons were treated to extras after the youthful Gaye Stewart made several verbal crack in the direction of Jimmy Orlando, the Motown freshman, and the fight was on. Monkeying with Orlando, especially in a public place and business if for no other reason that Jimmy wears a wrestler's build and has the least provocation. Gordie Drillon and Buddy Angel repeated on the weekend as he collected eight points while the Canadians and Rangers were splitting two games. Maybe the biased puck fans in Toronto will live to regret the day they put the blast on the high-scoring Drillon. Jack Adams' Red Wings are leading the N.H.L. today as the result of the game played last night with the Black Hawks. Toronto and Canadiens are next in line.

KING STATEMENT GIVES NO HINT OF BREAK WITH VICHY

Any Resistance in North Africa "Will be in Reality German Resistance"

SENDS TELEGRAM

Ottawa, Nov. 8 (CP)—Whatever resistance is met by United States forces which have landed in French North African territory will in reality be German resistance, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in a prepared statement last night. In no circumstances could resistance mean that "we are at war against the real French."

The policy whereby Canada has maintained diplomatic relations with Vichy France had been "misunderstood in Canada as it has in the United States," Mr. King said. But his statement contained no indication of the future policy regarding continued relations with Vichy.

It was assumed unofficially from the Prime Minister's statement that unless Vichy recalls its Minister, Rene Ristelhueber, who has been in Ottawa since before France fell in June, 1940, no action to that end will be initiated here at present.

Up to a late hour last night Mr. Ristelhueber had received no instructions from his government. It was announced in Vichy yesterday that the United States Charge D'Affaires here had been advised of the breaking of diplomatic relations between Vichy France and the United States.

Pierre Dupuy, Charge D'Affaires of the Canadian Legation in Paris when the Germans overran France, has had his headquarters in London since then. He has made periodic trips to Vichy but has not been there in months. He last came to Ottawa a few months ago to report and subsequently returned to London.

M. J. Coldwell, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, issued a statement last night urging the Dominion Government to "break its policy of appeasement and break off relations with the Vichy government."

Tools or Puppets of Nazis

He suggested Canada "recognize the Fighting French, who are in our side" as the true representatives of the French people.

Mr. King's statement said "We cannot be sure that the forces of the United Nations will meet with no resistance from French forces. But, in no circumstances can that mean that we are at war against the real France. Whatever resistance there is will in reality be German resistance. The French leaders who appear at the head will be tools or puppets of Germans in the background."

Canada is the only British Commonwealth power having diplomatic relations with Vichy and the Prime Minister said the British Government "attached no less importance than our own to the maintenance of Canadian relations with Vichy which would be proved of value to the Allied cause in many ways."

The ties of kinship bound France more closely to Canada than to any other of the United Nations and "our faith in the integrity of purpose of the French people has been sustained by the thousands of fighting French who have never ceased to fight on at our side."

May Expect Propaganda

He warned Canadians to beware of an expected "deluge of propaganda from the Vichy radio" and added Hitler should not keep our ears attuned to the authentic voice of France — the France of liberty, of humanity, of civilization."

Mr. King said a statement by President Roosevelt Saturday night shortly after first word was made public of the African offensive.

It said: "The landing of an American army in N. Africa has just been announced in a flash over the radio from Washington, I hasten to express to you the wishes of all Canada for the accomplishment of its mighty mission."

On Saturday also Mr. King cabled Prime Minister Churchill congratulations on the victory won by the 8th British Army in Egypt, saying: "All Canada is rejoicing with you in the success of the United Forces in Egypt."

FIRST OBJECTIVES TAKEN BY U. S. WITHOUT STRUGGLE

Fall of Algiers Occurs 12 Hours After Lighting Assault

TROOPS' BOOKLETS

(By WES. GALLAGHER)
(U.S. Correspondent with A.E.F. in Africa)

Allied Headquarters, French North Africa, Nov. 8 (AP)—American combat forces led by Major-General Charles W. Ryder have wrested one of the key points in the western Mediterranean from Axis domination with the swift occupation of the port of Algiers despite strong opposition from Vichy's naval units.

The famous city fell just twelve hours after a lightning assault.

The port is the only one within easy reach of German air bases in Sardinia and Sicily, but the synchronized arrival of R.A.F. and American fighter planes on Algiers airfields within a few seconds after their ships docked made it sure that any raiding Nazi bombers would get a hot reception.

A covering force of American planes and a powerful British-American naval force stood off the harbor permitted use of the port immediately after both completed the occupation.

Oran, some 200 miles west of Algiers and the heart of Admiral Jean Darlan's German-inspired resistance, reported that it met strenuous opposition, particularly by navy-controlled Vichy troops.

Fighting along the Atlantic coast, meanwhile, was less severe.

As a result of the successes, Axis forces being hemmed in between the British 8th Army near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier now have communications by sea.

The surrender of Algiers was announced at 7 p.m. (2 p.m. E.W.T.), yesterday and provided for complete occupation of the city at dawn today.

The first objectives of the forces —Port Gentil, Arzeuh and Alnitaya, west of Algiers—were taken without a struggle. The Americans moved inland and launched an assault on the Maison Blanche and Blida airdromes. The former surrendered and the latter was taken after some fighting.

The United States combat forces which included some of the newly-established Rangers.

United States air force officers reported that there was considerable aerial opposition throughout the operation, although there was almost no bombing of Allied shipping.

Free Colonial Radio in Algiers, in both Algerian and Oran, French colonial naval units came out of the Vichy harbor to engage Allied vessels, but were fired upon and retired after suffering some losses.

The Royal Navy lost two small craft in the operation, presumably reached shore safely.

Advices last night from the Oran area said that United States troops had taken the Tafaoui airfield as the result of a brilliant combined team manoeuvre, thus adding another increase to the growing American power in North Africa.

These advices said that La Senia field at Oran was still in the hands of the Vichy French.

In general it appeared the Americans were encountering heavier opposition on the Atlantic coast than in the north, particularly from light naval forces.

Once opposition in coastal sectors was overcome, however, the Americans were said to be moving rapidly inland everywhere.

Roads of Advance Secured

It was disclosed that booklets had been issued to all the American troops giving them full instructions on how to conduct themselves.

They were warned especially against talking to Moslem women, the booklets pointing out that under Arab customs "the most innocent word addressed to a Moslem woman is considered an insult and is bitterly resented by Moslem men."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was thinking behind his cigar and ma said, William, what could be more interesting than a little girl grown sulp of a girl behind the ribbon counter at a Hoolihinders, earning at the most 12 dollars a week?

Well, let's see, that's a hard one, pop said. Offhand I'd say a quarter grown rickety boy in the stock room of the five and ten, making 6 bucks a week at the outside. Was that one of the questions on one of the radio quizzes? he said, and ma said, No, it was a personal question from me, because that's the description of the undersize boy for a salesgirl who had the audacity to be insolent to me this afternoon. You're acquainted with the general manager of Hoolihinders, aren't you, William? she said.

Well yes, Charley Sunhelm and I are on fairly friendly terms, in fact, pop said, and ma said, Then I want you to stop in there and report that girl to him. Just tell him she looked me brazenly in the eye and said, Okay, madam, there's plenty of time, Did you ever hear of anything more impertinent? ma said.

Well no I didn't, but at the same time, coming from a puny slip of a ribbon girl I dont think it sounds serious enough for a personal call on Charley Sunhelm, so how about if I tell Charley you were wounded by a big hunk of rock that slings 18 by 22 wool rugs around the carpet department? pop said, and ma said, Now William, I want that girl reprimanded for her impertinence.

Oh, if you're really thinking of her welfare, pop said, and ma said, Charley Sunhelm will fire her on the spot, and under present labor conditions she'll be snapped up immediately by a munitions or aircraft factory at a salary of forty dollars a week to start, so just say the word and I'll call Charley, he said, and ma said, Then I wont say the word, because I'm certainly not interested in any such extravagance of justice, so please just drop the subject.

Which pop did looking glad of it, sat, Ika Grunling, Minor Watson, Pat Moriarity, Egon Brecher, Ann Todd, Scott Sechett, Mary Thomas and a host of other players.

The almost unprecedented number of speaking parts is attributed by critics to the fact the story is spread over three separate periods of time.

AT THE McCARTHY

"My Sister Eileen"

Based upon the uproarious Broadway comedy of two Ohioan belles, Ohio, sisters battling for their careers and their honor in the jungles of Manhattan's Greenwich Village, the screen's biggest laugh hit, "My Sister Eileen" is now at the McCarthy Theatre.

The film, starring Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair, is twice as hilarious as the stage success, and twenty times as hilarious . . . no mean record for a screen version of a theatrical success which has convulsed more than three million theatre-goers in more than two solid years.

"My Sister Eileen" is a stage form, was written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, who based their hearty, hilarious and sometimes appealing characters upon Ruth McKenney's magazine story sketches. Fields and Chodorov also prepared the screen version, retaining much of the original play but placing more stress upon the comedy. The result would be writer Ruth Sherwood and the magazine editor who constantly contend to her rescue. They have also contrived a delightful sequence showing Ruth and her sister Eileen in their native Columbus, prior to their New York heyday.

Ruth and Eileen Sherwood come to New York for fame and fortune; Ruth wants to be an author, the apple annexer, and twenty lines a week career. They wind up in a basement apartment, above the gas chambers window at pavement level lets in the noise, the rowdies, the dogs and the cats and all the other gaudy sentiments of the Village.

A locked door lets in everybody else—including a "chairvoyant" formerly did business at that address, a professional football player (unemployed) feeding from his mother-in-law, a drug store manager who buys Eileen her lunch, a magazine editor who buys Ruth's stories, a Cossack night club doorman, and sundry other characters, as well as six members of the Portuguese navy band marine who follow Ruth home one night, are bowled over by Eileen and refuse to go home. It is Eileen who decides to lead them to the street by way of the conga, and it is Eileen who winds up in jail.

Ann Sheridan cast is superb, the direction flawless. "My Sister Eileen" is destined to be among the ten best comedies of all time.

K-Cola Company, Limited
Just a pause to say that K-Cola is a delightful drink in it, and the drink with a lot of value before it, also.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was thinking behind his cigar and ma said, William, what could be more interesting than a little girl grown sulp of a girl behind the ribbon counter at a Hoolihinders, earning at the most 12 dollars a week?

Well, let's see, that's a hard one, pop said. Offhand I'd say a quarter grown rickety boy in the stock room of the five and ten, making 6 bucks a week at the outside. Was that one of the questions on one of the radio quizzes? he said, and ma said, No, it was a personal question from me, because that's the description of the undersize boy for a salesgirl who had the audacity to be insolent to me this afternoon. You're acquainted with the general manager of Hoolihinders, aren't you, William? she said.

Well yes, Charley Sunhelm and I are on fairly friendly terms, in fact, pop said, and ma said, Then I want you to stop in there and report that girl to him. Just tell him she looked me brazenly in the eye and said, Okay, madam, there's plenty of time, Did you ever hear of anything more impertinent? ma said.

Well no I didn't, but at the same time, coming from a puny slip of a ribbon girl I dont think it sounds serious enough for a personal call on Charley Sunhelm, so how about if I tell Charley you were wounded by a big hunk of rock that slings 18 by 22 wool rugs around the carpet department? pop said, and ma said, Now William, I want that girl reprimanded for her impertinence.

Oh, if you're really thinking of her welfare, pop said, and ma said, Charley Sunhelm will fire her on the spot, and under present labor conditions she'll be snapped up immediately by a munitions or aircraft factory at a salary of forty dollars a week to start, so just say the word and I'll call Charley, he said, and ma said, Then I wont say the word, because I'm certainly not interested in any such extravagance of justice, so please just drop the subject.

Which pop did looking glad of it,

"Torpedo Boat"

For breathless action and thrilling romance, film fans would go a long way before they'd find anything better than Paramount's exciting "Torpedo Boat," now at the Capitol Theatre, with Richard Arlen and Jean Parker as the stars.

Arlen is a speed-mad driver of racing motorboats. With his pal, Phillip Terry, he has invented a new type of torpedo-carrying "mosquito"boat for the United States Navy. How a night club singer, played by Miss Parker, and the haughty daughter of a millionaire shipbuilder, blonde Mary Carlisle, almost wreck his plans when they battle for his favors, is the story around which the fast and furious action of "Torpedo Boat" takes place.

"Kings Row"

Sixty-seven speaking parts is the amazing total in the new Warner Bros. production, "Kings Row," the Capitol Theatre's dual attraction.

Not since "Anthony Adverse," perhaps, has any Hollywood film required so many established players in the screen version of the best-seller novel by Henry Bellamann.

CHAPTER 11
SHE He Cries

"That wouldn't be possible for a woman, but quite a likely dodge for a man, who feared he might be suspected."

"Possible, but unlikely. It would have to be a man with a very guilty conscience. Whom, then, of the third dcfr in the coat room go to?"

"One opens into the north hall, one into the south hall and the other into a bathroom; It's a guest room; the two halls, they're really corridors, curve around to the gallery that looks down on the rotunda."

"I wish I had your photographic vision. Then one could go into the room by the north hall door, out by the south hall door, and not be noticed?"

"I don't think anybody noticed anybody else much, at the party. They were not playing detectives."

"No. But the men that went through the room made a proper selection of possible suspects, don't you see?"

"Yes, I see, but I don't know who the men were."

"I do." Raynor looked very serious. "I do, but I don't know in what order they went. There's the trouble. . . . Run along now, boy; I'll do up the Chink and the imperturbable Dickson, and call it a day."

"Foo Chow, the butler came in, with his usual calm demeanor.

"You like talk to me?" he asked, politely.

"Yes; be seated, please."

The butler sat down and Raynor studied him for a moment.

A small man, with black hair, one bit of which fell in his eyes now and then and he impatiently pushed it back. His eyes were small and black and very bright.

"You like the people you work for?" Raynor asked him.

"Yes, Mr.. McCleod fine man, Mis McCleod is fine woman, too."

"That is a phrase you licked up!"

"It is line of poetry. Chinese good poetry."

"Yes. Now, Foo Chow, what do you know about Mrs. McCleod's sad death?"

"Not any one thing."

"But you have heard a lot. You walked on the guests hat rack and all day today. You must have heard a great deal."

"Good butler hear no word."

"That's all right ordinarily. But now, as an exception, it is your duty to tell anything you overheard that will help us find the criminal."

"Good servant say nothing."

"Very well; never mind the guests. What do the people say in the kitchen?"

"Good butler not go in Kitchen."

"Well, I suppose some of the other servants come there once in a while. Who do they say killed Mrs. McCleod?"

"They say they not know."

"But they suspect someone. You do, don't you?"

"Me? Foo Chow suspect no one."

"Well, suppose someone said to you, 'I know who killed the lady. What would you say? Wouldn't you say, 'Who?'"

"No. I not say that."

"What would you say?"

"I say, 'Go home please,' and no more."

"You wouldn't listen to him?"

"Most very surely not!"

"But he might tell you the truth, and then you could tell me."

"That is not the chance."

"What chance?"

"It is not a chance to be the truth, what he tells me."

"No, probably not. But Dickson, now. Dickson might know."

"Might be!"

"You suspend! You know he might. Has he told you anything?"

"Nothing. I would not allow."

"Look here, my man, you are laying up trouble for yourself. Don't you know that by holding back like this you may be arrested and made to talk?"

"When one knows nothing, all talk cannot."

"You exasperate me!"

"If tell you, maybe, who killed lovely lady?"

"Yes, you might tell me that." Raynor hopes were dashed.

"Well, then I tell you it was the dog, the wise Linda."

"Linda? Kill her mistress! No, no, Foo Chow."

"But it has to-be Linda. She, you see, would marry with Dickson. They are betrothed. But they are of an estate. They want to live rich. Now, with Mrs. McCleod dead, Linda will get enormous sum of money and Dickson and Linda will live happy ever after."

"After she has committed murder? Oh, no, Chow, she couldn't do that."

"Murderer have no heart, no remorse."

"Oh, nonsense! It wasn't Linda."

"But Dickson," he think it Linda."

"No, he doesn't; he can't. . . . You ask him, Mr. Policeman! You ask him! He will not say 'Yes,' my Linda, she is murderer.' . . . Then you will know. His eye will droop, he will stammer, he will nod his head away. You will know, then."

"Go away, Foo Chow. You've said enough. Don't you dare say this to anybody else. Understand? I understand. I will obey."

Raynor waved his hand. He thought over what he had heard and sent for Dickson.

"You buy, Dickson?" he asked when the valet came in.

"I am at your service, Captain Raynor."

"Very well. Sit there and tell me anything you may know about this tragedy that has come to Mr. McCleod."

"I don't know anything, sir, that you don't know yourself."

"Well, you ought to. You were here in the house when it happened. I didn't arrive until some time after then. Tell me all you know this way: Have you any idea who killed the lady?"

"I wouldn't want to put a stern idea into words, sir. I might be doing someone a deep injustice."

"And you might be doing someone else a deep injustice by not telling what you know."

"I very hasty, sir."

"What's very hard?"

"To know what to do."

"Let me help you. Do you, perhaps, suspect somebody, and you hate to say so, because you may be wrong?"

"Yes, Captain Raynor, that's it exactly."

"You afraid of incriminating somebody you care for?"

"Not care for in the sense of affection, but somebody I respect."

"This is an odd way to speak of the woman he was engaged to, and Raynor wondered whether Foo Chow was right or had after all.

"You mean, one of the gentlemen who was at the party?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, Dickson, having said as much as you have, you will have to tell me the man's name. But it is not probable he will ever know that you spoke of him to me. You may trust me. He will be nothing against him."

"Very well, sir. Then I will tell you it was Ogden Murray."

"And what makes you think there is any reason to suspect him of committing the crime?"

"He was trying to get money from Mrs. McCleod, sir, under false pretenses."

"Swindling her?"

"That's a strong word. But he was trying to persuade her to buy some shares in an oil well, which I know to be a worthless proposition."

"Are you a speculator yourself, Dickson?"

"No, sir. But this is a well known fraud—I mean, well known among some people I know, who were fooled by it."

"Something like the Spanish Prisoner racket?"

"Yes, old and well-known as that, but it is becoming so. It's an old oil well, in Texas and it's reamed out and I, myself, am told, there's a lot of people who believe in it, and they are buying shares like crazy."

"And Mrs. McCleod was interested?"

"Yes, sir. Mr. Murray told her about it and she had promised to buy a lot of shares."

"How do you know all this?"

"Because Linda is the confidante of her mistress. She told Linda. But I hope sir, Linda's name need not be brought into it."

"No, Dickson, there's no reason why it should. This is an important matter you're telling me about."

Raynor did not like to be advisable to Dickson that he had already heard all this from Linda herself, and he felt sure that the valet's suspicion of Linda as a murderess was a flight of imagination brought about by the Chinese knowings that Mrs. McCleod's death would give Linda a big legacy, on which marital happiness might be found.

But, as he thought it over, he realized that Foo Chow's suspicion of Linda was more absurd than Dickson's hints about Murray.

Granting the fact that Murray's trying to get money from Alma for a fraudulent purpose, would be no real reason for Murray's killing her.

Even supposing Alma had thought it over and had told Murray she would give him no more money, supposing they had been up there in the coat room and he had become very angry at her, he would scarcely murder her then and there, with a house full of people running through the rooms at will. And to kill her, would cut off all possible chance of further income from her part. He said:

"It doesn't seem to me, Dickson, that Murray would have a motive for killing Mrs. McCleod. Unless he had already swindled her badly and was afraid she would expose him."

"I don't know as to that, sir. And I have no right to speak so personally of my mistress. But she was that kind and sociable like with Linda, that she felt sorry to see her get into the clutches of that bad Murray. He doesn't seem like one of the crowd who mostly come here and if you have any influence with the matter, sir, I beg you find out all about him."

"Yes, I will do so, Dickson. I'm glad you told me this, but better not talk of it to anyone else. You may go now, but keep a still tongue in your head. Much trouble is caused by talking."

"Yes, sir, that is true. But I suppose you will find out who it was that killed her."

"I hope so; we will positively find that out."

Raynor looked at the man sharply, but saw no shadow of fear in his eyes.

CONSULAT BOSTON QUITS VICHY

Says Allied Action is Not Aggression Against the French but Step to Liberation

Boston, Nov. 9 (AP)—Declaring that the American offensive in North Africa cannot be interpreted as an aggression but is, on the contrary, a first step for the liberation of France, Francois Brieux, Vichy Consul at Boston, today resigned his post.

M. Brieux, press attaché to the French delegation to the London naval conference in 1930 and the disarmament conference at Geneva, sent his resignation to Admiral Ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, and also advised Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles of his decision. In a statement M. Brieux said:—

"I said to both that the reason for my decision is that according to the President's message to the French people, I consider that the American offensive in French Africa be interpreted as an aggression but is, on the contrary, a first step for the liberation of France.

"I have sent, from the summer, several French people, coming from France and they have told me of the complete confidence of overwhelming majority of the French people in the United States to save France."

Six Teams In Reliance Ladies Bowling League

Maple pins will be spilled and scattered over the Recreation Bowling Alleys tonight when the Reliance Ladies' Bowling League swings into action with six teams taking over the alleys in competition. A full double schedule of games has been adopted for this league play-off commencing late in January.

The election of officers for the Reliance Aircraft Ladies' Bowling League resulted as follows: President, Unice Wilson; Secretary, Alys Stafford; Executive Committee, Marjorie Ling and Dorothy McLennon; Team Captains, "Bombers," Betty Hastie; "Bombers," Violet Bloom; "Thunderbolts," Bea Dalrymple; "Atoms," Lorna Stevens; "Torch-bearers," Gladys Illsley; "Spitfires," Edna Benard.

The league voted to adopt the playing rules of the Canadian Ladies' Bowling Association and abide by the rules in advance of play the same. The league operates each Monday night at the Recreation Alleys.

British People 'Getting Recompense For Their Courage'

An English Manufacturing Town, Nov. 9, (CP)—From the great military operations in Africa the British people "at last, thank God, are getting recompense" for their spirit and courage, Mrs. Churchill, D. Roosevelt told cheering aircraft workers here today.

Noting that British and American soldiers are fighting side by side the President's wife said, "I hope this is the beginning of the victorious end".

Garage Operators to Seek Legislation Calling for Closing Of Auto Repair Shops at Seven

Provincial Council Holds Meeting in City Over the Weekend

TOUR AIR STATION

Due to delayed mechanical stalls in automobile service garages across the province and to the fact that further conservation of electrical energy must be made, the Ontario Garage Operators' Association will shortly seek legislation calling for the closing of auto repair establishments at seven o'clock in the evening.

This was decided in Belleville over the weekend when delegates of the Garage Operators' Association from all over the province met in provincial council at the Quinte Hotel. Approximately 125 delegates attended the meeting at which many matters pertaining to the garage industry were discussed.

Following the second meeting of the provincial council to be held in this city and enthusiasm ranked high, committees in charge were drawn to the success of the venture. Held by officials to be the largest and largely attended provincial council meeting ever held in the province, the session was concluded with a dinner meeting at the Quinte at which 200 persons at the tables attended. Mr. Bill Davis headed the committee in charge of dinner arrangements.

Industrial Staffs Depleted

The problem of long hours in service garages was the most important topic discussed by provincial delegates. As the war has progressed, the duties of mechanics in these war industries have increased, there have been serious inroads made into the industrial staffs and the motor service garages, it was held.

Many mechanics called on the staffs, it has now been found practicable to operate, maintain and rehabilitate, round the clock, service which has characterized the automotive service business over many years. Conservation of manpower and of electric power must be made and the meeting decided arrangements will be sought to have repair establishments closed at seven o'clock.

Tour Air Station

At the same time, however, a plan is being evolved whereby trucks and transports and motorists who may require emergency service after closing hours may secure it with a minimum of inconvenience. This problem has been under discussion at meetings of the Hastings and Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington Operators, but decision was laid over until the meeting of the provincial council.

Taken on Tour

While delegates from the various Operators' Associations across the province were guests at the Quinte hotel, the wives of the visitors were taken on a tour of the Trenton Air Station by their hosts, Belleville and the Hastings and Prince Edward Association. Approximately 150 made the trip to the station. The party was met at the gate by smiling officer members of the Women's Division (Officers) and taken on a conducted tour of the station.

The delegates' wives and other visitors saw at first hand how personnel of the R.C.A.F. live and how they work. They were shown the recreation and physical culture training hangar, they were shown the Mess Hall, the canteen where the officer-in-charge explained the intricate work of checking the immense amount of stores required at the station, and they were shown the salvage materials was a prerequisite of modern warfare.

The visitors were taken through the hospital where personnel were shown how the 'chutes are examined and packed, they saw the latest in the tidy women's sleeping quarters and airmen's recreation room and made a thorough inspection of the airmen's messes where the cooking kitchens which play so important a part in the efficiency of the R.C.A.F.

Banquet Held

The banquet in the main dining room of the hotel in the evening was a gala affair with entertainment provided by Mrs. Florrie Mills Male Quartette, comprised of Mrs. Florrie Mills, Mrs. Ethel Bird, James Bankier and Alf Evans, with Leo Rigg at the piano.

Mr. Jack Trudeau, provincial president of the Garage Operators' Association presided at the meeting ceremonies for the evening, with short and humorous addresses being made by many members of the provincial directorate, including Mr. Bill Bailey, past president; Jim Hughes, Jack Hall, Ernie Bridge, James Reid, field secretary; Ed. Wattam, editor of the Garage Operators' Journal and Mr. Fred Johnston, vice-president, and Harry Gibbard, the oldest member of the Association.

Toasts proposed during the evening were to the King, the President, to the Provincial Council, proposed by Lofte Vaughan, and responded to by Jack Trudeau; to the Royal Canadian Air Force proposed by "Nick" Nicholson and responded to by Flying Officer Skinner; to the ladies, proposed by Ken Hughes and responded to by Mrs. Ian McKinley; to the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators, proposed by Bill Bailey and responded to by Mr. Bert Boyce.

Special guests of the operators for the evening banquet were Assistant Section Officers Ferguson and Hall of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division), Trenton. These two officers played hosts to the operators' wives during the afternoon's tour of Trenton Air Force station.

Jimmy Bankier provided vocal entertainment for the banquet party with with rendition of several numbers, which were greatly appreciated. Mr. Bankier also led in community singing during the evening. Special prizes and door prizes were won by Mr. Gordon Hagg, Oxford county; Mrs. Lorne Vaughan; Mrs. H. Wood and Miss Ronia Tucker. Prize in each case was a five-dollar war certificate donated by a group of Belleville firms.

THE WAR TODAY

the ghastly shambles he will have made of Germany. The good Doctor Goebbels' efforts to explain to the German people what has happened to Rommel and the meaning of Algiers, Oran and Casablanca got no support from the Fuehrer's address. Never has the pitch of a Hitler speech been more hysterical.

Rome chimed in with a sombre chord: "The horizon is black for Italy—we must expect attacks from any quarter," said a Fascist radio commentator. For the Italians know they must take the first impact of the world-shaking developments now shaping up across the Mediterranean. The situation offers a temptation to speculate whether Italian resistance in the end will be any more wholehearted than the token blows being struck by the French in Morocco and Algeria. For the similarity between the status of France and Italy grows daily.

Allied Campaign of Prevention

But it would be easy—and dangerous—to draw from the temper of Munich and Rome and from the manifold reports of Allied successes the conviction that victory is just around the corner. The United Nations draw high encouragement from thi sevidence of the ability of the command to plan, prepared and carry through the African undertaking on vast scale indicative of foresight, imagination and initiative. But this campaign is merely one of prevention and preparation and in so far as it involves the killing of Frenchmen a "melancholy action," to borrow the phrase Winston Church applied to its prelude at Mers-El-Kebir more than two years ago. We will do well to ponder the remainder of that grim realist, Joseph Stalin, that only 15 Axis divisions are involved in Africa, one-twentieth of the forces that face the Russians and are deployed to keep the rest of Europe in subjection.

But the beginning has been made.

Spectre of Flight

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—The spectre of flight from a defeated Germany apparently has at least entered the mind of Adolf Hitler.

He told his followers last night in his Munich beer hall address that he would never leave Germany as the Kaiser did and "go abroad if things go wrong," but would stay and fight to the bitter end.

"The Kaiser," he said, "was a man who did not have the strength to see things through."

FIGHTING SCOT

Admiral Sir Percy Noble was appointed at the same time to head the Admiralty delegation to Washington in succession to Admiral Cunningham.

Admiral Sir Max Horton was named Commander-in-Chief of the Western Approaches, as the waters west of the British Isles are known, in succession to Admiral Noble.

Capt. C. B. Marry was raised to the acting rank of Read-Admiral to command the navy's submarines, in succession to Admiral Horton.

Recently in Washington

Admiral Cunningham served in Washington until recently as Admiralty member of the Chiefs of Staff Committee. He was transferred to that job last spring from command of the Mediterranean fleet which he ruled from the beginning of the war. He was succeeded in the Mediterranean by Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Harwood, hero of the River Platte.

In charge of the United Nation's unfied command in the African theatre is 52-year-old Lt. Gen. Dwight David Eisenhower, who trained other men in the United States during the First Great War, demonstrated an aptitude for tank warfare and became a licensed airman at the age of 48.

Commanding the United States Air Forces in North Africa is Brig.-Gen. James H. Doolittle, 45, speed flier and test pilot extraordinary, who led the flight of U. S. bombers that dropped calling cards on Tokin the first payment of the Pearl Harbor debt.

Fifty-seven-year-old George S. Patton, a lieutenant in the last war and now a Major-General, is handling the armored corps on the Atlantic coast of Africa.

Of man at Algiers when it capitulated was Maj.-Gen. Charles W. Ryder, 50. As an infantry officer, he won honors for "extraordinary heroism" in France 25 years ago.

Rear-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, 55, heading the United States Naval Forces in the African offensive, has had extensive experience as commander of cruiser and destrpyer squadrons.

U.S. FORCES HOPE

French Protectorate

"They and their Allies hope for the great privilege of passage through Tunisia thus enabling them to accomplish their mission — the elimination of the forces of evil from North Africa."

Tunisia is a French Protectorate lying between Algiers, which American troops have entered, and Italian-controlled Libya. They Bey is the nominal Governor of Tunisia.

The message to him was transmitted through Admiral Jean Pierre Esteva, French Resident General at Tunis.

While the message was couched in friendly, polite terms, it could be regarded as a sort of ultimatum to let United States forces go through Tunisia.

There was no explanation of the President's reference to collaboration with the forces of France, although the government had appealed to the French to co-operate with the American troops toward the ultimate goal of freeing the French colonies from the threat of the Axis.

Importance of Joint Defences

Mr. Roosevelt told the Bey that his expressed aspirations for the welfare of his people, "permit no doubt of the speedy and favorable outcome of our joint measures of defence."

The President said he had not ignored the "terrible predicament into which the brave Tunisian population" had been thrown by the war, and said that Tunisia was beset by dangers on all sides.

The Tunisians, Mr. Roosevelt said, "are victimized by the organized rapacity of the Germans and Italians which has stripped the Tunisian population of the barest necessities of life, reducing it to nakedness and want." He said he had learned that the Italians and Germans seek to occupy and dominate Tunisia and impose on the people "a condition of misery to which; I am sure, they will never submit."

ALGIERS CAPTURED

the Americans have reached St. Cloud, about 10 miles from their landing place, and also have gained Valmy, Inland about seven miles south of Oran.

Both at Arzew on the Mediterranean and at Safi where United States forces were fanning out on the Atlantic coast, this broadcast said, reinforcements were debarking in considerable strength.

The defences of Morocco have not been undermined, however, and the coastal batteries at Oran are intact, it declared.

Casablanca, heavily bombarded, apparently was being enveloped in a similar action, but there the United States troops lacked the coastal highlands of the Mediterranean littoral as a screen for their operations. Landings above and below Casablanca, however, put the Americans within reach of roads converging on the city.

Establish South Holds

Americans were streaming ashore in Axis-dominated Vichy's empire and a French communique disclosed a still wider sweep to the operation with the announcement that landing forces from the Anglo-American convoys have established holds as far south on the Atlantic coast as Agadir, 245 miles south of Casablanca, and Mogador, a port 65 miles closer to the Moroccan capital.

With these landings, footholds in French North Africa encompass more than 1,000 miles of the coast from around the bulge of Africa, through the Straight of Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean.

Dakar, in Senegal, and Tunisia, the eastern-most domain of French North Africa, are the only major coastal areas of the empire so far exempt from the Allies' blows.

"What has been accomplished is the initial landing," the headquarters spokesman said, and observers in London forecast swift occupation of the strategic cities and communication centres in an effort, dovetailed with the British 8th Army's Egyptian-Libyan drive, to sweep the Axis entirely from Africa and prepare the way for invading Europe.

Cloak of Secrecy Lifted

With the heavy cloak of secrecy partly lifted now that the convoys have reached their goal and the shock troops have gained firm footholds, several dramatic sidelights of the expedition became known.

One was the fact that some of the forces ashore in North Africa sailed directly from the United States to join others from Britain in what was probably the greatest sea-borne troop movement in history.

Measured by its armor and weapons, its carrier-based planes, the guns of its protecting warships and the striking power of the Rangers, parachute troops and armored forces it was possibly the most formidable single force ever sent to sea.

Another was the dramatic reappearance in the Mediterranean of Sir Andrew Cunningham, back at the scene of his triumphs over the Italian fleet as the Commander of the British naval forces co-operating with the Americans. As Commander of Britain's Mediterranean fleet before he went to Washington to sit in Allied Councils, Admiral Cunningham crippled Italy's seapower at Taranto and Matapan.

On the Mediterranean coast, where progress apparently was fastest with Algiers already in Allied hands and Oran in a vise between what the Vichy called large landings both east and west of the town, three airdromes had been seized and put to use.

Rabat Evacuated

On the west coast, Vichy reported that the landing field at Rabat had been evacuated.

Here, however, the situation was not entirely clear.

Although the new 35,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart and at least four submarines were known from Vichy reports to have been hit, the French did not disclose how grave were the naval blows they suffered at Casablanca.

The Vichy radio mentioned the landing of several infantry regiments in the neighborhood of Casablanca and said the town was being threatened but gave no details of the strength of the beachhead or its distance from the Moroccan port.

Three Lines of Approach

Up the coast at Port Lyautey (Kenitra), 25 miles from Rabat, it said an American attack had been repulsed.

The southernmost landings, at Mogador, Agadir and Safi, gave the United States forces three possible lines of approach towards Marrakech, the inland southern capital of Morocco, if that is their plan.

With the fall of Algiers, where the anti-British commander of all Vichy's armed forces, Admiral Jean Darian, himself gave the cease-fire order, a French broadcast said the defences of North Africa had been split.

Gen. Barreau, the announcer said, is in command of eastern Algeria and Tunis and Gen. Juin in Morocco and western Algeria as far as Oran.

"Nothing is known authoritatively about the position of Admiral Darian," he said.

Action Expected

Action against Tunisia apparently was expected. That part of colonial France, which might be vulnerable now to land or sea attack, was ordered blacked out and Vichy said Gen. Barreau had conferred at length with the governor, Admiral Jean Esteva, at Tunis.

Despite this Vichy indication that North Africa was rallying behind Marshal Petain's decision to fight, Gen. Henri Giraud, the Nazis' escaped captive, remained a potential factor along with the subdued Fighting French uprising in Morocco.

Gen. Giraud has broadcast that he was taking command in North Africa. Despite Vichy's insistence that it was not Giraud who spoke, Allied sources here declared it was and that he spoke certainly with Allied knowledge and probably with the consent of the Allied commanders.

Sailed Peacefully Into Harbor

British and United States naval forces sailed peacefully into Algiers harbor this morning. Axis sources said that the occupation, arranged by the local armistice, was carried out while the fires of gasoline reservoirs set aflame last night still burned.

While planes circled overhead and a big crowd gathered at the waterfront to watch the troops go ashore, a transport put into the port and several destroyers screened heavier warships which appeared on the horizon.

The Berlin radio said the Union Jack was hoisted on the pier while the French flag still flew from the Admiralty Building and the governor-general's residence.

Mobile headquarters established by Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of the United States army, commander-in-chief of the forces, announced that Algiers, the fortified capital of Algeria, capitulated at 7 p.m. (3 p.m., E.D.T.) last night with the actual occupation set for dawn today.

Allied naval forces entered the port this morning and landed American infantrymen and Royal Air Force personnel, the Vichy radio announced. It said Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Voeldz, Commander of the Vichy French 19th Army Corps, signed the formal Armistice convention for Algiers.

Other forces closed in upon Oran after swift seizure of the Tafaroui air field—one of the two in the vicinity.

No Desire to Oppose U.S.

A Washington communique said "the lack of opposition encountered at most of the beaches" indicated the Vichy French armed forces of North Africa "had no desire to oppose the entry of American troops."

Vichy announcers said the new 35,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart and four French submarines had been hit by Allied dive-bombers in early stages of the struggle and reported coastal batteries had sunk two Allied destroyers.

Reinforcements arrived in French Morocco during the night, the Vichy radio reported.

The Berlin radio said, however, that additional British naval forces had left Gibraltar, apparently escorting transports and 55 fresh planes had flown from the rock.

May Have Been Prisoner

Admiral Jean Darlan, British-hating chief of Vichy's armed forces, approved the capitulation of Algiers and, for a time at least, may have been a prisoner. His fate was not announced.

Less than 24 hours after the first invasion barges landed, the government of Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval severed already-tenuous relations with the United States.

The action was taken despite a message of President Roosevelt to the aged marshal which said the ultimate aim is to free France and her empire from the German yoke, this a phase in a program to "provide automatically for the security of the Americas."

Petain expressed "bewilderment and sadness;" ordered Vichy French forces to resist with all their strength.

Future Policy Not Indicated

(Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in Ottawa that even if United Nations forces meet resistance from the Vichy French in North Africa, "in no circumstances can that mean that we are at war against the real France." Mr. King did not indicate the future policy of the Canadian government toward continued relations with Vichy.)

Hitler told his followers in an address last night, the eve of the anniversary of the 1923 Munich Putsch, he would strike back at the Allied forces; pledged, for some reason, that he would never leave Germany and "go abroad if things go wrong."

London observers said the stiffest opposition in Africa probably would be put up by Darlan's navy and naval-controlled batteries.

If land opposition is not great, the good communication routes of Algeria should enable the Allied army to move eastward at a speed greater than that of the British 8th. Army in its pursuit of the remnants of Marshal Rommel's African corps westward.

With the landings—at least ten were reported by Vichy to have been made on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts—the Allies' battle line appeared to be forming with a speed undreamed of a few weeks ago.

140,000 Men Used

Skirting Spanish Morocco, the first expeditionary units—estimated by Vichy at 140,000 men—struck across the Atlantic and the Mediterranean to establish beachheads including these points:—

Safe, 140 miles south of Casablanca.

Fedhala, 12 miles north of Casablanca.

Bou-Znika, 12 miles farther north.

Menediya, north of Rabat, capital of French Morocco.

Bou Sfer and Cape Signale, 20 miles west of Oran.

Arzew, 28 miles northeast of Oran.

Zones both east and west of Algiers, where columns of flame and smoke spiralled up from waterfront warehouses shelled by a United States destroyer.

Some observers here said this enterprise, synchronized with Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery's knockout of Rommel's army, possibly would shorten the war by years.

Allied control of the entire North African coast line, reopening the Mediterranean for shipping supplies on the short route to Egypt, India and Soviet Russia via Iran, would be the equivalent of a gain of millions of tons of shipping.

Military commentators argued that a big Allied army in the Mediterranean would hasten Italy's exit from the war and put Germany under a three-cornered squeeze from hostile forces in Britain, Italy or Africa, and Russia.

Prospect Recognized

This prospect evidently was recognized in Rome.

A commentator on the Fascist radio said "The horizon is black for Italy — we must expect attacks from any quarters."

Russians received word of the drive with jubilation. It was described on Moscow's chilly street-corners as "Horosho," the Soviet equivalent of "swell."

Exhorting Frenchmen of North Africa to support the occupation forces, Gen. Charles de Gaulle sent an appeal by radio to military forces and colonists alike to "Help our Allies — join them without reserve."

"The enemy gasps and wavers," the Fighting French leader said.

Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, who escaped from German imprisonment in this and the first Great War, already is reported to have been stirring the flames of revolt against Vichy in North and West Africa.

Many in Africa

The possibility that Fighting French forces may be deep in the heart of Africa ready to join in a North African cleanup campaign was watched closely by the Axis.

A voice identified as that of Gen. Giraud broadcast an appeal to Frenchmen on the wave-length of the Algiers station yesterday morning not to neglect "the opportunity of recovery" offered by the landings.

Vichy asserted this was a hoax. A high British official declared, however, that the broadcast was authentic, that the General was in Algiers and that he had designated himself Commander-in-Chief of the French North Colonial Army.

Giraud Broadcasts

"This is our chance of survival," he was quoted.

He urged that the French take advantage of America's "loyal and disinterested support" against German and Italian schemes to occupy North Africa.

Radio announcements of Vichy and Berlin purported to show that France was throwing all her abbreviated Toulon-based fleet into the struggle, despite the strength of the Allied armada which Britons described as the greatest naval array of the war.

The British information services said the strength of the British and American naval forces, commanded by Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, shows that "the Allies are taking no tricks of interference from the Italian or French fleets." London did not announce the actual number of units involved, but battleships and aircraft carriers as well as smaller units are known to be in action.

The latest information here was that the Force France had at Toulon included three battleships, four heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, a seaplane carrier, 25 destroyers, 27 submarines and sloops.

Their assignment to combat duty would be in keeping with Petain's decision to resist, a decision reached after long conferences with Gen. Maxime Weygand, former French commander in North Africa, Laval and other leaders in Vichy.

"France and her honor are at stake," he said. "We have been attacked. We will defend ourselves. That is the order which I give."

ROMMEL'S FORCES

Fighter-bombers were said to have shot up 50 enemy trucks in one raid alone.

Among the prisoners taken at Matruh was the commander of the Italian Pavia division.

The communique did not give the number of captives taken yesterday, merely reporting that many more prisoners had been collected, but earlier British reports said six entire Italian divisions — perhaps 80,000 men — had been captured, along with complete equipment.

This would indicate that Rommel's strength had been cut down to some 20,000 men.

Despite the scope of Allied aerial operations only four aircraft were reported lost Saturday and Saturday night. By contrast Axis air losses Saturday were put at "at least" 12 planes.

6 Divisions Captured

The six Italian divisions reported captured in the southern reaches of the El Alamein line after being abandoned by their German comrades-in-arms were identified as the Trento, Pavia, Bologna, Brescia, Folgore and Trieste divisions.

Also in British hands, these sources said, are 500 of Rommel's anti-tank guns, 300 field guns and 100 anti-aircraft guns.

Four main factors contributed to defeat of the Axis Army — better weapons and more of them, a larger army, a determined commander with an efficient staff and complete air superiority.

It was obvious to all on the scene that British forces would be able to smash through the enemy defences after the second day of fighting when Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the 8th Army, brought out into the open his great armored striking force.

There was only one thing to be feared. If Rommel observed the great weight being thrown against him he might withdraw the majority of his force and frustrate the British commander's plan to destroy it.

Montgomery Revises Strategy

Officers and men alike prayed Rommel would not order a retreat. However, after 24 hours of fighting, Gen. Montgomery revised his strategy.

With his great armored force, he decided to concentrate his entire striking power in one place and break through before the enemy had a chance to withdraw. This happened except that Rommel was able to get a small force moving westward before the entire El Alamein line collapsed.

Vicious infantry attacks cracked the line and then the ground troops forced their way north and south to widen the gap in the mine fields and force the enemy to disperse his artillery over a wider area.

This gap became so wide and the enemy artillery so thin as a consequence that 8th Army armored forces crashed through the ring of Axis artillery, raced into the open and divided Rommel's forces. One group attacked Rommel's armored forces while another headed for the coastal road to cut off trucks evacuating Axis infantry. At the same time squadrons of South African armored cars dashed south behind the line to cut off the enemy concentration in the southern sector.

More armored cars and Bren carriers rushed through the gap and turned south to help catch Axis infantry retreating afoot.

As the Allied armored force moved westward it dwindled in size when squadron after squadron dropped out to capture enemy camps just breaking up in preparation for retreat. The enemy forces in these camps gave up usually without firing a shot and crowded around the Allied tanks for directions.

Many were told to get into their own trucks and drive back along the coast road, reporting to military police as they went.

I saw one prisoner empty his pockets before entering a truck to move to a prison camp and a red card which fell to the ground was a pass for four days' leave in Alexandria.

The prisoners were surprised and happy to find they were not going to be shot. Their commanding officers had told them as the battle began, they said, to fight until the death because if they were caught they would face death or worse.

REDS REPULSE

Held at Stalingrad

An earlier communique reported the Red Army was perfecting its fortified positions in and around the city of Stalingrad and inflicting heavy losses whenever the Germans attacked. The Germans also lost heavily in the region northwest of Tuapse, Soviet Black Sea naval station, yesterday, it was said.

The Axis apparently was exerting the greatest pressure in the Nalchik area in an effort to resume its advance toward the Georgian military highway over the Caucasus mountains. The fighting was taking place southeast of the city.

It was a cavalry unit which smashed the Germans there yesterday and the midnight Soviet communique reported that 27 tanks and more than 100 other vehicles were destroyed or disabled in the fighting. A quantity of guns and other war material were taken, the Russians said.

Attack Brought to Halt

There has been no major change in the situation around Nalchik since Nov. 3, when the large-scale German assault was brought to a halt, it was reported. Icy winds were blowing down from the mountains and wintry conditions were making large-scale operations increasingly difficult, dispatches said.

Only small enemy groups were attacking in the Stalingrad area, the communique said, and the Russians were reported perfecting their positions around the city for a winter siege.

The midnight communique gave special praise to Russian guerillas behind the German lines and reporting they had destroyed 28 locomotives and 536 railroad cars. In wrecking the trains, it was said, the guerillas killed several thousand German soldiers.

Two German transports totalling 2,000 tons were sunk in the Baltic Sea during the past week.

were engaged in a number of low-level sorties Saturday against enemy communications between Calais and Cherbourg. They destroyed or damaged 14 locomotives.

The fighters were out again Sunday, escorting American Flying Fortresses in a successful raid on the steel and engineering works at Lille and in a diversionary raid on the Abbeville airdrome. Four of the fighters were lost.

Raid Factory and Trains

Late Saturday Mustangs of the Canadian army co-operation squadron raided a factory and freight train at Caen.

Three Hudson bombers of the R.C.A.F. coastal command Demon squadron engaged three German Arado floatplanes during a patrol Saturday, destroyed two and severely damaged the other.

Sgt. Olaf Forland of Brantford told of fires galore of every color and description all over the target area," during the Saturday night attack on Genoa. He said they lit up the entire city and the rear gunner added that flames could be seen at least 100 miles away before his Halifax ran into snowstorms and 30-below-zero weather on the return flight.

PO. Kenneth Mackenzie of Toronto described Friday's raid—his third flight to Genoa—as "effective."

Score Now is 24

The "Engine Busters" shot up seven locomotives by themselves Saturday to bring their score for a three-week period to 24. Members of other squadrons completed the day's bag.

Workers in fields waved at Flt. Lts. Frank Grant of Brockville, Ont., and Ted Wood of Renfrew, Ont., when they swept low to attack another locomotive. Flt. Lt. John Godfrey of Toronto attacked still another, scoring direct hits.

Po. L. H. Jenner of Windsor, Ont., led a Demon formation which fought a sharp and successful operation with the Arados. Jenner's reargunners, Sgt. T. M. O'Neill of Ottawa, shot down one.

After taking care of the first float plane, Jenner turned to the assistance of Flt. Sgt. R. C. Dalagleish of Comber, Ont., and together they forced the third German off homewards, limping and barely skimming the wavetops.

UNITED NATIONS

No Desire to Oppose Entry of Troops

The war department noted however that "The lack of resistance encountered at most of the North African beaches" indicated the French there "had no desire to oppose the entry of American troops."

Multiple landings were contested mainly by Vichy French Navy and coast artillery, the war department said in its first communique on the operations which it said "are proceeding to plan."

Several important airfields were reported occupied and immediately pressed into use by the R. A. F. and United States Army Air forces, commanded by Brig.-Gen. James H. Doolittle, of Tokyo bombing fame, and the Royal Air Force. Gen. Doolittle now is in control of the United States air forces in the African theatre under Lt.-Gen. Dwight E. Eisenhower, Commander of United States Army forces in the European theatre who heads the Allied forces.

Reporting the British and American naval forces under Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham in complete control, the communique said one Allied transport was torpedoed and disabled and two small ships were lost at Oran harbor. The troops aboard the transport, "under a commander who refused to be idle during the operation," leaped into light landing craft and reached their objective 120 miles away.

Jubilation in Washington

The conception and execution of the African invasion — poising a dagger toward the fleeing Rommel and his Axis corps — incited jubilation in Washington.

From Wendell Willkie came the observation that "at last we are on the move."

"I hope now that we will also commence simultaneous and vigorous attacks on other parts of the European continent," said Willkie, who demanded second-front action after he returned recently from a globe-circling trip. Leaders expressed satisfaction with the momentous military undertaking launched, as Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Chief of Staff put it, "with the hopes and prayers of America."

The diplomatic situation brought almost as many complexities as the military engagement.

Proximity of the operations to the Spanish Moroccan possessions prompted the President to assure Spain's Gen. Franco, as well as the French, that the United States had no territorial ambitions but acted only to smash Axis domination.

Speculation of the status of French possessions in the Western Hemisphere was aroused, too, by the events, with interest centred particularly on the Caribbean islands of Martinique and Guadulupe, and French Guiana, South Africa.

The State Department kept silent on the possibility of developments in those theatres, officials indicating only that a statement might be issued later.

No official word of Vichy's diplomatic break was delivered here, the announcement coming from Laval to S. Pinkney Tuck, United States Charge D'Affaires in France. Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador to the United States, could not be reached for comment, the embassy declining all information. A special guard of ten policemen was thrown around the embassy Saturday night after announcement was made of the troop landings.

REMEMBRANCE DAY NO HOLIDAY FOR SCHOOLS

There will be no holiday in the public schools of the city and county on Wednesday, November 11, Remembrance Day, Inspector J. Pickering announced today.

All schools, however, will hold special Remembrance Day programs at 11 o'clock in the morning of that date.

COMBINED

Land objectives for the army are selected and the army plan developed with the air force and navy being given tasks to help the raiders while they are on enemy territory. Then the whole thing is tied together by the three services — a real explosive packet for the Nazis.

No one person or one service could possibly do all this planning. It has to be a combined operation from the initial planning to the actual attack.

Weather Most Important

A hundred and one considerations may enter into the plan and one of the most important is weather. Tides have to be studied to ensure the raid boats can make the beaches. Wind and clouds and sea are other things considered.

Behind the general co-operative strategy lie other problems—equipping the force secretly and ensuring that every man, every ship and every plane have what will be needed to do the most damage in the shortest time.

The shipping has to be mustered quietly at embarkation ports. Troops have to be transported secretly from bases to these ports and spirited aboard the vessels. The air force planes have to be made ready on a score of airdromes and everywhere these preparations have to be carried out in great secrecy. One little slip regarding security and the operation may be cancelled.

In the final stages of planning, the three services work out their individual plans. The air force will decide the course of its aircraft, the navy will plan how to get through minefields or how it will guide the troop-laden raid craft to the beaches.

Battalion commanders in the army force will decide how each platoon and company will tackle its specific objective but the complete plan must still jibe like a perfect jig-saw puzzle. A raid-in-the making might take months to plan. Raids aren't just slapped together by combined operations. Military brains of the United Nations ponder these problems day and night.

300 British

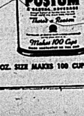
The Americans went into action a few hours after R. A. F. bombers had returned from a Saturday night visit to Genoa, Italy, where tons of bombs, including some of the block-pulverizing type, were dropped on the city and harbor.

It was "The heaviest raid of the war" on Genoa, the Air Ministry announced, and the second in two nights. Returning pilots said fires were started over a wide area and the Italian radio acknowledged that "damage was heavy." Four bombers were lost.

The Flying Fortresses were credited with "good results" in the raid on Lille, the communique stating that hits were scored on the locomotive works itself and on adjacent marshalling yards. Cloud formations made it difficult to observe the results at Abbeville.



German fighters dogged the big bombers and their escort over both targets and followed them back part way across the channel. Four squadrons of Canadian fighters were in the escort.

The Fortresses also were busy Saturday, plastering the German submarine base at Brest, France.

DNB reported today that single British aircraft carried out attacks in the vicinity of the Frisian Islands off the coast of Germany and the Netherlands last night and said some of the planes were shot down.

ADMIRAL DARLAN PRISONER

French African Empire Tottering; Oran Occupied

British, Land And Air Forces Arrive To Assist United States Troops

LIGHT CASUALTIES

By E. C. DANIEL *
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 10 (AP)—An American column was reported advancing toward Italian Libya today — the first United States threat directly aimed at French North Africa—as the preliminary occupation of French North Africa rolled swiftly toward completion over Vichy's shattered and disorganized defences.

Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower shouldered the burden of commanding the Vichy French forces, replacing Admiral Jean Darlan who is a prisoner of the Americans, and the Germans were reported to have sent Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben to North Africa to direct the Vichy forces on the field.

Oran, the chief French North African port on the Mediterranean, had been entered by United States and tank crews, but they apparently still had not been fully subjugated when an American column struck out for the next—and bigger—goal of the expedition.

Drive Toward Bou Saada.

A Vichy broadcast said an American force was driving toward Bou Saada, 120 miles southeast of Algiers in a drive like toward the Libyan desert, indicating a possible attack over the inland desert at Tripoli capital of Italian Libya, and at the rear of Field Marshal Rommel's surprised army.

One report, unconfirmed, said American vanguards had pierced the border of Tunisia, but the Vichy broadcast indicated that the plan was to by-pass it. Vichy said its forces in the desert were preparing to resist the thrust into the interior.

The report that Nazi Marshal Witzleben had arrived in North Africa came from the Russian sources said gathering signs of disintegration of the Vichy command.

With Darlan a captive, Vichy leadership in Africa, in the east, and Morocco, in the west, had been without a unifying command. Pierre Laval was reported to have hurried to Rome to take stock with Mussolini and Hitler of the peril with which the axis suddenly finds itself confronted by the allied drive from the west.

Thus, Vichy's North Africa administration, today under the armor-tipped blows of a United States expeditionary force charged with might and speed.

• So rapid was the campaign's progress, now in its third day, that it outstripped the expedition's complicated organization's ability to report it.

An Allied Headquarters spokesman here declared the whole operation was reeling off with smooth precision and with only slight

Petain Commands 'In Absence Of Admiral Darlan'

Vichy (from French Broadcasts) Nov. 10 (AP) — Marshal Petain assumed command of Vichy's land, naval and air forces today "in the absence of Admiral Darlan."

"At the moment I have to give only one order and that is that everybody should fulfil his duty with discipline, orderly and calmly," the 86 year old Chief of State said in an announcement of his action shortly after noon.

(The aged Marshal thus takes over the commands held by Admiral Jean Darlan, now in custody of American forces in Algiers. He was first said specifically he was replacing Darlan, but withdrew that phrase, apparently not wishing to draw attention to the Admiral's changed status.

Government Cheques Will Not Be Issued Before Christmas

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—The Treasury Board today acted in curtailing expenditures by Federal civil servants through a letter to all government departments advising them that the usual authority for payment before Christmas of government salaries for December will not be granted this year.

The concession of past years also will be denied those receiving pensions and superannuation payable under the Militia Pensions Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act and the Superannuation Act.

About 100,000 government employees will be affected by the board order, acting on mains or of annuation annuitants, 450 R.C.M.P. noncommissioners and 1,800 militia pensioners.

Alertness of Bancroft Correspondent Leads to Capture of Jail Breaker

Bancroft, Nov. 10 (Special)—Keen alertness and perception and the training of Reginald Blatherwick, Ontario Intelligencer correspondent, resulted in the recapture of Ross Bowers, 22 of 190-A Bleeker Street, Toronto, who broke out of jail here early Sunday morning, and was arrested later that afternoon on charges of breaking, entering, theft and vagrancy.

After making his successful jail break, Bowers, it is alleged, stole a truck belonging to the Essential Oil Company, Lakefield.

Blatherwick, en route to Belleville on business recognized the truck abandoned in a field at the north end of this village. He immediately got in telephone communication with Provincial Constable Palmateer, Bancroft, and together arriving at Eldorado put in touch with Gerald Moxam, driver of the Bancroft-Belleville bus.

Informed by the driver, that a man had got on the bus near the spot where the truck was seen, Blatherwick got in touch with Police Constable R. S. Patterson, his Madoc, who had been informed of ing.

Occupant Arrested

During the conversation the bus pulled up and Constable Patterson questioned the only occupant. It proved to be Bowers and he was promptly arrested and taken to Bancroft.

Bowers was first apprehended this afternoon after the garage owned by P. A. and R. J. Keller had been broken into. The rear part of the cash register was missing and $20 in change. Apparently frightened, the intruder had left behind a bag full of tobacco and other articles material on the floor of the garage. Entry had been gained by forcing a rear window and through a door adjoining the garage proper and the office.

Suspicions of a character seen in the vicinity earlier in the day, P. A. Keller informed Police Constable Palmateer and Constable Patterson. Following investigations led to the arrest of Bowers. He was lodged in the local jail and made his successful break early this morn-

BRITISH BOMBERS BLAST HAMBURG, OTHER TARGETS

First Night Attack On Germany Since October 15 — Heavy Damage Reported

15 BOMBERS MISSING

London, Nov. 10 —(CP) — British bombers making their first night attack on Germany since October 15 set great fires in Hamburg, Nazi port, and other targets in Northwest Germany, the Air Ministry announced today.

Fifteen of the attacking aircraft are missing, it was announced.

Canadian squadrons took part in the raid, a communique from R. C. A. F. headquarters here said two of the missing aircraft were Canadian.

"Crews are reported safe and crews reported severe long but a considerable tonnage of bombs was dropped," the Air Ministry said.

The Berlin radio for once agreed implicitly with the British announcement on losses, asserting that 15 bombers had been shot down.

The R. A. F. in recent weeks has concentrated its night attacks on Italian centres, the last previous night raids having been on Genoa Nov. 6 and 7.

Eighth Army Pursues Remnants Into Libya, Heavily Strafe Route

By FRANK L. MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 10 — The British Army of the Nile smashed today at the axis rearguard making a last stand on Egyptian soil near the Libyan border, while far behind in the desert British searching parties found numerous groups of Italians who died under the blazing African sun after being abandoned without sufficient food and water by their German allies.

The last scattered remnants of the once-powerful axis Africa Corps were being ravaged along the coastal road between Sidi Barrani and the Libyan frontier outpost of Sollum and their swift liquidation was considered certain.

To the rear, one of the starkest tragedies of the desert conflict was unfolding with British and axis air searchers spotting and rounding up pitiful groups of Italians who perished the fate of their dead comrades who were not found in time.

Left By Germans

The hapless Fascists, many of them suffering from exposure, told bitterly of being left by the Germans. They related that thousands of their Italian comrades were wandering lost in the desert with little or no hope of survival.

British relief parties were spreading over the desert but there was little chance that they could find all the abandoned Fascists. British transport trucks picked up their willing prisoners and first aid vehicles aided them.

"Italian planes were too much for us," said one famished Africa Corps officer. "Now the war is over for us —not Hitler."

Some of the Italians were found to be wearing British football boots recaptured from army recreation stores in Marshal Rommel's midsummer drive to El Alamein. At one abandoned German camp surprised British troops found Hitlers unearthed stocks of women's underwear, silk

End of the Beginning Declares Churchill In Describing Egypt Drive

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill declared today that President Roosevelt is "the author of this mighty undertaking" of United States arms in North-west Africa, and added that "in all of it I have been his active and ardent lieutenant."

Britain and the United States took their action, he added, "for one purpose and one purpose only" namely to gain vantage ground from which to open a "second front against Hitler and Hitlerism."

The Prime Minister said the British Army first began to Libya from Egypt "gives good prospect of becoming decisive and final so far as the defence of Egypt is concerned." He said it was launched as a "prelude and counterpart to the momentous undertaking by the United States and the whole front of the Mediterranean."

He restated his faith that France will rise again, disclaimed anew any British designs for new territory, but asked firmly:—

"We mean to hold our own. I have not become the King's first Minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire."

The Prime Minister commented that "We have not yet in this war taken as many German prisoners as they have taken British, but the steady German pressure will no doubt come in droves at the end, just as they did last time."

To Review War

It was the first public address since Prime Minister Churchill's return from North Africa and the 8th Army victory over Field Marshal Rommel back into Libya.

He has promised to follow this soon with a comprehensive war situation review in Parliament.

Mr. Churchill said of Rommel's army "has been routed.....It has been largely destroyed as a fighting force."

"The battle has been fought through and almost entirely by men of British blood and from the De-

DRIVE APPEARS TO HAVE DWINDLED AT STALINGRAD

Only Series of Light Clashes Reported in City and in Caucasus

REDS ON OFFENSIV..

Moscow, Nov. 10 —(AP) — The German drive on Stalingrad and the push toward the Georgian military highway in the Caucasus appeared to have dwindled today to a series of light clashes in widely-separated sectors, the Russians also reported they were digging away at German positions and cutting down Nazi strength wherever it was encountered.

The mid-day communique said the Germans succeeded in crossing a river northeast of Tuapse on the Black Sea, but were driven back by Russian troops. Another German attack in a sector of the Nalchik front in the caucasus likewise was repulsed and destroyed, the report said.

At Stalingrad there was only light activity, the Soviet information

3 NAZIS KILLED BEFORE SUB CREW SURRENDERED

Boats From Corvette and U. S. Destroyer Pick Up Stragglers

NO CASUALTIES

(By FRANK LOWE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Nov. 10 (CP) — Two Canadian sailors manned the crew of a German U-boat just before she went down under them, hatched into a hulk by the prow of the Corvette Oakville, on which the sailors served.

Clad in bathing trunks and armed with revolvers, the two seamen climaxed a battle in the Caribbean by leaping over the rail of their damaged corvette to the deck of the submarine to overpower the crew.

The two, Sub-Lt. (now Lieut.) Harold Lawrence of Brockville, Ontario, and Petty Officer Arthur Powell of Hadlow and Thamesmead, Ont., killed two Nazis before the rest—more than a score—threw up their hands.

VICHY RELATIONS WITH CANADA ARE TERMINATED

Premier King Refers To Laval Administration As "a German Puppet Gov't"

STATEMENT ISSUED

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—Termination of diplomatic relations between the Canadian and the Vichy governments was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a statement last night which referred to the Laval administration as "a German puppet government."

Rene Ristelhueber, French Minister to Canada, was summoned to Mr. King's office on Parliament Hill and advised that the Canadian government no longer recognizes the present Vichy government.

The French Minister—who has been in Ottawa since early in 1940 —was informed by the Prime Minister that because those "in nominal control" of the French government had ordered resistance to the United Nations forces in North Africa it was "merely clear that there no longer exists a France a legal or constitutional government in any sense representative of the French people, but only a German puppet government."

Therefore the Canadian government "has ceased to recognize the present government at Vichy as being the De jure government of France and diplomatic relations with Vichy are accordingly terminated."

Mr. King said the action was taken at a special meeting of the cabinet and the approval of the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, was obtained by telephone. Odessa broke off diplomatic relations with Vichy Monday night a few hours before the Canadian action was taken.

Terminates Recognition

Mr. King stressed the distinction between breaking relations — as Canada has done with Vichy and the States — and the action of the Canadian government which would break relations but terminates its recognition of the Vichy Government, thus leaving open certain diplomatic relations with Prange.

The formal communication to Mr. Ristelhueber was embodied in an external affairs department statement to the press, marked for release at 9:30 P. M. E. D. T. A copy was sent early in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, which put it on the air in its regular 10 P. M. news broadcast.

The statement was not issued to the press at a news conference, until approximately 10.35 p. m.

Two and Half Billion Dollars Yearly Canada's Present War Material Rate

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP) — Canada now is producing war materials at the rate of $2,500,000,000 a year, Munitions Minister Howe said today in a statement on the progress of the war effort.

"In addition to the goods expended by the Munitions Department, there has been a substantial increase in the metals, foodstuffs, timber and other supplies for the Dominion and Allied Nations running to an estimated sum of $1,500,000,000.

"About 30 per cent. of the Canadian munitions production is for Canadian forces at home and abroad; some 25 per cent goes to the United Kingdom and British combat areas and to Russia; and some 20 per cent goes to the United States, China, Australia, and the Pacific theatres of war."

tion, approximately $1,000,000,000 has been expended on plants, machinery, and defence projects.

"In addition, there has been expended by the Munitions Department, Mr. Howe said, large sums for the metals, foodstuffs, timber and other supplies for the Dominion and Allied Nations running to an estimated sum of $1,500,000,000.

"About 30 per cent. of the Canadian munitions production is for Canadian forces at home and abroad; some 25 per cent goes to the United Kingdom and British combat areas and to Russia; and some 20 per cent goes to the United States, China, Australia, and the Pacific theatres of war."

Two Submarine Crew Daring Leap to Sub And Subdue Crew

United States Air Force Assists In Fight by Locating U-Boat

STATEMENT GIVEN

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP) — News recounted the sinking of a German submarine by the Canadian Corvette Oakville and praised the heroism of two Canadian sailors who made a daring leap to board the U-boat and subdue its crew.

He said the action was one of which all Canadians could be proud and afforded a striking example of the "close partnership in which the navies of the United States and the Canada are working in the cause of the United Nations."

The submarine was first damaged by a bomb from a United States flying boat which directed the corvette to the sub by dropping a flare. It was then rammed three times by the Oakville and finally boarded by Sub-Lt. Harold Lawrence of Brockville, Ont., and Leader Petty Officer James Powell of Thamesmead, Ont., who had to swim for their lives with survivors of the German crew when the submarine sank.

Statement Given

Mr. MacDonald's statement follows:

This action is one of which all Canadians may feel rightly proud, and I cannot commend too highly the heroism of the two men who jumped from the deck of their own ship to the deck of the German submarine in an effort to make sure that it were still seaworthy.

I must add, too, that this incident affords a striking example of the close partnership in which the navies of the United States of America and of Canada are working in the cause of the United Nations.

It was truly through the efforts of both forces that a submarine of this enemy was first sighted by a United States escort patrol plane, which immediately attacked and bombed her, so successfully that she was damaged.

The action took place in United States waters in which the submarine was waiting to make an attack upon a convoy which was expected to reach ships in the United States navy. The Netherlands navy had one of the convoy escort was under the command of a United States officer.

Happened in Dark

The first knowledge that H.M.C.S. Oakville had that the submarine was in the vicinity came when the plane dropped the airplane's bomb. It happened in the dark of night. Oakville immediately proceeded to the scene of the bombing and was just in time to see some quest attack on the submarine by a flare dropped from the U. S. plane.

Oakville dropped a depth charge pattern and shortly afterward, on her Asdic listening device, picked

FIGHT CARRIED TO JAPANESE IN SOUTH PACIFIC

One Jap Position in New Guinea Encircled by Allied Troops

HOLD UPPER HAND

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Carrying the fight to the enemy, American and Allied troops have encircled one Japanese position on New Guinea, and apparently are pressing the upper hand on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons.

The Japanese had hoped to squeeze upon Henderson airfield—central spot on the Solomons, has been stationary for two days. This was interpreted as evidence that the original Japanese threat against the airfield from that quarter has been halted.

To the east American troops are reported to have made a drive to encircle the enemy beachhead at Koli Point, where reinforcements in the form of local invasion forces were landed.

The Americans advanced four miles east of the beachhead Saturday—supported by the navy and apparently isolating that eastern jaw of the vice.

Meanwhile in New Guinea Allied forces inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in a movement which enveloped a Japanese position between Gird on the northern coast of the island 55 miles south of Buna, Nipponese supply base.

Rolling down enemy front lines with machine-gun fire and dumping loads of bombs on communications lines, Allied planes worked closely with ground troops in the action.

The Allied command also told of heavy bombers searching out an enemy 5,000-ton transport off the coast of New Ireland and inflicting damage which forced the transport to be beached.

The transport was heading for the Solomons.

Two flag ago American planes struck at the invasion forces to the west. Six landing boats on the beach were destroyed and several positions also were assaulted by the planes but extent of damage was not reported.

In another aerial attack, planes moved northward to bomb the Japseaplane base at Rekata Bay on the Isabel Island. There they destroyed three big float-type bi-planes.

British Sub Scores Torpedo Hit On Italian Cruiser

London, Nov. 10 — (CP) — A British submarine has scored a torpedo hit on an Italian cruiser off the North coast of Sicily, the Admiralty announced today.

The communique said the cruiser, which carried six-inch guns, was damaged enough to be stopped with anti-submarine craft and tugs standing by her.

NINETY-EIGHT PARCELS OF LAND RECLAIMED

Something of a record was established at the Hastings County Sale of Lands for taxes held in Shire Hall recently, when ninety-eight parcels of land were reclaimed by owners.

Eighty-seven of the 98 parcels were negotiated for just previous to the sale. Left over to be sold at the adjourned sale to be held in December were 105 parcels of land. These will in all probability be bought by the municipalities in which they are situated.

According to County Treasurer James Haggerty, the number of parcels bought at the first sale exceeds by a substantial amount the figures of any previous sale over a long period of years.

BELLEVILLE STANDS SEVENTH IN LINE

The Belleville Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic held in Kiwanis Centre here finished seventh in a list of nineteen clinic centres for blood donations given in the month of October. The local clinic produced 261 donations during that month.

The record of the clinic here is more pleasing than it sounds, as centres that topped it include Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Ford Plant, Windsor and Kingston with all its military personnel to draw from.

Belleville, however, topped such centres as Oshawa, London, Kitchener-Waterloo, St. Catharines, Peterborough, Lakeshore, New Toronto, Brockville, Brantford, Sarnia and Port Arthur.

The total donations for the provincial centres during the month were 13,736 and that for the Dominion, 30,201.

SON OF MINISTER HEADS ASSOCIATION

Robert Cook, son of Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Cook, was appointed president of the Fairborn United Church Young People's Association, taking office at the inaugural meeting of the year held as a fireside hour following church on Sunday evening. He replaces Gordon Wall who acted as president during the last season.

In an appropriate retiring address Gordon Wall thanked the Young People's executive for the co-operation and assistance received during the past year. Rob Cook then took charge of the meeting and in a short address thanked his members for the honor granted in appointing him president. He asked for the continued co-operation of the executive during the coming year. An address by Rev. Mr. Cook was enjoyed by the members.

AMICABLY SETTLE PROPERTY DAMAGE

Property damage resulted when a bread truck, driven by Melville Morton, Foxboro, collided with a parked taxi on Front St. shortly before 6:30 a. m. today. It was raining and the street quite slippery when the truck emerged from an alleyway and was in collision with a taxicab belonging to the LaMoore brothers. The matter of damages was amicably settled when the aggrieved parties upon arrival of investigating police.

FRUITLESS TRIP MADE BY CADI

Magistrate J. V. Garvin made a fruitless trip from Kingston to Belleville on Monday, Tuesday to preside over a session of local police court but failed to materialize owing to the fact there were no cases listed for trial.

Upon arrival Magistrate Garvin, who was appearing in the absence of Magistrate J. C. Lloyd, was informed only three charges had been prepared for today's court, all three persons charged had entered pleas of guilty and paid fines prior to the opening of the proceedings today. Two charges were for drunkenness and the third for violations of city parking regulations.

Magistrate Garvin will proceed to Trenton for court this afternoon.

'Remembrance Day' Service at Shannonville

At Trinity Church, Shannonville, a "Remembrance Day" service will be held with the two minutes silence observed at 11. While chrysanthemums will adorn the altar in memory of the late Nurse Gleason, P.T.N., who received injuries at the famous Battle of the Somme with the American Legion. The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack hang in the chancel in her memory. Clergy taking part will be the Rev. L. G. Osborne-Walker, rector of Bath and the Rev. F. C. Beazer of Deseronto, who sing "Our Valiant Hearts". The service is in charge of the rector, Rev. C. P. Heaven, B.A. The public are cordially invited.

BLAZING PILE OF HAY GIVES BRIGADE RUN

A blazing pile of hay behind the Thompson Bakery, Sinclair Street, resulted in a short run for the Belleville Fire Department shortly after 7 o'clock Monday evening. Turned in as a fire alarm the department responded promptly with all heavy equipment but it was discovered only a small pile of hay to the rear of the premises was ablaze. No damage, it is said, was reported, and some boys were burning the hay and fire department called off on the blaze.

Early this morning firemen were called to a chimney blaze on Bridge Street, but here again the blaze was extinguished before damage resulted.

VEHICLES COLLIDE ON NARROW ROAD

A motor car collision, which is said to have occurred on Hannockburn over the weekend, was reported to Provincial Police, who are investigating today. The vehicles implicated in the crash are said to be driven by a Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Frederick Maddox Township and J. J. Marsh of Belleville. Damages to the extent of nearly $100.00 resulted to both vehicles, Provincial authorities were told the crash occurs on a narrow road resulting in the collision.

Norman Bradford Receives Wings At London, Ont.

Norman William Bradford, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bradford of Corbyville, and formerly of Belleville, has graduated as a Pilot Officer and has been presented his wings last Friday.

The young airman is a native of Belleville and left the Belleville Collegiate in order to enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force. He had a brilliant course at the collegiate and took part in every activity and sport possible to him. The characteristics of attention and interest which he showed at school he has since carried to the many airforce activities he has shown in his course of training in the Air Force.

He has two brothers in the armed services, Private Robert Bradford, who enlisted in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment until he received overseas nearly two years ago. Another brother Jack is in the Royal Canadian Navy on active service.

Pilot Officer Norman Bradford will receive the congratulations of his many friends here on the completion of his course with so fine a record and they will wish for him the best of good fortune in his new duties.

Mr. David Bradford, father of the young airman, himself was serving with the colors overseas.

POLICE COURT

A fistic encounter and general brawl which took its full form in front of the Bank of Commerce, shortly after midnight Saturday, drew city police here in the night. Engaged in the general brawl were three young men and three women, each selecting their own respective target for verbal and physical attacks. It was only after considerable effort on the part of Constables Wright and Rathwell, that the fracas was dispersed and five of the participants loaded into the police cruiser and taken to the police station. Whom the battle was at its height a crowd of upwards of 200 gathered to witness the melee. In the excitement it is believed the chief instigator of the disturbance left the scene by beating a hasty retreat easterly on Campbell Street. The matter will be aired in a subsequent police court.

Minor fender and bumper damages resulted to two motor cars in collision at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets, early Saturday night. The vehicles were driven by Albert Sirois, R.R. No. 2, Belleville, and Edward Hogle, 21 Cathcarts Street. The damages are negligible and was settled amicably.

REMEMBRANCE DAY SERVICE HELD

Picton Raises $281,950 or $41,950 Above Its Quota

Trenton, Nov. 10.—(Special)—Remembrance Day services celebrated in the Trenton Methodist Church on Sunday was probably one of the most impressive services held in Trenton for some time. Veterans of World War attended in a body along with members of the local Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment.

The parade to the church was in charge of Sergeant Major, Alsbury, D.C.M., and was led by the band of the regiment.

The minister, Rev. Ross C. MacLean, B.A., took as his subject and Samuel, chapter 2, verse 26: Then Abnar called to Joab: and said, Shall the sword devour forever? Knowest thou not it will be bitterness in the latter end?" and he pointed out that though this question had been asked by Abner many centuries ago its deep truth is still in the minds of men today, a question which world conditions force us to face.

"As we look back on the months prior to this war," said Mr. MacLean, "we can see so much where why all peace offensives failed. The first reason would seem to be the inability of Germany to grasp the fact that our attempts to maintain peace were not symptoms of fear or decadence, and in the second place the attempts to keep the peace failed because back of the progress of every peace offensive who must put those proposals into effect was one of these problems in the hearts of a people in which either good will abided, or something no peace can be better than the motives, ideals and aims from which it has been born.

What is Necessary for Peace

"Any treaty is but a scrap of paper to a man in whose heart is a lust for power, a lust for gain and all peace will fail so long as we deal with symptoms and leave untouched the root of the disease itself. Any attempts to settle disputes can have been sincere, they have not gone deep enough. Any attempt to touch those desires of the heart which come to their climax in war is the world-wide desolation of war."

As Christians, said the speaker, "we must seriously face the question of war and its use. Because of this, the cause is half way to the cure."

"The sins of the heart are alone responsible for strife, social evil, disunion and war," he said. "After the light of this discovery and recognition of the roots of war, we are forced to the conclusion that the only solution is the implanting in the change of heart which is the religious solution." "I will give them a new heart," is the promise said Jehovah, "and they shall be my people and I will be their God." "There in a sentence," said the speaker, "is the only hope and life secret to Abner's question, 'Shall the sword devour forever?' But for Christianity to Abner's question we may have to wait a long time, but at last it will come in God's own good time for He holds the issues of life and death in His hand like a great general who sees the battle as a whole."

Sweep War Away Forever

This final word was passed from the minister to veterans and active soldiers gathered for the service, "that God will, when the sounds of war are in our ears, the church shall be there, with its faith and endurance and patience. But in the days of peace we must anew to its primary task, in the faith, that the foundations of a unmindful of what is going on in the world. A time will come when we are faithful when with reborn hearts His church will sweep war from the earth forever. And then the sun will go down for the last time on the battle fields of the earth where men with hate in their hearts go out to meet another in bewilderment, and perhaps that moment is nearer than we may imagine."

Following the singing of "The Last Post," two minutes silence was observed by the congregation in memory of their departed comrades, then, "Lest We Forget," by the hymn, "God of Our Fathers" and "God Save the King."

Special soloist for the Remembrance Day service was Mrs. MacKenzie, in addition to which special music was rendered by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, organist.

Airmen Assist Injured Comrade

Not only did the personnel of the Mountain View Air Station contribute $46,000 to the Third Victory Loan, but they did not forget a comrade who now lies seriously injured in hospital.

The Station airmen dug up their nickels, dimes and dollars and gathered $610 with which they purchased a Victory Bond for Flight Sergeant H. Edwards, who was severely injured on October 15 when a small bomb exploded in a Station workshop, injuring three men.

Flight Sergeant Edwards had been married only a few days prior to the accident.

The Station, final figures reveal, has piled up a total of three times times its allotted quota, of $15,000. The Air Armament Section led its fellows with the sum of $7,000.

Allied Nations Build On Seapower for Victory

The big headlines are going to the landing parties of Commandos and infantry, the tank fighters and the airmen who are rallying down all North Africa, from the Atlantic to the Red Sea, for the United Nations. But while the victories are being won African deserts and beaches and in the skies we are reminded that none of this would have been possible without Allied command of the seas.

All the new weapons and new tactics this war has evolved have not shaken the place of seapower as the foundation on which the United Nations are building their war. "If only there were a land bridge to Africa," moaned a Berlin radio commentator last week as he tried to explain away the disaster that had befallen Rommel in Egypt.

Role of Navies

Gen. Eisenhower, who commands America's army in Britain, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, U. S. Navy chief, warmly acknowledges the role of the British and United States navies under Admiral Cunningham and Admiral Ghormley in establishing the "bridge of marvellous," he says of the way the navies handled this great adventure and spectacular overseas expedition in military history. But the sea forces' contribution was no less vital to the British Army's triumps in Egypt although spread over years in time and longest supply "route river mainline" ever to a major military operation.

The United Nations have been nearest ultimate defeat in those areas where for the time being they have lost command of the seas, in the Western Pacific, where the Japs dominate, and the Mediterranean, where land-based air power has been pitted against sea fighting ship. Eventually the productive power of America would overtake cure of the former problem. The latter seems to be approach-

The injured men were:

Flt. Sgt. Kenneth Dawes; Sgt. William Brennan, PO. David Adams and Flt. Sgt. Bert Smith.

Naval Reinforcements Reach Gibraltar, Vichy Reports

London, Nov. 10 — (CP) — A Vichy broadcast reported today the arrival of British naval reinforcements at Gibraltar, including both warships and transports.

The report, under La Linea, Spanish dateline, said the British aircraft carrier Furious and six destroyers had entered the Gibraltar Straits this morning after having escorted a British convoy of 22 merchantmen, including two tankers, in from the Atlantic.

It said the 35,000-ton British battleship Nelson, a cruiser, seven destroyers and two transports also were anchored at Gibraltar.

A highway connecting Damascus, Syria, with Baghdad, Iraq, 850 miles long, was completed recently.

Remembrance Sunday is Observed By Canadian Legion, Marmora

Marmora — Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion observed Remembrance Sunday in attending morning service at St. Paul's Anglican Church. A service appropriate for the occasion with special psalms and hymns was conducted by Comrade W. J. Cottrell, Diocesan Lay Reader, who served in World War I with the Iron Seconds. Following the opening hymn and National Anthem, the Last Post was sounded by Comrade G. Brooks to be followed by the two minutes silence, and the sounding of reveille.

The address was based on Proverbs 20, 27. "The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord," the illumination, warmth and guiding influence of light being used as illustrations of the spiritual blessings to be derived from the sun of Righteousness. In the absence through illness of Mrs. L. R. Rundle, Mrs. H. R. Rennie officiated at the organ. The parade was in charge of President T. E. Pritchard with Past President W. Bedore acting as standard bearer.

Officiating at St. Paul's at Evensong Rural Dean A. S. Caldwell gave a very impressive address on the next armistice and the church's contribution to peace.

Change in Administration

A change has been made in connection with the office of Hastings County Inspector for the Old Age Pensions and Mother's Allowance Board. Miss Hurley of Belleville, was formerly inspector for the whole county, including Belleville and Trenton, which are separated from the county for municipal purposes. The number of pensioners has become so large that the duties of the inspector has become too heavy for one person and Miss Gunter of Coe Hill was appointed an inspector, both having offices in the county buildings in Belleville.

Under a recent arrangement Miss Hurley has been appointed inspector for Belleville, Trenton, Deseronto and the whole of Prince Edward County. Miss Gunter is in charge of all the rest of Hastings County and has transferred her office to Marmora in the Sabine Block, corner of Madoc and McGill Streets.

The new arrangement should be more convenient for all concerned. The inspector has a great deal of driving to do as regular inspections have to be made all over the county as well as in the case of all new applicants for Old Age Pensions or Mother's Allowance and any special circumstances. Persons in receipt of pension owing to blindness are also under the supervision of the local inspector.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner is chairman of the Old Age Pensions Board and the change is largely due to his efforts to promote the greatest efficiency possible in the carrying on of the work of the boards.

Corp. Lorne Forestell, Mrs. Forestell and two sons of Trenton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Henry.

Mrs. J. Barrett of Belleville, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Gaffney.

Corp. D. Prentice of Fingal, spent the weekend at his home here.

John McCormack of Trenton, is visiting friends here.

Miss Josephine Paquet of Peterboro, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Paquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley Lavender and family visited relatives at Glanmire on Sunday.

Mrs. U. Pinner is confined to her home through illness.

Miss Gertie Gray of Coe Hill, spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bell of Peterboro, spent Sunday at their Crowe Lake cottage.

Misses Josephine, Teresa and Antoinette McGrath of Oshawa, spent the weekend with their mother, Mrs. D. McGrath.

Miss Isobel McNally, of Belleville, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McNally.

In aid of the Cigarette Fund, Marmora Branch No. 237, held a very successful dance in the town hall on Friday evening. The drawing for the live pig took place with Dougald Sanderson holding the lucky ticket.

Gross receipts of the sale of poppies at Marmora and Deloro on Saturday by young ladies under the auspices of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion totalled one hundred and two dollars.

Miss Winifred Sabine of Ottawa visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sabine over the weekend.

rMs. John A. Hunter returned home after spending the past two months' with friends and relatives in Toronto and Highland Creek.

Mrs. G. W. Henderson who has been living at Carp, Ont., for the past few months returned to Marmora last week and has again taken up her residence here.

3 NAZIS KILLED

Just as they were about to make victory complete and take over the submarine, the craft lurched lower in the water and finally sank, throwing Canadians and Nazis together into the white-capped seas. Boats from the Oakville and a United States destroyer struggled through the turbulent swell to pick up the swimmers.

There were no Canadian casualties. Quick work on the part of the corvette's R.C.N. crew took care of that.

The Oakville's first shell smashed the submarine's big deck gun and a concentrated hail of fire from smaller arms kept the Germans away from their machine guns.

First Lieutenant K. B. Cully, of Montreal, was the only one hurt. He sprained a thumb operating a machine gun.

Crashes Sub Three Times

The tough little Oakville was not so lucky. Three times her reinforced prow crashed against the steel hull of the submarine and on the last impact she was noticeably damaged. But that didn't stop the battle.

The Oakville swung back into the attack. Lt.-Cmdr. C. A. King, D.S.C., of Oliver, B.C., wasn't taking any chances this time.

He manoeuvred his corvette smartly alongside the U-boat and ordered the boarding party away, though the only two in position to leap across the ribbon of boiling white water separating the craft were Lawrence and Powell. The others were on the wrong side of the ship.

As the Germans scrambled out from their conning tower to meet this new threat, the pair, as cool as though in a shooting gallery, balanced themselves on the pitching U-boat and fired until the Germans had enough.

Announcing the sinking today, Royal Canadian Navy authorities here said the action that flared in the misty light of a tropic moon waws "one of the most brilliant submarine attacks in the war."

Aboard the Oakville, snugged against a jetty for repairs, officers and ratings who fought the hectic duel made no such claims. But Cully did say it gave them "a sense of achievement and made up for those damn long, monotonous patrols."

Put on Trail

Cmdr. King was not there to tell how he outguessed and outfought the underseas killer. He was visiting his British Columbia fruit ranch on leave.

But Cully told how a U.S. flying boat with their convoy put them on the trail of the submarine and the resulting battle.

"I went aft to my action station and saw a U.S. aircraft flashing a light on the water. Then I realized something was up. We dropped a pattern of five depth charges on the spot the aircraft indicated, and soon made contact with our Asdic," he said.

"Shortly after that Sub-Lt. Keith Fenwick of Montreal, sighted the sub some 200 yards ahead and the captain altered course to ram.

"We missed, passing ahead of the sub, but we turned back and then I ordered all hands to get all rifles and guns going. Two hits were scored immediately by the 4-inch gun and we rammed.

"But the sub kept going, so we came back again. This time we heard it roll down our side and it passed under our stern we let go a depth charge. This slowed up the sub.

"That was what we wanted. This time we upped speed and hit him full on with everything we had. But we still didn't sink the sub, so the captain manoeuvred alongside and ordered the boarding party away."

From there on it was mostly the story of Lawrence and Powell.

Lawrence, as officer in charge, gave the more complete picture.

Put Ship Beside Sub.

"Well," he said, "there wasn't much to it. The captain put the ship beside the sub, neat as a whistle, and Powell and I jumped. We proceeded to the conning tower and I gestured for the Germans to get down inside the sub so they wouldn't scuttle it.

"One fellow started to come at me so, well, I just shot him. There wasn't anything else to do. I hit him in the face and he toppled over as though hit with a pile driver. Another fellow made a go at Powell and he shot him too.

"Powell stayed on guard when I went on a tour of inspection. Then we brought the Germans on deck and I went below to see if I could find the confidential books."

Thus casually did Lawrence tell of his trip into the hull of a sinking U-boat, faced with the prospect of either drowning or sudden death from explosion.

Went Back for Another Search

"But nothing happened," he said. "I came up when Powell said one of the Germans said there was a time bomb planted, but went back again for another search when it proved to be a false alarm.

"However, by that time the sub was settling fast aft so I came up. This time two Germans moved towards me so I hit them with the gun and they fell over the side. I don't know if they were ever picked up."

The end came quickly. Waves started to break over the entire craft and the Germans became panicky, so captors and captured alike took to the water.

"We were about 50 feet away," Lawrence said, "when the bow of the sub reared into the air and then disappeared. And after swimming for about a quarter of a mile a skiff from the corvette picked us up."

Prisoners Taken From Rammed Sub A "Crumby Lot"

Halifax, Nov. 10 (CP) — Lieut. K. B. Cully, of Montreal, first lieutenant on the Corvette Oakville which rammed and sank an enemy submarine in the Caribbean, has a poor opinion of U-boat sailors.

Telling about the prisoners taken from the undersea raider the Oakville sank, he said "they were a rather poor lot, at least the ones we got."

"Of course, I don't know anything about the ones the United States destroyer picked up," he added.

However, he admitted he was forced to admire the U-boat commander.

"He had three bullet holes thru' his legs when we got him aboard," Cully said, "but he never whimpered. But he was a sure enough, dyed-in-the-wool Nazi. He said Germany had to expand, it was her destiny, and if we didn't like it—well, it was just too bad for us."

Cully, however, said the rest of the crew didn't seem to measure up to their skipper's standard.

"They were a pretty crumby lot, and they never even tried to fight much.

"They were scared to death. The second time we rammed them and they scraped down the side of our ship I could hear them screaming their heads off.

"And anyway they didn't try to make a scrap of it. They threw their hand in too quickly."

Lend-Lease Shipments To Egyptian Fighting Zone $636,942,000

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP) — President Roosevelt reported Monday that total United States lend-lease shipments to the Egyptian fighting zone had reached $636,942,000.

The bulk of these shipments took place in the last nine months, during which this country shipped to Egypt more than 1,000 planes, "many hundreds of tanks," of which more than 500 were of the medium type, 20,000 trucks and hundreds of pieces of artillery.

A White House statement said that the "magnificent British victory in Egypt was aided to an important extent by the operation of the Lend-Lease Act and is an outstanding example of combined use of American and Allied resources."

A report on the totals was given the President over the weekend by E. R. Stettinius, Jr., Lend-Lease Administrator.

GEN. EISENHOWER SATISFIED WITH AFRICA CAMPAIGN

Welcomes Gen. Giraud as An 'Ally in the Common Cause'

TO FIGHT WITH ALLIES

(By ALLAN GALLAGHER)
(U.S. Correspondent with A.E.F. in Africa)

Allied Headquarters in French North Africa, Nov. 10 (AP) — The driving advance of ground forces, co-ordination exhibited by Royal and American navies under command of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, and formal emergence of the French General Henri Giraud as "an ally in the common cause" left Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower well satisfied with the North African campaign today.

Interview and communique built up the picture.

"The only thing I was disappointed in was the resistance of the French navy, particularly the coast batteries," the commander said last night in a press conference, his first since the leading barges scraped the shores of Algeria and Morocco early Sunday.

He said Vichy French resistance expended effort "which might well be used against the common enemy—Germany."

A communique from his headquarters announced that Gen. Giraud, 63-year-old veteran who has escaped from German prison camps both in the First Great War and this war, will form a French North African army with United States arms and equipment to fight alongside the Allies "for the defeat of Germany and Italy and liberation of France and her empire."

Came from France

General Giraud was reported to have reached Algeria from France.

"It can be expected," the communique said, "that his presence there will bring about a cessation of the scattered resistance which is tragic between soldiers who have the same enemy."

(The relationship of Gen. Giraud and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the Fighting French movement, was not brought out, but Fighting Frenchmen in London said they welcomed him as one of them.

(Gen. Giraud has long been regarded as one of the most able of France's military leaders and is an authority on North African affairs. At the same time he escaped from German custody last April, Gen. De Gaulle attested to Giraud's standing by declaring he would be willing to serve under him. Germany paid an indirect tribute also by offering a reward of 100,000 marks (approximately $36,000 for his recapture. It never was collected.)

General Eisenhower's communique said he has agreed to support Gen. Giraud in the North African theatre and "is happy to welcome this distinguished French soldier as an ally in the common cause."

Understood Each Perfectly

"He and I understand each other perfectly," the American said.

The highest praise went to the British and American navies operating in the delivery of troops and supplies. The general said the naval work is "marvellous."

Men and material were reported delivered with railroad schedule exactness, despite the fact the size of the convoys gave the naval commanders problems never before encountered.

An American blitzkrieg of unprecedented speed appeared imminent in North Africa.

(Gallagher's dispatch made no further reference to a blitzkrieg — lightning warfare—but it appeared he might have been given to understand the American army is preparing for a swift push across Tunisia into Libya to meet the routed fragments of Marshal Rommel's African corps.

(A Reuters News Agency correspondent in North African headquarters said "there is a feeling the whole campaign may end with a complete and early victory, although any tendency to what might prove to be over-optimism is met with official caution.")

Light Casualties At Madagascar Says Churchill

London, Nov. 10 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed to the House of Commons today that British forces lost only 17 killed and 45 wounded in the operations in southern Madagascar between Sept. 10 and Oct. 17.

These were the operations in which the British forces advanced southward for the eventual wresting of complete control from the Vichy authorities in Madagascar. Casualties have been extremely light since Oct. 17, the Prime Minister said.

Mr. Churchill was cheered loudly as he entered Commons. He said he would make a major statement on the situation in the Middle East "in the near future."

Before addressing parliament, however, he said, he expected to make a speech at a major public function in London.

His remarks were made in answer to questions.

The Prime Minister declined to discuss a question about the present arrangements for a unified strategy among the United Nations.

Latest Air Raids On Germany, Italy Were "Devastating"

Ottawa, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, today praised the Canadian Army in Britain and said that in spite of their long wait for action the morale of Canada's troops is "absolutely unimpaired."

Mr. MacDonald is just back from a five-week visit to the British Isles and he reported at a press conference today that the people were greatly encouraged and uplifted by the events of the past fortnight in Egypt, coupled with the continued successful resistance of the Russian armies.

He said the people of Britain saw the possibility of heavy and desperate air attacks this winter but were ready "for whatever the Luftwaffe can do to them." And they were ready not only for defence but for attack.

Latest air raids on Germany and Italy were "devastating," Mr. MacDonald said. He had seen pictures and reports of the attacks upon Genoa and Milan and of recent attacks upon German centres.

"I will only say that no people can stand such terrible punishment indefinitely. We have reports which show German morale in shaken."

"The people of Britain regard Canadians as their oldest friends," he continued. "They were the first soldiers to arrive from overseas at the very beginning of this business three years ago.

"They have waited a long time to strike their blow. That is the most severe test that can be placed upon any army. The Canadians have passed it in a way that is little short of a miracle."

Weapons Used in Murders Become War Scrap

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Weapons of death, 1½ tons of them, have been donated by the district attorney's office for conversion into new death weapons. Meat cleavers, axes, lead pipe, hatchets and raors were some of the instruments used in New York City murders that were turned over for scrap.

HEADS JAP FLEET

Tokyo (from Japanese broadcasts) Nov. 10 (AP) — The navy ministry announced today the appointment of Admiral Zengo Yoshida, 57 year old former navy minister and member of the supreme war council, as commander of the Japanese fleet in Chinese waters. He succeeds Admiral Mineichi Koga, who was appointed commander of the Yokosuka naval base.

Edna May Oliver Dies in Sleep

Hollywood, Nov. 10 (AP) — The long career of Edna May Oliver, the outspoken, crochety but lovable screen character, has ended.

The character actress and comedienne died yesterday on the 59th anniversary of her birth, surrounded by birthday messages from friends and fans. She peacefully fell asleep, said Virginia Hammond, her companion.

Miss Oliver knew that death from an intestinal disorder was not far away and asked Miss Hammond to arrange a simple funeral. Private services will be held at nearby Glendale, Thursday, followed by cremation.

Her death followed by only a few weeks that of her friend, actress May Robson.

Portraying her stage and screen roles with skill and assurance, as in "Cimarron" which lifted her to stardom, Miss Oliver in private life was almost shy, shunning Hollywood parties and preferring the companionship of old friends, or the pleasures of her garden, playing the piano, singing or reading.

Comedy Was Her Lot

As a girl she dreamed of becoming an opera star, but comedy was her lot. She had been born to wealth, but by the time she reached the stage the family fortune was gone and she worked between roles as a dressmaker and milliner.

Miss Oliver had been 20 years on the stage when her work as Patty Ann Hawks in "Showboat" won her a movie role in 1923. It was during her appearance in "Showboat" that she married a New York broker, David Pratt. They were divorced two years later.

She was born Edna May Nutter in Boston and took the name Oliver from the Oliver Street Humanitarian Church there.

Besides "Cimarron," her best-remembered pictures include "Fanny Foley Herself," "Ladies of the Jury", "Ann Vickers", "Little Women", "David Copperfield", "Pride and Prejudice', "Drums Along the Mohawk", "Nurse Edith Cavell", and "Lydia."

ADMINISTRATION ARMY INSTRUCTION CLASS

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP) — Instruction in army administration will start at the former Agricultural School at Kemptville, Ont., Nov. 28, the Defence Department announced, and will go on simultaneously with courses provided by the Dairy School at the former Ontario government institution.

The army administration school, transferred to Kemptville from Esterel, Que., is designed to turn out about 1,300 army administration personnel annually, including officers, warrant officers, and non-commissioned officers.

Higher Strategy Does Not Interest Canada's Air Ace

PO. G. E. Beurling Arrives in Canada to Enjoy Well-Earned Rest

GIVES INTERVIEW

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—Higher strategy does not interest Canada's ace air fighter, Pilot Officer George E. Beurling of Verdun, Que., but destroying enemy planes does.

A shy young man who left Canada an unknown and returned a world-famed hero, Beurling gave a clear indication last night that his only interest is in fighting and shooting down Axis aircraft. His score of enemy planes destroyed stands at 29 and he wants nothing more than to get back to the beleaguered island of Malta or some place where there is just as much action as in that Mediterranean stronghold.

The 20-year-old flier, accompanied by proud parents, two doting young brothers, a sister and a brother-in-law, returns to his home at Verdun today after official welcome to Canada from Prime Minister Mackenzie King here last night.

In welcoming the flier Mr. King spoke of his achievements and of the significance of the defence of Malta in the large operations now unfolding in North Africa. Beurling's shy response to the Prime Minister's speech was just:

"Thank you very much, Mr. King".

A few minutes later at a press conference he was asked about the bearing of the fighting at Malta on the two big operations in Africa and he said:

Just Does Job

"I don't pay much attention to that, I just do my job".

Beurling was flown here from Britain, halting at Montreal to pick up the other members of his family.

Mr. King told Beurling that if the public had known of his arrival the spacious grounds of the parliament buildings would not have been big enough to hold the people who would have come out to honor him.

"You have brought honor to your country", said the Prime Minister, "to your parents, to the province from which you come and to the armed forces of the United Nations".

Shyly, in his blue battle dress, with his row of new ribbons on the breast, Beurling listened. He admitted later he was a bit uncomfortable.

Two younger brothers, David, five and Richard, 10, were the members of the party who enjoyed things most. They grabbed big brother's hand whenever they got a chance. They dragged him before cameras when photographers wanted "just one more shot".

Enjoys Fighting

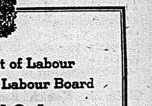
The lads, both air cadets, grinned happily and without embarrassment as they shook hands with the Prime Minister when introduced by Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of the Air Staff.



"Fighting is the only thing", declared Beurling when asked if he liked it. There seemed to be nothing about fighting he didn't like except the periods between fights. He even said he would like to bail out of a plane again.

He had to do that only once, on his last flight over Malta, the day he shot down three German planes, received a shrapnel wound in the heel and had to leap with his parachute when the controls of his own spitfire were shot away.

"Did you get the guy who shot you down?" he was asked.

"No. But I got his pal", was the retort.

General Order

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has found that the cost of living index number for October 1, 1942, is 117.8 (adjusted index 116.9) as compared with the cost of living index number for July 2, 1942, of 117.9 (adjusted index 117).

The Wartime Wages Control Order, P. C. 5963, provides in Section 48 (iv):

"the amount of the bonus shall not be changed unless the cost of living index number has changed one whole point or more since the last general order of the Board requiring an increase or decrease in the amount thereof."

The index number not having changed by one whole point or more since July 2, 1942, pursuant to the provisions of P. C. 5963 as stated, the National War Labour Board orders that the terms of its General Order dated August 4, 1942, shall continue to apply for the period November 15, 1942, to February 15, 1943, subject to the right of employers or employees to apply to a War Labour Board for authorization of payment of such an amount of cost of living bonus as a Board may determine to be "fair and reasonable," under the provisions of the Order.

Fine Loan Record

Over nine hundred and fifty million dollars was pledged to Canada in the Third Victory Loan, with some returns still to be added, and over a million and a half subscribers contributing.

This is a noble record of co-operating in the war effort of the Dominion so that the war may be carried on with the utmost energy and with the entire resources of the country behind it.

It means a reconsecration of the people to the principles and aims of the nation with all their heart.

It is Canada's answer to the call of today and the pledge that the citizens will do their utmost in the furtherance and protection of the democratic ideals as Canadians know them.

Foresaw the War

George M. Cohan, who died a few days ago, was beloved of the theatre public for his plays, his shows, his revues and his songs. He it was who composed "Over There," the song which in the last war cheered the United States troops in the war against the Kaiser's Germany. That song still lives, a quarter of a century later.

He foresaw the war which came on the world when Hitler launched his aggression against Poland. Some months he had come home from Europe singing this warning, quoted the other day in the New York Times,

"All the foreign nations
Are covering now in code;
All the indications
Are that something may explode."

and he went on to sing:

"We must be ready
"It's well to be ready."

He was a typical American with a great heart for his people.

Gloom in Munich Beer Hall

Into the brain of that arch enemy of freedom and humanity and honor, Adolf Hitler, there must have passed strange visions as he moved forward on his course of aggression. He had dark dreams on Sunday night as he sat in the Munich beer hall with his old guard friends who saw him take the first step about 20 years ago. But on Monday night was there almost impenetrable. He had heard the bad news of a week on the North African front, the fruitless attacks on the Stalingrad sector and the arrival in Vichy French colonial territory in North Africa of the largest water-borne "invasion in history — that of United States troops to forestall Axis entry into the French colonies and take the initial move in the liberation of the overrun nations. He fondled the thoughts of twenty-four years ago when disasters crowded upon the Kaiser's head as armies and the Kaiser fled to Holland. In a hysterical mood he suddenly spoke of that flight and said that he would never leave Germany if things go wrong but would stay and fight to the bitter end for he knew not capitulation whereas the Kaiser "did not have the strength to see things through."

Those were strange thoughts to express to a company of old friends from his earliest days. One dispatch commenting on this said, "the spectre of flight from a defeated Germany apparently has at least entered the mind of Adolf Hitler."

There can be little doubt that Hitler, a man of moods, would toy with the thoughts of defeat and impending tragedy for the Nazis and their associates. He has been foiled many times, in the Battle of Britain in 1940, twice in Russia, and now in North Africa in two actions by the United Nations.

But it may be observed as one writer has pointed out that it may be very easy to draw conclusions, too far fetched from such incidents as this. Hitler is a man of moods and no doubt he delights in gloomy imaginings as well as in the most fantastic mental pictures of the power he wished to attain. It has been pointed out also that Hitler is the type that might commit further crimes against the world of men and women in the feeling of frustration if he felt that events were going against him.

However the 1942 anniversary at Munich cannot be expected to have increased the enthusiasm of the German people for the war. He talks differently now from what he did in other days.

"KEEP 'EM HAPPY WITH MAIL," SAY RETURNED DIEPPE HEROES

Nothing is more important to a soldier than mail — not even pay day — so say the recently returned Dieppe heroes, and they should know. "Letters from home to fighting troops are like ammunition to weapons — the more they get the quicker the Hun will be destroyed," says Lt.-Col. Dollard Menard awarded the D.S.O. on the Dieppe action. From C.S.M. Murphy, M.M., of the Royal Regiment of Canada we get — "the foremost thought in a soldier's mind is the welfare of his family. His heart is at ease when mail arrives regularly. Mail from home does more to keep up the morale than anything else."

Mrs. Roosevelt has found the same thing during her stay in Britain. Speaking at the Washington Club, the American Red Cross's biggest service centre in London the famous "Hostess" said, "One thing I've learned already: you would like more letters. One of you told me he hasn't had any mail for two months. My boy in the Solomons (Major James Roosevelt) said the thing they missed most was mail. It's almost impossible to get letters to them out there but there's no reason why you shouldn't have more mail here."

R.C.A.F. headquarters are finding in their list of what the men and women of the R.C.A.F. want for Christmas puts at the top in number one place—a batch of letters and Christmas cards. That little white envelope postmarked "from home" puts heart into the forces.

"Mail from home does more for the morale than a four-days leave" was the finding of Postmaster-General Mulock in his recent trip to Britain made for the express purpose of checking up on mail and parcel deliveries for the troops. "When troops have been long from home for years the most important matter for them to be in touch with their homes and families," said Col. Mulock. Upon his return to Canada the Postmaster General told a press conference that Canada must consider establishing a transatlantic service to facilitate the movement of mail to those of the armed forces overseas.

OR NORTH AFRICA

It happened at the Trenton Air Station last week. The shocking news "Canadian newspaper reporter" had been introduced to one of the station officers who was possessed of a marked British accent.

Thinking to have a joke at the Englishman's expense, the smart scribe asked him if he had seen the "sensational story" in his paper that day.

Unmoved the officer replied "No." The scribe grinned. "I see the British have sent shiploads of lumber to Russia," he smiled.

"Really," smiled back the officer, "and what for, may I ask, Old Man?"

"To build bleachers so the British can watch the Russians fight," cracked the smart one.

The officer never moved a muscle. He quietly stroked his moustache for a moment, then said, "Reahlly, Old Chap, how fortunate they didn't send that bally wood to Egypt. They wouldn't have had time to build the blasted bleachers before troops had gone by."

BEAUTIFUL WORDS OF THE PAST

"May we send these few things for you, madam?" . . . . "Have another cup of coffee, dear?" . . . . "Can I interest you in this line, sir?" . . . . "Yes, madam?" . . . "Do have some more beef, Mr. Smith." . . . . "Must order a couple of pounds of tea." . . . . "Fill her up." . . . . "Let's get up and look at the shop windows, all lighted up." . . . . "I think I'll have a banana." . . . . "Pass the pickles please." . . . . "I think I'll turn in this old model—the new ones are so much smarter." . . . . "I'm spending my vacation in New York this year." . . . . "I think I'll have a motor trip—maybe the Gaspe." . . . . "May we quote you prices on installing an oil burner?" — Hanover Post.

MAN'S OBLIGATION

The wish to better life, at least,
Makes man superior to the beast,
The urge to fashion and improve
To break from brutish, rigid groove
And curb his passions if he can,
Is the peculiar trait of man.
All other creatures live and die
And never question how or why.
Their only problem's food and drink;
Of nothing further heed they think.

But man, in God's own image made,
Of many failures lives afraid.
His mind is more with reason's light
Than merely serve his appetite;
For him there is a stricter law
Than instincts rule for tooth and claw;
Man could be strong and gentle, too;
Must learn his passions to subdue
And must in generous dealing find
The way to fame and peace of mind.

Once fed, the beasts untroubled sleep,
But man has goals to gain and keep,
And there is much of consequence
Which he must think and feel and sense;
And man has honors to deserve
And also God above to serve.
Though man has pleasures to enjoy
He still has evils to destroy;
His knowledge here of good and bad;
All gifts the beasts have never had.

Africa Drive May Seriously Affect Italy

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

American troops now in possession of Algeria and French North Africa are still 1500 big miles from junction with British comrades crashing westward into Egypt in flaming pursuit of Rommel's shattered desert army, but they are close to their indicated first objective.

That the advance guard of General Eisenhower's command is already moving out eastward in Algeria toward Tunis and Bizerte, less than 400 miles distant down the trunk line railroad that links with French North Africa from Casablanca to the Atlantic coast to Tunis in the Central Mediterranean, and a French colonial ally in that northward-jutting promontory of French Tunisia in Allied hands, the war would be only eight miles from Italy's mainland across the Mediterranean waistline.

Sicily is already within easy air striking distance from American-occupied French territory in the vicinity of Algiers. Five hundred air miles is less than a two-hour jump for heavy bombers. Within virtually twenty-four hours after the seat of the Axis power in Italy to French North Africa the design of the war has been altered accordingly for Hitler's distracted Italian accomplice.

Italians in the Dark

Rome has not yet dared reveal to the Italian people that the Duce has overtaken virtually the whole Italian Empire in Africa, but the Ciabualtive Italian reaction will be to that fresh, distant threat to the unmistakable promise of ultimate Allied invasion of Italy itself none can yet see.

It could spell out into an Italian-Axis collapse within days or months—and there is high hope of that in Washington and London. The scope and vigor of French North Africa's initial Allied occupation of essential bases and impending seizure of key transportation lines from the sea, but the speed with which Algiers yielded is significant. It indicated not much more than token fighting to the development of the American thrust via French North Africa to carry the war to Axis foes.

President Roosevelt's "hope" expressed to the people of Europe in free passage may be accorded American forces, as the first reports from Algerian and Moroccan beachheads may not be realized in American enterprise. The power to drive through to desired objectives is obviously available to General Eisenhower.

No delay in expanding the American operation into Tunisia and Western Africa, but the knowledge now that the decision to march through French North Africa has been taken and implemented in swift action. Quick American occupation of the Tunisian promontory to match expectable British advance or by-passing of the Libyan "hump", toward which Rommel's remnants are racing, would be essential to the broad plan of action, by which both forces are now geared. It must catch what is left of the Axis army between between two fires eventually, with every indication that either the British forces from the east or the Americans from the west would be adequate to destroy it and free all Africa of the Axis.

The Railway is Key

Looking at any map of French North Africa, the 1,200-mile trunk railway from Casablanca to Tunis affords an unmistakable key to the situation. Its control virtually explains the dual nature of the American coup which has not only Preceded by the Lord Mayor of London, the King and Queen of England, with Mrs. Roosevelt, will walk down the steps inside the Guildhall in London, Mrs. Roosevelt has already visited many famous buildings and sites on her visit abroad, and given numerous talks to both men and women in service in Great britain.

MRS. ROOSEVELT CONTINUES HER TOUR OF ENGLAND

frustrated any Axis dream of seizing French territory in Africa as a base to widen the war in the Atlantic but aimed a deadly armed head at the vulnerable "underside" of the Axis position on the European Continent.

At Algiers the advance position on the 1,500-mile French colonial rail lifeline already has been obscured by Anglo-American Algerian footheld is developing at American-invested Oran. At Rabat and Casablanca, on the Atlantic coast of Morocco, entry ports to feed that railroad have been or are being achiever only 3,000 or so sea miles from New York and even closer to Britain.

Given complete Allied possession of that French railroad, the task of transporting and supplying armies of any necessary size for second-front action in Africa would be relatively simple. The rail route from Casablanca to Tunis would permit a great speeding up of deliveries, even faster than would a reopened all-sea route through the Western Mediterranean.

With the whole south shore of the Mediterranean in Allied possession, 10,000 miles or more could be saved on the distance sailed westbound craft and supply or troop convoys now have to travel from Atlantic waters to the Indian Ocean via the Cape route. That would be a tremendous economy in logistics for the United Nations.

MAY SEND CERTAIN FOODS TO PRISONERS OF WAR

FIJI ISLANDS

That Americans are using bases in the Fiji Islands was recently revealed by a navy communique.

The Fijis are a British Crown Colony and consist of about 250 islands lying in the Pacific due east from northern Australia.

Fiji, pronounced "FEE-jee," is a corruption of the name of the chief island in "Viti Levu," a name of the largest island on which Suva, the capital, is situated.

Viti Levu has an area of 4,053 square miles, about four-fifths that of Connecticut, and the total area of the islands, only about 80 of which are inhabited, is 7,083, about seven-eighths that of Massachusetts.

The present population is 215,000, consisting of 14,000 Europeans, 90,000 natives and the remainder descendants of Indian and Chinese coolies imported to work on tea, tobacco, pineapple, cotton, sugarcane, and rice plantations, for ginger coconuts and trocu shells and to be mined.

Some of the islands were discovered in 1643 by Dutch navigator Abel Tasman, after whom Tasmania was named; Capt. James Cook visited them in 1768, and they came under British control in 1874.

The first Europeans to settle in Fiji were convicts who escaped from Australia's penal colonies.

At that time the natives, who are of mixed Polynesian and Melanesian origin, were notorious cannibals. One chief, by way of precaution against evil spirits, always ate a man whenever he had his hair cut, and a certain clan had the custom of providing the victim, with little or no provocation at all, with a meal of his wife or other member of his family. This penchant for "long pig," as the Fijians called their delicacy, diminished naturally caused Europeans to steer clear of the islands for many years. The natives practiced partial cannibalism. Only the women were tattooed.

After Catholic and Methodist missionaries settled among them in the early part of the 19th century, the Fijians gave up cannibalism, became Christians and settled down to agricultural life. They are dark, frisky-haired, tall, muscular, and intelligent people; good farmers, fishermen and skilful boat builders; live in villages of thatched huts.

During the Civil War King Cakombau of Fiji offered the entire archipelago to the United States to satisfy an American claim of $9,000, but President Lincoln's government ignored the offer, which was then made to and accepted by Great Britain.

The large islands of volcanic origin, mountainous and well watered, covered with soft and luxuriant vegetation, have a luxuriant vegetation, have a rugged appearance and possess magnificent scenery.

Rats and bats were the only animals native to the islands.

JEREMIAH KENNY IS FOUND DEAD NEARSMALL CREEK

Death of Aged Man Was Due to Heart Attack—Kenny Was Well-Known Farmer

Picton, Nov. 9 —(Special)— Following an all-night search, the body of Jeremiah Kenny was discovered at the rear of his farm at Greenbush, seven miles north of Picton, Death was due to a heart attack. When smoke was not seen coming from his home, neighbors started an investigation and a posse made a thorough search over the farm, finding the body near a small creek.

Mr. Kenny was in his 85th year and was a life-long resident of Prince Edward County. He was a member of his life and was a member of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church, Picton. Several nephews and nieces survive. The funeral was held this afternoon with interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Remembrance Day Services

Remembrance Day services were held in all churches yesterday. Members of the Canadian Legion and the Legion Auxiliary paraded to the Baptist Church where the minister, Rev. W. H. Wallace, dedicated the Legion standard. Members of the Comrades Rev. Peter Tiller, Rev. Harold Burgess, Crewy, Mr. Hutton, Mr. Bickerfield, exchanged pulpits for the day.

Victory Loan Exceeded

With applications totalling approximately $900,000, the Prince Edward County exceeded its Victory Loan quota by 20 percent. The objective was $675,000. The number of applications was twice those in the last loan. The smaller amounts counted up nicely and it was not until Saturday afternoon that the requested 35 percent over the objective was reached. The meeting there was a rush of applications with the campaign officially closed having been reached.

Commanders Praise Crews, Corvettes' Men Proud of Commanders

(By SCOTT YOUNG)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A British Port, Nov. 10 (C.P. Cable) — The officers and men of two Canadian corvettes recently escorted a large convoy across the Atlantic have a good laugh every time a day in the navy port when they hear the latest exaggerated German claims on the number of ships sunk in their convoy.

The corvettes, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. A. R. B. Coleman of Montreal, and Lieut. Ian Bell of Vancouver, picked up survivors from the convoy which was struck by a pack estimated at six submarines.

The men told with obvious pride how their commanders brought the convoy ceaselessly through gale-whipped seas to the aides of the lifeboats. And the officers told of how the corvettes' overcrowded decks stopped forcibly from going overside to help the boys adrift in the water.

Lieut. Dave Miller of Sydney, N.S. had to threaten to hit one man with his flashlight to keep him from leaping almost to certain death in an attempt to make a rescue. Only one survivor, Able Seaman George Hemphill of Charlottetown, P.E.I., was lost when the corvettes came aboard Lieut. Bell's corvette.

Two Canadians among survivors brought in 54 survivors and Lieut. Bell's 61, including survivors of seven of several nationalities — were a few Canadians. Some were British seamen who had been torpedoed previously and were returning to Britain as passengers.

Lt.-Cmdr. Coleman, the rescue came mostly from Lt. Cmdr. Coleman, whose ship, the Assiniboine, was pulled in 34." Lt.-Cmdr. Coleman said: "We had a long search which did not get a line around—they were so weak from the cold and so covered with oil. Then we went back to grab and we actually touched his corvette before he jumped.

"We saw lots of litebelly floating overboard. The men must have slipped from them."

The weather hindered counter measures against the submarines.

Lt.-Cmdr. Coleman, a veteran of the First Great War, was proud of the way his crew worked. It was the corvette's first Atlantic crossing and the first voyage for many of the crew—men from every part of Canada. Some were sailing for never seen any more than a bathing suit in the Canadian Navy.

They got their first baptism the hard way but they were equal to the occasion, survivors said.

Two of the men most prominent in the rescue work were Sgmn. Jack Warren, Otawa, and Sgmn. George Hemphill of Charlottetown, P.E.I.

The two men, both commended for bravery in this action.

They are Canadians Among Survivors

Lt.-Cmdr. Coleman's corvette brought in 54 survivors and Lieut. Bell's 61, including survivors of seven of several nationalities —were a few Canadians. Some were British officers.

10 Divisions' Identity Disclosed

New York, Nov. 10 (CP) — With Montgomery's army beaten out of Halfaya Pass on the edge of the British prison camps, the British Information Services has disclosed the character of the divisions which opposed 12 Axis divisions in the desert. They are:

The 44th Division, from the Home Counties around London; 50th Division, from Northumberland, England; the 51st Division, Highlanders; the 1st Armored and Sutherland Highlanders, the Black Watch (Royal 42nd Regiment of Canada) and the Seaforth Highlanders; three armored divisions, from Britain; the Australian 9th Division; the New Zealand 2nd Division; the South African 1st Division, and the Indian 4th Division. There were also fighting French, Greek and Polish units.

Germans Blocking Roads to Matruh Soon Wiped Up

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Advancing British Forces at Matruh, Egypt, Nov. 10 (Tuesday) —(AP)—A pocket of Germans blocking one of the coast roads in Egypt's Western British hallhead in Egypt, fought it out before our eyes this afternoon.

Before they were wiped out by the British Eighth Army under Lieut.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery they had wounded two British officers, two drivers and three war correspondents. I had a narrow escape but was unscathed.

Some 25 Germans with four motor cars and several machine-guns were holding out.

The tanks opened fire and the Germans answered it with 2-pound mortar shells that showered nearby areas with bullets or sharp splinters.

Invulnerable to any weapon the Germans had, the Germans fought relentlessly, and after knocking out several of the posts, some Germans came out of their holes, threw down up their hands and shaking with fear.

I moved toward them, thinking the whole party was there. But there were others still inside and several shells came smashing down, along with machine-gun bullets.

One shell exploded beside a captain of Seaforth Highlanders and seriously wounding him. Alexander C. Sedgwick of the New York Times, Aubrey W. Morgan, representing British and Allied newspapers, and George Lait, of the International News Service, received superficial wounds.

Another shell knocked a British Colonel and Lait against a tank, wounding them slightly.

At the close Mrs. J. F. Baker moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Hammond.

The lucky number on Mrs. Blanket was drawn and Miss Ruth Bateman held the lucky ticket No. 64.

PLEDGES TO STRIKE BACK AT ALLIES

Gloomily Refers Again and Again to War, Says He'll Not Flee Situation Becomes Difficult

London, Nov. 10 (CP) — Hitler promised the German people last night he would strike back at the Allied forces in North Africa and declared them that he would sacrifice Germany if the situation became difficult.

The German leader, speaking to his oldest Nazi party associates in Munich on the anniversary of the 1923 Munich Putsch, brushed aside the smashing of his army in Egypt by British forces as "an advance of a few kilometres" and asserted that "those who deal out the last blow will win the war and the German will do that."

Hitler referred only fleetingly to the Russian landings in Algeria and Morocco, asserting that the last and decisive battle will be spoken by Mr. Roosevelt.

Hitler made no reference of the war again and again, and turned gloomily to the outcome of the first Great War and the flight of the Kaiser to The Netherlands. He reminded the Germans there would be "no repetition" of the 1918 collapse.

"The Kaiser was a man who did not have the strength to see things through," Hitler said. "In me, however, Germany has a man who simply does not know the capitulation.

Same Enemy Today

"It is no coincidence that today we have the same enemies as in 1914-18. Then his came was Wilson, today it is Roosevelt.

Hitler said he had made his last peace offer in 1940 and added: "We know the fate that awaits us if we lose and it is for this reason that we have not the remotest idea of compromise."

He admitted the war had become difficult.

He explained his failure to take Stalingrad with the declaration that it was "not worth it to me." His objective and said conquest of more submarines than dirring the last war.

Referring to the smashing aerial blows against German cities, Hitler said: "The moment will come when the enemy will find out that Germany's inventive genius has not been asleep."

Eldorado

Eldorado — The annual meeting of the Eldorado and Union W.M.S. was held in the Manse on Mrs. C. Blackburn on November 4th. Roll Call showed 18 members, three visitors and seven children present. Mrs. Albert Empey, president, opened the meeting with Hymn 326, followed by prayer. Business was then taken up and it was decided to have a quilting and Pot Luck dinner at Mrs. Empey's. Mrs. Clayton Blackburn in charge of the worship service. Hymn 806 was sung. Mrs. Ralph Mumford read "Love Is Just In Time" was given. Mrs. Clarence Bush read "God's Love's Prayer. Hymn 382 was sung.

Mrs. Geo. Robinson took charge of the program which opened by singing Hymn 328. Mrs. Arthur Robinson read a poem, "Don't Shut Christ Out". Mrs. R. Cornish gave a reading. Mrs. L. Robinson sang, with Mrs. Cecil Blackburn at the piano. Mrs. A. Empey read "The Job the Lord Marked Out for You." Hymn 806 was sung. Mrs. F. Comerford then closed with a prayer. Mrs. Bush read Scripture, a splendid report on the Rally held in Madoc.

Mrs. Arthur Robinson then took charge of the election of officers for 1943:

President, Mrs. J. Empey; vice-president, Mrs. C. D. McCann; recording secretary, Mrs. Clayton Blackburn; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Robinson; Christian stewardship, Mrs. C. Blackburn; Friendship secretary, Mrs. H. Shaw; Mission Band, Mrs. L. Blackburn; Baby Band, Mrs. Harold Empey, representative on church board, Mrs. A. Empey; flower fund, Mrs. F. Comerford; finance committee, Mrs. L. Robinson, Mrs. C. D. McCann, Mrs. I. Wells, Mrs. A. Empey; nominating committee, Mrs. Arthur Robinson; supply secretary, Mrs. F. Chamberl; temperance, Mrs. Ralph; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. Rundell; Missionary Literature, Mrs. F. Comerford; press secretary, Mrs. C. D. McCann; organist, Mrs. L. Robinson; assistant organist, Mrs. C. Blackburn.

The meeting of the Madoc Township Council was held Monday, October 26th, in the Town Hall, Eldorado. All members were present. It was moved that the following be paid for sheep killed by dogs: Jas. Kincaid, $17.67; Percy Johnson, $10.00; Wm. Empey $22. Wm. E. P. Taylor be paid $68.00 for Compensation Insurance renewal.

That the 1940 tax roll be accepted and the collector paid balance of $1,940.

That Fred Holmes be refunded $2.00 for error in lot purchased from township.

That the tax collector be given discretion to mail tax bills for 1943 on account of shortage of gas and tires.

That the road superintendent's statement of expenditures for October be approved.

A by-law passed then, be added, for "For a bunch of suckers we let them, persuade us that the Treaty of Versailles was outrageous, which was a lie; that payment of reparations was an insupportable burden upon them, another lie; that they were being systematically imbruted, denied the basic rights of humanity, a lie.

"Already, in their broadcasts, the Nazis have unquestionably smelling the first faint whiffs of the sickening stench of the inevitable rotting of the same kind or less with which they achieved so great a success the last time. So beware."

Chef Says Passing Shells in Rough Sea A Very 'Touchy Job'

Halifax, Nov. 10 (CP) — Cook Lesley Hewett thinks this submarine business is all right even if he never does see what is going on.

Interviewed aboard the Corvette Oakville here after that sturdy war craft had returned to Germain Utboat in the Caribbean, the Victoria, P.E.I. chef was still excited about the fight.

"My action station is on the forward mess deck where I am passing shells from the magazine up to the gun," he said.

Hewatt, a 36-year-old professional cooking once ran before the war, claims that action job of passing shells up through a hatchway "is very dangerous but it's touchy work." The shells had to be prevented from bumping or exploding as they were being hauled up since the chief explosive.

"And in a ship that is running around bumping subs, and working at the same time, it isn't always easy."

However, he succeeded all right in this case.

Urges Democracies To Harden Selves Against Axis 'Whining'

Montreal, Nov. 10 (CP) — Rear Admiral, and chairman of the War Writers' Board of the United States, addressing a Canadian Club luncheon gathering here yesterday urged free democracies harden themselves to the "whining" of the defeated enemy so that new civilizations and children won't have to fight Germans again.

After the last war, Mr. Stout said, the Germans "squealed and grumbled because we showed a little

WEDDINGS

DALY—KELLER

At five o'clock, Friday, November sixth, a wedding of considerable interest was solemnized in Christ Church by the Rev. G. G. Wright, when Elda, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keller, St. Paul Street became the bride of John, second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Daly, Starling Street.

To the strains of the Wedding March, the youthful bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attractively gowned in a floor length gown of powder blue sheer, with shoulder length net veil. She carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns.

Miss Margaret Lane, as bridesmaid, wore a becoming floor length gown of pink lace, over taffeta with shoulder net veil. She carried a bouquet of carnations and fern.

Mr. Almer Keller, twin brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to about forty friends and relatives at the home of the bride; the table being decorated in white and pink. Mrs. Keller received the guests in a gown of blue sheer, and Mrs. Daly in grey sheer.

The bride and groom were the recipients of a number of lovely gifts. The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing, and singing; the music was supplied by Mr. Smith, and Mr. Johnson.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Daly left on a wedding trip to Eastern points, the bride travelling in a brown suit, and brown accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

KIRKLAND—MOORE

A pretty wedding took place at six o'clock on Saturday evening, in Trinity United Church, Kitchener when Lois Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Moore, Bleecker Avenue, Belleville, became the bride of Private John William James Kirkland, Ottawa, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kirkland, Kitchener. Rev. Mr. Lawson performed the ceremony assisted by Rev. Mr. Seymour. Wedding music was played by Professor Zeigler, organist of the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor length gown of white corded silk, her finger tip veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried orchids and bouvardia. Miss Ada Moore was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a powder blue colored silk frock with matching turban and bouquet of mauve 'mums. The three bridesmaids, Miss Edna Moore, sister of the bride, Misses Grace and Ann Kirkland, sisters of the groom, wore similar gowns in pink and carried yellow 'mums.

Mr. Jack Nornabell, Peterborough, was groomsman and the ushers were Lieut. Zink, A.O. Wood, Pte. Richard Tew and Mr. Arthur Shantz.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Forest Hill Gardens, Kitchener. Mrs. Moore, mother of the bride wore teal blue crepe with matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Kirkland, mother of the groom, was attired in a maroon ensemble, with corsage of Talisman roses. After a short wedding trip to Hamilton, Toronto and points east, the bride and groom will take up residence in Ottawa. For travelling the bride chose a grey velveteen costume with maroon hat and accessories.

PROBERT—DAVIS

Trenton, (Special)—St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton adorned with pink and white chrysanthemums was the scene of an interesting Autumn wedding at one forty-five o'clock yesterday, when Mary Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, Trenton, became the bride of Sgt. Lorne Walter Probert, R.C.A.F., Mountain View, son of Chief Constable and Mrs. R. W. Probert, Belleville. The ceremony which was performed by Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, rector of the church, took place in the same church in which the bride's parents, were married thirty-five years ago. Wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Burtt, Toronto, cousin of the bride's.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of white satin fashioned on straight lines with fullness extending down the back of the skirt to form a short train. The gown had bracelet length sleeves and a tiny Peter Pan collar with lace inserts. She wore a finger-tip veil with a halo of white gardenias and carried pink and white roses. Mrs. Edward Miron, Trenton, attended her sister, wearing a floor length gown of American Beauty taffeta, with shoulder length veil and carrying bronze baby 'mums. Flight-Sgt. Jack Taylor, R.C.A.F., Mountain View was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the White House, Brighton. Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, in navy crepe with cut velvet trimmings, matching accessories and corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. Probert, mother of the groom, wearing a light navy ensemble with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses, received the guests.

Sgt. and Mrs. Probert left on a short wedding trip, the bride, travelling in a rabbit's hair wool two piece Windsor blue suit with matching turban and tan accessories. Upon their return they will live in Belleville.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Pollock, Misses Margaret and Josephine Burtt, all of Toronto.

PUE—HOGLE

A lovely wedding was solemnized at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church at seven o'clock last evening, when Anna Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hogle, 21 Catherine Street, became the bride of Flying Instructor Andrew Frederick Pue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pue, Brandon, Man. The Rev. Harold O. Eastman performed the ceremony in a beautiful setting of tapers, 'mums and fern. Wedding music was played by Mr. S. Alec Gordon. Mrs. Charles Hunt, Brandon, sister of the groom, in ice blue net with corsage of Briarcliffe roses, was soloist singing "Thru the Years".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in her gown of white brocaded satin with bouffant skirt, shirred bodice with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves extending into lily points over the wrists. The long veil was held in place by a Queen Anne headdress and china orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of deepest red Bettertime roses. Miss Katherine Hogle, Hamilton, was her sister's maid of honor, and was gowned in turquoise blue silk jersey with sweetheart neckline, bracelet length sleeves. The gown was in long torso style with full skirt. Miss Evalyn Johnson as her only bridesmaid, was gowned in gold silk jersey, in long torso style with full skirt, V neckline and bracelet length sleeves. Both wore chapel veils with ostrich plumes, and velvet bows. Miss Doris Curry, cousin of the bride, in yellow silk, with eighteenth century hat of mauve, was flower girl, carrying a nosegay of snapdragons.

Cpl. Douglas Stewart, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was groomsman, and the ushers were Cpls. R. Parfelt and P. Smith, R.C.A.F., Trenton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home at which about fifty guests were present. Mrs. Hogle wore a street length gown of forest green with hat to match, black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses, while Mrs. Pue, mother of the groom, was attired in a redingote of navy alpaca, white accessories and corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip and will journey by plane from Chicago to Winnipeg. For travelling the bride wore a cocoa brown two piece wool crepe suit topcoat in Harris Tweed in British Tan, brown veiled hat and accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Virden, Man.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Will Marry Girl He Misses Most

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I'm in love with is in the Armed Forces. He's 21 years old. Just before he left he told me that he was debating whether he loved me more than another girl he knows. While he's away he is going to see which one he misses the most. And the winner will be his wife. I surely do admire him for his frankness, but if the other girl gets him, I think I'll die.

I've admired this young man ever since I've known him and although I'm only 17 I hope some day to marry him. Please tell me what to do.

Unhappy

Don't you think this young man is assuming a rather high hand. At the divine age of 17, one is apt to be more in love with love than with a young man who makes such arbitrary decisions.

You say you admire his frankness, but really now how would you like to go through life with such unreserved candor? At 21, the young man's age, we're all apt to believe we hold a first mortgage on the world and the art of living. Grim reality takes care of that. When he comes home from the war, he'll be less apt to hand out such a line. In the meantime, considering you're not engaged to him, enjoy your youth.

Will Tell Him Everything Later

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a boy of 21 in love with a girl of 20, and we hope to become engaged very soon. A few weeks ago she visited her unmarried sister in another city and went out with a young man she met. When she left, he gave her his class ring to wear, and now is writing her love letters which I happened to see. When I asked her about it, she said she would tell me about it later and that this boy didn't mean a thing to her.

I know she loves me and can't understand why she lets this other boy write her love letters. She tells me she doesn't write anything but friendly notes.

Undecided.

Why not have faith in your girl friend? She says she loves you. Since you aren't really engaged, each one of you has the right to go out with others.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Newlyweds Dinner Parties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have recently been married, and my husband and I would now like to give several informal dinners for six guests. I have no regular maid, but for these little parties I will hire a woman who is available for just this kind of service. But there are several questions that I wish you would please answer for me.

1.—What is the usual hour for an informal dinner?

2.—Should I have place cards for these dinners? If not, how is the seating managed?

3.—Should the salad be served with the main course, or as a separate course?

4.—Is it completely wrong to have the first course on the table when the guests come into the dining-room? This would, of course, make things easier.

5.—What is the easiest kind of dessert service?

Alva

1.—There is no set hour for an informal dinner—that is one of the delights of an informal dinner. Choose an hour that you know will be convenient to the majority of your guests, that is in with the habits of your community.

2.—Don't have place cards for such informal dinners. Before your dinner, make an "x-marks-the-spot" plan for the seating. You might like to honor one couple, or have a guest of honor. This is a pleasant plan for even a most informal dinner, and you can indicate the "honor" by your seating-arrangements.

When dinner is announced, you and the other two ladies enter the dining-room, ahead of the men. Then you, the hostess, go to your place at the head of the table and standing behind your chair, tell each guest where he or she is to sit. To the woman guest of honor, you say "Mary, will you sit at John's right?"... "and Mrs. Robinson (or Kay"), at his left" ... "Phil, will you sit at my right" ... "and Tom, will you sit here" (indicating the seat at your left).

3.—At an informal dinner it is quite proper to serve the salad with the main course. You may feature it by serving it (with heated crackers or small heated rolls, and cheese) as a separate course after the main course.

4.—I agree that it would make things easier to have the first course on the table when the guests enter the dining-room, and this is proper. If you plan to do this choose a cold first course ... for example, fruit cup (a sprig or two of mint will make it look fresh and perky); or shrimp or crab-meat cocktail; or oysters on the half-shell or a canape.

5.—Before your dinner you may have your individual dessert services ready, perhaps arranged on your dining-room buffet, if there is limited room in your kitchen or pantry. On each of the dessert plates put a finger-bowl, half filled with tepid water. On the plate, at the right of the finger-bowl, place the dessert spoon, and on the left, the dessert fork. This simplifies and concentrates the service.

Courtesy Tip

It's very important how you greet people, how you acknowledge an introduction. That's the valuable first impression you make.

But you must also be on your guard as to what you do and say when you take leave of people. If you're awkward or impolite or brusque, you'll leave an unpleasant last impression, with perhaps no chance to change it. But if your leave-taking is graceful and right, the memory will linger on, a tribute to your courtesy and personality.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S A BIG SEASON for blouses. A nice afternoon blouse is offered in moire in various high shades. It is made with a perky short flared peplum and a soft neckline that ties in a loose bow. Tiny jewelled buttons.

A contribution to cheerfulness is how many women regard color these days. And men in the fighting forces are all for the girl with colorful clothes. A nice hat is a postilion of deep purple fur felt with a green bird cluster posed in front against the high crown.

Something else than the usual black for after-five wear is a street length frock of lustrous deep brown satin made with low, deep square neckline and soft drapery across the hips.

QUEBEC COURTS CLOSE NOV. 11

Montreal, Nov. 10—(CP) — Suspension of certain legal holidays for the duration of the war, through order-in-council No. 8682, does not affect civil and criminal courts and consequently Quebec courts will be closed tomorrow, Remembrance Day. Chief Justice Severin Letourneau said he had been advised of this by Justice Minister St. Lauren.

Victory Recipes For Cookies

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief Consumer Section
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

"Cream together a cup and a half of butter, three cups of sugar, add six eggs and half a pound of ground almonds ..." Perish the thought!

Recipes on this lavish scale are definitely out for the duration, but it doesn't necessarily follow that all cakes and cookies must vanish from our midst, for recipes like clothes, follow changing trends and the 1942 cookie recipe is very different from its 1932 predecessor. The Home Economists in Canada's Kitchen in the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have developed a number of new cookie recipes with due regard to the sugar ration and the more limited range of other once commonplace ingredients.

Carrot and Honey Cookies

2 cups pastry flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon baking soda
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
1-2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cups quick cooking rolled oats
1 cup raisins
2-3 cup shortening
1 cup grated carrot
1 cup honey
2 eggs well beaten

Mix dry ingredients. Cream shortening, stir in carrots then add honey and eggs. Add flour mixture gradually. Drop from a teaspoon onto a greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees 25-30 minutes. Yield 5-6 dozen cookies.

Peanut Butter Cookies

1-2 cup peanut butter
1-2 cup shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 1-3 cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking soda

Cream peanut butter and shortening, add sugar and cream together thoroughly. Add unbeaten egg and beat well. Add flour and baking soda. Drop on a lightly greased cookie sheet and press out with a fork. Bake at 375 degrees for eight minutes. Yield 4 dozen cookies.

Butterscotch Slices

1 1-2 cups pastry flour
1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar, packed
1-4 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and sugar add vanilla and egg, mix well. Stir in flour. Shape in a roll about 2 inches in diameter. Wrap in wax paper, chill thoroughly. Cut chilled roll in 1-8 inch slices, place on an ungreased baking sheet and bake at 400 degrees for about 8 minutes. Makes 3 1-2 to 4 dozen cookies.

Gingersnaps

2-3 cup molasses
1-3 cup shortening
2 cups pastry flour
1-3 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons ginger
3-4 teaspoon salt

Heat molasses to boiling point and pour over shortening. Add sifted dry ingredients. Chill, roll and cut into desired shapes. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 3 dozen cookies.

Rolled Oats Cookies

1-4 cup butter
3-4 cup shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in 1 teaspoon hot water
1 cup pastry flour
2 cups rolled oats
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, shortening, sugar and vanilla. Add soda dissolved in hot water. Mix flour, rolled oats and salt and add to first mixture. Blend thoroughly and drop by teaspoons onto a greased baking sheet. Press flat with a fork and bake at 375-400 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Yield 4 to 5 dozen cookies.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

One of the amazing advances in saving life has come out of first-aid treatment of wounds. It has been proved that the sprinkling of various sulfonamide drugs into the wound, close it temporarily and making a complete and thorough repair at the hospital has, in many instances, saved life.

On the far front or on the home front scalp injuries may be common. It is known that one-fourth of all the persons admitted to hospitals after air raids have head injuries, and about three-fourths have injuries of the scalp.

Proper treatment of these scalp wounds will aid in preventing infection and in bringing about prompt healing. The chief danger comes from the mouth, throat or fingers of those who inspect the open wound because from mouth, throat or fingers may come the germs which may cause the wound to become infected.

The first-aid treatment should consist of some attempt to stop the bleeding. Drs. E. H. Botterell and Geoffrey Jefferson of Manchester, England, believe that sulfathiazole or sulfanilamide powder should be put directly into the wound, a sterile dressing applied and a bandage put on firmly. Then no further treatment should be given until the patient is in the operating room in the hospital.

In the hospital an X-ray of the skull is taken to make sure that a fracture or break of the skull has not occurred. Then the wound is treated by putting sterile gauze in it, and the entire scalp is scrubbed with soap and water. The hair is then clipped and the scalp shaved over an area of at least three inches around the open wound. The skin around the wound is again scrubbed with soap and water and it is suggested that it be wiped off with a bichloride of mercury solution. A local anesthetic can then be injected around the wound. All of the dirt is cleaned out of the wound and the entire area freely washed with a sterile salt solution. Next the dead tissues are cut away from the wound and it is carefully sewed up.

It is suggested that more of the sulfonamide powder be put into the wound before it is closed. After the sewing a well-padded head dressing is put on which is changed in from 12 to 18 hours. According to these doctors, this method of treatment has not only eliminated infection but prevented extensive scarring and damage to the scalp.

FRENCH AFRICAN

Allied casualties.

It was announced in London that British land and air forces have landed in French North Africa, fulfilling the announcement made during the week-end that the American expeditionary force would be followed quickly by British troops. No immediate disclosure was made as to the strength of these British forces, nor their exact location.

Situation at a Glance

This was the situation at a glance:

1. Darlan, one member of the Collaborationist Triumvirate of Vichy and a sparkplug of French resistance, was taken into custody at Algiers, where he arrived in time only to give the cease-fire order in that North African port.

2. By entering Oran today, after first having forced the surrender of Algiers under land, sea and air assault, the Allies had about completed the first phase of the campaign in Algeria, breaking Vichy resistance in both its chief ports.

3. On the Atlantic coast, where the defence apparently was sturdier, the Americans were pressing so hot upon the pivotal Moroccan port of Casablanca that its defenders were offered an armistice. It was rejected.

4. Gen. Auguste Nogues, Commander-in-Chief of Vichy's Moroccan forces, was reported by the French from Tangier to have withdrawn into the interior from threatened Rabat, north of Casablanca.

Prepare Ground for Assault

Wherever French garrisons still took orders from Vichy, Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's powerful command hammered relentlessly, if reluctantly, to complete the expulsion of the Axis influence in Africa from the Atlantic to the Nile and prepare the ground for the assault upon Axis Europe.

Troops apparently were still streaming ashore on the beaches of North Africa. Despite the denial of the governor-general of Morocco that landings had occurred at Mogador and Agadir, in southern Morocco, French reports from Tangier said Americans not only had landed but were continuing to land at those southern ports.

In the van of these forces were hard-hitting spearheads of tanks and parachute troops.

May Seize French Fleet

The capture of Darlan, who once was designated as heir to Marshal Petain as Chief of State, tore another hole in the fabric of the government which controls the destinies of France. He was the strongest factor in holding the French fleet in Vichy's hands and thereby subject to possible seizure by the Axis.

Another potential rent in that patchwork was the emergence of General Henri Giraud as the possible eventual leader of a pro-Allied break from Vichy by French forces in North Africa. Giraud, a hero with a German price on his head, is a leader even Gen. Charles De Gaulle has expressed willingness to follow.

The Allied headquarters spokesman said he did not know how long Darlan had been held, but that he is "being entertained with all the consideration due his rank, and, as a naval officer, of his distinguished career."

No Confirmation

So far, there has been no confirmation of Axis reports that Gen. Maxime Weygand — who might share leadership with Gen. Giraud in any anti-Vichy movement — had reached North Africa.

The only details of the entry into Oran were from the French broadcasts which said American tanks rolled in at 11:45 a.m. today and that "landing forces occupied the hill and fort of Santa Cruz, dominating the bay."

An Allied communique previously told of the capture of more than 2,000 prisoners in the Oran sector, but a Vichy French broadcast said that reinforcements from the interior were trying to join the garrison after the United States' tank-led forces entered the city.

Vichy troops were in contact with American forces also at Orleansville, about 100 miles east of Oran and roughly midway between Oran and Algiers, it was disclosed.

Aimed at Tunisia

That the expedition was aimed ultimately at Tunisia and Tripoli, the capital of Libya, was evident from President Roosevelt's request to the Bey of Tunis yesterday for transit privileges for American forces through Tunis to Libya's western frontier.

At Casablanca, caught between encircling land forces and under heavy sea attack, the headquarters spokesman said the situation was obscure but that this probably was the result of poor communications. He said there had been landings both to the north and the south but that no reports of their progress had arrived.

A broadcast directly from Vichy, however, said Casablanca was under violent bombardment and that the 35,000-ton battleship Jean Bart had joined coastal batteries in answering fire.

Still Holding Out

It said Casablanca was holding out, "though heavily attacked by superior armored forces."

The German radio also broadcast under Vichy dateline that fighting on a large scale had been resumed at Casablanca after the French commander rejected the American armistice offer.

Axis aerial intervention into the battle of North Africa has been slight, the Allied spokesman said. He declared flatly the Vichy report that four Allied warships and six transports had been sunk was "absolutely false."

The main opposition still, he said, was from "considerable" naval resistance.

2,000 Prisoners Taken

Some details of the operation remained obscure, but an Allied communique told of the capture of more than 2,000 prisoners in the Oran sector and said "our casualties are light."

Gen. Eisenhower said last night he is satisfied with the army's progress and that the railroad-schedule co-ordination of the Royal and American navies is marvellous. Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham is the commander of the big Allied fleet.

The Vichy commander at Casablanca, Atlantic port 300 miles southwest of Gibraltar turned down an ultimatum presented under a flag of truce by Maj.-Gen. George L. Patton, correspondents attached to Allied headquarters reported.

Gen. Patton, commander of the American forces in that sector, thereupon returned to his ship and hostilities were resumed. The Vichy news agency Havas acknowledged the port was seriously threatened, but said it was organising for resistance. American torpedo boats operated at the harbor entrance.

Perhaps a victim of these craft, the 12,692-ton French liner Porthos was reported by a Tangier dispatch to The London Daily Express to have been sunk at Casablanca.

French Aircraft Active

"In this region French aircraft have been more active than elsewhere," the Allied communique said. "All forces have been given naval supporting fire against forts. Counter-measures were taken when our ships met with resistance from enemy naval forces."

Brig.-Gen. James H. Doolittle, chief of the United States air forces in the operations, saw his pilot wounded during an attack and he himself took over the controls, dispatches said.

Vichy French radio stations said several American infantry regiments, originally formed in three columns and supported by tanks operating in teams of 15, had hemmed in Casablanca for the onslaught.

Initial Allied landings north of Casablanca were declared supplemented by the occupation of Mehdia and Port Lyautey (Kenitra.) A Paris broadcast reported United States airmen had bombed Marrakech, inland communications centre south of Casablanca, and caused slight damage.

Defence More Difficult

Denying a Vichy announcement, the Governor General of Morocco said landing points did not include Mogador, 130 miles south of Casablanca or Agadir, 65 miles farther down the Atlantic coast.

Havas said the defence of Algiers is becoming "more and more difficult," especially around the Mediterranean naval base of Oran, 250 miles west of Algiers, and Philippeville, almost an equal distance east of the fallen capital.

The Allied communique did not mention operations against Philippeville, on communication routes toward the naval base of Bizerte, Tunisia and Axis-held Libya.

The squeeze play upon Oran by the landing parties commanded by Maj.-Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall was stressed. In addition to flanking Oran from both east and west, the forces "have penetrated a considerable distance to the rear of the city," the communique said.

Stiff Resistance Met

"At several points stiff local resistance has been met," it was announced. "Now in our hands are three of the four airfields in this region."

Vichy dispatches said the Americans unloaded tanks and ringed Oran from the nearby communities of St. Cloud, Valmy and Ain-El-Turck. A direct attack on the harbor was claimed to have failed, costing two light United States warships.

United States parachute troops were used in the 12-hour battle of Algiers Sunday and others landed at other points on the Algerian-Moroccan coast, the Vichy radio said.

Allied planes, including many large transports carrying parachute troops, were declared taking off from Gibraltar throughout yesterday, while light surface craft and destroyers manoeuvred through the strait.

Although the Petain-Laval government has broken relations with Washington, French broadcasts referred to the British and American forces as assailants rather than "the enemy."

A dispatch from Algiers was quoted as saying that "despite the continuous ground, naval and air bombardment, no great damage was caused" before the city surrendered and casualties were 15 persons killed and about 50 injured.

Von Witzleben Goes to Africa

London, Nov. 10 (CP)—German Field Marshal Erwin Von Witzleben has arrived in Vichy French North Africa from occupied France to take charge of defence operations against Anglo-American expeditionary forces, it was reported today by Soviet sources.

Von Witzleben, 61, a descendant of an old Prussian military family who led the German 1st Army in its break through the French Maginot Line west of Saarbruecken in June, 1940, was said to have been accompanied by a staff of Vichy French and German officers.

His arrival was reported by Russian News Agency dispatches from Lisbon which were relayed here from Moscow.

With more than 34,500 New York has more manufacturing establishments than any other state.

stockings, cosmetics, champagne and brandy.

Press For Knock-out Blow.

Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery's troops meanwhile pressed forward for the knock-out blow against the axis remnants plunging into Libya.

At the same time, bombers of the Middle East Command blasted airdromes on the Italian Island of Sardinia, from which Italian and German bombers could attack United Nations forces in French North Africa, the joint British Headquarters-R. A. F. communique said.

The tip of Sardinia is less than 200 miles from the Algerian coast and Algiers, now occupied by American forces, is little more than 300 miles from the island.

The battle area in Egypt, littered with the wreckage of Rommel's army, is gradually being cleared and prisoners, mostly Italians abandoned by their German Allies, continue to pour into Allied detention camps.

Allied bombers and fighters are making Rommel's passage into Libya as rough as possible by bombing and strafing the frontier area over which his beaten army is retreating, the communique said. There was little enemy air opposition. One Messerschmitt was shot down.

(Checked by U.S. News)

With British Forces Advancing Toward Libya, Nov. 10 (AP)—The 8th Army, pursuing the humbled remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army into Libya, was made happier than ever today by President Roosevelt's word that United States troops in North Africa planned to cross Tunisia and help trap the harried Axis forces in Libya.

While mobile elements of the 8th Army churned into Libya only a few hours behind the Axis troops in an effort to complete their victory, other Allied groups were cleaning out the last pockets of resistance in Egypt. Matruh now is clear and peaceful.

(A joint British headquarters-R.A.F. communique issued at Cairo said today the 8th Army engaged the rear guard of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army at Sidi Barrani and Salum, just short of the Egyptian-Libyan border. The battle area is being cleared of the enemy, the communique said.)

Enormous Spoils Left

The spoils left by the defeated Axis army in Egypt are enormous. Included in the booty are great quantities of Allied supplies, captured by the Axis in the advance to El Alamein, as well as stores of German and Italian material.

There was evidence of how the Germans are squeezing food out of the countries they have occupied—and Italy as well—to feed the German army. There were enormous supplies of tinned Danish ham and bacon, Norwegian sardines and herring, Dutch sausages, French and Italian wines and Italian mineral water and canned vegetables.

The desert is strewn with vehicles, guns, tanks and other equipment which are being put into service by the British whenever it is practical.

Following up a force of tanks ordered to wipe out a small pocket of German resistance near Matruh, our car was turned into a makeshift ambulance when our conducting officer found a badly-wounded Scottish captain.

While we sped to the nearest ambulance, British tanks continued to hammer at the remaining Germans and as night fell the enemy next was silenced.

The remaining Germans, who surrendered, said they knew their main force was many miles to the west and that they were cut off, but they added they had been ordered to resist.

END OF BEGINNING

minions on one side, and by Germans on the other," he said. "The Italians were left to perish in the waterless desert. It was a deadly battle."

The Prime Minister declared that the Germans had been damaged and outfought "with every kind of weapon with which they had beaten down so many small peoples — and larger unprepared peoples as well."

"They have been beaten by many of the technical apparatus on which they counted to gain dominion of the world," he said. "Especially is this true in the air, as well as of tanks and of artillery which has come into its own."

The Prime Minister described the Egyptian campaign as "A remarkable and definite victory," and added: "The bright gleam has caught the helmets of our soldiers and warmed and cheered all our hearts."

"I have never promised anything but blood, tears, toil and sweat," he said in an address. Now, however, we have a new experience.

Germans Getting Theirs

"The Germans have received that measure of fire and steel which they have so often meted out to others.

"Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end.

"But it is perhaps the end of the beginning."

Mr. Churchill spoke at the Lord Mayor's luncheon at the Mansion House — delivering the annual address on Britain's foreign affairs traditionally given by the Prime Minister on the occasion of the installation of a new Lord Mayor of London. Today's ceremony marked the inauguration of Sir Joseph Samuel as Lord Mayor.

Rommel's Army Routed

The Prime Minister said Rommel's Egyptian Army has "been routed."

"It has been very largely destroyed as a fighting force.

"The battle has been fought throughout almost entirely by men of British blood and from the Dominions on one side and by Germans on the other.

"The Italians were left to perish in the waterless desert. It was a deadly battle."

Mr. Churchill said the late Premier Venizelos of Greece had observed that in all her wars England—"He should have said Britain"—of course always won one battle, and that the last.

"It would seem to have begun rather earlier this time," the Prime Minister commented, drily.

Mr. Churchill said he could not go into details at present on the operations in Egypt but declared: "The victory which has already been gained gives good prospects of becoming decisive and final so far as the defence of Egypt is concerned."

Designed as Prelude

Mr. Churchill added:

"This Battle of Egypt, in itself so important, was designed and timed as a prelude and counterpart to the momentous enterprise undertaken by the United States at the western end of the Mediterranean, an enterprise under United States command and in which our armies, air force and above all our navy are bearing a noble and important share."

He declared Mr. Roosevelt as the "author of this mighty undertaking and in all of it I have been his active and ardent lieutenant."

Mr. Churchill said "Our thoughts turn towards France groaning in bondage under the German heel," and added that even now "When misguided or suborned Frenchmen are firing upon their rescuers I am prepared to state my faith that France will rise again."

Want to See France Strong

"We have no wish but to see France free and strong with her Empire gathered round her and with Alsace and Lorraine restored.

"We covet no French possessions and we have no acquisitive designs or ambitions in North Africa or any other part of the world."

Then he added, firmly:

"Let me make this clear in case there should be any mistake about it. We mean to hold our own. I have not become the King's first Minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire."

The Prime Minister lauded Gen. Charles De Gaulle and Gen. Henri Giraud of the Fighting French and declared the people of Spain, "with all their troubles," require peace and recuperation.

He said the two African undertakings of Britain and the United States were "part of a single strategic and political conception which he labored long to bring to fruition and about which we now are justified in entertaining good and reasonable confidence."

"British and American fortunes continue to prosper in the Mediterranean. The whole event will be a new bond between English-speaking people and new hope for the whole world."

While he spoke squadrons of R.A.F. fighters could be seen patrolling above London.

POINTS WHERE AMERICANS LAND IN NORTH AFRICA

Principal points where American troops have landed and are attacking in French North Africa are shown on the above map. Tens of thousands of American soldiers, supported by naval and air forces, have established beachheads and advanced inland at numerous points along the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts. Vichy French naval bases, including Toulon, France, where the main French fleet is reported to be, are indicated.

ALGIERS RAILROAD YARDS WHERE YANKS ATTACK

The Algiers yards of the strategic French railroad that extends eastward to within 200 miles of the Axis base at Tripoli are pictured ABOVE. American troops entered Algiers as the city capitulated. It is the capital of Algeria, and this railroad is one of their most important objectives.

Knox Predicts Nazi Subs Will Be More Active

Washington, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Navy Secretary Frank Knox predicted today the Germans would concentrate their submarine strength against American supply lines to North Africa in an effort to break down the flow of supplies to advancing forces there.

While saying the North African campaign is "going well," Knox said he wanted to give "one word of warning — that is to point out the difficulties and perils that attend the supply of this effort in North Africa."

He said it is a certainty the Nazis will concentrate U-boats against the supply lines, withdrawing them from the North Atlantic areas to do so, and that every supply ship or convoy would have to reach Africa through "an ocean of subs."

This, he told his press conference, will give the navy "heavy additional responsibility."

Praises Navy

Knox praised the Navy's handling of the initial North African operation, calling it "As superb a piece of seamanship as I have ever known."

He said the North African operation in his opinion is "in the nature of a second front" and, that depending on what counter action the Germans took, there probably would be "A lot of fighting there for a long time" so that the front will not cease to be an active one with the defeat of German Marshal Rommel and the remnants of his army.

About Rommel, Knox cautioned specifically: "Don't put it down yet as a completely-accomplished fact that Rommel is defeated."

He said the Germans are "capable of a lot of skill" and there is even now a possibility of their reinforcing their African force but that as far as he could tell the whole campaign is going well for the Allies."

HITLER, DUCE, LAVAL REPORTED MEETING IN ROME

London Sources Believe Fuehrer and Satellites Consider Desperate Blow

MUCH SPECULATION

London, Nov. 10 —(CP)— Hitler, Mussolini and Pierre Laval were reported meeting in Rome today and unofficial quarters in London believed the Fuehrer and his satellites from Italy and Vichy France were considering some desperate blow to halt the British-American advances in North Africa.

The likeliest spot for the Italian fleet, Axis air forces and possibly the Vichy French fleet to strike appeared to be Tunisia through which President Roosevelt has said the American Expeditionary Force intends to advance to attack Erwin Rommel from behind.

The meeting of Hitler, the Italian Duce and the Vichy chief-of-government in Rome was reported by Reuters News Agency in a dispatch "from the French frontier."

It was believed the Italians, facing the fearsome prospect of Allied control of the whole southern Mediterranean shore, would attempt some desperate counter-stroke.

Vichy and Armistice

Laval's inclusion in an Axis conference was considered natural since the German Foreign Office spokesman announced yesterday that the new situation in North Africa affects the terms of the armistice with Vichy.

A change in armistice terms could concern either the use by the Axis of the Vichy fleet, or the occupation of the rest of France and available parts of the French Empire.

There was some speculation that the Vichy fleet might attempt to put in at Bizerte, the best naval base on the French African coast, before Allied forces get there.

Such a movement might be coordinated with a concentration of Axis aircraft in Tunisia from Sicilian and other bases.

Bizerte and Tunis in Tunisia are on a hump of the African coast where it is closest, 130 miles, to Sicily and the Italian mainland. Bizerte also is only about 350 miles by air from the chief Libyan base of Tripoli.

Axis Strategy Handicapped

Axis strategy was handicapped, however, by the notable weakness of their air forces in the Mediterranean of late, and the past reluctance of the Italian fleet to challenge the British Navy to a naval fight.

Although the Berlin radio hopefully broadcast that the main French fleet had steamed from its European base at Toulon on Sunday, nothing has been heard from it yet.

Coincident with the Reuters report of the Axis meeting, the Russian news agency, Tass, reported in a dispatch from Switzerland that Mussolini had applied to Berlin for military assistance "to defend the positions of the Axis countries in northern Africa."

Report Duce's Appeal Received With Reserve

Tass said the Italian petition was received in Berlin "with reserve," and had not received a reply.

German representatives in Rome were said to have advised Mussolini to start military operations in French Northern Africa "without waiting for aid."

United Nations propaganda was on the offensive along with their military forces. The BBC told Italians day and night the rankling story of how the Germans abandoned Italian divisions in Egypt.

Effort to Alleviate Conditions of Shortage Of Hospital Workers

Toronto, Nov. 10 (CP).—The Ontario Health Department will give due consideration to any request for a policy of refusing admittance to hospitals of any but emergency and maternity cases after 4 p.m. each day in an effort to alleviate the conditions resulting from shortage of trained hospital workers, it was stated today.

Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy Health Minister, was commenting on a report from Ottawa that such a request will be made by the trustees of the Ottawa Civil Hospital, where student nurses were said to be overworked to the point where their health and efficiency might be endangered.

Dr. McGhie said that such conditions were fairly general and were under constant consideration.

Satisfactory Oral Replies Made to U. S., No Formal Answers

Washington, Nov. 10 — (AP) — The White House said today that satisfactory oral replies had been received by the United States ministers when they delivered messages to the heads of the Spanish and Portuguese Governments assuring them they had nothing to fear from the United Nations.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said no formal answers had been received yet either from Gen. Francisco Franco, head of the Spanish state, or President Carmona of Portugal.

VICHY RELATIONS

up the sound of the submarine which was frantically trying to escape. Oakville's captain, Lt.-Cmdr. Clarence A. King, (of Oliver, B.C.) D.S.C., R.C.N.R., set his course to close that of the enemy's and shortly afterward his navigating officer, Sub-Lt. Keith Fenwick, R.C.N.R. (of Montreal), sighted the bow of the submarine. Oakville immediately closed to ram, and struck a glancing blow which did appreciable damage.

Maintained Contact

From there on, by skilful manoeuvring, she maintained close contact with the enemy, which she attacked with gunfire and depth charges and two subsequent rammings.

When the third ramming left the submarine motionless on the surface, Lt.-Cmdr. King, rather than risk the loss of his quarry by taking time to lower a boat for his boarding party, laid his ship along the submarine so that the party could leap directly to her deck. There was a moderate swell running and a choppy sea, and the manoeuvre was a high test of seamanship.

Despite the difficulties, it was accomplished, and two men effected a landing on the enemy craft. The corvette's attack, however, had been eminently successful, and the submarine even then was already near her death throes and the miniature boarding party, finding there was no hope of salvaging her, confined their activities to a thorough search of her hull.

Prisoners Ordered to Swim

The prisoners were ordered to swim to small boats which had been launched from a United States destroyer and from H.M.C.S. Oakville to rescue them, and our two men followed the same course. All were saved.

I feel that coupled with the pride that we, as Canadians, must feel in the spirit and dash displayed by H.M.C.S. Oakville and her crew, we must also feel a great satisfaction in this striking demonstration of how our naval forces and the forces of the United States are co-operating.

The initial bombing attack by the United States escort plane delivered the enemy into our hands—and I hope that the crew of that plane feel quite satisfied with the final result.

Mr. King then told press gallery correspondents that he had intended to have the press conference before 10 p. m. However, this clashed with the visit to his office of Mr. Ristelhueber, who was there when the news was being broadcast and who left just before the correspondents were admitted to the Prime Minister's office.

Termination of relations with Vichy ended a situation which has been frequently criticized in the House of Commons and the press. The move came little more than 24 hours after the Vichy Government broke diplomatic relations with the United States and approximately 48 hours after American troops landed at various points in French North Africa inaugurating a drive aimed at eliminating completely Axis influence in Africa.

Canada was the last member of the British Commonwealth to retain diplomatic relations with Vichy.

Be Given Passports

The French minister and his staff will be given passports enabling them to leave at once for France, Mr. King said. Mr. Ristelhueber had no comment to make on the development following his conference with the Prime Minister. But the lights were still burning in the legation building here early today and there were signs of great activity inside it.

Termination of relations will not involve the recall of a Canadian diplomat from Vichy. Since the fall of France contact has been maintained by occasional visits to Vichy by Pierre Dupuy Charge D'Affaires at the Canadian Legation in Paris prior to the German conquest. Mr. Dupuy, who has been stationed in London since then, has been advised that his duties as far as Vichy is concerned are ended.

Mr. King was asked at the press conference if there was any possibility of recognizing the De Gaulle authority as the government of France.

"At the present time it does not appear there is a de jure government," he replied. "What may develop in the future I cannot say."

The Prime Minister said French Nationals are in no way affected by last night's action and "do not become enemy aliens in any sense."

Collapse of the Boston Bruins In Hockey Loop Could Happen If Turn for Better Fails

Team Has Only 12 Players and Patronage Not Good at Boston

HOLD MANY RECORDS

By The Canadian Press

Collapse of Boston Bruins as a National Hockey League entity would be something to tear your heart apart, but it could happen this season.

It could happen principally because Manager Art Ross, with two sons in the armed services, is said to be weakening on the sport that made him famous. But there are other elements. Hockey interest in Boston appears to be definitely slackening. And Bruins, playing with as few as 11 or 12 men in uniform, have dropped into three starts to plumb the cellar depths.

If Bruins do abdicate, it would topple a great hockey empire. They have been called his club the "greatest team in N. H. L. history." The 1940-41 Bruins rode to hockey glory, winning the league championship, the Stanley Cup and fashioning half a dozen records which still stand.

Today Boston trails even New York Rangers, the team which has been scored against 21 times in four games. Rangers, however, seem better fixed for reserve strength.

Rangers' first action tonight against Chicago Black Hawks for their second New York appearance. Despite their lamentable showing so far, Rangers will move into a second-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens if they beat the Hawks. A Chicago victory, on the other hand, would give Coach Paul Thompson's club a first-place tie with Detroit Red Wings.

Bruins, idle over the week-end, travel to Toronto Thursday for an engagement with Leafs. Canadiens entertain Chicago in Montreal.

Senior O.H.A. Group To Open Season In Toronto Tonight

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — The four Toronto teams in the Senior "A" Ontario Hockey Association open their 1942-43 schedule here tonight rich in service talent which augurs one of the best seasons in years.

Sprinkled among the four teams are at least 10 former National Hockey League stars. These include Bob Goldham, Johnny McCreedy, Red Heron, and Ernie Dickens, Toronto Maple Leafs; Bill Wyzbinsky and Rod LeMarsh, Chicago Black Hawks; Bill Cowley, Boston; Dave Shill, Boston; and Earl Robinson, Montreal Maroons.

In the opener tonight Air Force meets Army Daggers. Navy and Research Group meet. Civilian entry in group one — round out the group. St. Catharines, Port Colborne, Niagara Falls and Hamilton comprise group two.

All four teams of group one will take part in brief opening ceremonies preceding the game.

LISCOMBE CLOSE

Montreal, Nov. 10 — (CP)—Gordie Drillon and Carl Liscombe are setting a dizzy pace among the National Hockey League scoring leaders but are getting little real competition, mostly from their own teammates, the first of the '43, N.H.L. weekly scoring reports showed today.

Drillon, who came to Canadiens this season from Toronto Maple Leafs, has chalked up nine points in three games on four goals and five assists, while Detroit's Liscombe has the same total after four games with three goals and six assists.

Montreal Canadiens' comic pair, Syd Howe of Detroit and Drillon's centre, Buddy O'Connor, each sigh is good each. Joe Carveth of the Red Wings has seven, while his teammates Sweeney Schriner and Bruno Isteneur are tied with Ray Getliffe, third member of Canadiens' most potent line, with six apiece.

Lynn Patrick of Rangers is the closest in scoring to the Detroit-Canadiens monopoly on the top spots with five.

Drillon and Watson are tied with Red Hamill of Rangers for most goals scored, all of them for goals scored. O'Connor's seven assists give him the individual total, department.

Defender Dory Jimmy Orlando has the greatest variety of penalties, with eight minutes in minors, a 10-minute misconduct and a match penalty. But as far as the league's statistician is concerned — taking into account only minors and majors — Bryan Hextall of Rangers, temporary lieutenant of the league with 19 minutes served in four games.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — The National Hockey League, all-Canada and hockey-loving centres of United States should be glad to those footfitters of the Junior Rams who gained fame and money in Pacific coliseum by playing puck stars and fighting in return "not the assignation that's come with a few tall dots.

One such is George Jones, president of Portland (Ore.) Rosebuds, who spent eight years building a championship club, won the Memorial Cup last spring, had visions of another great team, then saw his hopes shattered by raiding professional clubs. Yet Jones is carrying on, building again, and perhaps so professional clubs can blow down another house of cards.

This is not criticism of professional hockey's war-born policy of raiding junior clubs for players not subject to immediate call to the colors, despite the fact that the game is in danger of losing the fountain of Canada's youth.

Terriers expected to carry over from last season the nucleus of another great team, then Murdo Bisset of the American League signed Oordie Ball, the 16-year-old goalie they were figuring would be a complete forward line — Ian Laird, Joe Ball and Bill Cowley — in the N. H. L.

Under the N. H. L. agreement, Terriers receive $1,000 for each player by the Bend-Bell-Gooden line. The money will help develop new players, but mush while Portage must worry along with the inexperienced club.

They're going to kill the goose that laid the golden egg for them if they raid the juniors this way," Jones told Howard Grandson Sun's Crawford. But Jones means to quit when the going is tough. "It would hardly be fair to the people, who have supported us so faithfully in the past if we disbanded this year."

After a look at the Bend-Bell-Gooden line in the opening W.H.L. game at Toronto, Eastern fans realized the speed and shiftly that beat Ottawa Generals last April at Winnipeg. George (Ottawa Times-Gazette) Campbell wrote: "If the Canadiens don't do something they are stepping in the Memorial Cup final."

All-Canada Final Will Be Played

Toronto, Nov. 10 (CP)—Executive difficulties settled, Football Canada looked forward to the third wartime meeting of East and West in an all-Canada final for the Grey Cup.

A meeting of eastern members of the Canadian Rugby Union yesterday set Dec. 12 as the date for the Eastern Finals, with Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers to oppose eastern Canada's champion at Toronto's Varsity stadium. Final approval of this plan was given when the Bombers' home by C.R.U. President A. W. Matthews.

Eastern Canada's representatives will be decided Dec. 5, also at Varsity stadium, when the Ontario Rugby Football Union champions oppose the Montreal Rugby Football Union champions in an eastern final.

Application of Sarnia Tritons to take part in the playoffs—the Western Interprovincial Union, the O.R.F.U. and the Ontario City League—were accepted, by the C.R.U., but a fresh application—from the Quebec Rugby Union—was rejected because C.R.U. executive members "felt this should not be accepted in view of the constitutional requirements."

London, Nov. 10 (CP)—Dave Neville was some shakes as a hockey player back in Canada and although he didn't excel in the centre of an arena rink, Flying Officer Neville, now attached to the Royal Canadian Air Force squadron, RC. Dave, son of Coach Conrad Neville of the O.H.A. senior "B" series of the Toronto Y.M.C.A., has been stationed in England for the past year.

Dave, with Royals in 1936-38 as a centre and right wing, participated in the "Big" game Aldershot-Canada. He was one of a few all-star performers in the Royals' 5-0 victory. Olympic team that went to Germany in 1936. Lieut.-Colonel A. T. Montreal he performed with Hamilton Tigers of the Canadian Rugby Union. Returning to Ontario he was with the powerful Toronto Goodyears in 1939.

The fellow who digs up a lot of chatter for this column is Bill Ferrier, son of Montreal, former non-playing manager of Canada's Davis Cup tennis team, who is also of a tennis and badminton magnate since until he joined the R.C.A.F. as a public relations officer. Bob Ferrier, Montreal, a big deal in London headquarters and occasionally get away to visit Canadian squadrons, is also with the bunch. He knew many of them back home and he has a wide circle of friends here. In between lines he tries his best to segment a sentence from Pilot Officer Ferrier, Montreal, to Regina as the opposition.

Neville played on the Forster-managed Cup teams. It's a queer feeling to be sitting in the old London headquarters of the R.C.A.F. # Stoker Works Deep In Hole of Corvette With Water to Waist

Halifax, Nov. 10 (CP) — Stoker Aurel Vezina of Ottawa, in the Corvette Oakville which sank a submarine in the Mediterranean, also is called a man of few words.

He worked deep in the corvette, first in the boiler room and later in the engine room. As the stocky 30-year-old would commit himself. He said the ship was hit in two. "It's 2 hold, down on the bottom of the ship, and "it's round and about 200 feet long." Asked why when you don't know what's happening.

He didn't say so, but that "funny feeling" must have been there when the ship after the corvette shuddered with the shock of the third torpedo and the list to starboard gushed in and all the lights went out.

"When she hit that third time everything seemed to stop, and then," he said, and added, "then everything started at once too."

"The water started coming in, fast. The lights went out and it was doubtful if I could find my way to my waist.

"Finally I was told to come up top."

DISTRICT HOCKEY CHATTER

There are many ifs and ands up and down Eastern Ontario hockey circles these days but all are rumors of the first water. . . . It has been suggested Queen's University may enter a team in the district senior "B" series of the O.H.A. Van Horne City League opens in Kingston this week with teams from the three branches of the armed services mingling with civilian squads. . . . Kingston Frontenacs had their opening game in the Ottawa Senior League postponed for one week, a move that must have been most acceptable to Coach Wally Elmer. . . . Over in Peterboro Fred Sasseen and Jim Ellis have material for another good junior aggregation but no homeless. . . . The 1941-43 senior "B" championship will not again appear in the Brock Street Arena this season, the management operating the Brock St. are more interested in dancing than hockey. . . . Belleville's national sports pastime. The irony of this is found in the fact that the Brock St. arena was erected in 1923 by public subscription to provide once and for all a home for Belleville hockey fans. Many times have changed! . . . The Petes could play their home games in the Hume Arena, but it would be suicide of a goody following. . . . Starting over in Kingston another question mark looms on the puck horizon, as the future of the Ontario County seat haven't been definitely established as yet. Increased attendance and the Red Wings' management is rather skeptical. . . . In Belleville the Reliance A.C. is sitting wondering what it's all about. The Reliance have had a senior "B" team couldn't be organized in the district. Cobourg, Whitby, and a compact senior group at Oshawa. Locally the A.C. A.C. will operate a purely service league, but no doubt the Trenton Air Base will be represented on the return to O.H.A. wars as an all-star unit. . . . Which is all right for the opening, sentence these are merely "rumblings" and not to be taken in the central zone will be determined at the annual meeting of the O.H.A.

THE OTHER DAY THE BOYS were arguing as to the proper explanation of the "Blinker Ball Light" play in football. Rugby football experts describe the play thusly:

Blinker of Ubert—Another old reliable play based wholly on surprise and speed. The ball is passed by virtually every team in the country, the fullback carries a real actor. The play starts much like the end round, but in this case the passer pulls his arm back and appears just about to get the ball away when the end or halfback comes by behind him and takes ball off his hand, which is cocked in passing pose behind his right ear. The fullback completes the motion of passing as the runner goes around or right past him. Many variations, including a fake punt, have been developed on the basis of the motions of blocking, usually on third down, and handing off on first down. . . . Ed. Note.

Life in Singapore Described At Women's Canadian Club

Mrs. H. V. Morris of Ottawa Has Husband There as Prisoner

WOMEN ASSISTED

With spirits high a young Canadian couple set sail from Canada four years ago, the husband having taken a commission as medical officer in the Indian Army so that they could see the world. In that four years, two children were born to them, they journeyed into many far-off places, into jungles where no white woman had ever ventured. The beginning of the war found them in Singapore. There adventure turned to tragedy and today finds a young mother in Canada with her children. She has had no news of her husband, whom she left fighting in the Singapore garrison, in nine months. This was the story told to the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. V. Morris of Ottawa. Her husband is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Morris, graduate of Queen's University. Mrs. Morris was introduced to her audience by Mrs. R. O. Truesdale, vice president, in the absence of the president, Mrs. R. A. Gee.

Describes Journey

Mrs. Morris described in interesting style the journey of her husband and herself to India, the beauties of the country and the strange places she visited particularly that of Trengganu where, during her husband's leave, they spent a week exploring in the depths of the jungle. Life in Singapore took on a different tone, when England declared war on Germany. The women living in Singapore, Europeans and Asiatics formed a volunteer corps of first aid, A.R.P. duties, and zealously undertook work for the Red Cross, sending many articles to the bombed out areas of Britain. When the situation became more acute, all the men were called to the army, and all European women, who had business training were called to the services to release men for combat duties. The Chinese women undersaw in business methods were excellent in first aid work. As in England in their time off, the residents maintained some of their peacetime activities with occasional parties and dances but most of their days were taken up with their service duties.

Lack of Fighter Planes

The first bombing by the Japanese came as a shock to the residents, strongly fortified as Singapore was, it was particularly weak in air defence, and had there been adequate planes available from England the story might have been different. Promptly it became clear that all women must leave Singapore. Mrs. Morris went with the European women to Australia. A boat ordinarily carrying a stinger list of four hundred, contained 28 hundred women and children. The Japanese shelled the boat as it left the harbor but all the bombs landed in the water. Mrs. Morris stepped her baby to her back, Indian fashion, placing the life belt about both and provided her other child with a life belt. Nights were spent on deck as it was not safe to go to bed.

In the last stages of their trip, when they changed ships to go to Sydney the situation was acute. Dysentry broke out on the boat and ten children died of it. In Australia the Red Cross was at the dock with warm clothing for the children and women as they had nothing of this kind in their tropical outfits.

Lived in Australia

Mrs. Morris lived in Australia for some months and then it was thought advisable for her to continue on to Canada and she reached her home in Ottawa without incident.

There has been no word from the thousands of men left in Singapore as the Japanese authorities will not co-operate with the Red Cross to give out news.

As one knowing intimately the horrors of war, and the atrocities of the enemy, Mrs. Morris urged Canadians not to relax their war effort until Victory has been won.

BRITISH BOMBERS

Follow Daylight Raids

Last night's excursion followed daylight raids on occupied France by the United States army air forces and the R. A. F.

Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers fought their way through a savage attack by German fighter planes yesterday to score many hits on the Nazi U-boat base at St. Nazaire, occupied France, in the longest operational flight yet undertaken by American airmen in the European theatre of war.

Three American bombers failed to return, but success of the operation was evident in a joint British-United States communique which said "Many hits were observed on the target."

The flight followed an attack by R. A. F. Boston bombers on the docks at La Havre, two returning R. A. F. pilot said "One bomb appeared to hit a ship on the dock."

The attack on St. Nazaire was the first raid on this important U-boat base and shipbuilding centre by American fliers and only the second daylight raid. The R. A. F. has pounded the port 28 times, once during daylight in May, 1941.

bureau said, and the once-flaming front now is west of the city was correct, for a line reporting a raid behind German lines in which 36 Germans were killed.

Snipers and guerillas were reported at work all along the western front, with the Russians seeking to unnerve the Germans, upset their supply and frustrate their designs.

Withdraw to Former Positions

Near Monkok, another Caucasian focal point of the Nazi drive toward the Georgian military highway, "70 German were said to have made light attacks on Russian positions, then withdrawn to their original lines leaving 160 dead behind, the midnight communique said. A German headquarters was reported routed and prisoners taken in that area.

"Small enemy groups" attacked in the Stalingrad area, but they were repulsed and the Russians continued fortifying their positions, the communique said. There was some fighting in the northern factory district inside Stalingrad where 200 Germans were killed, it was reported.

Further north in the Voronesh region, Russian artillery was reported active, destroying German blockhouses and gun positions.

A 2,000-ton German transport was reported sunk in the Black Sea.

Nazis Report Attack On Russian Fortress Of Schluesselberg

London, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Reuters news agency reported today that DNB, German war time propaganda agency, had broadcast an account of a German dive-bombing attack on the Russian fortress of Schluesselberg — a report which suggested the Nazi encirclement of Leningrad was being broken.

For more than a year the Germans have held that fortress on the Lake Ladoga east of Leningrad.

The Russians have not announced recapture of the town, and the Germans have never hinted its loss, until today.

William Insley, Point Anne, Given Safety Medal

Ralph A. Payne and Wilfred Tweddle Are Presented With Awards for Saving Life

D. MacDONALD PRAISED

For the second year in succession the National Safety Council President's medal, the greatest civilian award for deeds of valor performed by a person in civilian occupation, has been presented to a Point Anne resident.

The medal was presented to Mr. William Insley of Point Anne on Monday evening for administering resuscitation to a near-drowned youth last April 5th. In conjunction with the above presentation the Royal Canadian Humane Association Parchment was presented to Mr. Donald McDonald, for the part he took in the actual rescue.

Apparently in an effort to establish an early season swimming record in the Bay of Quinte, 13-year-old Gerald Burshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Burshaw of Point Anne, early last spring pushed off from the shore on a raft and in the spurt of diving dived from the raft drifting out into the bay. The raft drifted to mid-bay and the youth, becoming frightened, started to swim to the shore. Then realising he could not swim the distance, he turned and swam to old Gerald Burshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Burshaw of Point Anne, early last spring pushed off from the shore on a raft and in the spurt of diving dived from the raft drifting out into the bay. The raft drifted to mid-bay and the youth, becoming frightened, started to swim to the shore. Then realising he could not swim the distance, he turned and swam to old Gerald Burshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Burshaw of Point Anne, early last spring pushed off from the shore on a raft and in the spurt of diving dived from the raft drifting out into the bay. The raft drifted to mid-bay and the youth, becoming frightened, started to swim to the shore. Then realising he could not swim the distance, he turned and swam to the raft, reaching it in such an exhausted and weakened condition he could not get aboard.

Frantically the lad clung to the logs of the raft's frame but the weight pulled it down until his head gradually sank under the water. But he grip on the raft never relaxed.

Noticed from Shore

In the meantime the boy's plight had been noticed from the shore and Mr. Donald McDonald, 73-year-old Point Anne resident, immediately rowed to his assistance in the only immediately available craft, a leaky punt. Mr. McDonald reached the lad before his grip on the raft relaxed. He was still conscious and had already stopped breathing. He was pulled into the boat and rowed ashore.

Credit for saving the Burshaw lad goes to Mr. Insley who personally assisted and directed resuscitation for four hours. Before the spark of life was evident, Mr. Insley was assisted in his efforts by Ralph A. Payne and Wilfred Twining. Both men have been awarded parchments, while Mr. Insley's untiring efforts were rewarded by recognition by National Safety Council.

Presentation Made

Presentation of the medal and the parchments was made in the Parish Hall by J. H. G. Dempster, director of safety for the Canadian Cement Company, Ltd.

Mr. Dempster briefly lectured the many children of the village who attended the presentation, calling upon them to exercise safety in their work and play.

"Learn to swim and to swim properly," urged Mr. Dempster. "This country needs a lot of good and as women."

He referred briefly to the presentation of the Life Saving Medal to Mr. Insley last year and then stated that his visits to Point Anne to award such medals two years in succession is "altogether too frequent."

Mr. J. H. Legate, Superintendent of the Canada Cement Company, introduced Mr. Dempster to the meeting, while added to the program was the showing of several films depicting methods of manufacturing Portland Cement, and the many uses to which it is put.

A supporting device to carry a filled paper marketing bag has been invented that can be folded and carried in a pocket.

AT THE CAPITOL

"King's Row"

Boner-hounds, those movie fans whose chief delight is to detect errors in pictures, are going to have a tough time with "King's Row," the Warner Bros. film version of the best-selling novel by Henry Bellamann now at the Capitol.

William Cameron Menzies, production designer; Carl Weyl, art director, and Winnie Day, researcher, claim that this is the most authentic picturization ever made of the period between 1890 and 1904. Months of research went into the making of this film to assure absolutely authentic settings and costumes for Ann Sheridan, Betty Field, Robert Cummings and Ronald Reagan, and the large supporting cast. Every word of dialogue spoken in Casey Robinson's masterly script was checked, rechecked and double-checked to be certain that only colloquialisms peculiar to small-town Missouri and in vogue during the period were used.

"Torpedo Boat"

(First Belleville Showing)

With the roar of powerful motors for refrain and the tang of salt spray for atmosphere, Paramount's newest and most thrill film, "Torpedo Boat," arrived at the Capitol Theatre last night as companion feature and was accorded immediate acclaim.

Richard Arlen and blonde Jean Parker share starring honors in this stirring tale of the men who build and test the Navy's 70-mile an hour "mosquito boats." Others in the cast are Mary Carlisle, Phillip Terry, Dick Purcell and Warren Hymer. Produced by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas, the picture was directed by John Rawlins. Maxwell Shane wrote the screen play based on a story by Richard Goldstein.

"Torpedo Boat" reeks from one thrill to another with hardly a moment between for the audience to catch its collective breath. It's a blend of excitement, plus plenty of romance and just enough comedy. It's a top flight romantic thriller in anybody's league. You'll be sorry if you miss it.

AT THE BELLE

"Mrs. Miniver"

"Mrs. Miniver," Jan Struther's set-selling novel, dealing with the high courage of the English middle class during the early days of the terrors, is brought to the screen as a living, breathing reality by Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon and a perfect chosen cast in the new M-G-M picture now showing at the Belle Theatre.

Tremendous Second Time

The story deals with Mrs. Miniver and her husband, John, played by Miss Garson and Pidgeon, respectively, and their love affair, "Blossoms in the Dust". Their son, al Oxford, joins the R.A.F. and becomes engaged to the granddaughter of a noble-woman of the village in the early days. How they do their best to carry on life as usual; their bravery in raid alarms; how the older men aided in the rescue at Dunkirk; flurs in moving human interest episodes mingled with comedy. The destruction of the village by bombers is climaxed by the villagers, in their wrecked church, inspired by their rector, reciting to "carry on" with the same cool courage and with an abiding faith.

Valor Under Fire

Miss Garson's role is breathtakingly beautiful and typifies the valor of the British under fire. The love angle is in the case of pretty Teresa Wright and Richard Ney, and Dame May Whitty, is dominant as the noblewoman to whom the finals of war bring a touch of democracy. Typical by English characters are enacted by Reginald Owen, Henry Travers and Christopher Severn Henry Wilcoxon has made a splendid job of the vicar.

William A. Wyler directed with charm and a deep touch, and Joseph Ruttenberg contributed effective and artistic photography. Inspiring, too, is the musical score by Herbert Stothart.

The Belle News of the Day will be described by Lowell Thomas on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"My Sister Eileen"

"My Sister Eileen" came to Belleville yesterday, at the McCarthy theatre and can be said to be here. She's a devastating bundle of blonde dynamite, a cute little eyeful with a flare for hilarious trouble.

Screen version of the uproarious stage success which has convulsed American theatre audiences for years, "My Sister Eileen" was directed by Alexander Hall. It stars Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair, and Mrs. F. Sidney Howard Hymer. Also excellent favorites as George Tobias, Allyn Joslyn, Elliott Dornell, Richard Quine, Donald MacBride, Jane Havoc, Grant Mitchell, Gordon Jones, Frank Sully and Elizabeth Patterson.

"My Sister Eileen" originally was a series of magazine stories by Ruth McKenney, adapted to the stage by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. The stories described the adventures of two sisters who came from Columbus, Ohio, seeking fame and fortune in New York city. Ruth Sherwood, older and more level-headed, wants to be a writer, but spends most of her time watching the amazing advancement the complications into which her kid sister Eileen is constantly falling. Eileen with a "you-hoo" flighty and an innocent expression, manages to be the most man-chased female in the city, without even trying.

"My Sister Eileen" in film form is even more delightful and refreshing than its literary or theatrical predecessors. The greater scope of the camera, the inimitable performances of its stars and other players, the shrewd showmanship brought to the screen by Mr. Hall, all contribute to the appealing, uproarious film. The new screen comedy, highly recommended to all.

BRES STORE HONEY IN BIRD HOUSE

BANCROFT

Chickens Taken Home to Roost

Bancroft, Nov. 10 — (Special) — Just recently Mrs. Lorne White of Boulter had the misfortune of having twenty-one Light Sussex Cockerels stolen from their pen. At the time of the incident Provincial Constables R. W. Palmateer of Bancroft was notified and his first investigations revealed no clue but that this week, acting on another clue the officer must have struck home pretty straight as he was informed the following day that all the missing hens had been returned to the White hen house.

The local War Workers have completed the task in that they have shipped overseas this week sixty-four Xmas boxes laden with necessities and luxuries for the boys that are on Active Service in England from Bancroft.

Mr. W. E. Wiggins left by motor on Thursday for Toronto, returning via Cobourg and Belleville where he visited his sons, Ernest and Cecil respectively.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Anderson left by motor Thursday for London, Ontario, where they will combine business and pleasure during their two week stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goodman and son Donald motored to Belleville on Saturday spending the week-end at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Cecil Wiggins.

Miss Janet Russell from Mars J. Joyce of Toronto spent over the week-end at their homes in Bancroft.

Mr. Jim Joynt of the Navy arrived home from Kingston Saturday visiting with his wife and parents in Bancroft, returning Sunday evening.

Turman McDonald of Camp Borden is home on a two week leave visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. McDonald of Hyde.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Price of Kingston arrived Sunday to Bancroft day and visited at the homes of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Price of Bancroft and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hudson of Boulter, respectively.

The Red Cross Auxiliary of Bancroft held a meeting on Wednesday in the Red Cross room on Bridge Street on Saturday afternoon and the net proceeds of the sale amounted to $45.79.

VICHY PROHIBITS DEMONSTRATION

Vichy, (From French Broadcasts) Nov. 10 (AP)—The government announced today that any public manifestation tomorrow, Armistice day, would be strictly prohibited, but said the day should be celebrated by "quiet, personal meditation."

CHAPTER 13

Baffled

The day after Alma's funeral, Captain Raynor went to see the widowed husband. Hugh was disinclined to see him, but he could not well refuse, so he invited the caller in a small reception room.

"I'm sorry to disturb you," Raynor said, "but there are a few things I want to speak of and I may not have to trouble you again."

"Very well," Hugh said, smarting as though he dreaded a return to the subject. He looked several years older, and he seemed to have lost his dignity and pride.

"You have had no further information?" Raynor said gently.

"No. I've learned nothing."

"Have you seen your lawyers yet?"

"No; but I'm expecting Mr. Chadwick this afternoon. He'll be here any minute. Can you ask him what you want to know?"

"Why, yes, Have you learned if Mrs. McCleod left a will?"

"Yes, I think she did. But I have no idea of its contents."

"Will your lawyer know?"

"Oh, yes, Chadwick, the senior member of the firm, is my lawyer; Wade, the junior, was Alma's advisor. But Chadwick can tell you all."

"Mrs. McCleod had her own fortune, then?"

"That's not quite the way to put it. She liked the fun of drawing her own checks, so I let her have a bank account, and when it ran low, I added to it. But I never kept account of much. I paid all her bills. The account merely amused her. How does it interest you?"

"We are looking into matters pretty thoroughly. We found one more small article, which may be a clue. Will you look at it?"

Raynor took from his pocket and offered Hugh a small coin.

As he took it, Hugh's sad face relaxed into a tender smile, "Where did you find this?" he asked.

"On the couch, after Mrs. McCleod was taken away. It was here, then?"

Raynor seemed a little disappointed, as Hugh went on: "Yes; it was one of her dearly loved possessions, as it had been one of mine. It is an old Scotch coin, in fact it is a piece of almost no value. But my father gave it to me when I was a small child, called it my lucky piece, and I insisted as I was the first money I ever owned, I never spent it. I variably carried it with me until—until I married. When I showed it to Alma and told her its history, nothing would do but I must give it to her. I didn't mind. I would have given her anything in my power. She vowed she would carry it with her always. She did, to my knowledge. When in evening dress she carried it in a little gold purse, but the last time she put on the little gold bag? This must have fallen out of it!"

"Yes, the bag was there, too."

"May I have it? Anything of my wife's is doubly dear to me now. And I have had that coin ever since I was five years old."

"You may have it, of course. But just now, I must keep it."

"Is it a clue? I haven't heard much about clues. I thought they were of utmost importance in an investigation."

"Yes, they are, if they are real clues, that point to the criminal. But this—pshaw, do you call it?—is of no use that way."

"Have you any clues that are of importance? I want you to find the man who did this thing to Mrs. Cleod and not speak angrily, but with an air of determination.

"Oh, we'll get him," Raynor promised. "He cannot get away from us."

"Mr. McCleod, do you think it was one of the young men belonging to what your wife called her crowd?"

"I don't see how I can think anything else. The older people who were here were all my friends. Not one of them would have the least reason or wish to kill my wife."

"No, of course not. But there is a chance of some stranger having come into the house, secretly, and hidden himself somewhere in your apartment."

"No. This house is too well managed for that to happen. There is always a detective on guard—"

"It is impossible. And as to the servants? I don't mean your own people, but—could there outsiders here? The caterer's men, or other extra people?"

"Yes, I suppose there were such. But they would have no reason for ill-feeling toward Alma or myself. Nor would any of those men be upstairs. The elevator was served upstairs."

"Is it possible that your wife had acquaintances that you do not know about? Have you never thought or imagined that there might be some secret?"

"Don't! I cannot bear it. Such a thing cannot be!"

The detective took this speech at its opposite intent, and concluded he had hit on the truth. He had heard the vaguest hints that led to a belief at some time in Alma's past, that Hugh knew about, but was unwilling to recognize.

He dropped the subject and looking at his notebook, he said, "I should like to meet your sister, Miss Mary McCleod. I shall put another hour in any way, but as a member of your family you'll make her acquainted with Mr. Raynor, to her apartment?"

Hugh hesitated, then he said: "Not that, I think. My father is very ill. But if you want to speak to Sonny, she will come down here. And I will take her place at this father's bedside."

"Very well, Mr. McCleod, please do so. It will be a short interview, and then, you will be expecting your lawyer."

"Yes, yes. I will ask Emmy to come down here."

Raynor, a little surprised that he had accomplished his wish so easily was deep in thought when he heard a loud voice say, "Good morning, Captain Raynor. I understand you want to talk to me."

He sprang to his feet and found a tall, large woman, whom he mentally classed as a Grenadier.

"Miss McCleod?" he said. "I am glad to see you. May I be allowed to express my sympathy in your sorrow?"

Emmy McCleod's face would have been handsome, but for the expression it now wore.-She looked coldly scornful, and said, in a hard voice, "Save your sympathy for my brother. I do not need it. My brother's wife meant little to me."

"But you surely are grieved at her untimely and unseemly death—"

"No; except in so far as I grieve for my brother. But he will be far better without her. He does not realize this now, of course, but he will—he must. Now, tell me plainly, Captain Raynor, are you going to find the brute who killed Hughie's wife?"

"I sincerely hope so, Miss McCleod. And I'm wondering if you could tell me a little about her past. Did you know her before her marriage to your brother?"

"No; nor I haven't known her since. We never were friends, nor pretended to be. She married Hugh for his money and as I saw through her, she had no use for me."

"I think she loved her husband, Miss Emmy. Her whole life story leads me to believe that."

"You probably know all there is to know about them—except one thing. Did Hugh tell you, since he seems to have been confidential, of the blackmail he is paying, because of her early indiscretions?"

Raynor was a quick thinker, "I'm sure you agree with me," he said, looking at her with apparent understanding, "that the subject would better not to be mentioned. I know your wise instincts tell you so, and I am proud to feel that I am honored with your confidence."

By this speech he hoped to confuse her the more.

"Well," she said, uncertainly, "of course you know best, but I—this—"

"Now, my dear Miss Emmy, say no more. We are at one, you and I, and we both know that the less said the better."

At that moment, McCleod returned. "Chadwick is here," he said. "Emmy, do go back to father, he is asking for you." He looked at his sister curiously, as though surprised to see her smiling amiably.

"Good-by, Captain Raynor," she said. "I shall hope to see you again some time."

"Assuredly, Miss McCleod," he replied, and she left.

"Mister Chadwick," Foo Chow announced, in his sing-song way.

After a few commonplaces, he nor began to ask questions. He learned that although his partner had been very personally in touch with Mrs. McCleod than he had, yet Chadwick knew all about the will and all the circumstances, and the head of the firm, he would get them any information he possessed.

The will, after all, was of slight importance. Alma had left Linda ten thousand dollars which, while it seemed enormous to the other bequests, had been too, generous to Hugh.

"It was my wife's own money," he said. "She had a right to do what she pleased with it. And she was all devoted to her, Alma depended on Linda for more than an ordinary maid's services.

The residuary estate was left to Hugh, with instructions to let Miss Emmy such pieces of jewelry as he saw fit.

Raynor was disappointed that the will gave him no new points, and he asked Chadwick whether he looked after Mrs. McCleod's investments.

"I never knew she had any," the lawyer returned, "but it may be Wade knew of some. I doubt they were of importance."

"I think it would be wise, Mr. Chadwick, if you would send on, if you would ask Mr. Ogden Murray about some shares or stocks of an oil well in which Mrs. McCleod is interested—"

"That matter is being looked into," Chadwick interrupted, "but likely Mrs. McCleod had really bought the shares. It does not affect your investigation. I think she had not done so, as there is no record of the transaction."

"I think she had not bought them too," Raynor agreed, "as I have been told that she planned to do so the afternoon after her death."

"How who told you that?" Hugh asked, looking startled.

"Linda told me. She knew Mrs. McCleod had a date with Murray for luncheon that day."

"I don't believe it!" Hugh exclaimed, but Raynor said, "I expect to see Mr. Murray this afternoon, and I'll find out the truth. Put it out of your mind, Mr. McCleod."
